HANDS OFF U. S.!—COOLIDGE

CAL PROBABLY; MPASSE MAYBE; BOB? NO CHANCE

Davis Out of It, Too, Henning Thinks.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Coolidge probably, Davis improbably, La Follette impossibly.

A deadlock possibly.

Thus do I epitomize the prospective outcome of the presidential election four weeks from Tuesday.

After journeying across the country surveying the political situation state by state, I rate President Coolidge stronger and both Mr. Davis and Senator La Follette weaker than I heretofore had judged them. I regard the chances of the election of Mr. Coolidge at the polls as more favorable and the chances of the projection of the election into congress as more remote than I did when I reviewed the situation a week ago. I see little if any improvement in the prospects of Mr. Davis, who seems a beaten candidate.

Bob's Strength a Puzzler.

The principal uncertainty now is the strength of La Follette. He has rallied to his standard the radicals and the discontented of both old parties. Circumstances are such, however, that he cannot expect to carry any state east of the Mississippi river except Wisconsin. In normally Republican territory west of the Mississippi he is virtually wiping the Democratic party out of existence and seriously cutting into Republican strength.

As to how many states La Follette can carry, however, the most astute political observers can only guess. There is much noise attending the La Follette candidacy everywhere and there is no telling how many ballots will come out of it on election day. Probably fewer than are expected. Insurgency rarely lives up to its advertising.

The cross country stumping trip La Follette is about to embark on may be a decisive factor in his canvass—it may make or break him as an important contender in the election. If he succeeds in firing the populace, as he once could, he is likely to become a more formidable foe of Coolidge in the west, with enough states behind him to deprive any candidate of a majority of electoral votes and project the election into congress.

His Age May Count.

If, however, the appearance of the warrior in his old age, with his son at his elbow prompting him, makes an unfavorable impression, or, if he should slip his trolley as he did in the speech at the Philadelphia dinner in 1912, derailing his candidacy at that time, a reaction unfavorable to him might be expected.

Increasing prosperity on the farms is a factor working against La Follette more and more. The price of wheat is sailing skyward, prices of other products have been going up, farmers are paying their debts and buying more flivvers. They are beginning to feel a lot less radical.

So the La Follette strength is more or less guess-work. The northwest, however, is where he is strongest and the situation today, so far as it can be gauged, suggests that he may carry nearly all the states there. Coolidge still probably would win a majority of the electoral vote, even with La Follette carrying the northwest, but if La Follette should win a number of other western states also the result probably would be projection of the election into congress.

How and Where Davis Stands.

In setting forth the grounds for these conclusions let me begin by casting up the probable strength of Mr. Davis, who, with the solid south, is the only candidate with an irreducible minimum. The following states will give their electoral votes to Mr. Davis:

Virginia	12	Mississippi	10
North Carolina	12	Florida	6
South Carolina	9	Louisiana	10
Alabama	12	Arkansas	9
Tennessee	12	Texas	20
Georgia	14

A total of 126 electoral votes for Mr. Davis to start with.

Then there are these border states: Maryland, 8; Kentucky, 13; Oklahoma, 10; West Virginia, 8; Missouri, 18.

Traditionally the Democrats have the advantage in all the states except West Virginia, which, however, is Mr. Davis' home state and may go Democratic for that reason. The Republicans think they have an excellent chance of carrying West Virginia, Maryland, Missouri and Oklahoma. However, assume that Mr. Davis carries them all, bringing the total of the Democratic candidate up to 183.

Rhode Island, with 5, and Delaware, with 3 electoral votes, are doubtful states which Mr. Davis is not unlikely

FRESHMAN LEADS ROBBER ALL OVER N. U. FRAT HOUSE

While the Northwestern university brothers in Lambda Chi Alpha watched their football team triumph yesterday, a well dressed, pleasant young man appeared at the door of their house, 2023 Orrington avenue, Evanston.

"I would like to see Robert Eubanks," he told Phillip Jordan, a freshman who had been left on duty.

Jordan told him Eubanks was at the game.

"I see you have remodeled the place since I was last here," the stranger continued. "I'd like to look around if you don't mind."

Jordan showed him the whole house. The stranger departed, thanking him for his courtesy.

When the brothers returned they missed clothing, jewelry, and money valued at more than $600. Police say a confederate of the visitor followed the inspection from room to room in making the thefts.

PERSHING FOR WAR SECRETARY? RIGHT IN HIS LINE

New York, Oct. 4.—Gen. John Pershing, retired, sailed on the Leviathan today to visit his son who is at school in Switzerland.

Asked whether he would accept a post as secretary of war in the next administration if it were tendered him, Gen. Pershing grinned and said:

"Why, that would be right in my line. But, honestly, I hadn't given it a thought."

Four Killed When M. P. Train Hits Open Switch

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Oct. 4.—Four men were killed and one seriously and several others slightly injured tonight when Missouri Pacific passenger train No. 8, northward bound from Texas points, struck an open switch at Swifton, Ark., eighty miles south of here. The engine and ten of the twelve cars left the tracks. Relief trains from here and Little Rock, Ark., were rushed to the scene.

Coolidges Celebrate 19th Anniversary of Wedding

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—President and Mrs. Coolidge today celebrated their nineteenth wedding anniversary. One of the busiest daily programs of the week faced the President, but tonight he and Mrs. Coolidge plan to board the Mayflower, the presidential yacht, for a short cruise down the river.

KILLS WIFE AND SAYS 'FAREWELL'

Tragedy Leaves Crippled Son Helpless.

William Ehrig, 45 years old, shot and killed his wife, Anna, also 45, in sight of a score of persons at the corner of Normal boulevard and Fifty-eighth street last night. Then he disappeared, leaving in his room at 420 West 63d street a note which read:

"Good-by to all."

It was presumed by police that he committed suicide.

Mrs. Ehrig, estranged from her husband, had been living at 5718 Normal boulevard; and there in their home her son, Harry Ehrig Jr., paralyzed since birth, lay unconscious from the shock of the tragedy last night.

Married to Two Brothers.

As a tragedy, it was one of a woman married in succession to two brothers. More than twenty-five years ago Mrs. Ehrig had been married to Harry Ehrig, brother of William and the father of her son. Following Harry Ehrig's death a few years ago William courted her, and after several years they were married.

There were quarrels. Mrs. Ehrig had to support herself and the crippled son, now 20 years old, and Ehrig went to live at the home of Mrs. S. J. Hart, on 63d street.

Early last evening Ehrig put his revolver in his pocket, wrote the supposed suicide note, and left it with $300 on his dresser.

He went to Normal boulevard and 58th street, a corner his wife would pass on the way from work.

Quarrel Precedes Shooting.

They met and conversed in low tones at first, witnesses said. The conversation grew bitter. Suddenly Ehrig whipped out the revolver, fired, and ran away.

Mrs. Ehrig, rushed to the Englewood hospital, died on the operating table.

Harry Ehrig Jr., the crippled victim of the tragedy, is a composer and song writer.

Often bands have come to the home in Normal boulevard and sometimes he has painfully directed them with the little movement he has in his right arm.

He could do that when his mother lived to give him the tender care so helpless a cripple needs. But now she is gone.

$1,000,000 FIRE AT OMAHA PLANT OF CUDAHY & CO.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 5, 2 a. m.—A fire is reported to be destroying the lumber yard and outlying buildings of the Cudahy packing plant at South Omaha. The entire plant is endangered, the fire department reports.

The fire was not under control at 1:30 o'clock this morning. While no official statement was made by the Cudahy company, it was estimated the loss will exceed $1,000,000.

The box factory, the hide factory, the lumber yard, and the Dutch cleanser plant are burning and firemen are unable to control these blazes.

A fortunate shift of the wind at the height of the fire directed the flames from other buildings and the danger of a further spread of the fire was thought to be passed.

VICTOR'S CHEER GIVEN JOHNSON EVEN IN DEFEAT

Mates Lack Punch in Pinch.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—Walter "Barney" Johnson remains brilliant even in defeat. Giving all that was in his aged right arm, the hero of a nation stood the New York Giants on their heads for eleven rounds today. Then, in the twelfth came a break. Somebody blundered and the National leaguers walked through the opening to defeat "Barney" and the Senators in the first of the world's series baseball battle by 4 to 3. The second game of the series is played here tomorrow.

For the Giants today's result was a win, but nothing else. The old snap and dash that characterized their pennant scramble was absent. They didn't play as if much was at stake. Evidently something was on their minds. Possibly the thought that the vast hostile crowd might open on them at any minute had its effect. The crowd, however, was dead itself, as dead as any world's series crowd ever was and on only a few occasions was there any reference to that $500 of mysterious source.

One Crowded Moment.

The one hectic period during the struggle, and until then it was dull and listless despite a couple of Giant homers, was in the ninth. Going into that session the Senators appeared doomed. They had done nothing of account to the veteran southpaw, Art Nehf. Johnson had pitched phenomenally, but he was on the brink of defeat because he had tried and failed to get a couple of "cripples" past a pair of Giant sluggers. They smashed the "cripples" into the seats and that gave them a 2 to 1 advantage.

What proved to be a brilliant effort started in Washington's ninth when Bluege reached base on a line drive that Jackson knocked down but couldn't hold. Judge had just fanned but the hit revived the hopes of the local populace. That was only the fifth blow off Nehf and it didn't require anything but ordinary fielding to keep the Senators attack down to such puny proportions.

Peck Hits to Fence.

Bluege's single brought up old man Peckinpaugh. As a Yankee he had faced Giant pitchers before in world series combat so it was old stuff to him. Dangerous in the pinch and known as such by every hurler in the league, he gave the ball a tremendous ride to left center. It bumped against the fence for a double and Bluege raced over the plate with the tying run.

That brought the crowd out of the funeral silence that had existed almost since the start. A wild shout went up, hats went sailing over the field and a thousand cushions, maybe two thousand, came from all directions. That was the thing Washington had been waiting for these many years. It lasted for several minutes, when the cushions and hats were retrieved and the mob settled back to await the "break" that determined the victor in the twelfth.

Eleven Hits for Two Runs.

When the twelfth opened the Giants had eleven hits to their credit but only two runs because Johnson had hurled cautiously in the pinches. And this cautious twirling, when runners were waiting, netted the Senator star a dozen strikeouts in eleven rounds. Peculiarly enough, most of these strikeouts were registered on curve balls. The Giants were looking for speed but they saw curves and plenty of them, probably more than Johnson ever threw before in a single game. Moreover, he never had a sharper hook than he put on view today.

The switch of Johnson from speed to curves was not without reason. He started off on his old stuff, but it caused him trouble. His fast ball would not behave and it was this that put him in a hole to George Kelly in the second inning. The tall Giant handy man worked the count down to three and two, and then Johnson came along with his "cripple." Kelly slammed it into the mammoth bleacher that stretches across left field.

Double Play Ends Agony.

That homer was no sooner hit than Terry followed with a single. A man also walked in that round, but a double play such as the Senators specialize in prevented further scoring. "Barney" immediately discarded his speed as a regular diet and in the next two frames

Hold Up Bank; Flee as Girl Gives Alarm

In a spectacular raid that yielded them only $2,500, three young highwaymen early last evening held up the Parkway State bank at Grant place, Clark and Sedgwick streets.

They worked fast while crowds, street cars, and autos were passing the bank. They used a Winchester rifle and automatic pistols, and escaped south in Sedgwick street in an automobile while a dozen squads of police and detectives were on their way to the scene.

Within thirty minutes after the bandits had disappeared messages had been sent to all stations and detectives were hunting through the city for them.

Chief of Robbers Enters.

The leader of the trio, carrying the rifle, made a sudden entry into the bank at 7:50 o'clock. Taking a running start he slid ten feet across the tile floor, then dropped a gunny sack that had concealed the rifle and ordered six employés to hold up their hands.

Then noting that the employés with their hands in the air could be seen plainly from the street, either from passing cars or by pedestrians, the robber changed the order.

"Get down on your faces!" he ordered, lining them in a row on the floor.

While J. R. Johnson, assistant cashier; Robert Jones, manager of the bond department; and D. F. Thomas, Thomas Kelly, and Samuel Horwick, clerks, lay side by side with their arms outstretched, the leader told one of his accomplices armed with a revolver to watch them. Then he told Miss Dorothy Yockey, paying teller, to leave her cage.

Leaps in, Grabs Cash.

"Get down there with the rest," he told her, menacing her with the rifle. Then he leaped into the cage and scooped into the bag as much money as he could hold in two hands.

At that moment Arthur Mathiesen, 239 West North avenue, a patron, entered. He also was told to get down on his face.

Meantime Miss Helen Wilson, 2242 Larrabee street, passing the bank, looked in and got a glimpse of the row of persons lying on the floor.

Womans Calls Police.

A lookout standing by the robbers' car saw her. He grasped her rudely by the shoulder and tried to push her into the bank.

"Get in there," he said, "or I'll kill you."

But Miss Wilson pulled away and ran to the Eureka Radio shop, 2210 North Clark street. There she telephoned to the police.

The robbers escaped while the police were on their way.

Police Hunt Suspect.

When a description of the leader, who carried the rifle, was given them last night, police started to look for Henry J. Fernekes, a sallow young man with a criminal record as spectacular as the bank robbery itself.

Fernekes recently was identified as having been the leader of a gang that robbed the Inland Trust & Savings bank, 4017 Milwaukee avenue, of $6,000 in a daylight holdup on Aug. 22. He is wanted for murder in Pearl River, N. Y., and wanted here for a number of other crimes of violence.

Clarence Stewart, 3846 Ellis avenue, and Thomas Hough, 6178 South Halsted street, both collectors for the General Market company, 6117 South Halsted street, were held up and robbed of $8,000 in collections by six men who forced their machine to the curb in front of 6743 Blackstone avenue, late in the evening. The robbers had revolvers and drove rapidly away. Both the collectors were armed, but had no chance to draw their weapons.

NO DICTATION! PRESIDENT AND HUGHES ASSERT

Answer to League Is Seen in Speeches.

While President Coolidge, speaking at the dedication of the First division memorial in Washington, declared that America "does not propose to intrust to any other power or combination of powers any authority to make up our minds for us," Secretary of State Hughes was uttering in a Cincinnati speech words which bear on the league of nations' recent action at Japan's behest.

"This country," said Mr. Hughes, "will never tolerate the submission to any power or group of powers the determination of any of our domestic problems."

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—"We do not propose to intrust to any other power or combination of powers any authority to make up our minds for us."

This was President Coolidge's first utterance on the league of nations since that body, a few days ago, accepted Japan's proposal that restriction of immigration should become a matter of international rather than national jurisdiction, and that the nation questioning such jurisdiction should be termed the aggressor if complications arose.

The background for the President's comment was of remarkable significance. The occasion was an address by the President to veterans and members of the First division, first to carry the flag into the battlefields of France, who had gathered to dedicate a monument to the unit's dead.

Lays Down a Principle.

To these veterans, many of them still bearing the marks of wounds of Soissons, of St. Mihiel and of the Aisne, President Coolidge laid down an old principle made new by recent events.

"But we recognize," he said, "that what others do has an effect upon us."

"We recognize, too," he continued, "that we are a part of the great brotherhood of mankind, that there are moral duties and obligations between nations as there are between individuals. America has every wish to discharge its obligations.

"This is a condition which is not improved upon by artificial covenants, but which results from the natural relationship among nations.

"I am in favor of treaties and covenants conforming to the American policy of independence to prevent aggressive war and promote permanent peace. But they have little value unless the sentiment of peace is cherished in the hearts of th people."

Tells of Soissons Action.

This pronouncement came at the end of a speech in which the valor and steadfastness of the First division were extolled by the executive.

Mr. Coolidge gave a detailed review of the history of the division's service in France, laying special emphasis on the victory in the Soissons sector, an operation during which, he said, the division had in five days of heavy fighting advanced eleven kilometers, had captured 3,500 officers and men and large quantities of material, and had lost 73 officers and 1,453 men killed and 214 officers and 5,130 men wounded.

Price Was Heavy.

"A heavy price to pay," the President said, "but the victory at Soissons has been called the turning point of the war."

Turning his face toward the monument the President said:

"The dead reign here alone.

"This monument commemorates no man who won anything by the war. It ministers to no aspiration for place or power. But it challenges attention to the cost, suffering and sacrifice that may be demanded of any generation, so long as nations permit a resort to war to settle their disputes. It is a symbol of awful tragedy, of unending sorrow, and of stern warning. Relieved of all attendant considerations, the final lesson which it imparts is the blessing of peace, the supreme blessing of peace with honor."

Commenting on the fact that the First division represented every state and all the possessions of the union, he added:

"It was comprehensively and truly American."

Says U. S. Is Grateful.

The President came down to the present and its obligations to the men who had made it possible for the nation to have a present and a future.

"A tradition," he said, "reminds us of the ingratitude of republics."

He thought the tradition was none of our making, for he said:

"For that which be broadly characterized as relief work for the veterans and their dependents of the World war, the government has already appropriated well towards $3,000,000,000. But this is not the measure, it is only an indication of the high regard and the abiding honor which America bestows upon its loyal defenders.

No Measure in Money.

"It cannot be measured in money. How poor and cheap and unworthy would be that attitude which could say: 'You have offered your life. Here is your dollar. That discharges the debt. Take it and go.' The nation recognizes towards them all a debt which it can never repay, but which it will never repudiate. Standing to their credit will forever be an inexhaustible balance of gratitude, of honor and of praise. In song and story, in monument and memorial, in tradition and history, they will live in the heart of the people forever more."

From the obligations of the present he went on the problems of the present, saying:

"In this presence I am well aware there is no need to urge any support of the American constitution, but I cannot let his occasion pass without expressing my most strong and emphatic commendation for the reverence which your words and actions constantly express for the liberty-giving provisions of the fundamental law of our land."

Speaks for Constitution.

He said the veterans before him had supported the constitution, and its symbol, the flag, not because that constitution represented the homeland but because it was the sole source of American freedom.

With this characteristic love of the concrete and specific instance to back up a general statement, the President went on to say:

"You want your rights protected by the impartial judicial decisions of the courts, where you will have a right to be honored and not be exposed to the irresponsible determination of partisan political action. You want to have your earnings and your property secure. You want a free and fair opportunity to conduct your own business and make your way in the world without danger of being overcome by a government monopoly. When the government goes into business it lays a tax on everybody else in that business and uses the money that it collects from its competitors to establish a monopoly and drive them out of business. No one can compete. When the government really starts into a line of business that door of opportunity is closed to the people. It has always been an American ideal that the door of opportunity should remain open."

Summerall Recalls Pledge.

Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commander during its most desperate and most glorious days of this First division, A. E. F., recalled a pledge to weeping buddies and fathers and mothers, in his address at the unveiling of the division's $150,000 memorial to its fallen.

He said that the burial parties at Cantigny and Soissons and St. Mihiel and by the waters of the Aisne, the Marne, and the Meuse, made the pledge when they looked into the faces of their dead, faces that seemed to them not ghastly but serene and beautiful.

The pledge was that when peace should come again the names of the 5,000 who had given all should be enshrined in granite and bronze for an everlasting token of sacrifice and of glory.

Dead Furnish Inspiration.

Gen. Summerall made the veterans straighten their shoulders by identifying them as the men of "a division that never criticized, never shirked," and he spoke of their dead as brothers "who are not dead but live through the living and will inspire the living yet to come." The general closed by quoting a poem by Erwin Clarkson of the division, which pictures the dead buddies as coming home today.

At noon today fulfillment of the pledge was disclosed to thousands of the division's veterans and friends who stood around the new memorial whose bronze angel of victory commands the long reaches of lawns and gardens stretching from the state, war and navy building toward the Washington monument and from the White House to the line of marble palaces of art and patriotism and internationalism comprising the Corcoran gallery, the headquarters of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Pan-American building.

Setting Stately and Splendid.

This stately setting of the new shrine was fraught with splendor, the ceremony of unveiling was as forthright and poignant as only soldiers could have made it.

A uniformed veteran of the 1st division—Private Daniel R. Edwards, company C, third machine gun battalion, right arm lost in battle, and Distinguished Service cross and Medal of Honor man—advanced to the edge of the temporary platform built around the memorial. In his left hand was a cord attached to white vailing covering those portions of the monument which are carved with the list of the 1st division's combat service and battle credits. Beneath those memorable credits appear in bronze the names of the 5,000 who gave their lives to the winning of the credits.

"May We Be Worthy."

With their names not on his lips but in his heart of hearts the Medal of Honor man looked out over the assemblage, which was standing with bared heads, and said in a voice that carried far but that seemed, too, somehow hushed and humble:

"May we be worthy of their memory."

He tugged at the cord and the enveloping cloths sank slowly to the base of the monument, revealing the words "To the memory of the dead of the division who gave their lives in the World war that the liberty and the ideals of our country might endure."

At this instant the slow thudding of the national salute of twenty-one guns began.

It was fired by the battery which fired the first American artillery shot in the world war—Battery C, 6th field artillery, on Oct. 23, 1917.

LABOR PAPER OF OMAHA SWITCHES FROM BOB TO CAL

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 4.—[Special]—The Midwest News of Omaha, the biggest labor paper in Nebraska and having a nation-wide circulation, in this week's issue comes squarely out for Coolidge and Dawes. The Midwest News has heretofore been supporting La Follette and Wheeler. This is the most significant switch so far recorded in the Nebraska campaign.

J. A. Lochray, editor of the News, has just returned from a two weeks' trip to labor centers all over the east.

"I find that La Follette has failed to line up the labor vote anywhere," says Lochray in his statement. "Wherever I went I found nothing but pessimism among the La Follette followers, brought about by the general indifference, if not actual opposition, of the rank and file of American wage earners towards the campaign of Senators La Follette and Wheeler."

POSTAL CLERK STEALS BONUS TO BUY A PIANO

M. L. McCabe, a teacher at the Dore school, living at the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity house at 5612 Kenwood avenue, wondered why he didn't get his soldier's bonus. Yesterday he found out. James Daly, 6321 Ingleside avenue, a mail sorter at the post-office, had taken it.

"My wife and I wanted the piano just for the baby's sake," he said when the police turned him over last night to the federal authorities.

Daly went to the Witzel Piano company, 1454 Barry avenue, and put the bonus down as a deposit on a piano. Sergt. Robert Casey heard about it, and became a piano salesman long enough to trap Daly.

CLEVER RUSE OF U. S. AGENTS NABS RICH BOOZE SHIP

Bankers of 3 Nations May Be Involved.

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—A banker-bootlegger combine with ramifications in England and Canada as well as Manhattan, backed by a capital of $10,000,000, collapsed today when the steamer Frederick B. was seized fifteen miles off shore, in what federal officials call the first real test of the one hour liquor treaty with Great Britain. She bore 11,000 cases of whisky and many barrels of grain alcohol.

By a novel ruse prohibition agents succeeded, they are convinced, in exposing the Frederick B. to the provisions of the drastic treaty, which extends the ancient three miles seizure limit to the distance of an hour's sailing.

Pay Bootlegger $100,000.

After handing the master of the Frederick B. $100,000 in cash and checks to make the agreement binding agents asked for twenty-five "sample cases" to take ashore at once. Operating in the speediest motorboat they could obtain without arousing suspicion they raced ashore in forty-two minutes. Federal authorities maintained the transaction involves the ship in a violation of the international treaty.

Immediately upon completion of this race against time, the agents enlisted the coast guard cutter Manhattan in their force and early today seized the Frederick B. with her crew of thirty and two women, who were found aboard.

Anchor Ship Near "Liberty."

No names were made public by Maj. John Holley Clark, assistant United States attorney, who boarded the ship later. But word came ashore from the Frederick B. as it lay near the statue of Liberty, that the younger of the two women, about 26, is the daughter of an Englishman deeply interested in the smuggling enterprise in a financial way.

The seizure brought to a climax three months of careful, painstaking negotiations by five federal agents with what they termed the most powerful and well known liquor smuggling cabal now doing business.

Among those spotted for arrest are a Manhattan banker, they said, and a distiller, who acted as "shore agents" for the $10,000,000 firm.

The trap was set under the direction of R. Q. Merrick, divisional prohibition chief, but Saul Grill, the astute general agent who had already tricked several bootlegging rings, was the Machiavelli of the plot.

CHICAGO YOUTH, JAILED IN EAST, TRIES TO DIE

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.—James T. Herbert Jr., said to be the son of a Chicago leather merchant and claiming "prep" school friendship with Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb, was brought here from Springfield today to face a charge of obtaining jewelry on a worthless check drawn on the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, Chicago.

The police said that Herbert spent three days at a leading hotel here, while he visited friends in the vicinity. Yesterday, they charge, he obtained goods valued at $200 from one store and jewelry valued at $192 from another on worthless checks.

Springfield, police yesterday took Herbert from the train which was taking him west to enter the University of Chicago.

The Boston inspector who went to Springfield to bring him back, said that when he entered the boy's cell he found him about to hang himself.

Efforts to find a Herbert family in Chicago, as indicated in the foregoing dispatch, were unavailing last night.

KILL 1,300 MORE CATTLE IN TEXAS WAR ON SCOURGE

Houston, Tex., Oct. 4.—Thirteen hundred range cattle in four herds on pastures adjoining the premises where 1,900 were slaughtered yesterday, will be killed in the second major operation of the federal government to check a spread of the hoof and mouth disease in south Texas.

An announcement today at the office of Dr. Marion Imes, federal director of disease eradication, said that the four herds were known as contact herds and that it was deemed necessary to destroy them in order to create a space between the infected premises and free territory.

A ditch for burying the 1,300 cattle marked for destruction was being dug today. Present plans contemplate shooting them tomorrow. By Sunday evening it was hoped they would be under ground.

WE WILL DECIDE DOMESTIC ISSUES HUGHES ASSERTS

Answer to Japan Seen in Cincinnati Speech.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—"While this nation is eager to coöperate in genuine disarmament and in every effort to insure world peace, we will never tolerate the submission to any power or group of powers the determination of any of our domestic problems."

With these words—a frank commentary on the situation in Geneva, where the league of nations is puttering about with what constitutes a domestic problem—Secretary of State Hughes tonight opened the Republican presidential campaign in Ohio.

No one in the large audience misunderstood his reference to the action of Japan in its veiled threats against the immigration policy of America, and the secretary of state was warmly applauded.

"If we are to coöperate in world-wide movements," he continued, "we must be permitted to coöperate without the sacrifice of our right to determine our own policies."

Real Issue of Campaign.

Mr. Hughes said that the only issue of the campaign is whether the administration of President Coolidge should be continued.

The secretary delivered a lengthy speech, in which he covered the record of the administration, replied to attacks by the Democrats, and discussed the La Follette movement.

"Whatever may be the subject of campaign speeches," Mr. Hughes declared, "there is really only one issue in this campaign, and that is, shall the administration of Calvin Coolidge be continued?

"The average man, who is not interested in the tactics of the campaign, says to himself and to his neighbor, why should there be a change?"

Accomplishments of G. O. P.

The record of the Republican party was praised for economics in governmental expenditures, for tax reductions, and for its tariff.

While there was no direct reference in the address to the new arms reduction program launched by the league of nations at Geneva, Mr. Hughes defined the administration's attitude on the general subject.

"We look with gratification at the new spirit in Europe and at the program made toward peaceful solutions," he said. "Our attitude toward reduction of armaments remains unchanged and to this end we desire to coöperate. But the people of this country would never tolerate the submission to any power or group of powers of the determination of any of our domestic questions.

Replies to Democrats.

Replying to Democratic attacks for failure to participate in international conferences, Mr. Hughes said that if the demand were that the United States should join the league and thus fully participate "that would be an understandable demand."

"But it is precisely the position which the Democratic party has refused to take," he continued. "It has declined, for reasons of its own, to make the question of joining the league an issue in this campaign."

Mr. Hughes attacked the Democratic platform proposal for a referendum on joining the league, calling it "futile and unsound."

Threaten McCormack with Boos if He Sings in London

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—John McCormack, who is giving a concert in Queen's hall tomorrow night, is warned in two anonymous letters that he will be booed and hissed. The letters call him a scoundrel, a white livered deserter, and other epithets. Mr. McCormack, who is Irish, formerly was a British subject, but was naturalized an American. This is said to be the reason for his unpopularity among the British.

M'ANDREW SAYS HE'LL NOT CUT TEACHERS' PAY

Declares They're Low Enough Now.

Chicago school teachers were given assurance yesterday by Supt. William McAndrew that their salaries will not be cut. He said he was not even considering putting the salary schedule on a merit or efficiency basis.

FRANCIS X. BUSCH.
[Matzene Photo.]

His statement was made at a luncheon of the George Howland club, an organization of men principals which met at the Hamilton club.

"The salaries of the teachers are as low as they can be," he said. "The purchasing power of the dollar as compared to its value before the war is approximately 58 cents. Teachers' salaries are actually less than prior to 1917. Don't let the crazy idea that we want to cut salaries get into your heads."

Tells Principals to Get Busy.

In the morning Supt. McAndrew spoke to the Principals' club in Fullerton hall. He asked the principals to get out into the class rooms and if necessary carry a portable office with them, and advised quick but courteous dismissal of visitors.

While Supt. McAndrew was setting at rest charges of leaders of the teachers' organizations that a salary cut was on the way, Mayor Dever was endeavoring to keep clear of the school teacher strife.

He was presented with a resolution adopted at the teachers' massmeeting on Friday urging him to appoint four members of the school board who would coöperate with the teachers in enforcing the tax laws and bring "tax dodgers" to time.

Mayor Won't Promise.

While the mayor said he was "still a friend of the teachers," he declared he would appoint the four members to fill vacancies and expired terms when he saw fit and intimated that he might not many any appointments during his term of office.

"It is getting difficult to get anybody I ask to serve on the board of education," the mayor said. "One man that I had in mind informed me that he was not prepared to submit himself to questioning by the city council so that they might justify him serving in a public office."

Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch declared as false Miss Haley's charge that he told her that influences were being exerted to call off the mayor from his attack against tax dodging.

Miss Haley reiterated her charge last night and invited Mr. Busch to the Teachers' Federation meeting next Saturday, when he will have the opportunity to address the teachers.

NEW OIL BURNER SELLS AT REMARKABLY LOW PRICE

Works in Any Furnace or Stove; Gives Twice the Heat; Cheaper than Coal.

A remarkable new burner which costs only a few dollars and which can be set in your own stove or furnace has been perfected by the International Heating Company, 119 South 14th street, Dept. 393, St. Louis, Mo. This remarkably simple and sturdy device gives twice the heat of coal or wood, burns a cheap oil, and does away with all the drudgery and dirt and smoke of heating or cooking with coal or wood. It gives one of the hottest and quickest fires known, controlled by a simple valve. The present low price of oil makes it a great money saver. It is absolutely safe, slips into the firebox of any stove or furnace without damage, and requires no mechanic to install. The manufacturers want one person in each locality to whom they can refer new customers, and are making a special low price introductory offer, with 30 days' free trial, to the first user in each locality. They also want to hear from men and women who would like to make from $250.00 to $350.00 monthly acting as their representatives. Write them today.—Adv.

ROBBERS BATTLE IN ELEVATOR FOR $4,000 PAY ROLL

Two armed bandits yesterday beat an elevator operator into unconsciousness and then snatched a satchel containing $4,000 in pay roll funds from the hands of two officials of Stearns Bros. & Co., 610 West Van Buren street, and escaped.

Thomas M. Stearns and J. W. Fleming, superintendent and cashier, respectively, of the Stearns company, were the victims of the pay roll bandits. The two had just entered the elevator of the building on their return from the First National bank.

They found themselves facing the muzzles of two revolvers held by two men outside the car. The bandits were both roughly dressed and apparently Mexicans.

"Hand over that satchel," commanded one of the robbers, menacing Fleming with his gun.

Before Fleming could comply, John McDowell, 3710 South State street, the elevator man, sent the car upward, but in his haste he failed to slam the elevator door. The nearest of the robbers leaped nimbly into the car and struck McDowell a felling blow with his fist. Grabbing the money from Fleming's hands, the robber then lowered the car to the ground, and both bandits, shouting death threats toward their victims, ran from the building.

McDowell, who, it was said, suffered a concussion of the brain, was able to go to his home after receiving first aid.

RECOVER $27,000 IN STOLEN ART AT BOXER'S OFFICE

Four Men Sought Here by Boston Cops.

Search for four men, leaders of a band of art thieves, believed responsible for the theft of $27,000 worth of oil paintings from the private gallery of Abraham Isaacs, wealthy real estate dealer and art connoisseur of Boston, was begun yesterday.

Fifteen of the pictures were recovered in the office of Thomas Walsh, 45 years old, a prize fight promoter.

All of those sought are Chicagoans, it was admitted after Walsh had been grilled for several hours at the detective bureau by Detective Sergeants John Quinn and John Cartan, and by Police Inspector Paul Crowley of Boston.

Finding of the loot in the office of Walsh, which he shares with Nate Lewis, another fight promoter, came as a surprise to his friends among the sporting fraternity. Walsh is manager for "Jock" Malone, the St. Paul pugilist, and he has no criminal record.

Walsh Says He's Innocent.

Walsh was booked on a charge of receiving stolen property and was later released under $10,000 bonds. He will return voluntarily to Boston, he said.

"I am innocent," declared Walsh. "Six weeks ago a man from Boston told me he knew a lot of my good friends in the east. He didn't tell me his name when he came to my office in the Garrick building but asked if he might put some paintings he had in my safe. I told him to go ahead.

"The next I knew I was being served with a search warrant this morning."

Inspector Crowley sidestepped all inquiries as to how he had traced the canvasses, one of which, "An Oriental Courtyard Scene," by Bridgman, is valued at $5,000, to Walsh's safe.

Fight on Night of Theft.

The inspector said that on the night of the theft, May 21, last, a boxing match was held in an athletic club in the building in which Mr. Isaacs' gallery is located. A match between Malone and Frank Moody, a Boston fighter, was the principal attraction.

Inspector Crowley believes the art thieves are allied with the gang responsible for recent political disturbances in Rhode Island.

Mr. Isaacs said he had for years collected work of art as a hobby. Many of his treasures, he said, were inherited from his father and are hundreds of years old.

"I fitted up this little gallery as a kind of private social club only a few weeks before the burglary,' he said. "I should have known better in the first place than to have located it in that neighborhood.

Lacks Direct Evidence.

"I presume the eyes of many crooks were cast longingly at my pictures as soon as I moved them in. One man in particular I suspect of tipping off their value to his underworld connections.

"I have no evidence against any member of the fight club, and I don't know how the pictures were taken from the building.

Among the paintings stolen were Daubigny's "Coast Scene," valued at $1,500; Rousseau's "Landscape," $1,500; "Portrait of Viscount Polworth," painted by Richard Cosway in the seventeenth century and valued at $2,500; and Mortimer Lam's "Cavalry Chasing Indians," $2,500.

WHY AUSTRALIA CAN STOMACH SO MANY RED PILLS

So Rich Panaceas Cannot Hurt It.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 4.—During the windup of the presidential campaign American workmen and farmers may expect to hear frequent references and statistics pertaining to "Utopian" conditions existing in Australia under the labor governments which have been in power on and off during the last twenty years. There will be a number of reasons for the injection of these far flung references. The principal reasons follow:

1. The extremist radical elements here, whose frankly announced program is the immediate socialization of all Australian industry by revolution if not by evolution, are strongly sympathetic with the campaign of Robert La Follette. These elements comprise the pacifist and disloyalist groups, whose anti-conscription demonstrations during the world war coincided with the policies of the Wisconsin candidate.

Bothered by U. S. Prosperity.

2. The radical leaders here are eager to do anything in their power to remove the ever present example of American prosperity and progress which continually confronts and disrupts the ablest arguments being employed to move Australia on towards communism.

3. Individual initiative and efficiency on the part of American workmen and scientific management on the part of American employers have resulted in flooding Australia with American goods in spite of the high protective tariffs and Australian agitators cannot convince the Australian workers that these products are the fruits of cheap foreign labor, because it is well known and appreciated here that American workers are paid much higher wages than Australian workers.

For these reasons the Australian radicals are more than ready to ally themselves with any movement that has for its object the nationalization of American industries, and, in furtherance of that alliance, will endeavor to provide statistical and propaganda ammunition for the final guns in the presidential campaign.

Australia vs. America.

For the last six weeks I have been talking with Australian men and women labor leaders, workers, employers, capitalists, farmers, manufacturers, miners, mine owners, managers of government railroads, members of parliament, judges of arbitration courts, cabinet ministers, prime ministers, and government commissioners who have spent long periods representing their country in America and investigating American conditions. These conversations have been in pursuance of instructions from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to ascertain, if possible, the basis of comparison between the conditions in America and Australia and arrive, if possible, at some answer to the following question:

"Has the average man in Australia a better home, better life, and better opportunity for individual success than his brother in America?"

A Country of Contradictions.

The study has been as intensely interesting as it has been confusing. To a stranger it has revealed a country as full of contradictions as the duck billed platypus, whose appearance, instincts, and habits make him look like a composition of spare parts looted in the dark from an aviary, an aquarium, and a zoo. This egg laying, fur bearing, tree climbing, under water question mark well deserves a place on Australia's coat of arms to symbolize the incongruities of its native heath—incongruities that begin with the seasons, which greet Santa Claus in midsummer and cause November flowers to bloom in the spring.

Here is a country where railroads, butcher shops, and a number of public utilities are owned and run by the government, generally at a great loss to the state, and where grand opera can and is promoted and managed with success and profit by private enterprise. Australia has a compulsory military training for every citizen in time of peace, but it depends on voluntary service in time of war. It has an area almost as large as continental United States, yet the total population is less than Chicago and New York. It is primarily an agricultural and pastoral country, yet its strongest political party is dominated by the organized industrial workers of the cities.

Land of Many Strikes.

It has more arbitration courts, wage boards, and industrial legislation than any country of its area in the world, and yet strikes continue to cost the workers, employers, and public millions of dollars yearly. Its political issues encompass the most advanced radical policies, and yet its groups are torn by the age old bitterness of religious prejudice. On the other hand, avowed communists and staunch Catholics find themselves voting under the same political banner.

Government regulation, assistance, and interference extend to almost every form of Australian endeavor, yet discontent and industrial unrest appears greater than it is in England, and many times greater than the American industrial relations commission ever found it in America.

Like America, it has prosperity and poverty. It has unemployment and labor scarcity at one and the same time. It has farmers and grazers begging for workers on the land, and it has city idlers begging on the streets for beer money. Although its country roads are so notoriously bad that ox teams are still largely employed, its largest city Sydney, with a population of 1,000,000 finds it desirable to build an extensive municipal subway system and cross its world famed harbor with a bridge costing more than the Brooklyn bridge in New York.

Needs Immigrants; Raises Barrier.

With its small population, it is in dire need of immigrants for land development, and while its government spends huge sums in seemingly futile effort to attract immigrants, at the same time it builds up legislative barriers making immigration almost impossible. It has an overwhelming credit to its advantage in London, but is suffering on the verge of a money famine at home. It is virulent in its oratorical nationalism, but is admittedly defenseless in itself.

The federal government and separate states all boast of titled crown governors from England, who wear copious decorations and regalia at public functions, yet one sees theater audience turn their backs on "God Save the King," and walk out, ignoring the imperial anthem for which 60,000 Anzacs died in the great war.

Why It Is Prosperous.

These are some of the clashing contrasts and repugnant perversities existing in the country, which is proud of the fact that its population measures up to 97½ per cent Anglo-Saxon, with much less foreign born population than there is in the city of London. But in spite of the conflicting evidence Australia continues to progress and prosper to a degree that just manages to keep pace with the justifiable pride of its citizens. Its exports of wool, wheat, and mutton are expected to exceed $500,000,000 this year, and its importation of manufactured articles is on an ever increasing scale. Therein lies the danger of a misapplication of Australian statistics to American conditions, because Australian prosperity does not exist by reason of the radical ideas, its extremist legislation, its government enterprises, or its labor administrations, but in spite of them.

With praiseworthy frankness both employers and employés criticize and condemn many of the existing conditions and honestly declare that these conditions could exist in no other country in the world without producing national insolvency, if not chaos.

Their explanation for the continued progress of the country and its expanding prosperity is that the natural munificence of the island continent makes it possible. Its land is designated by nature for the support of 100,000,000 people and it is occupied by 6,000,000. It is a constantly reloaded banquet table with covers for 100 and invitations for six. In the words of the average Australian citizen, "We are all living on the wool of the sheep."

"No Political Cure Too Strong."

"There is no political medicine too strong for Australia to stomach," one of the Australians told me. "We originated the phrase, 'Try anything once.' We have tried everything, and we will try anything, and, you may be sure, if it won't go here, it won't go anywhere else in the world; and it is quite doubtful whether any other country in the world could make good the things we experiment with here.

"Australia is so rich it simply cannot be downed. Nostrums that would kill any other country only give us a mild case of eczema. We still have a sense of humor and we are not ashamed to scratch in public. As long as the world must have wool and as long as Australia produces almost a quarter of the world's wool, then the world must pay for our political experiments."

How these peculiar conditions have reacted on the average citizen of Australia, with special reference to his cost of living and his opportunity to achieve individual independence, will be the subject of stories to follow, which will deal with the country's failures and successes in the political laboratory where the strange tests of practicability are applied to theoretical panaceas for man's welfare.

NEGRO IS HELD AS WRECKER OF B. & O. EXPRESS

Carlyle, Ill., Oct. 4. — George Williams, 23, a Negro, is in jail suspected of having caused the wreck of the Baltimore and Ohio, eastbound fast passenger train at Aviston, Ill., last night in which one man was killed, and about fifteen injured. Williams admits being near the scene, but denies opening a switch which caused the wreck.

Williams was arrested while asleep at a water tank at Grassland, west of New Badan, in St. Clair county, Illinois. He carried a butcher knife.

DAVID SUSPECTS POLITICAL PLOT IN LICENSE CASE

Full investigation of the efforts of Julius Benvenuti to obtain a license to operate a soft drink parlor at 2900 South La Salle street was ordered yesterday by Judge Joseph B. David.

The judge, on his own motion, set aside the writ he had issued which compelled the mayor to issue a license to Benvenuti. He did it over the objection of Assistant Corporation Counsel Bernard Conlon, who announced the city wished to appeal Judge David's original ruling.

"But I am giving you just what you would seek in the Appellate court," Judge David declared. "You can't play politics with this court. Bring in your additional evidence, and I'll find out why the police went about revoking the license instead of arresting Benvenuti if there was disorder in the place."

After issuing the writ Judge David was informed for the first time that the place had an evil reputation.

Find Body in Canal; Lodge Card Only Clew

A Masonic card issued by Chicago lodge, No. 262, was the only clew to the identity of a man whose body was found floating in the drainage canal at Lamont late yesterday. The card was issued to John W. Sinclair. The body was clothed only in a white shirt, dark trousers, and black shoes and socks. No marks of violence were on it. The body is at the Gerhardt and Boe undertaking rooms.

FREIGHT AT THE "LOCKS."

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., Oct. 4.—The movement of freight through the locks here during September aggregated 9,661,210 short tons. The total movement in September a year ago was 12,776,040 short tons.

Bogus Inspectors Try to Collect Water Bills

Imposters, representing themselves as city water department inspectors, are attempting to "collect water bills" in several sections of the city, according to a warning issued yesterday by Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague. "City employés authorized to collect water bills should have photographic identification cards, a city badge or star and a copy of the official notice from the bureau of water," the bulletin reads.

MINNESOTA BANK CLOSES.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 4.—The Security State bank of Grand Rapids with a capital of $25,000 and deposits of approximately $285,000, has been closed because of depleted reserves, A. J. Veigel, state superintendent of banks, announced today.

MAKES AUTOS GO 40 MILES ON A GALLON OF GASOLINE.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—The Western Specialty Company of this city announces the perfection of an amazing device which is enabling car owners all over the country to more than double their mileage from each gallon of gasoline used, and at the same time remove every particle of carbon from their motors. When the device is attached, automobiles have made over 40 miles on a gallon of gasoline—increasing their power and pep tremendously and eliminated all spark plug difficulties.

This inexpensive little device is entirely automatic and self-regulating and can be easily attached by any one in a few minutes without tapping or drilling.

The management of the company states that in order to introduce this startling new invention they are willing to send a sample at their own risk to one car owner in each town who can show it to neighbors and handle the big volume of business which will be built up wherever it is shown.

Just send your name and address to the Western Specialty Co., 1743 Lacotah Bldg., Sioux Falls, S. D., and get their free sample offer.—Adv.

N. Y. TO BOSTON IN AMBULANCE; THEN GOES MAD

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—On the way from New York to the McLean asylum, Waverly, in a private ambulance today, Eugene Gubanow, 32, of Boston suddenly became violent while the machine was passing through Governor square, Back Bay, and after being beaten off in an attack with a knife on his wife and an attendant, jumped from the machine and ran amuck.

Dashing toward a pedestrian he brandished the knife and the former fell at his feet in a faint. Jumping over the prostrate form, Gubanow ran up Beacon street, his cries attracting the attention of Traffic Officer Manning, who gave chase.

When Manning came alongside him, Gubanow turned and attacked with the knife. Manning drew his revolver to protect himself just as a taxi chauffeur leaped on the fugitive's back and pinioned his arms until Manning and other patrolmen could make him secure.

Teachers Told Plans of Free Plays for Children

Plans for classic plays for school children "to undermine the influence of movies" were explained to the Chicago Teachers' league at the Hotel La Salle yesterday by Donald Robertson, art director of the proposed Chicago Civic theater. Plays free of charge are planned for every Saturday morning.

Styles

Nothing that is worn can justifiably be made without regard to style, and people are becoming increasingly conscious that good looking eyeglasses contribute much to good appearance. This alone attracts many to the Almer Coe Stores.

AUSTRALIA NOT BOUND TO PEACE PROJECT—BRUCE

Story of Fight for White Policy Revealed.

BY JACK MYERS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SYDNEY, Oct. 4.—Challenged today on the subject of the league of nations protocol, Japanese amendments to which have raised a storm in Australia, Prime Minister Bruce told the house of representatives:

"We want to make clear to every one in this country that nothing has happened at Geneva which in any way binds this parliament or the people of Australia. Australia is not bound to anything contained in the protocol until Australia herself through parliament has subscribed to and approved the provisions. The legal authorities consulted by the Australian delegates to Geneva consider the Australian domestic jurisdiction absolutely safeguarded."

Former Prime Minister Hughes here interjected: "What legal authorities?"

Mr. Bruce replied:

"English ones, I suppose."

Mr. Hughes retorted:

"Exactly; they would."

Mr. Hughes has had past experience in dealing with unsympathetic British officials, who do not appreciate the Australian viewpoint. Hence this satirical remark.

Mr. Bruce's statement has reassured opinion here to a large extent, though his precise position is still somewhat obscure.

Story of Geneva Fight.

Mr. Bruce added that Australia could not allow the question of domestic jurisdiction to be a matter for dictation either by the league of nations or any other authority.

A dramatic story has just been received here telling of the critical proceedings at Geneva over the proposed world peace protocol, when the Australian delegates with their backs to the wall had not only to face a formidable attack from Japan, but the vacillating conduct of the British delegates themselves.

Hold Ten Meetings.

The English and dominion delegates held ten meetings before a final solution was reached. The Australians led the opposition of the British delegates to effect a compromise. The most critical stage was reached on Monday night, when the British delegates, thinking that the troubles had been settled, told the French and Japanese delegates that the dominions would cause no more trouble.

Lord Parmoor, head of the British delegation, was surprised when the dominion representatives did not share his optimism and he hastily summoned another meeting late in the night, when support was refused to the proposed Japanese amendment.

Arthur Henderson showed total ignorance of the Australian standpoint. Sir Cecil Hurst lost his temper when he saw his efforts at a solution shattered by the Australians' determination to close every loophole to an attack on their white Australia policy.

Reds Would Give Kin of Ex-Kaiser Jobless Doles

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Members of the Hohenzollern family living in Prussia will receive unemployment doles like any worker out of a job instead of drawing big monthly allowances, if a bill introduced in the Prussian diet by the communists passes.

GALLIGAN, DUTY INDICTED FOR HERRIN KILLINGS

Marion, Ill., Oct. 4.—The Williamson county grand jury today returned indictments charging Sheriff George Galligan, City Judge F. N. Bowen of Herrin, and State's Attorney Delos Duty with murder in connection with the clash in Herrin Aug. 30 last between members of the Ku Klux Klan and anti-klan, in which seven men were fatally wounded.

Circuit Judge D. T. Hartwell refused to fix bail or issue a mittimus for the arrest of State's Attorney Duty or Judge Bowen, stating that he was disqualified as he would be a witness for the defense in that he was convinced neither of the two men were in Herrin at the time the murders charged in the indictment were committed.

Circuit Judge A. D. Somers of Harrisburg is to be called here next week to issue the mittimus and fix bail.

State's Attorney Duty drew the indictment charging murder and another indictment for rioting against himself and offered to draw any other indictment the jury asked.

SPARE BEDROOM IS ALL SET FOR PRINCE'S VISIT

With even the date of the prince of Wales' arrival a mystery, Chicagoans who feel they should be among those present are preparing for his reception.

In British circles, yesterday, the most probable dates for his arrival were believed to be Oct. 11, and Oct. 13, with the majority favoring the latter.

The prince has made known only his wish to see the stockyards.

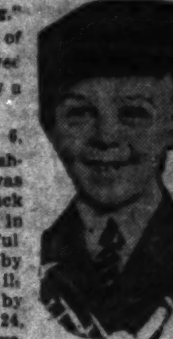
Reds Find One Illicit Still to 500 Persons in Ukraine

KHARKOV, Russia, Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—There is one illicit still for every 500 persons in the Ukraine, according to official statistics issued by the Ukrainian commissariat of finance. Up to date no less than 8,600 bootlegging establishments have been discovered.

BOY, 6, KILLED BY AUTO TRUCK; DRIVER SEIZED

Two Other Children Hurt During Day.

One child was killed yesterday when struck by an automobile truck, another was injured probably fatally while "hitching," and a third died of injuries received when struck by a street car.



FRANCIS SALOR.

Leo Polvik, 6, 2426 North Ashland avenue, was killed when struck while crossing in front of 1606 Fullerton avenue by an automobile truck driven by Carl Meinke, 24, 1837 Barry avenue. Meinke was arrested on a charge of manslaughter when the police were told his brakes were defective.

Boy Hurt While Hitching.

While hanging on the end of a motor truck, Francis Salor Jr., 9, of 4216 Ellis avenue, lost his grip and fell beneath the truck. He was taken to the Chicago hospital. It was said his skull was fractured and he was injured internally. The truck was driven by Edward Lee, 1152 East 55th street, who was not held.

The street car victim was Anna Wasilowski, 11, 5045 Loomis street, who died in the Mercy hospital of injuries received Friday night. She was struck while on the car tracks at Ashland avenue and 47th street.

Death Car Driver Held.

Charles Streit, 26, 1917 Wellington avenue, driver of the automobile which early Friday crashed into a pole, fatally injuring Mrs. Helen Blatchford, 22, 2840 Washington boulevard, was booked on a charge of manslaughter yesterday by the Irving park police.

According to the charges, Streit, Mrs. Blatchford, and two other occupants, a man and a young woman, had been drinking for some time prior to the crash.

Dedicates New Section of St. Francis Hospital

The new $450,000 addition to St. Francis hospital, at the south end of Ridge road, Evanston, was dedicated yesterday. Cardinal Mundelein officiated. The addition, which includes a chapel, doubles the capacity of the hospital.

THIS TELLS WHO 'GASOLINE ALLEY' FOLK REALLY ARE

"Walt" and "Bill" Buy Site for Garage.

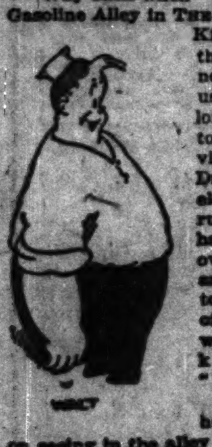
BY AL CHASE.

Where Gasoline Alley really is and who were the original Walt and Bill and Amy, and who Avery wasn't, and a few other whos and whats, were the thrills the real estate editor got out of the prosaic, humdrum recorder's office yesterday.

That is, he got a line on the facts through a seemingly innocent, commonplace looking realty transfer. Then he journeyed from THE TRIBUNE local room up into the mysterious sixth floor, and in the far corner office he cornered Frank King and pried the facts out of him.

Way Down in Woodlawn.

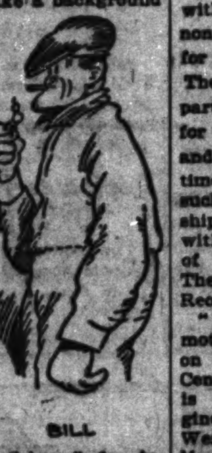
"Way back when" there wasn't any Gasoline Alley in THE TRIBUNE, Frank King, who lived then, as he does now, in Glencoe, used to make a long journey down to Woodlawn to visit Walter W. Drew, a jolly bachelor with an unruly wisp of hair hanging rakishly over his right eye and whom no doctor ever accused of being underweight. Frank knew him as "Walt."



Another person he always counted on seeing in the alley near 63d and St. Lawrence was "Bill," more formally known to the world as William D. Gannon.

Some Good Stories Spoiled.

There are various other automobile fans who used to make a background for "Bill" and "Walt" and "Gasoline Alley," but (and we're afraid this 'but' will hurt the feelings of the various persons who have claimed to be the original "Doc," etc.—yes, some have even claimed to be the real "Avery.") Frank King says "Avery" is a composite of several persons he knew; so is "Doc."



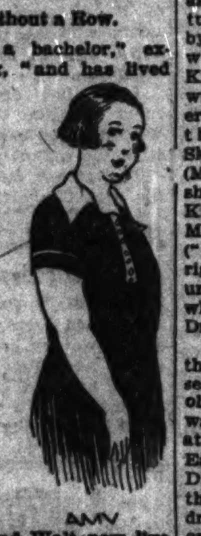
There are other Gasoline Alley originals, however. "Amy," for instance, in real life is the wife of "Bill" Gannon. Her honest-to-goodness name is Gertrude.

And incidentally Frank King is related to one of his characters, for "Walt" is a brother of Mrs. King.

Partnership Without a Row.

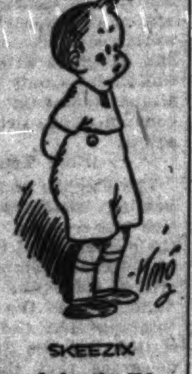
"Walt Drew is a bachelor," explained Frank King, "and has lived with 'Bill' Gannon and his wife for fifteen years. They've been partners in a car for several years and it's the first time I ever saw such a partnership work out without trouble of some kind. They've got a Reo now.

"Bill is a locomotive engineer on the Michigan Central and Walt is a traffic engineer for the Western Union. Mr. and Mrs. Bill and Walt now live at 1469 Winona avenue, so you see the originals of Amy, Bill and Walt are pretty far from the real Gasoline alley."



Snap Shot Shows 'Em.

If the inspired makeup man does as we hope we'll do, there'll be a picture right near by of a group in which Frank King is shown with his son, Robert Drew King, the original of Skeezix. "Amy" (Mrs. Gannon) is shown on Frank King's left and Mr. Gannon ("Bill") on his right. That bit of unruly hair shows where "Walt" Drew stands.



What started this bit of research into "Gasoline Alley" was the sale by the Edgewater Coal company of the property at 1123 Catalpa avenue to Albert W. Eaton, Walter W. Drew, and William D. Gannon for $105,000, according to the county records. Mr. Eaton has drawn plans and work is under way on a garage to be known as "Gasoline Alley." The three recently sold a garage called "Gasoline Alley," but kept the name for the new venture.

"Walt"-Blossom Rumor Killed.

And now one whisper more about the Gasoline Alley you and I know. You've probably heard that report that Walt has been married to Mrs. Blossom for some time.

"I've heard that rumor for months," said Frank King. "I heard it first out in the far west and since then nearly everywhere I go. Well, there's no truth in it and it seems to me I ought to know if anything like that had happened. Walt is still a dyed-in-the-wool bachelor."

"Walt," "Bill," "Skeezix," Frank King and "Amy"

REPORT CHICAGO MEN INDICTED BY TEXAS JURY

Walter M. Anthony, for thirteen years controller of the old Chicago Edison company, predecessor of the Commonwealth Edison company, and one of the best known financial men in the country, and Carl L. V. Exselsen, Chicago lawyer, former vice president and treasurer of the National Motors corporation, were indicted, it was reported yesterday, by a federal grand jury in Houston, Tex., on charges of using the mails to defraud and conspiracy.

Both, according to the grand jury indictment, were closely associated with the bursting of a $40,000,000 automobile combine bubble that had branches in Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, New York, Kentucky, Boston, and Missouri.

Neither could be reached at his home last night.

ONLY 1,400 IN KLAN MARCH TO "SHOW BLAINE"

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Madison's first parade of the Ku Klux Klan, staged to show Gov. John J. Blaine that the klan does amount to something in Wisconsin, proved a tame affair tonight.

Although it was advertised that 50,000 would be in line, only about 1,400 unmasked men made the eight mile hike from outside the city limits to Capitol square and back to the meeting grounds.

Gov. Blaine was not in Madison. He was attending a meeting of the tornado relief committee at Owen, Wis.

The parade was made up entirely of men from other cities. Rockford, Ill., Milwaukee, Racine and small towns in western Wisconsin furnished the bulk of the marchers.

The Pirate Undertake

Father Dearborn's "Old Man of the Se

Like the old man of the sea is the profiteering undertaker, except that no matter how ravenously he gorges himself upon illicit profits he never becomes glutted.

Why does it take Chicago so long to rise up and throw off this vicious, lecherous creature—the overcharging undertaker? Simply because its people have carried him and supported him so long that they no longer realize they are being robbed. They do not know what prices for caskets and funeral supplies are fair and reasonable, or how much less the clients of Skeeles-Biddle Company and the people of other cities are paying for funeral needs.

And thus far ours has been the only voice raised to warn them. Hundreds of those who have read our previous advertisements have visited our funeral establishments and verified for themselves our claims that other undertakers are charging as much as $250.00 for the same casket we sell for $110.00 and that our $25.00 casket is being sold all over Chicago as high as $65.00.

Don't say that you are not interested. You do not know what hour you may be able to render a friend the greatest possible favor by advising him to investigate our prices and service before dealing with some disreputable funeral shark.

Bear in mind that the distance between our establishments and any home in Chicago or suburbs adds nothing to the charge for auto service to any cemetery, and that no charge is made for removals from any part of the city to either of our two beautiful free chapels.

REGISTRATION RECORDS FALL; TOTAL 563,165

Figures of 1922 Beaten by 186,766 Names.

A total of 563,165 persons registered yesterday—the first day of the general registration in advance of the national, state, and county election of Nov. 4. This is a record breaker.

The credit wasn't given to public interest in the presidential election, the senate battle, or local contests so much as it was to the fair weather, the half holiday, and the fact that the registration places were kept open until 9 o'clock.

The best set of figures for comparison was considered the results of the first day of general registration two years ago. There was no presidential election that year, and yesterday beat that mark by 186,766 names.

Registration by Wards.

The registration by wards follows:

LEOPOLD HOME, MORBID MECCA, PUT UP FOR SALE

Persistent reports that negotiations were under way for the sale of the Leopold home at 4754 Greenwood avenue were confirmed yesterday when the property was listed with E. B. Woolf & Co., realtors, 11 South La Salle street, by Nathan Leoppold Sr., father of Nathan Leopold Jr., who, with "Dickie" Loeb, is serving a life sentence at Joliet penitentiary for the murder of Robert Franks.

Mr. Leopold and his remaining sons, Foreman and Samuel, have explained they desire to escape the unceasing streams of motorist sightseers passing their home since the Franks tragedy. Jacob Franks, father of the murdered boy, also took steps recently for the disposition of his mansion at Ellis avenue and Hyde Park boulevard.

Girl 'Flunker' Home Again After Week of Tramping

Miss Anna Musser, 15 years old, 5751 South Hoyne avenue, was returned to her home yesterday after a week's absence, which she told the police had been sleeping in barns and on suburban farms. She disappeared when she thought her parents had discovered that she had "flunked" in several studies, and was often absent from school.

Indict Chicago Girl for Bandit Roadhouse Slaying

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 4.—Miss Anna Tulke of Chicago was indicted by the Lake county grand jury today for murder in the first degree. The indictment was for the murder of Thaddeus Fancher, a young Crown Point lawyer, who was killed by a holdup band in a roadhouse on May 5. Miss Tulke was with the bandits and figured prominently in the holdup, it is charged.

Pickpocket Suspect Shot Down in Chase; May Die

Richard Major, colored, 3147 Indiana avenue, an alleged pickpocket, was shot and probably fatally injured yesterday in an attempt to escape from Policeman James Kenney. Major had strong armed William Smith, 60 years old, at 31st street and Wentworth avenue. Officer Kenney, who was off duty, pursued him for five blocks and then fired.

Coolidge 1st, La Follette 2nd, Davis 3rd in Chicago Test

Presidential Poll

Candidate	Previous days.	Yesterday.	Total.	Per cent.
Coolidge	4,089	653	4,742	49.26
Davis	1,076	191	1,267	13.16
La Follette	2,778	704	3,482	36.17
Foster	124	12	136	1.41
Totals	8,067	1,560	9,627	99.99

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Coolidge leads easily. La Follette is running a slow second, and Davis is a worse third than Taft was in 1912 and nearly as bad as Debs in that same contest.

That summarizes THE TRIBUNE'S preliminary test of public sentiment in Chicago on the presidential candidates. The poll was limited in scope and was not intended as a detailed survey. Its purpose was to give a general impression of the attitude of the voters at the time the straws were collected. It is inadequate upon which to forecast the results of the election in November, but it is sufficient to give a rough estimate of the present feeling of the local electorate.

Illinois Certain for Coolidge.

It indicates that Senator La Follette is not as strong in Chicago, where the industrial and other real workers are as thoroughly informed and as well organized as in any large center in the country, as his friends have been representing. Previous polls of THE TRIBUNE indicated that La Follette is less popular with Illinois farmers than with the trade union members in Chicago.

These are the two groups to which Senator La Follette has been catering especially. His failure to make a better showing with them in THE TRIBUNE polls indicates clearly that a miracle must happen—either in blunders by Coolidge managers or by superman persuasion by La Follette managers—for the Badger state senator to win the electoral votes of Illinois. Coolidge appears to have them sewed up, and will keep them unless the bag is ripped.

Chicago has gone Democratic only twice in a presidential election in forty years, and the poll shows it will not be Jeffersonian this time. Once it went Progressive—in 1912—but the other seven times it has been Republican.

The result of the straw vote, segregated into the three large divisions of the city, gives a better opportunity to the readers to test out the figures by their own methods. That summary of the poll follows in this brief table:

Candidate—	West side.	North side.	South side.	City total.
Coolidge	1,547	1,321	1,874	4,742
Davis	509	230	528	1,267
La Follette	1,500	651	1,331	3,482
Foster	69	20	47	136
Totals	3,625	2,222	3,780	9,627

Bob Strong on South Side.

The second of the south side polls, which is included in the above figures, was taken largely in Democratic territory. It indicates that the Democrats of that section have forgotten the speech of John W. Davis at the stockyards three weeks ago, if indeed it made the impression at the time which was claimed for it. South side Democrats, like those of the west side, much prefer La Follette to Davis.

The result of this second south side poll, in which Foster received an even dozen votes, is as follows for the other three candidates:

Ward.	Location.	Coolidge.	Davis.	La Fol'te.
18	42d and Archer	71	24	78
19	Triangle theater	92	23	41
9	Roseland theater	58	4	38
9	103d and State	23	7	31
3	39th and Cottage	92	31	87
16	63d and Ashland	67	24	87
9	Rosel'd-State th'tr	55	11	60
13	47th and Ashland	45	6	59
10	93d and Commerc'l	24	5	51
16	63d and Halsted	57	16	81
14	47th and Halsted	69	32	105
	Totals	653	191	704

Democrats Jump to La Follette.

It will be noticed that La Follette jumped into the lead on this poll. This was probably because so large a part of it was taken in territory that is normally Democratic. Of the 1,560 votes, La Follette received 45.13 per cent, Coolidge 41.86 per cent, and Davis only 12.24 per cent.

La Follette also ran six votes ahead of Coolidge in the first test of the west side. His advantage in this second south side poll is much larger.

On the poll as a whole it will be noticed that Coolidge's percentage is early as large as the sum of both La Follette's and Davis'. If both were combined they would total only eight-hundredths of 1 per cent more than Coolidge's, which in votes in Chicago means about 625. That is on the assumption that 780,000 votes will be cast in November.

BOB LEADS MANHATTAN POLL.

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—United States Senator Robert M. La Follette was Manhattan's choice for President on the sixth day of the pre-election poll conducted in the five boroughs by the Daily News. The canvass to date shows a total of 10,453 votes polled, of which La Follette got 4,222; Coolidge, 3,703; Davis, 2,388 and Foster, 140.

Davis ranks a poor third in this Democratic stronghold, and thousands are splitting their vote for Al Smith. In the New's poll the governor is running nearly three to one ahead of the Democratic nominee for president. President Coolidge ran ahead of La Follette today in Brooklyn and Queens but dropped behind again in Manhattan and the Bronx.

Al Smith leads the gubernatorial poll, having increased his lead over Col. Roosevelt today. The standing for governor now is 5,908 for Smith, 3,205 for Roosevelt and 568 for Thomas.

Big Yields Any Year
Assured in SUTTER BASIN by Irrigation and Drainage

THE greatest essential to successful agriculture, next to fertile soil, is controlled moisture—water when you need it, where you need it, and the amount you need.

Sutter Basin Farmers Telephone for "Rain"

In Sutter Basin, California, the farmer telephones for his "rain"—orders his water from the mutual-ownership irrigation plant—and regulates the amount to suit the requirements of his crops.

The Sutter Basin irrigation and drainage system is one of the most complete in America and is capable of distributing by gravity throughout the tract a total of 18,630,000 gallons of water per hour, which is ample to meet the most urgent needs of all Sutter Basin farmers. Irrigation is supplied to every farm.

Run-off water is drained by the complete net-work of drainage ditches, and carried into the Sacramento river.

Big Yields Assured—Soil Kept Sweet and Mellow

By means of this thorough system of moisture control, big yields of all crops grown commercially in the Sacramento Valley are assured, and the rich, strong soil is kept sweet and mellow. Sutter Basin land doesn't wear out! There are no "dry" years in Sutter Basin—and every year is a "big-yield" year!

Many Other Advantages

Better markets, excellent transportation, a wonderful climate, good roads, progressive schools — these, and many other advantages combine to make Sutter Basin the ideal place to farm and the ideal place to live.

One of the last big land opportunities in the West awaits you here, where a 45,000-acre tract of cultivated land is being divided into individual farms. If you are industrious and can make a reasonable initial investment, we would like to tell you more about this new agricultural empire and what it can mean to you. The last Sutter Basin excursion of the season leaves soon! Make your reservation now! Call, phone, or mail the coupon.

SHOWS BOB HAS CHANGED TARIFF TUNES OF LATE

Not for Low Duty in 1922, G. O. P. Leader Says.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Although Senator La Follette [Rep., Wis.] as a presidential candidate is against high duties, he saw that products of his own state were given adequate protection in the Fordney-McCumber tariff law, according to a statement issued today by James B. Reynolds, manager of the Washington headquarters of the Republican national committee.

"Wisconsin is particularly interested in meat, dairy products, and wheat," said Mr. Reynolds. "The senate committee on finance brought in several amendments to the house bill increasing the rates on these products. The agricultural schedule was before the senate from June 28, 1922, to July 6, and La Follette, though absent and not voting, and in the majority of instances not paired, remained glued to his seat during that week.

Old G. O. P. Spirit Revives.

He was the old time La Follette of McKinley tariff days, and for a brief space his Republicanism sprang to life like a retired fire horse on hearing the clang of the alarm bell.

"In the course of that week Senator La Follette voted to increase the duty on fresh beef from 2 to 3½ cents a pound; on fresh lamb from 2 to 5 cents a pound; on bacon and hams from 1¼ to 2 cents a pound; on lard from 25 per cent ad valorem to 5 cents a pound, probably about 50 per cent ad valorem; on milk from 1 cent to 2½ cents a gallon, and on cream to 22½ cents a gallon. He also voted to increase the duty on poultry from 2 to 3 cents a pound; on honey from 2½ cents to 3 cents a pound; and on wheat from 25 to 30 cents a bushel.

But He Didn't Help West.

"Having fixed up Wisconsin in pretty good shape, with Senator La Follette's help, the senate passed to some commodities in which California was particularly interested, and then the adroit gentleman from the Badge state suffered a complete relapse.

"On behalf of southern products, he voted to have the old Democratic rates continued on rice, and for a duty on unshelled peanuts 25 per cent below the Democratic duty, which had raised hob with the peanut industry."

HEADS VETERANS

MAJ. GEN. GEO. H. HARRIES.
[Photo by Gessford.]

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.—Maj. Gen. George H. Harries of Chicago, national commander of the Military Order of the World War since its organization in 1919, was reëlected today at the closing session of the annual convention. Maj. Gen. Mark L. Hersey of Boston, elected on the second ballot, refused to accept the office, and on the next ballot the convention was unanimous for Harries. Gen. Harries commanded the 173d infantry overseas and received several decorations. He commanded a brigade of Negroes during the Spanish-American war and was an Indian scout under Miles and Crook. He was chief of the United States military mission to Berlin in 1918.

ICKES DEFENDS BOB'S CLAIM TO "PROGRESSIVE"

Statement May Foreshadow Bolt by Hiram.

Harold L. Ickes, Illinois primary campaign manager for Senator Hiram Johnson, issued a reply yesterday to the Roosevelt progressives who recently protested against La Follette's use of the party label "Progressive."

The La Follette management claimed that Ickes had "sounded his indorsement" of La Follette, but the words 'I am for La Follette" do not appear in the statement.

What Ickes Really Said.

These sentences contain the closest approach he made to an indorsement:

"It may be that La Follette does not represent the political ideals of the Progressive party in 1912; but, if he doesn't, certainly no other individual or political group does."

"Backsliding Progressives may denounce La Follette, but they show a nervous hesitancy in disclosing their own preference in presidential candidates."

Mr. Ickes was "state chairman and member of the national executive committee of the Bull Moose party," as the La Follette announcement set forth, but since that time he has been identified closely with several campaigns which were not mentioned. Among them were the Harlan and Merriam mayoralty campaigns, the Cox presidential campaign, and Dever mayoralty campaign.

Wife Is Small's Candidate.

To these indications of varied political connections is added the fact that his wife, Anna Wilmarth Ickes, is in this campaign Gov. Len Small's handpicked candidate for university trustee.

Among the three Republicans proposed by the alumni this year was Mrs. Tiffany Blake, a member of the present board. On the day of the convention Gov. Small struck her name from the list and substituted Mrs. Ickes.

La Follette workers believed they saw in Ickes' step a hint that Senator Johnson will come out for the third party in California.

BEG YOUR PARDON

John Riesinger, 2042 Lee place, says that James Wiedersberg does not do all the steeplejack work for the board of education as stated in THE TRIBUNE on Thursday. Riesinger does a large share of the work.

In the issue of THE TRIBUNE for Sept. 24 it was said that a woman told of having to "split" part of the pension awarded her by the police pension board "during the present régime," the date of the "split" being given as in August, 1923. J. C. Hanson, now president of the police pension board, explains that himself and two other members were not appointed by Mayor Dever until late in October, 1923, though the present administration had appointed an attorney for the board to succeed the Thompson appointee.

CANDIDATES OF G. O. P. ON STATE POWWOW TOUR

Republican state candidates head toward Harrisburg tonight for the start of their state-wide tour tomorrow. They will hold a series of organization meetings with local leaders and candidates on congressional, legislative and county tickets. The caravan plans to cover the state in six days, the fastest state-wide campaign schedule ever attempted in Illinois.

The main purpose of the tour, according to Frank L. Smith, chairman of the state committee, is to "get down to brass tacks and discuss the real truth about the situation in the various localities."

Here are the towns selected for the district conferences: Harrisburg, Carbondale, Centralia, East St. Louis, Springfield, Champaign, Bloomington, Peoria, Galesburg, Sterling, De Kalb, and Geneva.

The windup at Geneva, home of State Treasurer Oscar Nelson, candidate for auditor, will include a big barbecue.

If You Are Thinking of Going to California You Will Want This Book.

The Chicago & North Western Ry. has just published a new edition of their booklet, "Forty Ways and More to California and the North Coast." It is not a picture book, but it is chockful of interesting information about routes, fares, and shows with the aid of outline maps the territory you can cover. GUARD OUR BASIC RIGHTS; MAINTAIN COURTS—DAVIS

Scores La Follette Plan in Americanism Plea.

BY DONALD EWING.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Here in New England the birthplace of the United States John W. Davis tonight laid down a doctrine of Americanism that called for a return to the belief of our forefathers and a repudiation of the present day pronouncements of Robert M. La Follette. Thousands cheered him and other thousands were turned away from the hall.

The speech of the Democratic presidential candidate, though delivered in the loftiest of diction, constituted the strongest attack he has yet made on La Folletteism. Mr. Davis decried flag waving Americanism, denounced the La Follette attack on the constiution and, though speaking in a section settled alomst 300 years ago talked in a tone of pity of those who judge Americanism by length of residence in this country.

Pleads for Supreme Court.

The supreme court, he said, must not be annulled by congress for congress that might annul the right of some one citizen, and even one individual citizen must always have his inalienable freedom.

"I don't think Americanism means waving the flag," Mr. Davis said. "I don't think it means boasting of America as the greatest, the most powerful, richest, and holiest people the world ever saw.

"I don't think Americanism is a question of the length of our stay in this country.

"I don't believe either that Americanism is a question of the form and order in which one chooses to worship the great God and Father of us all.

What Americanism Is.

"I think Americanism is a matter of belief, that it is a creed, that it is a faith, and those who truly hold and profess it are Americans, and those who hold it not are unworthy of the name, and the source from which we derive it is one familiar to us all. We get it from the words that spoke this Nation into being.

"And the language is this: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their creator with certain inalienable rights, and among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and to secure these rights governments were instituted among men drawing their just powers from the consent of the governed.'

"Now let us see what we find in it. Created equal insofar as governmental institutions are concerned, in three great particulars:

"Equal in opportunity, that the shadow of caste shall never fall across the pathway of a single American and that every father and mother, no matter how lowly, may hope that their children may lead a better and a broader and a happier life than they have ever known.

"Equality of right, that all men high and low, rich and poor, black and white, may stand in equality before an equal law.

Each Bears Own Burden.

"Equality of burden, that the burdens of government shall not by artificial means be shifted from one shoulder to another.

"Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, freedom of speech and freedom of the press; and as to freedom of speech, let me call your attention to a very profound saying about that, that it means not only the right to say what the government wants to hear, for no man is ever interrupted about that, but the right to say what the government would rather not listen to.

"Freedom of assembly and freedom from unlawful and unreasonable search and seizure. The privacy of one's home and of one's person. The right of trial by jury and utter and unimpeded and absolute and entire freedom, civil, social and political, in matters of religious faith and practice. All that long category of things marks the line between the free man and the slave.

Don't Let Them Slip.

"In those things we so firmly believe, we Americans, that we are not willing that a popular majority at the ballot box or a majority in congress or a majority in the state legislature no matter how large, no matter how often repeated, shall take them away from the humblest citizen in all this land.

"My objection to the proposal by Senator La Follette that the courts shall not have the power to declare void a statute which congress may choose to repeat, a statute that deprives me of my right of worship, that puts a gag in my mouth, that robs me of my freedom of speech, or deprives me of my right of trial by jury, and I want some court to say, "Gentlemen, you have no power to do that thing."

This is the home of the celebrated Mason & Hamlin, musically, the most beautiful Piano the world has ever known. It is the home of the Conover, built in our own factories with exceeding care—a Piano more moderately priced than any other really great Piano of today. Here, too, you will find the Hardman, the official Piano of the Metropolitan Grand Opera, the Cable, Kingsbury, Wellington, Haines Bros. and many others.

Our own make of responsive, durably-built, fully guaranteed Inner-Player Pianos should be investigated before you make any decision. Complete stocks afford comparisons in many woods and finishes.

Used Pianos—practice Pianos, almost without number, ranging in price from $125 upward can be had on term payments to suit your purse.

COMING!
The Mason & Hamlin with the AMPICO
This month we are to receive a shipment of these notable instruments, the world's most beautiful Piano equipped with the most perfect of re-enacting devices.

The AMPICO
The marvel of the reproducing field.

The finesse with which it plays is unapproached. If you would prove this statement listen for its beautifully interpreted pianissimo passages. The secret of loving music is knowing music and there is no great performer so ever-available as the Ampico. It places at your disposal a vast musical literature including the works of the greatest masters of all time.

But you may be more interested in its gayer moods. It is the right-at-hand orchestra for the dance and an ideal accompanying instrument for which there are song rolls in abundance.

Why let another day pass without coming in and getting acquainted with this most famous of re-enacting devices.

WOMEN'S VOTES MAY ELECT NEXT U. S. PRESIDENT

Cast 37% of Huge Vote in 1920.

BY ARTHUR W. CRAWFORD.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Women's votes may prove to be a controlling factor in the coming presidential election, the second in which they have figured since equal suffrage became the law of the land.

Compilations just made by Simon Michelet, a Washington lawyer, show that women cast 37 per cent of the 1920 popular vote for president, or approximately 10,000,000 out of a total of 26,712,000.

Mr. Michelet recently issued an analysis of the "stay at home" vote of 1920. His calculations show that the stay-at-home vote and the women's vote are two uncertain factors that have weight enough to settle the issue of any national campaign.

How He Gets His Figures.

In estimating the part played by women in the 1920 presidential election, Mr. Michelet encountered difficulty, as the records of some states fail to separate the vote of women from that of men. In some states he estimated the women's vote by comparing the votes for president before and after suffrage, giving due allowance to the normal increase in the men's vote.

In some states, such as Illinois, official returns of women's votes were available. He was able to work out an estimate of percentages of the women's votes for forty-two states. No attempt was made to estimate the vote of colored women.

Mr. Michelet's investigations led him to the conclusion that women have not been greatly interested in all elections and offices, but that they turned out in remarkable numbers at their first presidential election in 1920, and the size of their vote is likely to be greatly increased this year.

43 Per Cent Didn't Vote.

"There are 23,994,580 native and naturalized white women of voting age, as shown by the 1920 census. Forty-three per cent of them in forty-two states went to the polls and voted for President," says Mr. Michelet.

"This indicates that in 1920," he adds, "57 per cent of the women of voting age failed to vote, or a trifle larger stay-at-home percentage than for men.

"The nation-wide movement of the women in getting out the stay-at-homes, which is now going on in most of the states, indicates that on Nov. 4 next the women of America will make a far more impressive showing than in their first general ballot in 1920.

Women's Vote in Chicago.

As showing that the interest of the majority of women does not yet extend to all elections and offices, but principally exhibits itself in the national election, Mr. Michelet says that Chicago returns afford a good illustration. In 1920, Chicago women, with a registry of 388,613, cast 312,859 votes for President. In the city election of 1921, with an even larger registry, they cast only 119,247 votes.

In the general election of 1922 Chicago women cast 264,241 votes, and in the judicial election of 1923 dropped to 151,167 votes. The March, 1924, registration of women reached the high point of 349,283. In the April presidential primary they cast 200,791 votes and in the June judicial election only 56,557. Their maximum vote may be expected in the November presidential election.

Percentage of Female Votes.

A comparison of geographic divisions shows the difference between the percentage of the total vote accredited to women. The eight mountain states have a slight lead by casting 41 per cent of the total vote. New England and the Pacific states are close up with a women's vote of 40 per cent. The poorest average was in the three middle Atlantic states, where the women appear to have cast 31 per cent of the total vote polled.

The women's vote cast in the 1920 presidential election represented 41 per cent of the total presidential vote in Illinois, 35 per cent in both Michigan and Indiana, 37 per cent in Iowa, 35 per cent in Wisconsin, and 40 per cent in Minnesota. The women voting represented 54 per cent of possible women voters in Illinois and Indiana, 41 per cent in Michigan, 49 per cent in Iowa, 50 per cent in Minnesota, and 40 per cent in Wisconsin.

September's Hero

Patrolman Patrick J. Rush of the Irving Park command, awarded Tribune's $100 bravery prize for September.

BOB'S GERMAN MATRIX STUMPS LABOR EDITOR

Peter Cunniff, editor of a local labor union publication, yesterday refused to use a mattrix sent out by the La Follette headquarters because it was stamped "Flexideal Germany."

"I know it is only the name of the paper used in making the mat from which cuts are made for publication," said the labor editor, "but it doesn't seem consistent to me that La Follette should be parading around the country pleading for support of the American workers while he uses the products of German workers.

"I have been watching the formation of the third party, with La Follette acting as a figurehead, and from the group it collected it looks as though this organization will hit the rocks like former ones. There are too many pie counter artists, Socialists, and other sour stomach personages to make a go of it.

"The class following the La Follette parade make their living by organizing political parties. It's their racket. To take them away from such a stunt would be like taking candy from a school boy. The whole program will retard trade unionism about fifteen years. Probably a slight touch of chaotic conditions would be a good laxative for some workers who believe they're not well off."

WAR HERO COP WINS TRIBUNE BRAVERY AWARD

Chased and Captured a Bandit in Night.

Devotion to duty, alertness and unusual courage, displayed when he pursued and captured an armed bandit, causes THE TRIBUNE to award its September $100 bravery prize to Policeman Patrick J. Rush of the Irving Park command. Similar valor in action won Rush distinction in France during the world war, when, as a member of the 302d Field artillery, he participated in the St. Mihiel and Argonne drives.

Rush was "traveling post" near Kedzie and Montrose avenues about 3 a. m. on Sept. 23, when a taxicab rounded the corner and ground to a stop at the curb beside him.

"I've just been held up—robbed," shouted Paul Shapers, chauffeur of the cab, to Rush. He told of picking up a fare at Wabash avenue and 14th street, who asked to be taken to Leclaire avenue and Roscoe street.

Once there, the passenger had drawn a revolver and, after forcing Shapers to surrender the night's receipts, about $9, had ordered the chauffeur to drive to Lawrence avenue and the river, where he left the cab.

A Chase in the Night.

As he listened, the policeman's attention was diverted for an instant to a passing taxicab. Its passenger, peering from the window, had glimpsed the policeman in the gloom and hurriedly jerked the window curtain down, meanwhile urging the chauffeur to "step on it."

Drawing his revolver and leaping to the running board of Shapers' car, Rush ordered the driver to chase the suspicious taxicab, which by this time was fast disappearing. For more than a mile the two cabs careened through the night.

At Kedzie and Cullom avenues the two cabs ran abreast for an instant, and in that instant Rush leaped to the running board of the other car. Shouting to the driver to halt, he forced open the cab door and grappled with the occupant, who struggled desperately to fire his revolver.

Bandit Overpowered.

A short tussle and Rush not only disarmed the man but dragged him out of the cab to the ground, where he was promptly identified by Shapers as the bandit who had robbed him a few minutes before.

Investigation revealed the bandit to be none other than Joseph Wozniak, 3041 South Keeley avenue, known police character, who, earlier in the evening, driving an automobile forty miles an hour on Clark street near Diversey avenue, had struck and seriously injured William B. Edmunds, 1265 Winona avenue. Edmunds sustained several fractured ribs, a broken collar bone, and a possible skull fracture, while Wozniak escaped.

Policeman Rush, told that he had been selected by THE TRIBUNE as the department's outstanding hero for September, could remember nothing he had done during the month to warrant a prize. He thought brother policemen were "kidding" him.

"O, that," he said, when reminded of Wozniak's capture. "That was nothing. Just part of the day's work. When I saw that curtain go down, I took a chance that something was wrong."

BRENNAN SAYS HE HAS THAT 1912 VICTORY HUNCH

Sees Davis and Jones Forging to Lead.

BY PARKE BROWN.

George Brennan has explained his persistent "hunch" that Davis will win.

For weeks the Democratic national committeeman from Illinois has been discounting straw votes, reports of attendance at meetings, declarations of racial groups and other sources of strength. He has smiled at the forecasts of the experts.

He has "felt" that the Democrats will win in the nation and in the state and county as well. He has been satisfied with his own belief that temporary "grouches" causing Democrats to vote for La Follette in straw tests will disappear in the polling booth.

Finds 1912 Precedent.

The real source of his "hunch," he disclosed yesterday, is his constant recollection of the Bull Moose campaign of 1912, his conviction that that battle is the only precedent for this contest, and that the final result will be the same—Democratic victory.

His "hunch" already has "started working out," according to Mr. Brennan. He said that Chicago precinct canvasses during the last few days showed straw votes a week old already worthless; that authentic reports prove remarkable downstate progress for Norman L. Jones, nominee for governor, and that the independent press of the nation is giving approval to Davis.

He also said his confidence concerning Illinois is based partly on the "mere gesture" of a campaign that is to be made in the hurry up trip of the group of Republican nominees over the entire state this week. He asserted that this was an evidence of the "impossibility" of a real Republican campaign in Illinois because of the "Small complication."

Calls Conditions Parallel.

"Conditions today are almost precisely the same as they were in 1912," he said. "The busy man who hasn't yet given though to the seriousness of his vote marks his straw ballot for the third party candidate. If there is any exception in the comparison it is that the Democrats are more active and more united than they were in 1912.

"As the outlook becomes clearer in their minds the voters will decide for Davis. He will carry Cook county. Both the Democratic county and state tickets will be elected."

Youths, Seized in Woods, Admit Stealing of Autos

Three youths arrested in the Forest preserves late yesterday in the act of stripping an automobile, later confessed the theft of a number of cars, among them one owned by Ald. John Coughlin of the 1st ward, familiarly known as "Bath House John.' The youths are John Dodnow, 962 South Racine avenue; Stanley Lesiak, 716 North Ada street, and Joseph Fritz, 964 North Racine avenue.

FRED W. UPHAM.
[Wide World Photo.]

Home from three months' stay in the Adirondacks for his health, Fred W. Upham, Republican national committeeman, predicted with a smile yesterday that he soon will be able to forecast exactly the result of the presidential election.

"Just as soon as I get to the national headquarters," he said, "I'll be able to tell you all about it. I expect to go over there on Monday."

Mr. Upham suffered an attack of pneumonia while he was away, but said his strength is returning steadily now. He will not return to his business offices until after the election.

THE NEW MONROE DOCTRINE.

The Monroe Doctrine will enter the Pacific. What has been an Atlantic doctrine and a defense mainly against European designs will become mainly Pacific in significance, with Atlantic reverberations.

Japan leads the attack. Her amendment to the league's protocol is in effect a diplomatic mobilization. Her challenge of America's right to deal with immigration as a domestic problem is a diplomatic offensive of first importance. It is a reversion in principle, if not in formal statement, to the presumptions of the early nineteenth century. Those presumptions were that America, or the Americas of any newly opened land, are by natural right open to those who need them. They are no man's land financially, politically, socially, and the prior right of older countries is not displaced by the acquired rights of the new settlements. Though the Atlantic Monroe Doctrine referred mainly to political penetration and control of the new lands by the old, it is not different in principle from the Pacific issue referring to social and economic penetration.

For immigration has the same effect, though by a different means, that direct foreign intervention has. It imposes on the country receiving immigrants the same eventual dangers to national integrity and high living standards. It brings the same degenerations.

Japanese challenge of our right to treat the immigration law as an internal matter subject to our own decision; Japan's success in drawing to her side Italy, France, and numerous minor powers show that a restatement of the Monroe Doctrine is needed. It is an issue as critical in 1924 as it was in 1824.

It will be a Pacific Monroe Doctrine. It will affirm primarily the right of America to consider her immigration problems her own. It will treat an act of the league or of any other power tending to controvert this doctrine as unfriendly to a grave degree. It will affirm its intention to defend that right and the corresponding rights of other white peoples in the Pacific associated with America. The new Monroe Doctrine has a new statement and a new geography, but an old principle. It is a principle as old as America and as deeply imbedded in our instinctive foreign policy as any that we have.

Aligned with the United States in such a restatement of the Monroe Doctrine are the natural interests of Canada, of Australia, and New Zealand. And a conference of these white peoples of the Pacific with the United States for the purpose of considering the problem and making a joint defensive statement of the doctrine is advisable. Certainly no factor could make for the stabilization of the Pacific so powerfully as the knowledge that the white peoples in that great basin are at one in foreign policy and in defensive interests.

Persistent conditions in the world, huge overcrowding in some countries such as Japan and Italy, relatively unsettled countries near by under white governments pledged to maintain those lands open to white futures, mean that the tension and the danger in immigration will ever increase. It is time that the English speaking peoples of the Pacific recognized this issue as a joint issue. It is time that they made a joint statement of a new Monroe Doctrine.

AFTER LA FOLLETTE, WHAT?

Victor Berger of Milwaukee, who with Morris Hillquit of New York, Joseph Schwartz of Ohio, and other leaders of the Socialist party, addressed a Socialist rally in Chicago for La Follette and Wheeler, told his comrades why he is backing the Wisconsin senator, and why all Socialists should vote the La Follette ticket.

The explanation ought to be thought over carefully by the farmers who have been disposed to follow La Follette in the past and also by conservative union labor, which some of La Follette's present allies would like to deliver to him.

Mr. Berger confessed that the Socialist party was a dismal failure because the conditions in this country don't fit the Socialist arguments. They prevent "class consciousness," says Berger, and the ginger in the Socialist class war talk is gone if voters insist upon thinking of themselves, and proudly, as Americans, not as members of an enslaved class with no ties except the ties of a world proletariat. Berger said truly that the Socialist party hasn't got anywhere in this country because "we have very few native American workers who are compelled to stay workers all their lives." And he explains that this is because there is "always a chance for them to get ahead on the shoulders of the immigrant, the newcomer."

So American workers—of whom there are about 110,000,000 in the United States—refused to respond in any considerable numbers to the Socialist revolutionary rallying cries, refused to join the class war, refused to be persuaded that they have "nothing to lose but their chains," and therefore Mr. Berger, Mr. Hillquit, and other advocates of the substitution of a Socialist state for the United States now turn to Mr. La Follette with cheerful confidence that he has headed their way. La Follette made many mistakes, said Mr. Berger, "but now he is for public ownership of public utilities" and "willing to learn at 70."

The large number of westerners who have been followers of La Follette as a progressive Republican, as a loyal American fighting monopoly on American lines, to curb it by regulation in the public interest, ought to size up the present movement with some care before they put their votes back of it. La Follette's retreat toward the Socialists—and it is a retreat from the viewpoint of every loyal progressive Republican—is so satisfactory to the Socialist leaders that they have virtually given up their own party and engaged with La Follette in his present campaign to prevent the Republicans from winning an election by a popular plurality expressed in the electoral college.

But, as Mr. Berger reminded his hearers, Mr. La Follette is 70 years of age. He is not only 70 years old, but far from a strong man physically. About him are all the Socialist leaders and the extremists among the farmer politicians. Mr. Gompers, who has always been a sturdy opponent of socialism, is 74, and while convalescent from a dangerous illness cannot be expected to be a very formidable check upon the Socialist wing of the La Follette party. They have forced him into it.

Therefore, as we have said and as an examination of the personnel of the La Follette organization makes clear, the question of future control is of first rate importance to any voter who does not wish to assist socialism and un-American radicalism in this country. La Follette himself has moved toward practical socialism of recent years; but, putting that aside, in the nature of things both he and Gompers are not likely to survive a struggle with the Socialist captains they have accepted as allies in this campaign.

Neither American farmers in overwhelming majority nor conservative labor have any use for socialism, as Mr. Berger acknowledges, and there is every substantial reason why they should be loyal defenders of the American system. They ought to think over the invitation of the La Follette-Berger-Hillquit combination very carefully, for it is an invitation to give socialism a strength it could never win on its own prescription.

After La Follette, there will be little left in his party of the Americanism he and Mr. Gompers have asserted so many years.

A GREAT DEBATE.

By far the ablest and also the most interesting literature on the subject of Private Property and Union Rules is contained in the correspondence between the officers of the United Mine Workers of America and Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and chairman of the board of directors of the Coal River Collieries, published by the former.

Editorial space prohibits more than a few quotations from the argument.

First a quotation from the prelude to the official record of the correspondence issued by the mine workers at Indianapolis:

"Coal River Collieries is a coal mining company. It owns four mines in the Kanawha field of West Virginia, and one mine in the Big Sandy field of eastern Kentucky. The stock of the company is owned exclusively by members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. The brotherhood, as an organization, does not own any of the stock, but the mines are commonly known as 'brotherhood mines.' Warren S. Stone, former grand chief and now president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, is chairman of the board of directors of Coal River Collieries and acknowledged head of the enterprise.

"Ever since the 1st of April, 1924, the United Mine Workers of America has endeavored to induce Coal River Collieries, through Mr. Stone, to enter into a wage and working agreement for the employment of union miners in these mines, but the effort has failed. The company's mine in Kentucky is operating on a nonunion basis. The four mines of the company in the Kanawha field of West Virginia have been closed since the 1st of April because of the refusal of the company to make a contract with the United Mine Workers of America in line with the Jacksonville agreement."

Then, after masterful preliminary fencing over an agreement between the mine workers and the brotherhood, the mine workers open fire:

"Mr. Tetlow advises me that it is his purpose to call the men out, providing a sincere effort on the part of your management is not made to negotiate a contract at an early date."

The locomotive engineers reply, Mr. Stone at the throttle:

"You know, Brother Murray, I have been in the game too long to be scared by any threat like that. I also want to call your attention to the fact that the organization I have the honor to represent fed and clothed the miners of West Virginia for months when no other organization was coming to their assistance. In addition to that, the manager of the Coal River Collieries has been instructed to pay the union scale of wages and I have their proposed price list before me as I write.

"Brother Tetlow's threat to call the men out would be amusing to me if I did not know how some of these district organizers jump at conclusions. I suppose, of course, he refers to the mines in West Virginia. The mines have not been taken over yet from the contractor, and will not be for a few days. However, if he wants to call the men out it will be perfectly all right. Tell him to go ahead and do it.

"If the whole thing hinges on insisting that we sign the check-off system and allow your representative to say who shall and who shall not work in the mines, then it will have to come because we are not going to instruct our manager to sign the check-off system and we intend to have the say as to who can and who cannot work in these mines. No walking delegate or business agent can keep a man in our employ who either uses booze or dope and who does not behave himself and act like an American citizen should act. The boast of some of the agitators in some parts of the country that 'they will tell us who we can work and who we cannot work' is a mistake.

"We will always pay the men the union scale or better and we will give the miners better treatment than any other mine in the country. Further than that I do not think you should ask and I am sure we should not be expected to grant."

The mine workers set off another charge under Brother Stone:

"I was amazed to note the arbitrary attitude you have assumed with respect to the organization of your company's properties in West Virginia and Kentucky. The inferences contained in your communication would tend to create the impression that the members of the United Mine Workers of America are un-American. The phrases used by yourself in this letter are the common, everyday expressions of the nonunion coal operators in the Logan, McDowell, and Mingo county fields of West Virginia.

"In your reply you attack the check-off system of our organization and infer in an insulting way that it is not your purpose to have any relationship whatever with the United Mine Workers of America. I therefore take it for granted that you do not propose to either meet with our representatives or designate any one to represent you to meet with our people for the purpose of making an agreement."

The locomotive engineers reply, Brother Stone shooting:

"I have been handling a labor organization for over twenty years and, if you will pardon the ego, I think I have handled it successfully, but if I handled the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers along the lines that you insist your organization shall be handled, the railroads would not do business with us for a single day. There is no particular objection to the check-off system, in so far as collecting dues of the miners is concerned, although I never thought it was a part of the duty of the company to collect dues for the labor organization. The principal objection I find to signing up an iron clad agreement with the United Mine Workers is once this is done we have no control over our own camp.

"I have no doubt there are many deserving cases of men who would be glad to have a home such as we have built for our miners, and who would be glad to work under living conditions that we are giving to our men, and yet, on the other hand, I also know that there are a number of agitators among the ranks of this tent colony that will do everything possible to either keep from working themselves or allow others to work if they can prevent it. In other words, the rôle of agitator has become a profession with them, and they realize that they have lived for a long period of several months without work, and they do not intend to work in the future if they can work at their present job."

The mine workers again:

"The Coal River Collieries company, while not a member of the Kanawha Coal Operators' association, and while not utilizing the eviction instrument, is in all other respects apparently coöperating with the coal operators. This is an intolerable position for a coal company whose stock is largely owned and whose affairs are directed by union men to occupy."

The locomotive engineers reply:

"The members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who have invested over $3,000,000 in these properties, are entitled to some return on their investment, and I think you will concede this, and yet at the present price at which coal is selling, and the cost of mining under the Jacksonville agreement, it is impossible for the union mines to break even. The average price at which coal is selling f. o. b. is $1.50 per ton—not much incentive to open a mine or work it under those conditions. We want to run a union mine, and expect to run one if we run it at all, but it is impossible to do so when the nonunion fields around us can produce coal so much more cheaply, and have a monopoly on the entire market."

And a last blast from the mine workers:

"I have paid particular attention to the statement contained in one of the concluding paragraphs of your letter to the effect that you knew of no one doing as much as I to support the Coal Operators' association in their fight against our union in that field. I scarcely expected to see such a stereotyped statement from the pen of a trade unionist. I hear it every day from the coal operators in various parts of the country, and I will be fair enough to presume that you were speaking as a coal operator and not as a trade unionist. It must be interesting to have such a dual personality. You doubtless mean that the employés of the Coal River Collieries must accept a reduction in wages. In this respect you are, therefore, supporting the claims which have been made by the West Virginia representatives of your corporation ever since April 1.

"You refer to the cost of production at your West Virginia properties. Your company occupies no different position in this matter than any other of the thousands of coal companies which have agreements with our organization. The United Mine Workers cannot be responsible for problems of management in which they have no voice. The question of efficient management and low cost production to enable you to remain in the market with competing coal companies is one that must be dealt with by your corporation. It is a problem that forever confronts one who elects to become a coal operator.

"There need be no equivocation of any character. For nearly five months you have closed the four mines of this company and maintained them in idleness rather than make such an agreement. For nearly five months the United Mine Workers of America has been obliged to provide food and other assistance for your striking employés. Will you settle or will you continue to fight?"

Mr. Stone appears to have stopped arguing for the present. We rather hope he will resume. He is a great debater and presents his side with a skill never before exhibited. Mr. Lewis and his associates are just as good.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

The October ticket is for the cream of the year. Full of days and ruddy of color the season edges towards the chimney corner. The roar of a fire of logs answers the wind in the gables. A sense of shelter is a luxury to people to whom shelter comes by course. Before the days of rents a good cave was next in value to a shank of meat. There's still value in a sound thatch and a good flue when the wind's in the north and stepping high and wide, with blue clouds on the horizon behind it.

The dogwood berries are ripe and falling. The partridge come out from under the balsam to get them. The balsam are full of chickadees and that means full of cheer. Buckwheat fields are in red stubble.

Buckwheat stubble and chickadees are intimations of night with timbers cracking in the cold and of sun up with footsteps creaking in the snow.

Color in the hardwoods, starting as a crackling flame is running from maple to maple and getting into the oaks. Birch, beech, and aspen will throw their dead to the wind.

October mists roll out as the sun declines and it is red as it touches the western rim of the world. The old year is genial in the chimney corner.

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

Miss Elsie De Wolfe said at a reception at her residence in Sutton place:

"Some women branch out into politics and reform before they are quite up to it. A banker told me the other day that a woman asked him recently to address her club on international finance.

"'I am sorry, madam,' said the banker, 'but I have sworn off all public speaking.'

"'But—' said the woman.

"'No!' the banker cut her off firmly. 'No, I have burned my bridges.'

"'O, but in that case,' said the woman, 'I can easily lend you a pair of my husband's.'"—Wall Street Journal.

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH.

Small boy (shaking and scolding pet rabbit)—How much is two and two? How much is two and two?

Father—Here! Here! Don't treat a poor rabbit that way. It can't answer you.

Small boy—Well then, they didn't tell the truth at school. Teacher said rabbits multiply rapidly and this one can't even add.—Pittsburgh Sun.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

FOOD THAT HELPS TEETH.

McCOLLUM tells us that in the several hundred skulls of Indians in the Natural Museum in Washington, he found only one decayed tooth. Steffanson says there is no word for toothache in the Eskimo language and the teeth of the primitive Eskimo were excellent. Mr. McCollum says the teeth of carnivorous animals and carnivorous man were of excellent quality so long as they adhered to their primitive dieting habits. The plain tendency of opinion now is that the preservation of the teeth depends more on the food than it does on ordinary brushing and teeth cleanliness.

The food elements which are most frequently deficient are the calcium, some of the vitamines and phosphorus, in the order named, and some others of less importance. The foods which are rich in calcium are milk, cheese and other foods made from milk; the leafy vegetables such as greens and all vegetable salads and nuts. The breads and cereals and other grain foods contain a plentiful supply provided they are served with the bran. Breads and cereals made from branless grains are poor in lime. Ordinary meat is only fairly rich in lime, but it contains plenty of phosphorus. The bones and some of the organs contain ample lime. In the cooking of meat and vegetables the lime will be lost if the soups, extracts, liquors and cooking waters are thrown away. A cook who does not save the liquor of meats and vegetables and feed has no right to talk against people eating white flour and refined sugar. The pot has no right to call the kettle black.

Dr. Deck says while the loss of teeth from decay is bad for us, it may be the lesser of evils. A prospective mother is carrying her child. She does not eat enough lime. It is better to take some of the lime out of her teeth and have them decay than that her baby should not have enough lime for his bones and teeth; or that the woman's bones should soften for want of lime; or that when presently she goes through childbirth, her blood would not clot because she did not have enough lime. It is bad for a child less than three years of age to have decayed milk teeth, but maybe the baby is not getting enough lime, and it is better to take some out of the milk teeth and use it to build up sound, permanent teeth.

A young man, say one about fifteen years of age, finds his teeth decaying. That is bad of course. But maybe his system needed that lime for some more important structure. When a full grown man or woman develops a tendency to decay in the teeth, there is always the possibility that the system had urgent need of lime somewhere else. In any event, a wiser plan would be to eat the proper food prepared in the proper way and in proper quantity and to leave the lime in the teeth where it belongs.

CURE FOR FOOT AGONY.

Mrs. S. A. writes: I suffered the agony on my feet—perhaps the same kind that "Mrs. A. B." asks you about in today's paper.

I used permanganate of potash crystals; made the water quite a deep purple and soaked my feet in it about fifteen minutes every night. This made my feet brown, as if stained with walnut juice, but it certainly did the work.

REPLY.

If washing in permanganate solution will cure the itching blisters on the feet which develop in hot weather, it might be successful with chilblains. The latter complaint is the cold weather cousin of hot weather blisters.

PLAY BALL FOR BLOOD.

H. H. writes: I am 26 years old and have been told that my blood pressure is low, but as the price is $10 for each injection I am afraid I will not be able to afford very many, so I am writing you to advise me if there is a cheaper remedy to build me up.

REPLY.

The doctor needs the money more than you need the injections. Playing ball is a fine cure for low blood pressure. Even watching an exciting game is good—better than injections of serum.

TENANT GETS PESKY.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—[To the Legal Friend of the people.]—1. Please advise if there is still a law requiring landlords to furnish lights in the hall of a two flat building.

2. Can a tenant who has done his own decorating ruin same by scratching paper, blotching paint, etc., upon moving from the building, and what can a landlord do in that case?

3. Also, is sixty days' notice still required?

4. If tenant willfully stays after that time (which they said they would do), would their rent be free until they decided to move? They have no regular lease. C. F. B.

1. No. It was held unconstitutional.

2. He would be liable for damages beyond ordinary wear and tear.

3. Yes, if the tenancy is by the month.

4. No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DRAWING UP A WILL.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I wish to make my will so that it cannot be broken. I have two brothers who will do all they can to change it. I have in no way been influenced about making this document, but wish to put down my own ideas. I want mine airtight and foolproof.

J. H. G.

Employ an attorney to draft the instrument. He can advise you as to the effect of undue influence, etc.

PLANS FOR ELOPEMENT.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Would I be able to get a marriage license from the justice of the peace at Crown Point or not?

2. Do you think I would be able to be married after 5 o'clock on a Saturday?

3. How long would it take to get to Crown Point? J. D.

1. We see no reason why you should have any difficulty in getting one from the county clerk.

2. Yes.

3. Depends upon your means of conveyance. If you plan to go by train inquire of the station agent.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 5, 1864

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—Details are coming in of the massacre at Centralia when a train was stopped by Anderson's guerrillas. Anderson, dressed in Union army uniform, boarded the train, on which were twenty-four Union soldiers, many of them sick. He charged that federals had killed and scalped six of his men. The soldiers were separated from the rest of the passengers and lined up. A company of bushwhackers, with revolvers, marched before the line and shot down the soldiers, killing them all. The passengers were then robbed of their watches, jewelry, and money. Two who hid their valuables in their boots were shot to death.

CHICAGO.—William A. Gooding has been appointed general superintendent of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

CHICAGO.—Dr. John McAlister and Miss Abbie Morrison were married by the Rev. W. W. Patton.

CHICAGO.—Patriotic children are raising funds for the soldiers. Alice Bevans, 12, gave a fair in her yard at 78 North Dearborn street, which netted $40.08. A fair given by little Cornelia Heartt and Minnie Wilcox of 184 and 186 4th avenue, brought in $15.40.

CINCINNATI.—Gen. Joseph Hooker has assumed command of the northern department, consisting of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Michigan, with headquarters here. The department is to be subdivided into four districts, with an officer of suitable rank in command of each.

WASHINGTON.—The war department issued orders governing the voting of the soldiers in the field at the coming election. A representative of each party is to be designated by the governor or state committee as agent for each army corps to arrange for the vote. No speeches or canvassing among troops will be permitted.

NEW YORK.—The Herald's London correspondent writes that a petition that will have more than 1,000,000 signers will be sent to President Lincoln and the people of the United States, praying for peace.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 5, 1899.

CHICAGO.—The opening of Chicago's fall festival was signalized last night by the unfurling of banners, the flinging out of flags and the flashing of thousands of lights in the State street court of honor. It was declared the most brilliant scene Chicago has ever known. Every train entering the city is crowded with visitors.

LONDON.—A dispatch from Newcastle, Natal, says: "The Boers have left the Laager and are moving to the frontier. The condition is most critical. All women and children have been ordered to leave for the interior of Natal." The Post says the British army corps to be sent to South Africa will number 40,000 men.

WASHINGTON.—President McKinley ordered the armored cruiser Brooklyn and the gunboats Machias and Marietta to the Philippines to maintain a blockade and cut off supplies of the Filipinos. The action was taken on the advice of Admiral Dewey.

BOSTON.—Miss Julia Arthur's production of Emil Bergerat's play, "More Than Queen," at the Park theater here, is regarded by her friends as her greatest achievement.

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Leslie Carter was legally freed from all her debts by a bankruptcy decree in the U. S. District court. Her petition listed $60,000 liabilities and no assets.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 5, 1914.

BERLIN.—The following official announcement was made: "In the siege of Antwerp, Forts Wavre, St. Catherine, and Dorpweld have been taken and Fort Waelhem invested. Termonde, an important strategical point, has been occupied."

ANTWERP.—The German general commanding the bombardment of the forts defending Antwerp informed Brand Whitlock, American minister at Brussels, that it is the desire to preserve the famous churches and historical monuments of Antwerp from destruction by shells and said that if the Belgians give assurance these places will not be used for military purposes, the Germans will try to avoid damaging them. The Belgians agreed and E. Alexander Powell, TRIBUNE correspondent, was selected to carry the Germans the Belgian acceptance, together with a map of the city showing the location of famous structures.

LINCOLN, Ill.—Carl E. Person, editor of the Strike Bulletin, was acquitted by a jury on the charge of murdering Antone Musser, former chief of police at Clinton, Ill., whom he shot in December, 1913. Cheers greeted the verdict. The shooting was an outgrowth of the strike of the Illinois Central shopmen in Clinton. Frank Comerford of Chicago defended Person and the case attracted attention all over the country.

WASHINGTON.—Led by President Wilson, the people of the United States devoted yesterday to supplication to God to put an end to the war which has convulsed the eastern and shaken the western hemispheres.

CHICAGO.—From more than 2,000 meetings the voice of Chicago joined in the nation's mighty prayer for world peace yesterday [Peace Sunday].

PETROGRAD.—It is officially announced that the Russian armies are everywhere on the offensive and that practically all the ground lost by the defeat at Allenstein has been recovered.

FROM ALLEN ALBERT.

Paris, Ill., Sept. 22.—A letter has come to me, as a candidate for congressman at large, from the Women's Peace union, 244 Lexington avenue, New York City, asking me to declare myself in advance of election day on an amendment to the constitution proposed by the union. The effect of the proposal is that the United States shall never again wage a war under any circumstances, shall forbid the organization of troops or naval units, and shall forbid the manufacture of arms.

I have sent a reply to the questionnaire which in your judgment may have value as informing the voters of Illinois of the position of a candidate to represent them in congress. The paragraphs of direct interest are as follows:

"I cannot accept the postulate that the richest treasure house in the world can expose itself to attack from any Huerta or Castro who may arise overnight. I believe our present army and navy are required for a proper policing of the world. I believe the power to declare war, for another century, must be vested in some proper authority of our government. Wherefore I cannot support the amendment you propose.

"Much as I hate the sending of troops and ships abroad to protect the persons or property of citizens in foreign countries, I believe the power to do so is indispensable to a nation which counts tourists among its citizens by the million. Almost anything can happen to them, and it would be the height of imprudence not to maintain an adequate defense of them against the reasonable need.

"This reasoning will indicate how far I am from the doctrine from pacifism. I believe the great present need is for a codification of international law; for a court to administer such a law; for an international agreement outlawing war, like that reported lately in the league of nations; and for a police force which will hold the collar of the lawless with the firm grip of organized international authority."

Out of years of service for the reduction of war I venture that any progress toward that goal must be conditioned on force enough to control the lawless. Anything less than that would foster more warfare than we now have and we now have so much that war is overwhelmingly the heaviest curse humanity bears.

ALLEN D. ALBERT.

SINCE BROSS AND MEDILL.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 22.—I have been reading THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE since the days of Bross and Medill, before any of you present day youngsters were born. It is a great paper, and in former generations set the pace for righteous government and genuine Americanism. But why the leader in last Sunday's issue?

Do you really wish to repeal the eighteenth amendment to the constitution, or are you just playing politics, partisan politics? It seems to me that you are just fishing for the "wet" vote for Coolidge and Dawes. If that is your aim allow me to say that you will lose ten votes for every one you gain. The people of this country have had enough of the saloon business.

Do you forget that the women now vote in every state in the union? Not one woman in ten thousand would ever vote to restore the hellholes that breed murder and every other species of crime, and more than 50 per cent of the men, everywhere, will follow the splendid example of the women.

You may as well ask the sober, patriotic women and men of this nation to restore African slavery as to reinstate the saloon. Your "very fine citizens" may know how to avoid the law and get intoxicants of all sorts, but if they keep the stuff under cover and do not sell it to the youth of both sexes as the saloons did and would ever do, let them proceed as lawbreakers. If they drink to excess and create brawls and commit crime they will be punished, and the decent people, though not so "fine," will go on about their business.

So let Coolidge and Dawes have the "wet" vote, and the vote of the "very fine citizens." The rest of us will have no more of that relic of barbarism, the American saloon. We prefer La Follette and Wheeler, who believe in the enforcement of all laws.

E. M. BRUNSON,
Late sergeant, Company K, 20th Regiment Illinois Infantry, Civil War.

THE SUPREME COURT.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—On Sept. 21, 1924, F. W. Sargent, vice president of the Chicago and North Western railroad, gave an illustration of a Canadian editor who was sent to jail by an act passed by the Canadian legislature he criticized, and stating that would not have been possible had Canada a Supreme court to pass upon its constitutionality.

Mr. Sargent gives one good reason why the Supreme court in theory can be a useful institution, but when the Supreme court fails to protect the people in their personal rights and grants special privileges, and if its decisions destroy religious liberty, and even the property of the United States, then, curbing it, or even abolishing it is far preferable.

As a protection to the people it is only a wart on the pickle and [illegible].

In the case Mr. Sargent quotes only one editor who went to jail because there was no Supreme court.

In the United States, with a Supreme court, thousands of citizens went to jail and several million will go there when they are caught, because the Supreme court ruled that the eighteenth amendment to the constitution regulating personal habits was a fit subject for constitutional amendment.

The destruction of property and loss of business due to that decision runs into billions, but is of small consequence against the knowledge that every right, civil, religious, or property, guaranteed by the constitution is a myth—subject to destruction at any time by an amendment by the majority or well organized minority.

To me it seems remarkable that many of our influential men [illegible] comprehend that if personal habits can be regulated and civil liberty destroyed by constitutional amendment, every other right can.

Religious or anti-religious tyranny is an assured fact in the future.

That decision indicates neither the constitution nor the Supreme court is a protection to the minority.

The constitution promises nothing that the majority cannot take away.

The Supreme court refuses to protect the minority or has not the brains to see so, and they are there for life.

Neither can be relied upon for protection against ill advised legislation.

That being true, instead of defending the Supreme court, it would be far better for us to knock it out of existence or curb it, and prepare ourselves and children to protect themselves by acquiring arms and learn to use them in the next civil war caused by a Supreme court decision.

WORTH WHILE.

Endeavor to be a go-getter. Have a personality, and appearance as good as possible, no better; a certain quietness and dignity fitting to one's years and position.

Let no day pass without improvement, just a little, when it may not be more. If this is done, there is, in a way, a better chance for keen pleasure, real satisfaction, genuine worth while returns.

This refers to persons, yet if one will change a few words, refer it to home, its furnishings and surroundings, the values are similar.

RACER KILLED AS 300 MI. AN HOUR PLANE CRUMPLES

Entry of Pulitzer Falls Apart in Midair.

BY MORROW KRUM.

Dayton, O., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Capt. Burt E. Skeel, 30, commanding officer of the 27th pursuit squadron, Selfridge field, Michigan, was killed today when the wings of his Curtiss racing plane crumpled in the air as he was preparing to take a flying start in the Pulitzer high speed trophy race. The pilot, unable in the swift and short drop to jump from the fuselage and release his parachute, was dead before the dust had settled around the wreck.

Among the 75,000 who saw the fuselage of the plane come hurtling out of the sky on a shower of wreckage was Mrs. Gertrude Skeel, wife of the pilot and mother of his two sons. She fainted.

Sperry Plane Wins at 216.55.

Lieut. H. H. Mills, flying a Verville-Sperry plane, won the race. His speed was 216.55 miles an hour, twenty-seven miles an hour less than the mark made last year at St. Louis by Lieut. A. G. Williams of the navy.

The accident occurred as the four Pulitzer racers started across the line. High in the air was Skeel, diving to add speed to a craft that in straight flight has attained a velocity of 210 miles an hour.

Faster and faster sped the little biplane. Experts said it was flying near the 300 mile an hour mark. A lower wing crumpled. In the space of the second the entire ship had fallen apart. The fuselage, bearing the helpless pilot, shot straight for the earth, its 520 horsepower motor wide open and bearing Skeel to his death at a horrible speed.

Buried in Ditch.

The fuselage plunged into a ditch that was half filled with water. Débris was shot 200 feet in the air and motor and pilot were buried. Many seconds after the fuselage had struck the earth the wings of the ship floated downward, their silver surfaces flashing in the sun.

A great silence fell upon the thousands for a moment. Then came the roar of ambulances futilely rushing to aid.

Tonight experts said structural weakness caused the fatality. Other Curtiss racers have stood up under similar diving speeds. This one would not stand the strain.

Other pilots in the Pulitzer race did not learn of the accident until they had finished the contest.

Mitchell Cup Race Fast.

Although there was disappointment at the comparatively slow time of the Pulitzer race winner there was elation among the military men when the John L. Mitchell trophy contest was flown. This race, for a cup presented by Brig. Gen. Mitchell, was contested by eleven pilots in Curtiss P. W.-8 pursuit ships.

This type of airplane is the greatest achievement of the industry and has been perfected during the last year. It is a fighting machine of tremendous speed. It is the only airplane that has accomplished a vertical climbing spin.

The winner was Lieut. Cyrus Bettis of the air service, who averaged 175.70 miles an hour. Not one of the eleven ships fell under 163 miles an hour.

Amazes War Pilots.

War pilots who were used to Spads and Fokkers in 1918 stood with mouths open as the pursuit ships raced. Charles G. Gary, the noted British expert, said England's fastest racing plane is capable of only 140 miles an hour.

Because of Capt. Skeel's death all entertainments and festivities planned for tonight have been called off. The meet has ended and the 200 visiting planes will start home early tomorrow morning.

The message the meet has given to America is one of cheer. American ships carry the greatest weights, fly the fastest, and possess the greatest stunting ability, a valuable point in war and peace.

COLLAPSES IN HIS AUTO.

Stanley J. Bentley, 54, 1341 North Parkside avenue, collapsed in his automobile near 1125 Lyman avenue, Oak Park, yesterday, and died as police were taking him to a hospital. Apoplexy is believed to have caused his death.

KILLED

CAPT. BURT SKEEL.

Brother Finds Girl of 20 Dead in Her Bathroom

MISS GERTRUDE CLAUS.

Miss Gertrude Claus, 20 years old, 2245 Bissell street, was found dead in the bathroom of her home early yesterday. Her body was found by her brother Erwin, after he had found the room locked. Together with his mother, he forced the door open. Physicians and a pulmotor squad worked in vain to revive her. The Hudson avenue police, who were notified, expressed their belief that the girl had succumbed to natural causes.

Mrs. Nellie Garnsey, 50 Yrs. in Evanston, Dies at 80

Mrs. Nellie Garnsey, 80 years old, 1844 Ashland avenue, a resident of Evanston for more than fifty years and a graduate of the Northwestern Female college in 1866, died yesterday of gas poisoning at the Evanston hospital. Asphyxiation is believed to have been caused by defective piping. Mrs. Garnsey was the wife of C. A. P. Garnsey, 82 years old, a civil war veteran who served with the Board of Trade battery.

All Evanston Officials Pallbearers for Boyer

With all the city officials of Evanston acting as pallbearers, funeral services for John F. Boyer, veteran police magistrate and justice of the peace of Evanston, were held yesterday. Services were held both at the home and at Wheadon M. E. church, with the Rev. Elmer L. Williams and the Rev. Fred F. Nichols officiating. Burial was in Rosehill cemetery.

"Call Hursen of course—"

This is the answer given to the question which is asked every day in many parts of Chicago, "Who will we have to direct the funeral?" "Hursen, of course!"

The Business of the world always "gravitates" to the men who do things far better, who serve generously, who give far more, who furnish far better things, and who charge far less for them.

These things make up the policy on which Hursen has built the largest and most remarkable institution of its kind in America—and no man, no set of men, no system of graft will prevail against it. It is the combination which broke the strangle-hold of the funeral trust in Chicago.

A funeral directed by Hursen is distinguished by the super-elegance of everything which is furnished, by the unusual manner in which all things are done, by the unusual generosity of service rendered, by the unusually high type of employes who render this unusual service, and by the unusually low charges, which are invariably far less than those charged elsewhere.

Hursen automobiles at Hursen funerals excite universal admiration everywhere. For comfort, roominess and elegance they are unsurpassed by many of the highest-priced automobiles of the day. The charges for these Hursen-cars are no higher than the usual auto hire. Call Hursen, of course!

PARK

RAVINIA—On-the-Lake
THE IDEAL SUBDIVISION

IN THE heart of Highland Park—Ravinia section, and on the shore of Lake Michigan lies "Deere Park"—the only subdivision on the North Shore with riparian right lots. Here is a 42-acre tract of wooded ravine traversed property in its natural, naked beauty. Every lot in this subdivision has access to a private bathing beach.

All improvements, including 18-foot concrete drives, sidewalks, sanitary sewer system, water, gas mains and electric lights, are being installed and paid for. No assessments against lot purchasers.

"Deere Park" enjoys the best of transportation—61 trains daily on the Chicago & North Western Railway and 111 trains daily on the North Shore Electric. If driving out, follow Sheridan Road, Route 42, to Green Bay Road—continue north on Green Bay to County Line Road—then east to Sheridan Road and north one-half mile to the property. Our subdivision office on the premises.

If you come by train or trolley, get off at the Highland Park station where a Baird & Warner automobile will meet you. If our automobile is not there, any taxicab will take you to the property without charge.

Telephone Highland Park 1204 or Main Office Central 1855.

Beginning Tomorrow Congoleum Week

October 6 to 11 only

A Six-Day Sale of America's Most Popular Floor-Covering

For the first time in two years, genuine nationally-advertised Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs, By-the-Yard and Rug-Border are now offered at special bargain prices. Unlike sales that feature cut prices on left-overs at the end of the season, Congoleum Week gives every woman the opportunity to beautify her floors at the lowest possible cost just at the time when she is putting her home in order for the winter.

Instead of putting down the same old rugs and carpets after everything else has been cleaned and looks like new, a few dollars spent now for Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs will do wonders in brightening up the home.

One of the greatest charms of Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs—the warmth and artistry of their color schemes—cannot be appreciated from this advertisement. You must see them to realize how beautiful your floors can be made at such small cost.

Beautiful — Durable — Easily Cleaned

A delightful note of brightness and color is introduced into the home by Congoleum Rugs. Beautiful to begin with, the unusually durable surface resists the hardest wear.

These popular rugs banish the tiresome beating and sweeping necessary with old-fashioned, woven floor-coverings. One minute with a damp mop and the rich, artistic patterns of Congoleum Rugs are revealed in their full beauty—cleaned as easily as highly glazed tiles.

Designs for Every Room

There are appropriate Congoleum patterns for every room; for every manner of taste, for every color scheme. There are warm-toned designs to enrich the appearance of dining and living-rooms; exquisite floral patterns to give fresh beauty to bedrooms and neat conventional reproductions for kitchen, pantry and bathroom.

Waterproof and Stain-Proof

Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs are made in one strong, seamless piece. They are absolutely unaffected by water. They will not fray along the edges. Spilled liquids cannot stain and dirt cannot penetrate their smooth, sanitary surface.

No Fastening Required

Gold-Seal Congoleum Rugs lie absolutely flat without fastening. They won't wrinkle or kick up; they never curl at the edges.

Genuine, Guaranteed Goods

All the Gold-Seal Congoleum offered in this sale is fresh, new goods. All of it carries the famous Gold Seal pledge of "Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back." For your own protection, remember there is only one "Congoleum" and it is identified by the Gold Seal pasted on the face of every pattern.

Gold-Seal Congoleum By-the-Yard

The same material as Congoleum Rugs, and made in tasteful unbordered designs for use over the entire floor.

Gold-Seal Congoleum Rug-Border

If it is desired to cover the floor space between a large centre rug and the walls, there is Congoleum Rug-Border in realistic reproductions of hardwood flooring.

Don't Miss This Opportunity

Wherever you may live—you will find a Congoleum dealer near you. He will be glad to show you the many beautiful patterns. Don't delay. Reduced prices are in effect this week only.

WORLD HORSE SHOW HERE IS RIDING CLUB AIM

Corpening, New Director, Outlines Program.

To make Chicago the center for horse activities in the United States, even to hold the international horse show here, is one of the aims of the new Chicago Riding club, McClurg court, between Ontario and Ohio, it was announced yesterday by Maxwell M. Corpening, who has been selected as managing director. The club will be occupied about Nov. 1.

"With such a club as is now under way, with the number of people interested in horses, the possibilities for Chicago are unlimited," he said. "It is the geographical center of the country, and all activities pertaining to horses should naturally center here."

A West Point Graduate.

Mr. Corpening, a graduate of the cavalry school at the West Point academy, has had a long career with horses. In 1918-'19 he was an instructor in horsemanship at West Point. Later he was a field artillery officer. He has entered army horses in numerous shows in various parts of the country.

Mr. Corpening is well known in army circles as a polo player, having been a member of the Fort Sheridan polo team which won the Onwentsia tournament and the mid-western tournament at Dayton, O. He has also participated in several endurance riding contests, placing second in the 300 mile ride at Colorado Springs last year. He was born in North Carolina and has ridden horses all his life.

Ex-French Officer Is Aid.

Among the riding instructors picked to aid him at the riding club is R. G. Castel, former captain of cavalry in the French army. Mr. Castel is a graduate of the French military riding academy at Saumur and served ten years in the cavalry, receiving the Croix de Guerre in the world war.

Activities at the riding club will include polo, both indoors and outdoors, horse shows, steeplechases and other riding contests. A staff of instructors will be on hand at all times, Mr. Corpening said. It will be possible for the public to rent horses and to receive instruction in riding.

Another object of the riding club, Mr. Corpening said, will be to coördinate all local organizations interested in horses.

Stolen Auto Smashed During Police Pursuit

After stealing the auto of A. Cooper, 5610 Dorchester avenue, and wrecking it and the front porch of the home of Walter Poroyszynski, 1936 North Rockwell street, a gang of bandits early yesterday eluded pursuit by Lieut. Christ Hughes of the detective bureau and escaped on foot. They stole the car from in front of the Drake hotel.

NEW RIDING ACADEMY HEADS

MAXWELL M. CORPENING. ROBERT G. CASTEL.

Under the guidance of these former army officers, Mr. Corpening of America and Mr. Castel of France, the Chicago Riding academy will launch its program to make the city the center of the nation's horse activities.

EIGHT POLICE SERGEANTS WIN LIEUTENANCIES

Eight police sergeants were promoted by Chief Collins yesterday. The new lieutenants and their assignments are as follows:

Charles Callahan, from detective bureau to Deering street.

Albert Winge, from detective bureau to Central.

Matt Hoff, from Rogers Park to Irving Park.

James Kerr, from detective bureau to New City.

Frank Lange, from state's attorney's office to Town Hall.

Arthur Patton, from drillmaster's office to Grand Crossing.

Patrick Knox, from state's attorney's office to Irving Park.

James O'Brien, from detective bureau to stockyards.

The same order announced the transfer of Lieut. Paul Riccio from the New City station to Wabash avenue and Lieut. Eugene Dailey from Wabash avenue to the New City command.

Raises $425,000 for N. U. New School of Commerce

Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, announced yesterday that $425,000 has been raised of the $700,000 sought for a modern building for the school of commerce. A quiet campaign was started last spring. Chicago business men have subscribed about $150,000. Students of the commerce school pledged $100,000.

TWO RAILROADS MOVE INTO NEW UNION STATION

Removal of the general offices of the Pennsylvania and the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroads into the new Union station was begun yesterday. The installation probably will be completed tomorrow.

The division freight office of the Pennsylvania will continue to be in the loop, in the new Illinois Merchants National bank building. All other offices will be in the station.

The Burlington and the Alton will retain their offices in their own buildings.

HUDSPETH HELD IN A CELL; HE'S NO LONGER COP

Harry Hudspeth of the Evergreen Park police force, was held to the grand jury in $20,000 bonds on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon when arraigned in Willow Springs before Magistrate John J. Price yesterday.

Then he was stripped of his star, revolver and uniform coat, and placed in a cell.

The charges against Hudspeth grew out of an assault he and another man were charged with making on Edwin Custer, 9331 Turner avenue, Evergreen Park, a garage owner, early Sept. 29. Custer testified more than twenty shots were fired into his machine.

CITY SELLING OF FRUIT TO PEOPLE SOON TO CEASE

Final shipments of Michigan peaches, early grapes and plums, for sale "from grower direct to consumer" under the direction of the city council high cost of living committee, will be received at the municipal pier this week, it was announced yesterday by Joseph Rushkiewicz, secretary of the committee.

The pier market is open every day including Sundays, until 6 p. m. and until 8 p. m. on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

All of the produce including ripe tomatoes, apples and pears, are sold to the public at prices approximately the same as the prevailing wholesale figures.

WORLD'S LARGEST MUSIC HOUSE WURLITZER STORES FROM COAST TO COAST

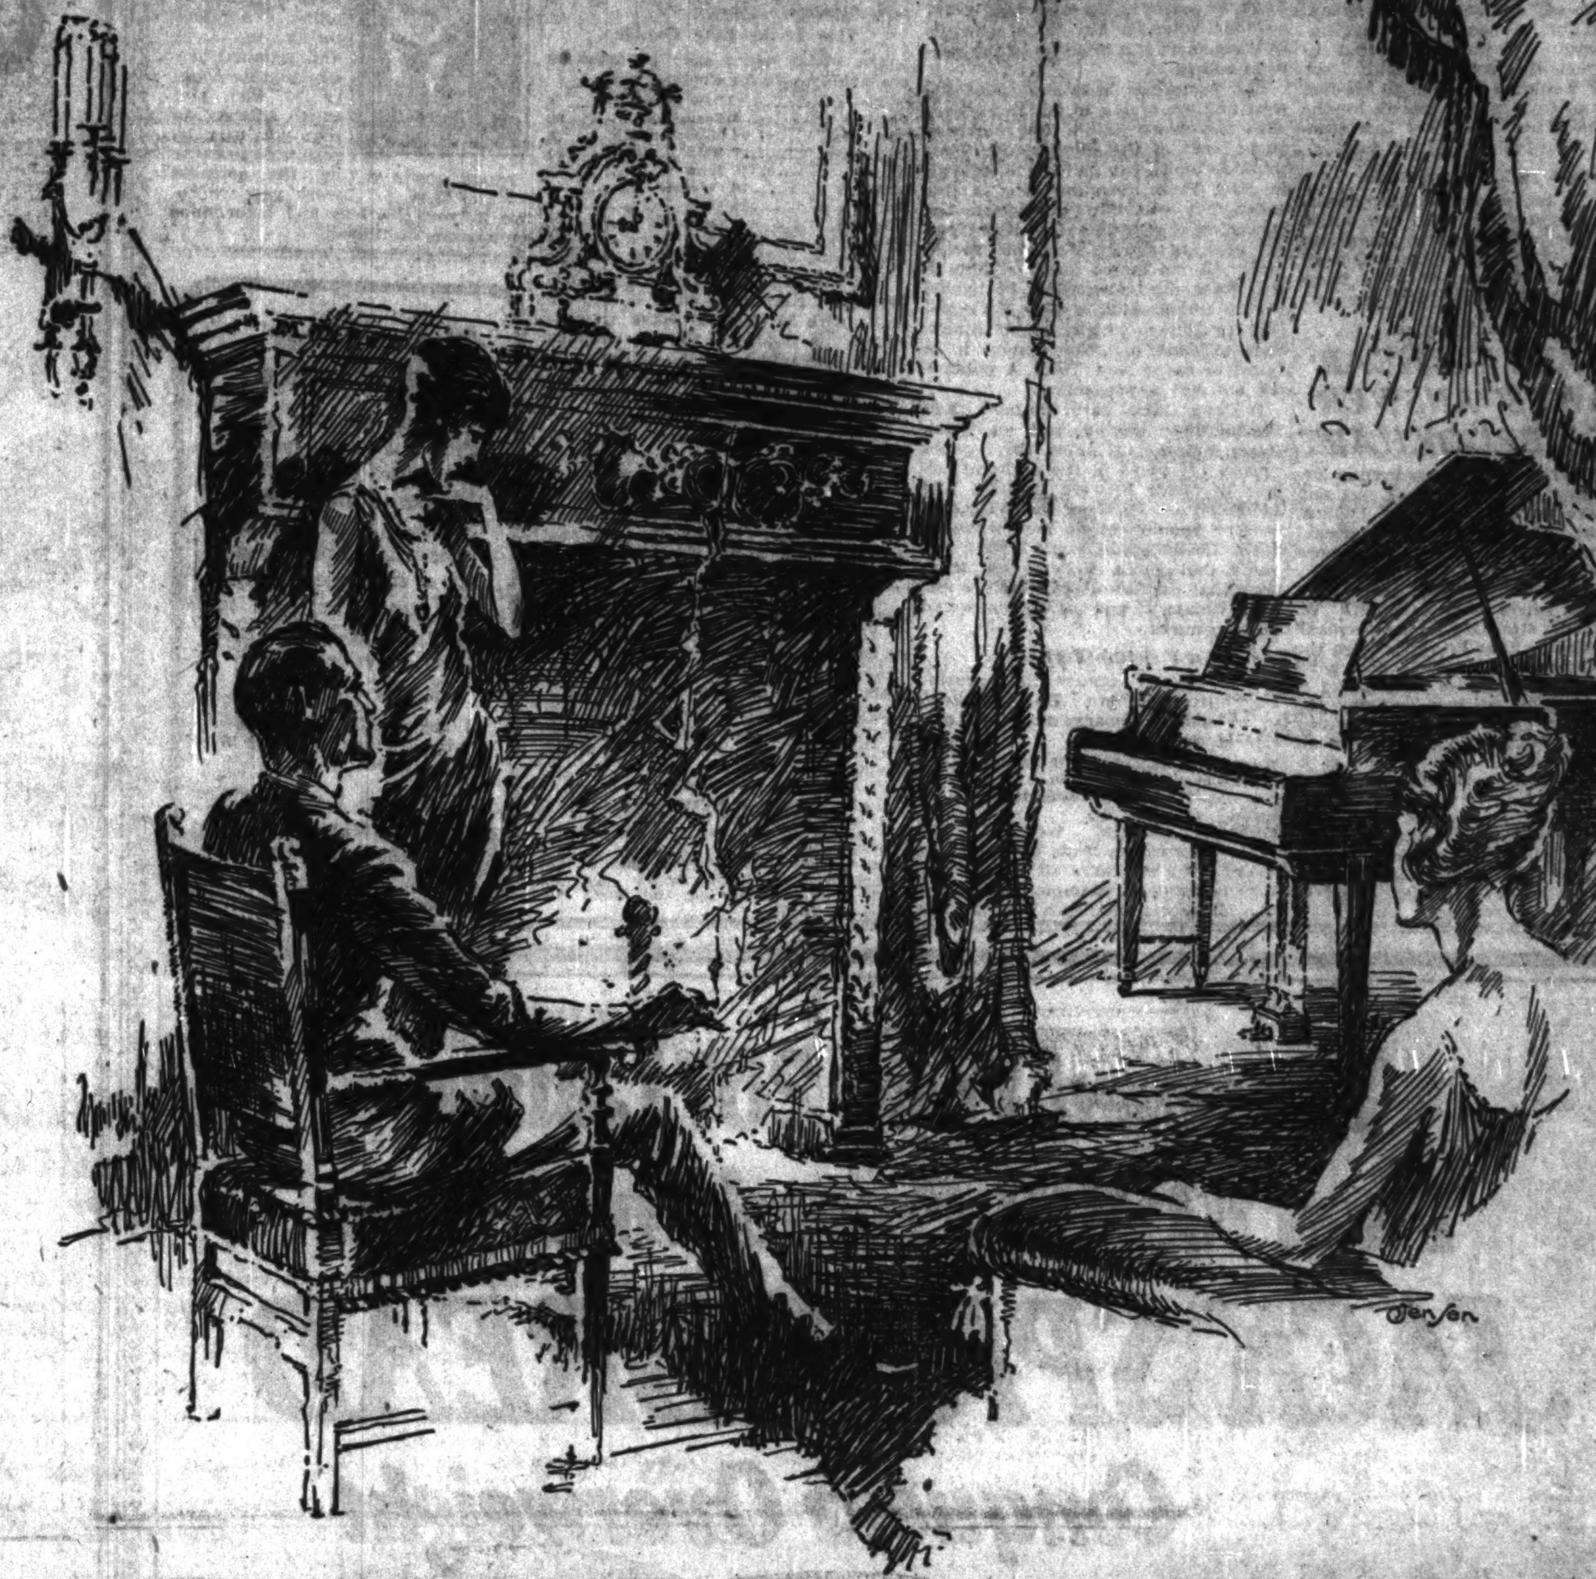
A chilly fall evening indoors, maybe a guest or two — an open fireplace, and The Apollo — what else could be desired to make an enjoyable evening?



The APOLLO REPRODUCING GRAND PIANO

When unexpected guests arrive then is when the Apollo plays an important role. Its beautiful music, perfectly reproduced, is now heard in the finest of homes. Just the mere touch of a button and the Apollo is ready to play for you or your friends the music you like best. Great classics, sparkling waltz selections, latest ballads and fox trots--all yours if you have one in your home. The Apollo is within the means of the most moderate purse--it costs very little more than a high grade Grand Piano.

You have heard the Apollo time and again, maybe in a friend's home or on the concert stage. You have marveled at its uncanny reproductions of your favorite pianist. Why not come in some day this week and let us demonstrate the Apollo--you will be surprised to learn how easy it is to own this wonderful piano. The coupon will bring interesting information if unable to call. Apollo Reproducing Upright Pianos are priced from $1200 up. Apollo Reproducing Grand Pianos from $2000 up.

Liberal allowance on pianos, players and grand pianos in exchange on Apollo Reproducing Pianos. Open evenings.

DEVER DECLARES LA SALLE BRIDGE CIVIC NECESSITY

Wants Weeks to Override Maj. Putnam's Veto.

MAYOR DEVER. (Walinger Photo.)

Mayor Dever will appeal at once to Secretary of War Weeks from the ruling of Maj. Rufus Putnam, federal district engineer, who would deny the city permission to build a bridge over the river at La Salle street. Business men and other interested persons representing civic organizations, will be asked to join the special aldermanic committee he will lead to Washington, the mayor indicated.

Erection of a bridge at La Salle street would create another obstruction to river traffic, already seriously hampered by the center pier in the nearby Clark street bridge and be an unwise expenditure of millions before the city has adopted a fixed or movable bridge policy, Maj. Putnam declared.

"Considering the relatively small amount of money required (approximately $11,000,000) for the widening of La Salle street and a bridge over the river, it is the most important improvement before the people of Chicago," the mayor declared. "The project is so intimately linked with the widening and double decking of South Water street, the refusal creates a critical situation for the city.

"I am inclined to dispute Maj. Putnam's assertion that the cargoes carried yearly on the Chicago river are valued at more than $200,000,000. I would have to see the facts and figures."

Shock to City's Officials.

In the decision, which he read to the city's representatives after allowing them to testify for nearly two hours, Maj. Putnam asserted that Chicago's river traffic amounted to more than 1,000,000 tons annually and would increase if new obstructions to shipping were not placed in the river.

"The widening of La Salle street from Washington street to Lincoln park at a total cost of $11,000,000 is contemplated," declared John J. Sloan, president of the board of local improvements. "From Washington to Ohio street the present eighty foot roadway would be widened to 120 feet and from Ohio street north to the park, the present sixty-six foot roadway would be widened to 108 feet.

Would Reduce Congestion.

"The La Salle street bridge, particularly in connection with the South Water street double deck improvement —the latter now under way—will be of material aid by diverting a large amount of traffic which now congests the loop."

LEGION NOTE

Members of the American legion and their friends from all sections of the city will dance and be entertained tomorrow night at the Bal Parisian, an annual affair given by the Hyde Park post, to raise funds for its activities. It will be at the Trianon ball room, 62d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

IOWANS TO HEAR DAWES' ANSWER TO BROOKHART

Gen. Charles G. Dawes arrived in Evanston yesterday for a day's rest and will leave again tonight for Duluth, where he will begin a ten days' speaking tour which will circle once more the "rebel" belt of the northwest.

The center of attack on this trip will be Iowa, where Senator Smith W. Brookhart is attacking Dawes personally, demanding that he retire from the ticket and raking up the Lorimer bank case and anything else he can find to meet the issue of socialism and the preservation of constitutional liberties which Dawes has brought to the front in this campaign.

Five speeches are scheduled for Iowa on Oct. 7 and 8. They are at Northwood, Mason City, where a night meeting will be held; Fort Dodge, Cherokee, and Sioux City. This is Gen. Dawes' answer to Brookhart, and the fur may fly before the Iowa farmers hear the last of this controversy.

COOLIDGE GAINS, DEADLOCK FLITS; BOB? NO CHANCE to carry. He is expected to have Nevada and Arizona with 3 votes each. Thus we arrive at a grand total of 197 electoral votes for Mr. Davis, which is 69 votes short of a majority of the electoral college.

The Democrats have abandoned the west and are trying to put Davis over with the south and a few northern states east of the Mississippi. They think Al Smith can pull Davis through in New York, asserting that in this event they will win the election, but conceding that if they lose New York all hope is gone. If Davis should carry all the states assigned him in the foregoing calculation he would need a combination of New York and Ohio or Illinois to win, or of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, and New Jersey, if he failed to carry New York. A possibility but not a probability.

If Davis should carry no more than the southern, border, and scattering states, totaling 197 votes, there would remain 334 votes in the electoral college to divide between Coolidge and La Follette. If, then, the Wisconsin senator should get no more than 58 votes, Coolidge still would have a majority, but if La Follette got more than that number no candidate would have a majority and the election would go to congress.

La Follette's Fortresses.

Now let us examine the probable La Follette strength. He is unlikely, in my opinion, to carry any states outside of the following:

Wisconsin	13	South Dakota	5
North Dakota	5	Montana	4
Nebraska	8	Washington	7
Minnesota	12	Total	58

My information leads me to believe that he will not carry all these states. It is doubtful, for example, that he can win Minnesota and South Dakota. But if he should carry them all and no more Coolidge would be elected at the polls with ten electoral votes to spare. If, in addition to these states, La Follette should carry Iowa or California, the election would be thrown into congress.

If he failed to get Minnesota and South Dakota he would need both Iowa and California to throw the election into congress. It is possible that he will achieve all this and more, but the chances are he will not. So, while the projection of the election into congress is still a possibility that constitutes an exceedingly important factor in the election and consideration of which will influence vast numbers of voters, I do not regard it a probability as matters now stand.

This Looks Like Coolidge.

The states which may be listed as reasonably safe for Coolidge are:

Maine	6	New Hampshire	4
Vermont	4	Pennsylvania	38
New Jersey	14	Massachusetts	18
Connecticut	7	Ohio	24
Illinois	29	Iowa	13
Michigan	15	Colorado	6
Kansas	10	Utah	4
Wyoming	3	California	13
Oregon	5
New Mexico	3	Total	218

Until the situation crystalizes more definitely, New York with 45 and Indiana with 15 electoral votes may be classed as doubtful, though Coolidge has the advantage in each and presumably, according to present indications, will win both, giving him a total of 276 votes, ten more than a majority.

In addition to the states with a total of 218 votes New York alone would not put Coolidge over. He would need both New York and Indiana. On the basis of that calculation, Davis could carry New York and Indiana, too, and still lack a majority, the election going to congress.

The chances are, however, that Coolidge will carry some of the states listed in the 197 votes assigned to Davis and in the 58 votes assigned to La Follette, making it possible, though not probable, that he could win without New York. My guess at present is that Coolidge will have not far from 300 electoral votes, or 34 more than a majority.

JACK SPRAT BREAD

Conquers Overweight

Carl Sulzer

YOU CAN ORDER BY MAIL
Special "2 Weeks Trial Offer"

Satisfaction guaranteed or money back. If you live within 300 miles of Chicago send $2.00 for 6 loaves—"2 Weeks Trial Offer". A fresh loaf, tasty and delicious, mailed every other day for 2 weeks. Hundreds buy Jack Sprat this way.

84% Were Aided in 2 Weeks

Months ago we sent Jack Sprat Bread to 287 Chicago ladies. A loaf every other day for two weeks—6 loaves in all. Then we asked them if they were satisfied with Jack Sprat Bread—269 said Jack Sprat had aided them. It had done all we hoped for—all they expected. Many users marvel at Jack Sprat results. They ask us: "Is there medicine, drugs, etc., in Jack Sprat?" To all we say: "Jack Sprat is absolutely pure." The secret formula, the special flour perform the magic.

Then This Offer to a Million

Then we made this different offer to more than a million—the same offer we make to you today. We said "Just make this 'Two Weeks Test'. Purchase Jack Sprat Bread regularly from the same store. Eat 3 loaves a week for two weeks—6 loaves in all. Eat no other bread, rolls, biscuits or crackers. Then note results. If not entirely satisfied return the empty cartons to your dealer—your money will be refunded." Now we invite you to try Jack Sprat this way on our guarantee. Thousands of ladies and gentlemen have proved Jack Sprat will banish overweight. Follow the directions in each package and watch your slender form return.

Beware of Starch

White bread, while wholesome, is overloaded with starch. So are potatoes, crackers, pastry and rolls. Health authorities agree that starch makes fat. Jack Sprat combats fat. It is baked under a secret formula, known to no other baker—and made from a special anti-starch flour. One flour ingredient costs 900% more than high-grade white flour. Practically all starch is removed. No other bread is like Jack Sprat—low in starch content, rich in nourishment—protein, vitamines and mineral salts as nature provides. So beware of starchy foods. Get the happy Jack Sprat habit. Eat 3 loaves each week.

Thousands Praise Jack Sprat

One writes of losing 28 pounds in seventeen weeks, another 10 pounds in 2 weeks. Still another lost 45 pounds, another 17 pounds in 4 weeks. Thousands now praise Jack Sprat. Learn for yourself how Jack Sprat combats fat—wins back the slim, graceful lines of youth and gives a new ease and buoyancy you have not known for years. As Jack Sprat is doing for others it will do for you. Try 6 loaves on the "2 Weeks Test."

To the Three Million

The Britigan Standard

Thousands of Chicagoans have found that through the Wm. H. Britigan Organization they could invest in real estate with safety and with positive assurance of profiting through such investment.

Indeed it is one of the main purposes of this series of editorials to make known, to demonstrate, to the three million people in the Chicago area that literally thousands of their neighbors have invested in real estate sold by this organization, and that they have profited—that instances of one hundred per cent profit have been common, and that their profits in some cases have run as high as one thousand per cent.

Many actual instances of such profits will be cited in our future editorials and explanation will be given of how and why all Britigan subdivisions invariably prove splendid investments for those who purchase the lots.

These editorials will explain—how and why all Britigan subdivisions develop into thriving communities, improved with fine modern dwellings, as they have in the past and are doing in the present. These editorials appear in the Chicago Tribune every Sunday.

WILL ASK AID OF U. S. CONSUL TO END CHINESE WAR

Hopes to Save Shanghai from Bombardment.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 4.—The American and other foreign consuls here will be given tomorrow a concrete proposition for bringing to an end the fighting in the Shanghai area. Wen Shih-tsun, commissioner of foreign affairs at Nanking and a member of the inner council of the Chihli party, arrived at Shanghai last night by boat from the north and tomorrow he will interview the foreign consuls on the subject of stopping the war in the Shanghai area, thus saving the city from possible bombardment and loss of life.

Wen's mission is to the point. He says that the Chekiang forces of Gen. Lu Yung-hsiang are being gradually worn down and that they are outnumbered 3 to 1; that the lines about Shanghai are gradually being narrowed down and being pushed back in the direction of Shanghai.

Consuls Must Intervene.

Therefore, he asserts, the time will soon be reached when the Kiangsu guns will be within striking distance of Shanghai. When that time comes, he says, it will be up to the consular body to intervene and make an arrangement with Gens. Lu and Ho to give up the struggle and get out.

Wen also was authority for the statement that Kiangsu now has nearly 60,000 troops about Shanghai and that the lines are still being strengthened. He believes that it will only be a matter of time until Gen. Lu will be forced to withdraw into the shadows of the foreign settlements.

Fighting continued today in the vicinity of Sungkiang, to the southwest of Shanghai. Gen. Lu withdrew artillery from the Liuho sector to reforce his Sungkiang army.

Chang Takes Railway.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PEKING, Oct. 4.—Gen. Chang Tso-lin, commander of the Manchurian forces now at war with the Peking government, has sent his directors of the Chinese Eastern railway to Harbin, and they will unite with the soviet directors in assuming control of the line.

All the old directors excepting one representing the Russo-Asiatic bank, were removed, while three, including President Ostroumoff, were jailed on an embezzlement charge. Peking was unable to prevent this action, since its protests to the soviets have been ignored. The signatories of the Washington treaty are exchanging views regarding the changed status.

The second, fifth, and part of the sixth (Manchurian) armies have been making further gains to the south owing to the slight opposition of the Peking forces. The Peking troops have been delayed in getting into position. Only two Peking divisions have been engaged thus far, one losing ground.

French Officials Greet Mexico's New President

SOCIETY FLOCKS TO MORSE-NYE CHURCH WEDDING

Bride Wears Parisian Gown of Satin.

One of the most elaborate of society's fall weddings was that which took place at 8:30 o'clock last evening at St. Chrysostom's church, uniting Miss Elizabeth Morse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse of 60 Scott street, and William S. Covington, son of Mrs. George H. Nye of Bowling Green, Ky.

Miss Morse's bridal gown, made in Paris, was of lustrous satin with large flat velvet flowers appliqued to the bottom of the skirt and ornamented with silver cloth. Her veil, which was entirely of rose-point lace, was surmounted by a rich rose-point lace coronet with a border spray of orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids wore dresses of pastelle shades and carried baskets of orchids. The maid of honor, Miss Martha Morse, and the matron of honor, Mrs. W. Bradford Adams of Springfield, Mass., wore blue, and the eight bridesmaids, Miss Katherine Carroll, Miss Jeannette Higgins, Miss Margaret MacCaughey, Miss Ruth and Miss Grizel Rankine, Miss Janet Bethell, Miss Elizabeth Gilbert, and Miss Geraldine Kimberly were attired in orchid, peach, yellow, and green shades. They wore silver head bands trimmed with tiny flowers to match their dresses.

The church was decorated in green palms and cream colored chrysanthemums, and the Morse residence, where a reception followed the ceremony, was decorated in pink roses and orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Covington are to reside at 50 West Schiller street after Dec. 1.

Don't Waste This Winter

NOW that the summer season is over, you owe yourself time for self-culture. Study the MILLER SYSTEM OF CORRECT ENGLISH as a basis. You can never rise to the top in business or society, in club, church, or lodge, if you cannot speak or write correct English. The MILLER SYSTEM is bright, brief and practical, with entertainment and variety that will hold the attention. Look it over, without obligation, and BE YOUR OWN JUDGE.

"The MILLER SYSTEM is so clear and simple that one seems to feel the actual presence of the teacher." (A student in Alaska.)

Does your English embarrass or betray you?
Do you know when you make mistakes?
You cannot afford not to know your own language.

Do You Say—

—in'kwirry for inqui'ry, ad'dress for address', cu-pon for cou'pon, pressidence for prec'edence, conver'sant for con'versant, epi'tome for epit'om, ac'climated for accli'mated, progrum for program, hyth for height, all'as for a'lias, oleomarjerine for oleomargarine, grimmy for gri'my, compar'able for com'parable?

Do You Say—

—between you and I; a raise in salary; a long ways off; a setting hen; let's you and I go somewheres; those kind of hats set good; he don't know as he can; a mutual friend; the bread raises; providing I go; one less thing; where will I meet you; he referred back to; a poor widow woman; we are having friends for dinner?

Can You Pronounce Foreign Words Like—

Mas[illegible] use, 'cello, bourgeois, lingerie, décolleté, faux pas, hors d'oeuvre, maraschino, Sinn Fein, Bolsheviki, Reichstag, Ypres, Il Trovatore, Thais, Paderewski, Ysaye, Nazimova, Galli-Curci, Les Miserables?

Do You Know When to Use—

—sits or sets, laying or lying, farther or further, drank or drunk, I or me, lunch or luncheon, affect or effect, council, counsel or consul, practical or practicable, admittance or admission, shall or will?

NEVER ANOTHER '71 FIRE, SAYS RETIRING CHIEF

McDonnell Cites Science on Anniversary.

BY JOHN KELLEY.

"Could there be a repetition of the great Chicago fire?"

The query was put to John C. McDonnell, first assistant fire marshal, who is retiring from the department in a few days after thirty-nine years' service.

JOHN C. McDONNELL.

Rubbing his head, fringed with gray, the veteran fire fighter replied:

"In my opinion there will never be another fire in Chicago of such magnitude.

"When a fire gets to going such as the great fire of 1871 it is hard to stop it. But with our improved apparatus and our present scientific method of fire fighting I would say there is no danger of Chicago ever having a like experience.

200 Then; 2,300 Now.

"In 1871 the fire department was composed of 200 men. Today we have a fire fighting force of about 2,300. In contrast with the apparatus of half a century ago the department is now entirely motorized."

"Man for man, the fire fighting brigade of 1871 was as efficient as firemen are today. No city ever had better firemen than Swenie, Musham, and Campion, and all the other brave fellows who fought the blaze of '71.

"If it hadn't been for a series of mishaps the fire wolud have been confined to a small area on the west side, where it started. The box giving the wrong location of the fire; the breakdown of the second engine to arrive upon the scene; the gale that sent burning brands across the river; the exhausted condition of the department from the previous night's fire; and, worst of all, the waterworks taking fire—there was a combination of circumstances that no fire department in the world then could have overcome."

18,000 Buildings Destroyed.

With each recurring anniversary of the great fire it is an absorbing theme in many homes, especially among families that passed through the memorable calamity.

Probably no conflagration in history was more devastating. The flames swept a territory embracing 2,400 acres. From its origin on the west side to the north end of Lincoln park the fire traveled between four and five miles. It licked up 18,000 buildings. These, with their contents, were valued at $200,000,000. Between 250 and 300 lives were lost, and 100,000 persons were made homeless.

For thirty-six hours the brave little band of firemen under Chief "Bob" Williams battled. They fought until they dropped beside their engines from exhaustion. Had there been any more buildings on the north side for the flames to feed upon the firemen could not have stopped its progress. It simply burned itself out.

The city from the south branch of the river to the lake, and from Harrison street to the main branch of the river, was laid in ashes. Only two buildings in that territory withstood the flames. This was the great retail and wholesale district; also that of the principal hotels, theaters and newspaper offices.

Everything went down before the maelstrom of fire. Railroad stations, city, county and government buildings, immense warehouses, manufacturing plants, and great mercantile establishments—all crumbled.

Blaze Starts Oct. 7.

Although October 9 is celebrated as the anniversary of the "big" fire, it really started on the night of Saturday, October 7. About 10:30 o'clock on that night fire companies were called to a blaze in a planing mill at Canal and Adams streets. The flames spread to adjoining buildings. Quickly realizing the menace, Chief Williams called out the entire department. This fire was not extinguished until it had wiped out everything from Clinton street to the river, and from Adams street to Van Buren street. Some of the engine companies did not get back to their houses until Sunday afternoon.

At that time the apparatus of the fire department consisted of seventeen engines, twenty-three hose carts, four hook and ladder companies and Bullwinkle's insurance patrol.

Exhausted from the battle of Saturday night and Sunday, many of the firemen threw themselves upon the floor at their quarters when they returned. Others went to their homes, it being their "off" day. Those were the conditions when the great conflagration started a few hours later.

In those days there was a watchman in the cupola of the courthouse, at Clark and Washington streets, whose duty it was to scan the city for fires. There also was a watchman in each of the engine houses, the men taking their turn as lookouts.

On Sunday night about 9:30 o'clock the courthouse watchman spied a blaze that appeared to be at Canalport avenue and Halsted street. He shouted the location to the night operator in the fire alarm office and box No. 342 was tapped off. This was more than a mile from the real location, which was near Jefferson and De Koven streets.

A few minutes before the courthouse lookout saw the glow in the sky the man in the tower of the "Little Giant" engine company, at Canal and Maxwell streets, saw the blaze. He scrambled down from his perch and shouted, "Fire at De Koven and Jefferson!" Engine No. 6, or the "Little Giant," as it was known, sped away toward the fire only half manned.

Engine Breaks Down.

Engine company No. 5, with the steamer Chicago, was nearest to the scene of the fire, its house being at Van Buren and Jefferson streets. When the box was sounded Foreman Schimmels and about one-half of his men sprang to their places on the apparatus. Noting the location as box No. 342, Schimmels told the driver of the engine to go west in Van Buren street to Halsted and then south. Had the right location been given, the engine would have gone straight south in Jefferson street to De Koven.

Bill Musham and Jack Campion, each of whom later became chief of the fire department, were members of engine company No. 6. The "Little Giant" took a position at De Koven and Jefferson streets and a line of hose was speedily run to the O'Leary cow shed. Before a stream was forced through the hose, however, the flames had spread to several adjoining sheds.

The driver of engine No. 5 saw the fire east of him as he neared Taylor street, and he drove to a plug at Forquer and Jefferson streets. Before the steamer was fairly started it broke down and was out of service for nearly an hour. Through this fatal mishap the fire got beyond control.

A high wind swept down from the southwest and carried burning planks for a block or more. The brands, falling on the roofs of frame shacks, set them afire and the flames soon reached the west bank of the river.

Leaping the river about midnight, the flames attacked buildings on the south side of the city. Their progress was terrific.

Everything in the course of the flames was swept away. The destruction of the Bridewell marked the southern boundary of the fire in Wells street. Between Harrison and Taylor streets, east of Wells to State street, a few buildings were left standing. Among them was the brick hotel at the southwest corner of Harrison and Clark streets, the birthplace of Carter H. Harrison, who served several terms as mayor, as did his father before him. This building still stands.

While Gen. Phil Sheridan was directing the blowing up of buildings, another column of fire crossed the river at Madison street. Before 2 o'clock in the morning the retail and wholesale district was doomed.

Burning brands from buildings and from shipping along the river front were carried across the stream to the north side and the water works were set afire. By this latest catastrophe fire engines were rendered useless.

DESCENDANT OF O'LEARY COW TO ACT IN PAGEANT

Drills by soldiers, firemen, and policemen, a reënactment of the little fire which started the big one that laid Chicago in ashes in 1871, pageantry, a polo game, and other features will be attractions at the official opening of the Grant Park stadium on Chicago day—next Thursday.

Among the "actors" will be "Bessie," a Holstein cow from Iowa, which the owner solemnly avers is a direct descendant of Mrs. O'Leary's cow. Miss Anna O'Leary, a descendant of the famous Mrs. O'Leary, will act the rôle of her forebear.

A polo game between teams captained by Col. R. R. McCormick, editor of THE TRIBUNE, and Frank Behring, manager of the Hotel Sherman, will be the closing event.

Exhibits varying from the latest in manicuring sets to the world's largest lump of coal, from pipe organs to peanuts, will be displayed starting Chicago day at the Illinois Products exposition at 666 Lake Shore drive. The show closes on Oct. 18. Three radio broadcasting stations, W-G-N, KYW, and WMAQ, will transmit the speeches and musical numbers presented at the show.

Prevention Week On

National Fire Prevention week opens today in accordance with the proclamation issued by President Coolidge.

The week, commemorating the anniversary of the great Chicago fire, will be observed here chiefly by school exercises.

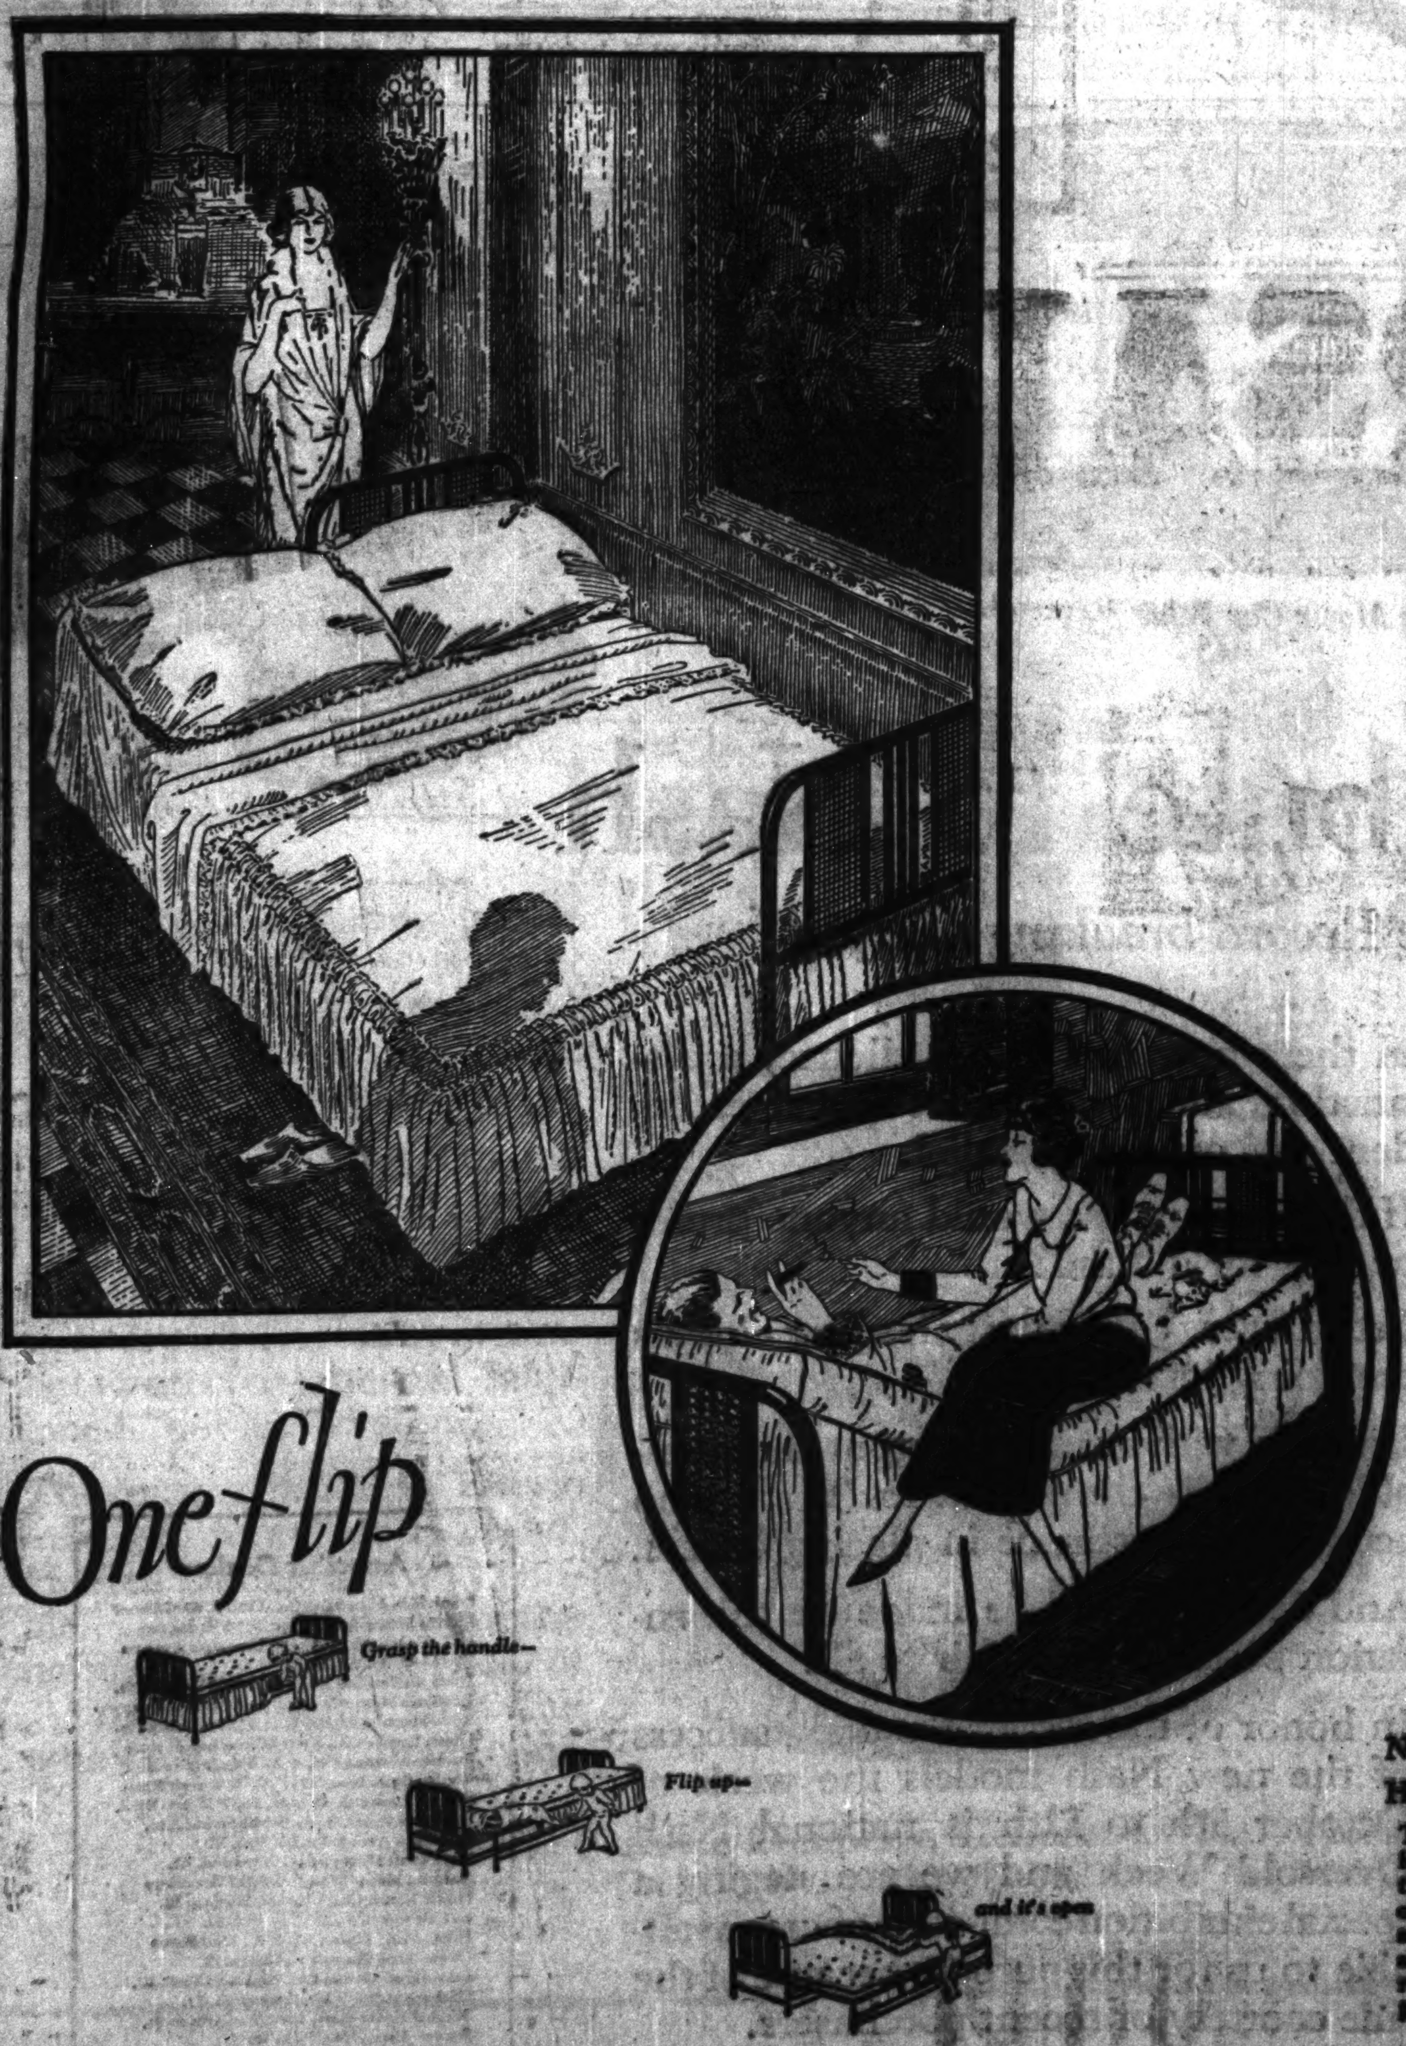
Suppose you had to sleep on a picket fence!

Impossible, of course! Yet half of us never get the profound, restful sleep required by days of nervous strain and fatigue



One flip
Grasp the handle—Flip up—and it's open

IMAGINE the restful comfort of the HERZ DOUBLE DAY BED! It has no center ridge—no iron bar—the center is as comfortable as either side. No "picket fence" sleeping for those who choose this modern day bed! Its mattress lies flat and unbroken—one side is as comfortable as the other. This one feature alone should decide your choice of a day bed—and when you consider the many other advantages of the HERZ DOUBLE DAY BED—the evidence is conclusive!

Soft coil spring edges; sturdy, resilient springs (coil or link type, as you prefer); adjustable headrest; pure 100% felt mattress in a variety of handsome coverings, and large, ventilated, easily accessible space for bedding, make the HERZ DOUBLE DAY BED the master creation—the final word in day bed construction.

It is a couch by day—a comfort spot where a few moments of relaxation refreshes and comforts tired muscles. At night—when slumber beckons—one flip, and the 27-inch day bed is a full 54-inch bed for two persons—one that really invites restful sleep—nature's own remedy for tired bodies.

In sun parlor, dining room or tucked where you will, the HERZ DOUBLE DAY BED is a luxurious "rest spot" for the entire family. Its usefulness extends around the clock and throughout the year. Prices range widely in a number of beautiful modern and period designs in metal, wood and reed. The HERZ DOUBLE DAY BED harmonizes with your furniture—graces the room by day—adds a bedroom at night.

Ask your dealer to show you the genuine HERZ DOUBLE DAY BED. You'll find it a revelation in day bed construction, comfort, efficiency, and inbuilt good looks. Note the name on your shopping list.

4 STATES BACK CHICAGO FIGHT ON LAKE LEVEL

City's Health Battle for Water Supply.

Four states—Illinois, Missouri, Tennessee, and Louisiana — with allied commercial organizations in the Mississippi valley yesterday joined in Chicago's plea for continued flow of 10,000 cubic feet of water per second from Lake Michigan through the drainage canal.

Representatives of those states and organizations notified the solicitor general of the United States yesterday they would seek to intervene before the Supreme court as New York has intervened against Chicago.

Chicago's Appeal Pending.

Pending now before the Supreme court is the appeal that has been taken by the Sanitary District of Chicago from the Landis-Carpenter injunction in the United States District court at Chicago. If the Supreme court makes that injunction permanent, the legal effect will be to give Chicago less than 10,000 feet of water per second.

Chicago will contend orally before the Supreme court, beginning Nov. 10, that the sanitary district is entitled by international, federal, and state authorization to continuation of the present diversion of the 10,000 cubic feet of water a second. The opposing interests, led by New York state, will argue that the interests of navigation are against such a large flow from Lake Michigan which affects levels in the great lakes.

The sanitary district will rely on the provision of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain which stipulates that water from the great lakes shall be used jointly by this country and Canada, first for sanitation, second for navigation, and third for power.

Base Plea on Sanitation.

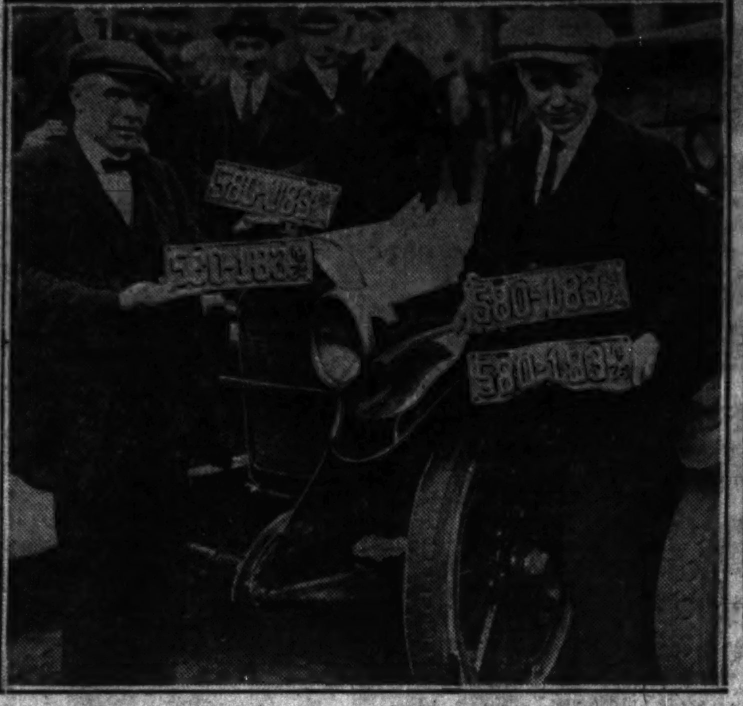
The Illinois and Mississippi valley states and the allied commercial interests want the 10,000 cubic feet per second diversion as essential both for the sanitation of Chicago and they believe for the lakes to the gulf waterway when that is opened by the completion of the Lockport-Utica canal now under construction. For the building of that Illinois has voted $20,000,000 in bonds. Practically the entire lower Mississippi valley relies on the acceptance of Chicago's demands to maintain sufficient flow in the completed waterway.

Arouses Commercial Interests.

The Chicago Association of Commerce assumed the initiative in bringing to the attention of the local business men the situation. Later coöperation was obtained from manufacturing and shipping interests of the Mississippi vally.

Charles Nagel, Taft's secretary of commerce and labor, will appear for the states of Missouri, Tennessee, Louisiana, and for the Mississippi Valley association. Louis J. Behan will represent the sanitary district.

Too Much License Among Thieves



Duplicate automobile licenses in connection with a motor theft were discovered by police of the Chicago avenue station yesterday when two machines bearing the same numbers, one of them stolen, were found within half a block near the Criminal court building. Officers Frank T. Mee and John J. Walsh of the auto detail are pictured here with the duplicate pairs of plates.

CONTINUE FIGHT ON POTHIER'S "CONFESSIONS"

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 4.—[United Press.]—After hearing evidence as to the mysterious "confessions" of Roland Pothier, in which he first told of shooting Maj. Alexander P. Cronkhite, and which he later repudiated, the federal court here adjourned today until Tuesday morning.

The confessions, part of the government's array of evidence with which it will seek to convict Pothier of the major's murder, were attacked by witnesses for the prosecution.

GIVE AUTO TO CITY HALL MAN.

Albert J. Prignano, secretary to Dennis J. Egan, bailiff of the Municipal court, was presented Friday with a $4,000 automobile by a number of his west side friends.

ART EXHIBITION ARRANGED FOR UPTOWN SHOW

Original paintings by American artists will be shown up at the uptown Chicago exposition and trade display at the Broadway armory, Oct. 13 to 18.

Oscar Gross' "The Ghetto," Marshall D. Smith's "The French Quarter of New Orleans," and "The Galleon," by O. E. Hake, will be exhibited with examples of Allan St. John, Harry Engle, Karl A. Buehr, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Cameron.

Portraits of representative Chicagoans will be shown by William Van Dresser, the magazine illustrator. Alphonse Iannelli, member of the faculty of the Art institute, has charge of the sculptural exhibits.

Figurines showing the women who have helped to make Chicago will be shown through the courtesy of the Chicago Historical society. Among them are Mrs. John Kinzie, wife of the first settler, who lived on the site of the Wrigley building; Mrs. Mark Beaubien, wife of the first hotel owner; Mrs. Jeremiah Porter, the first school teacher; Mrs. Potter Palmer I., wearing her famous string of pearls.

3,000 ARE BIDDEN TO WATERWAYS BOOST DINNER

Invitation List Includes Many Classes

Reservations for nearly 3,000 persons have been made for ex-Mayor William Hale Thompson's lake-to-gulf waterway banquet at Rainbo Gardens tomorrow night, Mr. Thompson announced yesterday. The former mayor included all branches of industry and commerce, labor, all parties and factions in politics, and all strata of society in his invitations.

He has spent much of his time recently in boosting for early completion of the waterway and some of his comment on delays in finishing the Illinois "link" have been regarded by politicians as significant in view of the political situation growing out of the row between Thompson and Fred Lundin over the vice regency of Chicago for Gov. Small.

Numerous cities along the lakes to gulf water route will be officially represented, the former mayor said. New Orleans will have a delegation of twenty, including Senator Joseph E. Ransdell [Dem., La.], and Congressman James O'Connor [Dem., La.].

URGE COUNTY TO SAVE HISTORIC PORTAGE CREEK

A committee to urge the Cook county commissioners to purchase the historic Portage creek region at 49th street and Harlem avenue, the portal by which civilization entered the Chicago region in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, has been appointed by Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, president of the Chicago Historical society.

The members are Robert Knight, deputy building commissioner; Dr. Charles J. Whalen, editor of the Illinois Medical Journal; Dr. P. J. H. Farrel, commandant medical post, American Legion, and Dr. Lucius H. Zeuch of the Chicago Historical society.

Portage creek is in danger of obliteration through plans of the Chicago sanitary district to use it for a huge drying plant.

Chicago Insurance Agent Held for Embezzlement

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Harry Dennis, insurance agent and collector, was arraigned this morning before Justice Ray W. Davis, charged with embezzlement of $321.91 from the Great American Casualty company which has central offices in Chicago. Dennis pleaded not guilty and was released upon a $5,000 bond.

NASH

Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

A National Tribute to Nash

7,800 Cars Oversold Despite Record-breaking Output

Drama in the motor car industry is unfolding before your eyes.

The group of new Nash models has touched spark to the torch of a nation's enthusiasm.

At a time when the industry as a whole is well below the peak of business——at a season of the year ordinarily not the best sales period

—and though Nash production is at the highest level ever attained

—still the demand from every section of the country for these new Advanced Six and Special Six models has swept sales to a point so far beyond the best previous mark that unfilled orders total 7,800 cars.

Nothing that we might say or do could add the weight of a straw to this undeniable and irrefutable evidence that men and women everywhere do see clearly in these new cars an excellence, a distinction, and a value that beggar precedent and own no parallel.

If this were not so would anyone prefer to wait for a Nash?

Yet in every community leading citizens are doing just that.

Happily, with increased output unreasonable delay is eliminated for those who act with promptitude in placing orders.

And deliveries will be made on the rotation basis which is fair to all.

In honor of the record-breaking success of the new Nash models the week of October 5th to 12th is national Nash Oversold Week and we are staging a special exhibition composed of cars available to us for this purpose because of the fine courtesy of recent purchasers.

Your attendance is very cordially urged.

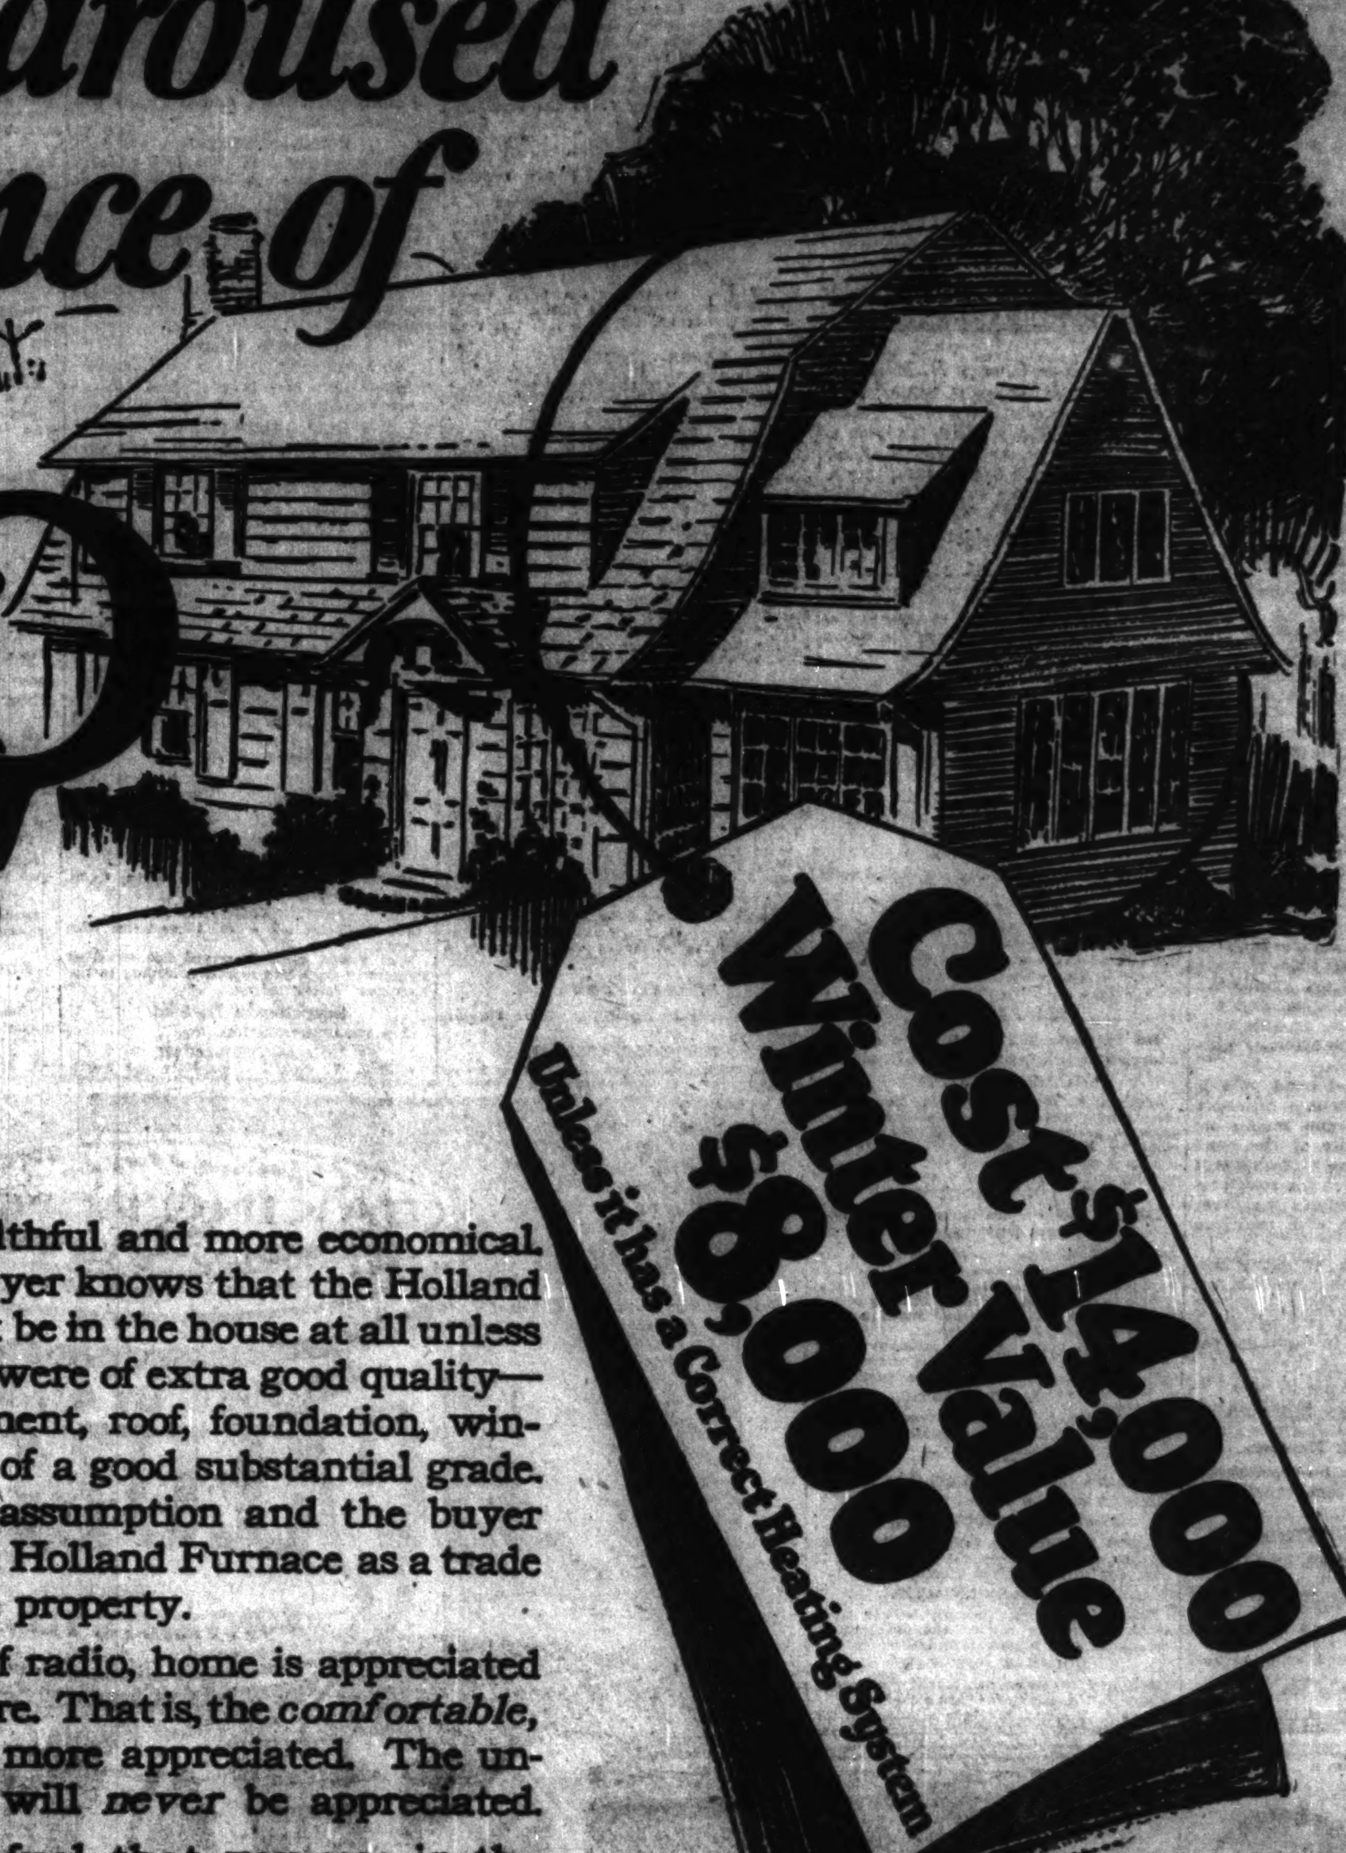
Are you aroused to the importance of Better Home-Heating?



Cost $14,000
Winter Value $8,000
Unless it has a Correct Heating System

Do You Realize What The Holland Home-Heating System Can Mean In The Lives of Yourself And Family?

Good bread is often looked upon as a standard among food values. And yet the Holland System of Home-Heating is more nearly standard in the heating field—in hundreds of cities, great and small—more nearly standard than bread as a food.

This is largely true because hundreds of thousands of people have learned to demand more of the Holland System and have made certain that they get more.

In hundreds of cities, there are more Holland Furnaces sold than all competing furnaces combined.

Burns Any Fuel

The fact that the Holland Furnace burns soft coal just as efficiently as hard coal, makes it popular among the many foresighted people who want to be prepared for any coal emergency.

But what, first of all, do you want when you pay your good money for a heating system? Don't you want your entire house kept comfortable and clean—at the least possible expense—and with most convenience?

That is exactly what the majority of thinking people pay for. And that is what the Holland Contract and Holland Guarantee Bond positively guarantee you.

You wouldn't think of drinking water from a stagnant pool. Yet many people are breathing stagnant air, and very dry air, heated by steam, hot-water or the old fashioned "hot-air" system.

The reasons that Real Estate men get more for Holland-Heated Homes are very simple. People know that the name Holland on the door of a furnace means that the whole house is more comfortable, more healthful and more economical. And usually the buyer knows that the Holland Furnace would not be in the house at all unless the entire building were of extra good quality—walls, floors, basement, roof, foundation, windows—everything of a good substantial grade. All this is a safe assumption and the buyer naturally takes the Holland Furnace as a trade mark on the whole property.

With the coming of radio, home is appreciated more than ever before. That is, the comfortable, healthful home is more appreciated. The uncomfortable home will never be appreciated.

The unnecessary fuel that you use in the ordinary furnace more than pays for Holland comfort and convenience which you can have only with a Holland. The Holland is not high priced, but it naturally does cost more than a furnace that is sold with no other advantage than price. Why pay the price of a Holland, and much more, in doctor bills and fuel and dirt?

Those who do not have Holland advantages are paying for them just the same—in money, in discomfort or in some other way.

Why not investigate a matter that means so much to you.

Let us refer you to Holland users right in your own neighborhood.

Do it today! It will not obligate you in any way.

You can buy on easy payment plan if you prefer.

If your present furnace needs a little fixing up, the Holland Furnace Company will take care of it for you at fair Holland prices.

Holland Furnaces Make Warm Friends

VOTERS' LEAGUE REPORTS RECORD OF LEGISLATORS

How Cook County Members Stand Test.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

"Smallism" is made the outstanding issue in the coming election of Illinois general assembly members by the Legislative Voters' league, which made public its report and recommendations on nominees yesterday.

SHELBY M. SINGLETON.

The league entered into no speculation on the outcome of the gubernatorial contest between Gov. Small and his Democratic opponent, Norman L. Jones.

Three roll calls in the 1923 session are used by the league as tests for members who are up for reëlection.

Roll Calls as Tests.

These are the votes on the $75,000 appropriation to carry on the interest recovery suits against former state treasurers, including Gov. Small; the $100,000,000 road bond issue, and the motion to override Gov. Small's veto of appropriations to the attorney general's office.

The $100,000,000 road bond vote is made a test for Cook county members particularly. The league makes no comment on the merits of the bond issue itself, but used the vote as a test because Gov. Small used his road program for trading purposes wherever he could make a deal with members of the legislature.

Shelby M. Singleton, executive secretary of the league, presents this test in these words: "The roll call on the $100,000,000 road bond bill, by which Gov. Small is seeking to capitalize the good roads sentiment of the state for his own purposes, was taken as a test so far as Cook county members are concerned."

Line Up of Cook Members.

The portion of the league's report on members of the legislature from Cook county districts is as follows:

COOK COUNTY DISTRICTS.

First District.

No recommendation.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Sheadrick B. Turner, colored, is ending his fourth term with a poor record.

Charles A. Griffin, colored, seems to have some qualifications.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATS.

John Griffin is ending his eighth term; the league has never been able to give him a good rating but he has improved his voting record during the last two sessions.

Second District.

Leahy is preferred for the senate; no recommendation for the house.

SENATE—REPUBLICAN.

George Van Lent is ending his first term with a poor record.

SENATE—DEMOCRATIC.

Jerry P. Leahy is intelligent and seems to have some qualifications.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Peter S. Krump is ending his second term with a poor record.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Frank Ryan is ending his fifth term; has some capacity but his voting record during the last session was not commendable.

Harry G. Van Norman is finishing his first term with a colorless record.

Third District.

No recommendation for the senate. Douglas is preferred for the house.

SENATE REPUBLICAN.

Adelbert H. Roberts, colored, has served three terms; has shown some ability but has damaged his record during the last two sessions by his lack of independence, voting regularly as a follower of the state administration.

SENATE—DEMOCRATIC.

Sidney H. Seelo seems fairly well qualified.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

George T. Kersey, colored, has served one term; showed intelligence and gave attention to business, but made a poor voting record.

Warren B. Douglas, colored, formerly served two terms in the house and made a good record during his second term.

William E. King, colored, assistant state's attorney; was formerly in the corporation counsel's office; has a favorable reputation.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

George Garry Noonan has served three terms without showing legislative ability.

Fourth District.

Schulze is preferred for the senate; Marston for the house.

SENATE—REPUBLICAN.

Robert W. Schulze is ending his first term, during which he was fairly attentive to business; made a mixed record.

SENATE—DEMOCRATIC.

Frank McDermott, formerly served three terms in the city council and one term in the house with a poor record.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Arthur J. Rutshaw has served two terms; is not well qualified for legislative work.

John A. Marston, has been assistant to the harbor master of the city of Chicago for a number of years; is intelligent and active and is well recommended.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Thomas J. O'Grady, has served two terms; is an active and attentive member, but damaged his voting record at the last session by voting against appropriating money to carry on the interest suits against Gov. Small and other former state treasurers; also by lining up with the state administration on the other test roll calls.

James P. Boyle, is ending his third term; injured his voting record at the last session in order to give support to the state administration.

Fifth District.

Mrs. Gooda and Reilly are recommended.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Mrs. Katherine Hancock Goode, is highly educated and has long been active in civic affairs; her qualifications for legislative work are excellent.

Sidney Lyon, is ending his fouth term; made a satisfactory record during his first two terms, but his work of late has been disappointing.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Thomas F. Reilly, has been assistant state's attorney; seems well fitted for legislative work.

Sixth District.

Barbour has given such valuable service to the senate that he should be reëlected, although Weber also has good qualifications. For the house, Church and Gibson are recommended.

SENATE—REPUBLICAN.

James J. Barbour, has served two terms and is generally recognized as one of the ablest members of the senate; took the lead in opposing bad measures put forward by the Small administration and was foremost in the effort to organize the senate along independent lines at the beginning of the last session; has made an excellent record.

SENATE—DEMOCRATIC.

Joseph A. Weber, formerly served three terms in the house with a good record.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Ralph E. Church, has given the public faithful service during his four terms as a member of the house.

John W. Gibson, is ending his first term, during which he showed independence and made a creditable record.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Charles H. Weber, is ending his first term; was attentive to legislative business and gave some indications of capacity; made a tolerably fair voting record in most respects.

Seventh District.

Castle and Springer are recommended.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Howard P. Castle, has served three terms with an admirable record.

Lewis B. Springer, is ending his first term with a good record.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Martin H. Finneran, was named by the Democratic senatorial committee, of which he was a member, to fill the vacancy on the party ticket due to the death of Representative John W. McCarthy, who had been renominated at the April primary. The league does not know enough about Mr. Finneran's qualifications to recommend him.

Ninth District.

Shanahan, Placek and Gormley are recommended.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

David E. Shanahan is ending his fifteenth term in the house and his fourth term as speaker of that body; as usual, he gave the public admirable service during the last session.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Joseph Placek has served five terms with a fair record.

William J. Gormley, secretary Cook County Forest Preserve district; is energetic and seems well qualified.

Eleventh District.

Swanson and Miller are recommended and Lee is preferred to the other candidates.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

David I. Swanson is ending his first term with a very good record.

Walter E. Miller is energetic and has a good reputation; apparently is qualified.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

John M. Lee is ending his first term with a fair voting record.

George A. Fitzgerald is ending his first term with a record that is only tolerably fair.

Thirteenth District.

Schnackerberg and Smith are recommended.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Elmer J. Schnackenberg has served two terms with an excellent record.

Theodore D. Smith is energetic and seems well qualified.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

William W. Powers is ending his first term with rather a colorless record.

Fifteenth District.

No recommendation.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Thomas Curran has served three terms with an unsatisfactory record.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Joseph Perina has served three terms with a weak record.

Matt Franz, formerly served five terms as alderman with a bad record, according to the Municipal Voters' league.

Seventeenth District.

No recommendation.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

William V. Pacelli, apparently not qualified.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Charles Cuta, formerly served two terms in the house with a record that was rather unsatisfactory.

Jacob W. Epstein has served five terms with slight credit.

Nineteenth District.

Weisbrod and McSweeney are recommended.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Charles R. Marinier, ending his second term with a colorless record.

Harry I. Weisbrod is well qualified for legislative work and deserves to be elected.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

John R. McSweeney is intelligent and has an excellent reputation; seems well qualified.

Walter Francis Gallas is ending his first term with a poor voting record.

Twenti-first District.

Harris is preferred.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Frederick J. Bippus, formerly served four terms in the house; made a very unsatisfactory voting record during his last term.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Michael F. Maher has served four terms with a mixed record.

Benjamin M. Mitchell has served ten terms with an unsatisfactory record.

Twenty-third District.

Thon is recommended.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

William G. Thon has served five terms with an excellent record.

Edward M. Overland has served four terms with a poor record.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Fred W. Hrdlicka does not seem well qualified.

Twenty-fifth District.

Mrs. Elrod and Steinert are recommended; Kortas is preferred to his one other opponent.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Theodore B. Steinert has served three terms with a good record.

Rena Elrod is well informed and capable and has been active in welfare work and in civic affairs; she has excellent qualifications for legislative work.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

John G. Jacobson has served four terms with rather an unsatisfactory record.

HOUSE—SOCIALIST.

Bernard Kortas seems to have fair qualifications.

Twenty-seventh District.

Auth is recommended.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Albert Rostenowski is ending his third term, during which he made rather a poor record.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

A. L. Auth seems well qualified.

William Lipka is ending his first term with a mixed record.

Twenty-ninth District.

No recommendation.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

Ernest W. Turner is ending his first term with a poor record.

Michael H. Durso ending his first term with an unsatisfactory voting record.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

Lawrence C. O'Brien has served four terms with an unsatisfactory record.

Louis Torre seems to lack qualifications for legislative work.

Thirty-first District.

Williston and O'Toole deserve reëlection on their records and the other candidates are qualified.

HOUSE—REPUBLICAN.

George A. Williston has served two terms with a very good record.

Carl Mueller has served six terms in the house, after two terms in the senate; is less active than formerly. His record at the last session was creditable.

HOUSE—DEMOCRATIC.

James J. O'Toole is ending his first term, during which he made a highly creditable record as an industrious and capable member.

Pierce L. Shannon is highly recommended and seems fitted for legislative work.

HOUSE—SOCIALIST.

Gustav Johnson is intelligent and has a good reputation.

BAKING POWDER

EVERY INGREDIENT USED OFFICIALLY APPROVED BY U. S. FOOD AUTHORITIES

SALES 2½ TIMES THOSE OF ANY OTHER BRAND

Every Woman—that bakes with Calumet, and there are millions of them, has learned three important facts.

First—that she never has any failures, which means a great saving of time and material.

Second—that her bakings are always pure, wholesome and uniform, which goes a long way towards perfect health.

Third—that the greater than usual leavening strength of Calumet stands for real economy—she uses less.

Why Weil-McLain boilers give more heat and save fuel

Weil-McLain Heating Surfaces are corrugated like this 〰〰 instead of straight like this ———

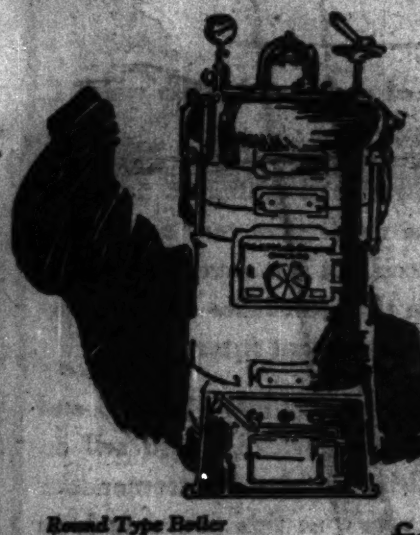
WHEREVER you hear home heating discussed, you hear people talking about the Weil-McLain Scientific Combustion Boiler.

In this boiler the two greatest enemies of your comfort and convenience have been conquered. One of these is "waste down into the ash pit"—waste of unburned fuel from which the heat was never taken. The other is "waste up the chimney"—waste of heat units developed from the fire, but never utilized to heat your home.



Round Type Boiler

For steam, vapor, vacuum and hot water heating; made in sizes for bungalows, residences and small apartments

Authorities agree that these two wastes, if prevented, would pay a good part of each winter's fuel bills. Also that they would end most home-heating troubles.

Scientific Combustion overcomes one big waste

In Weil-McLain Boilers, waste down into the ash pit is ended by Scientific Combustion.

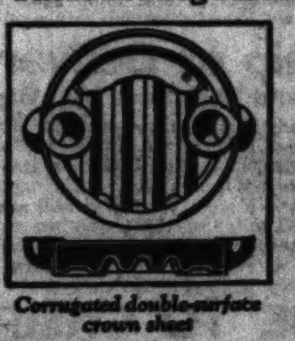
Scientific Combustion means complete burning of the fuel. It means a bright-burning fire that does not unexpectedly go out. It means a long-lasting fire that does not require frequent attention. It means a fire that prevents stubborn clinkers and ends waste of valuable unburned fuel down into the ash pit.

Many consider Scientific Combustion one of the really great advances in heating. It was achieved in Weil-McLain Boilers by long years of research and careful designing.

The other waste is ended by —Corrugated Heating Surfaces and —Long "Back-and-Forth" Fire Travel

But in addition to ending "waste down into the ash pit," "waste up the chimney" must also be overcome. Heat units wrung from the fuel must be utilized. More heat must be saved for your radiators.

One means of ending this waste is the Weil-McLain Corrugated "Double-Surface" Crown Sheet section directly above the fire, and other sections with fuel-saving corrugated heating surfaces. These heating surfaces are corrugated like this 〰〰 instead of straight like this ———. The greater heating surface, thus obtained, means more heat absorbed—more heat utilized.



Corrugated double-surface crown sheet

In the Weil-McLain Corrugated Crown Sheet section, this corrugated design is particularly valuable. It "doubles" the heating surface directly above the fire—the most valuable heating surface in any boiler.

Fuel-saving corrugations in every section

No "short cuts" to the chimney

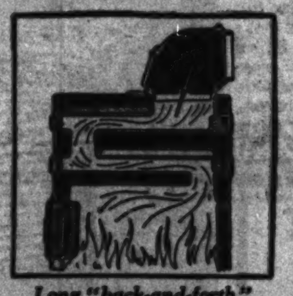
Waste up the chimney is further prevented by the Weil-McLain long "Back-and-Forth" Fire Travel. Note how simple is its principle. The illustration shows how it forces the hot gases to travel backward and forward between the corrugated heating surfaces.



Long "back-and-forth" fire travel

Wasteful short cuts to the chimney are eliminated. The hot gases are held longer in contact with the corrugated heating surfaces. More heat is utilized.

Other modern features found in Weil-McLain Boilers

In this modern Boiler, you also find such features as:

—A large fire door for convenience

—Handy front cleanout doors in each section

—Lower one-third of firepot smooth and non-clogging so fire shakes down easily and clean

—Triangular grates which crush out stubborn clinkers

—And, no matter how you generate your heat, whether with hard or soft coal or coke, hand or automatic firing, or by means of an oil burner—your Weil-McLain Boiler will give more heat and save fuel.

See your heating contractor

You have always known there would one day be a better boiler. Just as you have known there would be better automobiles, better electric lighting and better radios.

The Weil-McLain is a better boiler. This is proved by wide acceptance among architects, heating engineers, contractors and other authorities. Also by a large and increasing demand wherever the boiler is known.

Now is the time to investigate. The unusual merit of Weil-McLain Boilers entitles them to your most careful consideration. Any responsible steamfitter or heating engineer can give you the cost of installing one in your home or other building. See the Weil-McLain Boiler at your steamfitter's or see the complete line at our showrooms.

WAHABIS ROCK MADE-IN-LONDON KINGS OF ARABY

War for Mecca Imperils British Scheme.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—The abdication of King Hussein of Hedjaz is only a temporary expedient to prevent bloodshed, the monarch says in a statement reaching here through a private agency. The abdication was announced from Mecca, the Moslems' holy city, now threatened with capture by the Wahabis.

"I am certain to be reinstated by the oriental congress," he is reported to have stated.

Meanwhile he is said to be en route to seek refuge with his son, King Feisal of Irak, another state in the British mandate of Mesopotamia.

A Moslem council has been called to meet at Jeddah, near Mecca, to find a way to avoid further bloodshed.

Moves Against Transjordania.

While the foreign office is stating the British will remain neutral regarding the battles for the Moslem holy cities, because they concern a religious question, the Wahabi tribesmen are attacking Transjordania, now held by King Hussein's son, Abdulla. This indicates that Iben Saud, chief of the Wahabis, is planning a general Arab conquest which, if successful, is bound to reverse the British policy which originated during the war and has continued since the armistice, costing Great Britain millions of pounds, as well as extensive military operations.

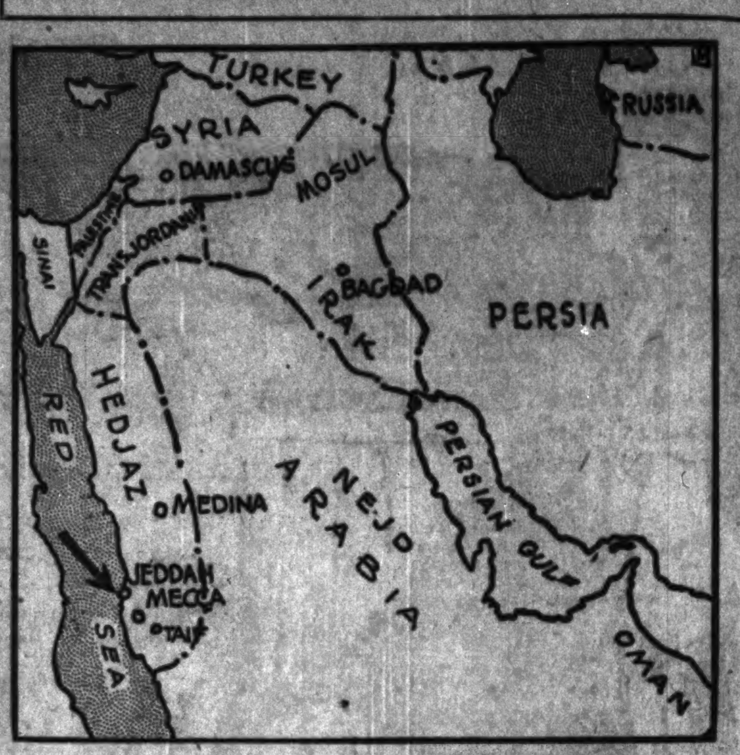
When the world war broke out Col. Lawrence, British intelligence officer, conceived the idea of advancing against Turkey in coöperation with the Arab independent government. King Hussein, then merely a sheriffien, was induced to indorse the campaign and his son, King Feisal, was put in command of the Arab army, allied with Lord Allenby's troops, which made a sensational advance, capturing the Christian holy cities of Bethlehem and Jerusalem from the Turks. The victory over the Turks stirred the Arab imagination, and King Hussein was proclaimed king of Hedjaz.

Paid Hussein $8,000,000.

King Hussein was paid $8,000,000 by the British for help in the war, while his sons, Feisal and Abdulla, were put in charge of Syria and Transjordania, respectively. When Feisal was king of Syria four years ago, Iben Saud was then on the point of an attack on Damascus, but refrained on the condition that King Feisal fight the French. As King Feisal indirectly attacked the French, as promised, the French marched on Damascus and deposed him, whereupon the British aided him in becoming king of Iraq.

In some quarters the suggestion that Iben Saud has an understanding with Mustapha Kemal, president of Turkey, is scouted.

CIVIL WAR SWEEPS ARABIA



This map shows Arabia, now torn with civil war between rival Arab tribes. The Wahabis, who live in Nejd, are attacking Hedjaz and Transjordania. King Hussein of Hedjaz has abdicated and has left Mecca for Irak, another British-made kingdom ruled by one of his sons. A moslem council has been called at Jeddah, near Mecca, to avert further bloodshed.

POLICE GUARD GIRL ACCUSER IN GEM ROBBERY

While detectives continued their search yesterday for the third member of the bandit trio responsible for the holdup and robbery of $200,000 in gems of Louis Harlib, New York diamond merchant, last Wednesday night, two youths held for the robbery, Vincent Diucci and Frank Guesenberg, were released on $80,000 bonds.

A woman, sweetheart of Diucci, is also being sought, according to Capt. John Norton and Sergt. Leonard Burch, in charge of the investigation.

Police protection was yesterday accorded Miss Bee Fink, 4239½ Broadway, who was with Harlib at the time of the robbery and who later identified Diucci and Guesenberg, following death threats received by her. The girl's mother, Mrs. Alfred Reichstun, reported that several anonymous telephone calls had been received at her home ordering that "that blonde had better keep her mouth shut or she'll get hers."

La Follette's Name, Not La Follette, Is Ruled Out

Olympia, Wash., Oct. 4.—Ruling on petitions filed Sept. 26 by the Progressive party, the Washington state Supreme court today ordered the name La Follette eliminated before filings of candidates by the La Follette independent progressive and La Follette state parties are accepted. The petitions had asked refusal of filings of presidential electoral candidates of those parties on the ground that their use of La Follette's name was not authorized.

MILLIONS TO OBSERVE NAVY DAY ON OCT. 27

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—More than a million Americans will take part in the third annual celebration of Navy day which will be observed Monday, Oct. 27.

Parades will be held in all of the large seacoast cities. There will be meetings of chapters of the Navy league in nearly every city and town throughout the land. Speeches lauding the navy will be given and services held commemorative of the deeds of American heroes of all periods of the country's history.

Indorsed by the President and the secretary of the navy, Navy day has obtained the support and active coöperation of a large number of social, business, and patriotic bodies. In addition to the Navy league, the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, many chambers of commerce, the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, and other groups have promised all possible aid.

Among the women's societies, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Daughters of 1812 will take an active part in observing the celebration.

Wife Floored for Bobbing Her Hair Asks Divorce

When she came home to surprise her husband with her newly bobbed locks Mrs. Cecelia Laris, 22, 5357 South Marshfield avenue, got a blow from him that knocked her for a complete goal, according to her bill for divorce, filed yesterday in Superior court against Dennis Laris.

IF YOU REALLY WANT TO PAY LESS FOR A GOOD GARAGE—
Why Not Start Here!

When you buy your garage you want four things: quality, permanency, quick construction and low price. You want quality in your lumber, hardware and fittings; you want permanency because a permanent garage built on your own premises is the only garage that will endure; you want quick construction before the cold snaps set in; you want all these things at a low price. That means you want a Mid-City garage. Whether you want a one, two, three or four car garage, get started right. Mail the coupon. It costs you nothing, but you'll be glad you didn't overlook the Mid-City proposition and Mid-City's amazingly low prices.

Chicken a la King 65c—an item that makes the North American very popular with "after theatre" diners

Many people who wish to dine down-town after the usual lunch or dinner hours, or who wish some excellent food after the theatre, without paying "fancy" prices for it, have discovered that the North American Restaurant fits their desires exactly. There are several reasons why. For instance:

This is one of the few high-class dining places where there is never any "cover charge;" the absence of waiters makes you feel free to eat just as much or as little as you please, and to stay as long as you like; it is open every day in the year, Sundays and holidays included, from 7 A. M. until Midnight; and even during the supposedly dull hours, after 8 in the evening, you always find here a tempting array of freshly prepared food.

Our patrons don't object to "serving themselves," for they realize that by doing so they get big portions of the finest quality food at low prices. And of course the absence of waiters eliminates the necessity of "tipping."

Chicken a la King is mentioned merely as an example of our exceptional food values. For in spite of the low price of 65 cents, nothing finer can be had in all Chicago. Into it goes the tenderest meat from Premium milk-fed chickens, with imported sweet peppers, fresh mushrooms and rich cream. The portion is usually enough for two, with no extra charge when it is shared.

Take home a carton of our fresh, "select" eggs—75c per dozen

A few of our other specialties:—

Pork Tenderloin: 40c

Fried Premium Chicken: Breast of Premium Milk-fed Chicken, with bacon and cream gravy or giblet sauce . 65c

Tenderloin Steak: A thick, juicy steak, with French fried potatoes and lima beans 85c

And for Breakfast:—

Honey Waffles: With 3 strips of bacon or Mickelberry's Old Farm sausage, butter and pure maple sap or honey 25c

Bacon and Eggs: 2 fresh eggs, fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon 30c

This is one restaurant where children are always welcome!

MEDICAL CENTER AT NEW YORK TO COST 20 MILLION

Presbyterian Hospital Is Back of Move.

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The greatest medical center in the world, which ultimately is to cost approximately $20,000,000 and is to embody the latest developments in coöperation between hospitals, medical colleges and research institutions, is assured for New York City with the announcement tonight by the board of managers of the Presbyterian hospital of its decision to erect a building jointly with the college of physicians and surgeons of Columbia university at Broadway and 168th street.

The structure, which will be the core of the center to be erected around it, will cost $10,000,000, exclusive of the land. That section to be occupied by the college of physicians and surgeons will cost $3,000,000, which already has been subscribed. The Presbyterian hospital section will cost $7,000,000, of which $2,500,000 is available, leaving $4,500,000 still to be raised.

Dean Sage Announces Plans.

The announcement of the plans was made by Dean Sage, president of the Presbyterian hospital. The joint administrative board representing the hospital and the school is headed by William Barclay Parsons, with Dr. C. C. Burlingame as executive officer.

When the medical center is completed there will be available in one place the services of leading specialists in every branch of medicine, commanding the finest equipment that money can buy. The institution is expected to surpass Berlin, Vienna, or any other center in Europe.

Study Other Centers.

The tentative plan was first announced three years ago. Since that time a careful study of the medical centers now in operation at Johns Hopkins, Harvard, Yale and other institutions, has been made by the joint administrative board.

In addition to all the facilities for the care of patients, the new building will provide a place for scientists to collaborate in research work and will have the equipment for training practitioners of the highest type.

Christen Second Baby of England's Princess Mary

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—After several false announcements to prevent the assemblage of large crowds before the little church of St. Mary the Virgin at Goldsborough, the christening of Princess Mary's second baby took place this afternoon behind locked doors. He was named Gerald David. The villagers were indignant at being barred.

ATTORNEY LAYS PENSION INQUIRY TO PREJUDICE

Prejudice against him because of his efforts to have the pension laws so amended as to include police operators and wagon drivers is responsible for the investigation of alleged irregularities in the distribution of pension money to widows by policemen, it was charged yesterday by Attorney John P. Reed when he appeared at the state's attorney's office for questioning by Assistant State's Attorney Milton Smith.

Attorney Reed asserted that mention of former Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen in the investigation was unwarranted.

Meyer Dever expressed himself unequivocally as to the necessity for complete and impartial investigations of all pension funds.

M. E. PASTORS VISIT LOWDENS AT SINNISSIPPI

Former Governor Stresses Spiritual Life in Talk.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Sterling, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—An auto caravan of eighty cars, furnished by the Sterling chamber of commerce, this afternoon conveyed members of the M. E. Rock River conference to the home of former Gov. Frank O. Lowden and Mrs. Lowden at Sinnissippi farm, near Oregon. Mrs. Lowden and two daughters received the visiting ministers and their wives on the front lawn.

The former governor gave a talk, in which he declared that Germany's defeat in the war resulted from their dependence on material efficiency. He said there must be an ever increasing emphasis on the spiritual side of life, an ideal for which the ministers stand.

Poison Pastor Warning.

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, addressing the conference last night, made two plain references to the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight of Ina, Ill., who confessed to administering arsenic to his wife and instigating a similar murder by Mrs. Wilford Sweetin of her husband. He did not mention names but all recognized he was pointing out warning lessons to the ministers.

Bishop Hughes made his first reference when the names of the young ministers who are to be admitted on trial were brought to the conference for their votes of approval.

"The time to guard the church is when young men come to the door of the conference seeking admission," said Bishop Hughes. "I have the profound conviction that if the door of the conference in southern Illinois had been properly guarded certain events which have distressed us would not have happened."

Again Hints at Hight.

The second reference came when Bishop Hughes was addressing the seven young men, who had served in the conference on trial at least two years, were received into full membership.

"Don't forget," he said, "that even the Apostle Paul confessed, 'I must keep my body under, lest having preached to others, I myself might become a castaway.' If this principle were recognized we would not have had those who have fallen into the grosser forms of immorality and have stained the credentials given them by the church."

HIGHT BANKS ON "GOD'S LOVE" AS POISON DEFENSE

Mount Vernon, Ill., Oct. 4.—"I am in God's hands; I am happy, for I believe in his love."

Thus Lawrence M. Hight, Methodist circuit rider pastor of Ina village, who poisoned his wife and incited his sweetheart, Elsie Sweetin, to poison her husband, today philosophically viewed his fate from a cell in Jefferson county jail, just two weeks after his arrest and confession.

He writes letters to his former friends, to Elsie Sweetin, and to his children, asking forgiveness.

It Does All Its Own Talking on the Road

AUBURN

Forget, if you can, all the brag and bluster you hear every day about automobiles. The only way to know what a motor car is and what it can do is to put it to test—and then compare. Do this with the new Auburn 8-In-Line—today. It is nothing new to offer a demonstration—but it is new to promise that no salesman will ride along with you and talk, talk, talk—trying to make black seem white and white seem black.

Open the throttle of the Auburn 8-In-Line as far as you dare. There are cars today that shout about 60, 65 and 70 miles an hour as if there were something wonderful about such speed. Try the Auburn 8-In-Line! Then pace it down to a walk, to a crawl—feel the easy, silky pull of those eight cylinders in line—not a jiggle, no funny little noises to make you want to shift gears—a motor as smooth at 2 or 3 miles an hour as it is at the top of its stride.

Then tackle a steep hill. Take the bottom at just a loafing speed—then feed the motor gas—then slow up—then speed up again—in other words, do things on a hill you have never done before, or ever dared try before. Then bend your ear over the hood of the Auburn 8-In-Line and, while somebody presses the accelerator, listen to the sweet low-toned purr of it.

Last, and very important, compare the price of the Auburn 8-In-Line with the prices of other eights. We want you to get right down to fundamentals—judge an honestly built product as it should be judged—judge it strictly by its fine performance. Boiling it all down, and without using flowery language, Auburn is quality merchandise at a daringly low price.

Saruk Carpets

Perhaps the most durable of all Oriental weaves is the Saruk. Its closeness of weave, its permanence of coloring and its hardy though silklike pile, all go to make the Saruk recognized as one of the most desirable weaves. Fortunately, we have secured a group at a price considerably below the present market level. We are glad of the opportunity to be able to pass this saving along to our customers.

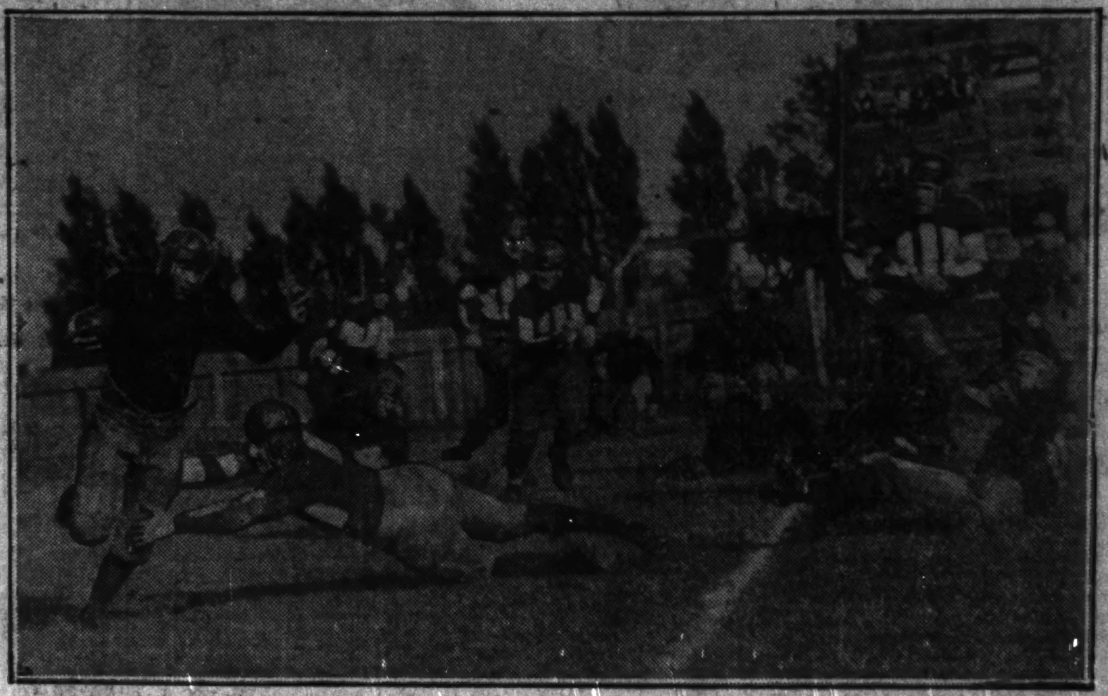
PURPLE ELEVEN WINS OPENER, 28 TO 0

SOX ROUT CUBS IN FOURTH GAME OF SERIES, 13 TO 0

BRILLIANT ATTACK BRINGS N. U. ELEVEN 28 TO 0 WIN IN FIRST GAME

Making the first touchdown of the season for Northwestern, Ralph Baker, fleet back, who was the main reason for the Purple's offensive punch yesterday, is seen on his way to a 28 yard run around right end in the first quarter. Baker finished his dash behind South Dakota's goal line.



Baker about to bring Funston, Coyote back, to the ground after the former had gained 15 yards on an off tackle smash. Funston played half back and cut a few capers for the losers. The play was started deep in the South Dakota territory. In the background Capt. Wienecke is coming to assist his mate.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

With Ted Blankenship pitching a masterful game, the White Sox yesterday simply swamped the Cubs in the fourth game of the city series and now the south siders need only one more victory to settle the argument, while the Cubs, to use a unique expression, are fighting with their backs to the wall, for they must win three in a row to get the big end of the money. The count yesterday was 13 to 0.

The White Sox socked eighteen hits during the game, mauling every one of four different Cub pitchers with line drives, while only two Cubs were able to get as far as second base all afternoon and one of the two was allowed to run down there unmolested in the ninth inning when his run was as harmless as a canary bird at large. Young Mr. Blankenship held the Cubs to four hits and only one of the four was anything to be proud of. He walked nary a man.

Fans Watch Scoreboard.

The game was so one sided that the 22,956 fans who paid to watch it lost all interest in it after the first inning, but had a most thrilling afternoon watching the scoreboard which tabulated the doings between the Giants and Senators in Washington. When the south side game was over thousands of fans remained at the park to get the finish of the big battle down east. They screamed with delight when the scoreboard showed the Senators had tied the score in the ninth, and they walked out with bowed heads when they got the final result showing the Senators had been licked.

Not only were the Cubs helpless before the pitching of Mr. Blankenship but they played a bad game of ball in the field. They made a lot of mistakes that don't show in the box score. Instead of being the peppy bunch of kids that recently knocked the Giants off in two of a three game series, they were a bunch of youngsters who played as if they felt they had gone out of their class. On the other hand, the old star money players of the Sox did everything right, performing just as if they felt like they were taking candy from a child. The general feeling among the Sox players and the Sox fans is that they simply can't lose today, no matter what man they pitch or what they may do.

Kaufmann Gets Air.

Tony Kaufmann, who struggled through a couple of innings the other day in great torment, was sent to the rubber to oppose Blankenship. Tony didn't even get through the first inning this time. The Sox had three runs in with only two men out and nothing Tony was able to do could stop the assault, so he was yanked and Jack Blake was called in.

Blake was a pretty good pitcher until the fifth and then he got his. Four fellows stepped up and knocked the cover off the ball while only one could be retired, and Blake was rushed from the battlefield and Rip Wheeler summoned from the bull pen. Rip finished that inning and two more, but not without suffering great distress, then he gave way to a helpless pinch hitter and a Mr. Bush came in. Bush pitched clear through the eighth and was knocked for another cluster of four runs, five fellows taking a sock at him before he could get the side out.

Ted Takes It Easy.

During it all young Mr. Blankenship simply sailed along without once having the feeling of danger. The tall Sox kid had a lot of speed. He could hook a swell curve over the plate almost any time he wanted to. He had absolute control of the ball. He could have knocked a dime out of a catcher's fingers at any time during the contest.

In the first inning George Grantham poled a vicious single to right field. That was the only blow off Ted all afternoon that one could crow about. In the third, with one out, Blake scratched an infield hit on a slow bounder to Bill Barrett in deep short, and immediately afterward Adams beat out a slow one to Kamm, putting Blake on second, the only man to really fight his way to second during the game. Both of those boys died on the bases, as Mr. Blankenship retired the next two. There wasn't another hit until the ninth, when, with one out, Grantham scraped another one over second base. Looked as if either Bill Barrett or Collins could have cabbaged the ball had either taken a chance of colliding with the other. It wasn't worth the risk, so they let it go. No effort was made to hold Grantham on first, so he jogged on down to second base and died there because Weis flied out and O'Farrell fanned, ending the game.

The Question.

What do you think of the latest baseball scandal, and what effect do you think it will have on the sport?

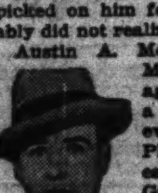
Where Asked.

Cubs ball park.

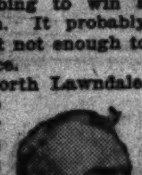
The Answers.

William L. Veeck, Wrigley building, president of the Cubs ball team.—When Judge Landis says that the only men involved in the baseball scandal are the men suspended the American people may rest assured that there are no others. No one in this community has ever classed the commissioner with the cover up breed. The scandal will have no ill effect for the reason that the people will believe the guilty have been unearthed and properly punished.

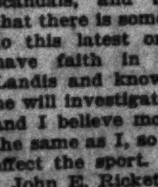
J. H. Nelson, 7731 Cornell avenue, coal dealer.—I really believe it is a frameup on Jimmy O'Connell. Gamblers, knowing that he was a good friend of Heinie Sand and having a wonderful personality and being an innocent fellow, picked on him for the job. He probably did not realize what he was doing.



Austin A. McNichols, 310 South Michigan, insurance agent.—I think it was a frameup, because everybody knows the Philadelphia team was easy picking for the Giants and there would be no particular reason for bribing to win a game from that team. It probably will hurt the game, but not enough to make any big difference.



Al Campion, 1733 North Lawndale, ticket agent.—I have followed baseball for many years and have heard of numerous scandals, and believe that there is something to this latest one. I have faith in Judge Landis and know that he will investigate from the bottom up and I believe most of the fans think the same as I, so it will not materially effect the sport.



John E. Ricketts, 2367 Lincoln avenue, restaurant owner.—I believe this latest baseball scandal is worse than the public realizes and that it will affect the good of the game to such an extent that when any player makes an error some fans will think he is playing crooked. Both O'Connell and Dolan are supposed to be well educated men, and if they had not been such saps, as McGraw says, they wouldn't have tried to bribe any one, especially after the White Sox scandal of 1919.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 4.—Illinois, which tied with Michigan for the western conference championship last year, was forced to play all the football it knew today to defeat Nebraska in the Memorial stadium, 9 to 6.

In line play, Coach Zuppke's team was clearly outplayed and even Harold Grange had trouble to make his usual impression. Failing with a straight attack, Illinois resorted to the aerial offense and this resulted in the Cornhusker defeat. Nebraska, although a comparatively green team, did its best to stop the forward passes, but one was successful over the Nebraska goal line and another placed the oval in position for Earl Britton to score the field goal which turned the tide of battle in the Orange and Blue favor.

Nebraska Hammers Line.

Illinois won the toss and took advantage of a strong south wind. Nebraska received the kickoff and started to hammer the Illinois line for steady gains. Illinois, however, braced and an exchange of punts left the ball on the Nebraska 40 yard line. The Cornhusker backs tore through the Orange and Blue line and slid off the tackles until the ball rested on the visitors' 28 yard line.

John Rhodes, a regular end who was shifted to half back earlier in the week when Hoche was hurt, then drove off the short side of Nebraska's unbalanced line. It was a split play and Rhodes went through clean, evaded the Illinois secondary defense, dodged the full back, and went over for the first score of the game. The kick after touchdown was missed.

In the second quarter Illinois changed its tactics. Instead of trying to gain by a straight attack, Capt. Rokusek ordered an aerial offense which finally resulted in Grange throwing the ball to Kassell, who caught it behind the Nebraska goal line. Britton missed the try for point after touchdown by kick. The half ended shortly afterward.

Attempt at Goal Fails.

In the third period Nebraska, aided by the wind, got within scoring distance and Bloodgood's attempted field goal by drop kick went wide. He made the effort from Illinois' 25 yard line. The orange and Blue did not threaten in the quarter.

Taking advantage of the wind and aided by two successful forward passes in the fourth period, Illinois worked the ball to Nebraska's 20 yard line. The locals' defense stiffened and the Grange-Britton combination was called for a place kick. Earl drove the ball squarely between the posts for the points which spelled victory. The visitors threatened again in the closing minutes, but a forward pass was grounded in the Nebraska end zone and went as a touchback. The game ended shortly afterwards.

Illinois Looks Bad.

As it played today, Illinois was far from being the fighting Illinois of the western conference. There was no drive to its attack, and the line looked bad on defense. Attempted end runs were smeared before the runners

In the Wake of the News

EPINARD.

EPINARD, beaten in two of the three international sweepstakes, is not unlikely to be post favorite in the final test of 1½ miles at Latonia next Saturday over the horses which previously outfooted him.

This unusual condition comes from the manner of his defeats, both by narrow margins. In either race the French turf champion might have won. In the second race he probably was best. Moreover, the distance at Latonia is supposed to favor him.

Ladkin stopped at a similar distance in the Hawthorne Derby after setting a sizzling pace, although it must be admitted the track was not to his liking. Wise Counsellor's stable says he can go a route over a mile and maintain his speed. Many critics wish to be shown. There are rumors of roughing in the Aqueduct race, not generally known, which were unfavorable to this colt.

Sarazen, unbeaten as a 2 year old, but ineligible for the two previous races because unsexed, will be among those present. Asking this little fellow of 900 pounds to pack 120 pounds, his scale weight, 1¼ miles is a serious question against the field he will meet.

Then there is Black Gold, which undoubtedly will carry the wagers of many Kentucky and western supporters. Just when we were ready to acclaim this popular black chap a great stake horse, he would meet defeat. It happened in the Latonia Derby and it happened in the Raceland Derby. Really great horses should not lose that way. On the other hand, seldom has any horse been required to keep on edge for so long as did the son of Black Toney. And he has had a good rest.

Whether or not Epinard wins Saturday, he has established his caliber by the two races already run. Only a dismal setback can dim that luster.

Goal from field—Coglizer. Referee—Don J. Henry [Kenkon. Umpire—Maj. Henry Nelly [West Point]. Field judge—A. T. Sibler [Illinois.] Head linesman—W. C. Knight [Michigan].

Clumsily and haltingly Chicago stumbled into the maws of the Missouri Tigers at Stagg field yesterday afternoon, yielding before the terrific driving power of the ambitious visitors, 3 to 0, the victory being garnered in the second period when Arthur Coglizer, Bengal end, booted a place kick from the Maroons' twenty yard line.

This was the first of the only two good opportunities to score which presented themselves during the entire game. The other chance was forfeited when, in the third period, Coglizer again tried to score from the field with a place kick but sent the ball soaring to the right of the posts.

Mizzou Rooters Cheer.

The victory of the Tigers was a surprise to the critics but a pleasant one to the thousands of rooters from Old Mizzou who occupied the east stands, cheering their heroes vociferously at advantageous turns of the game.

The game was won for Missouri by sheer ability. There were no great flashes of fortune to aid them and there was not such difference between the teams as to allow the visitors to overwhelm the Maroons, their marginal superiority being represented by what they gained—two more chances to score than the Maroons received.

With such men as little Smith, roving center, who was mixed in numerous plays to the Maroons' detriment, and Jackson, quarter back who, because of the ultra warm weather didn't wear stockings, the Tigers smashed and crashed their way to their slight victory, using passes as about their only advantageous departure from straight football.

Maroon Triple Pass Fails.

In fact, the game was played without much football trickery, Coaches Gwinn, Henry, and A. A. Stagg withholding their stuff for Missouri valley and Big Ten tilts. Nor were the Maroons, it seemed, ready for much trickery. Their one attempt, a triple pass, failed dismally.

The Maroon forward wall was counted on to stop the plunging sallies of the Bengals. But repeatedly it swarm through big gaps, to be nailed only after substantial gains. The Maroon ends and backs had been trained against the Tiger passes. But here, too, the plans of Coach Stagg went awry, for the defenders couldn't block the aerial plays.

The Chicago machine appeared to need polishing badly—need greater coordination between the units. It didn't hold together under the crashing attacks of the Tiger backs and the spirited offensive work of the Missouri forwards. It failed in affording support to the men who carried the ball, stumbling in its interference and being overpowered in its blocking.

Outclassed in Kicking.

The major portion of the battle was played in Maroon territory, the Tigers

BAN B. JOHNSON MISSING AFTER LANDIS ATTACK

Following his violent outburst of Friday against Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, Manager McGraw and President Charles Stoneham of the Giants, President B. B. Johnson of the American league apparently has dropped out of sight. The American league boss wasn't to be found by interviewers yesterday and it was stated on good authority that he had gone to Excelsior Springs, Mo., for a few days.

In Washington Commissioner Landis refused to comment further on Johnson's statement, in which the American league prexy bitterly condemned the commissioner for his action in the scandal which threw baseballdom into a furore early in the week and which has been the subject of much conversation and counter charges for the last few days.

President Barney Dreyfuss, who hurried to Washington to take a hand in the scandal fuss, also was without comment yesterday.

It appears now that with the big series under way the scandal talk will be temporarily discarded but will flame anew as soon as the world's championship of the diamond sport is settled.

Urged on by the frenzied shrieks and cheers of about 12,000 rooters, Northwestern university's eleven gave signs of real offensive strength yesterday afternoon in sending the University of South Dakota back west humiliated to the extent of 28 to 0. The game was waged under a hot sun.

In brawn the two elevens were evenly matched, but things did not stack up that way in the scoring column. It was simply a romp for the purple jerseyed warriors and nothing but a plucky fight against overwhelming odds for the Coyotes, clothed in jerseys of crimson.

Baker Tears Off Long Runs.

On the shoulders of Ralph Baker rests the honor of sending the crimson Dakota warriors back home so maltreated. Mr. Baker's afternoon of honest endeavor resulted in his making the first touchdown chalked up for Northwestern, scoring a drop kick, booting the ball between the posts following a touchdown, and hurling a pass that ended up in a touchdown. He also carried the ball within scoring distance on another occasion.

Baker reeled off a number of long runs, one of 49 yards, one of 28, and others of 28, 23, 45, and 12 yards. Not a bad afternoon for any one who, besides, hurled well directed passes into waiting hands, as well as getting long distance on kicks off.

On a few occasions the Northwestern flash was tossed for losses, and on another play he had a touchdown made, only to drop the oval. This happened late in the fourth quarter, after the Purple had passed the ball to the 5 yard mark. Here Baker was called on to bring the necessary score. Two plays in which Baker carried the ball put it on the 2 yard line, from where Baker shot through the line and crossed the goal. Immediately there was a scramble, and then what looked like a sure score was turned into a touchback.

Other Backs Help.

Though the Purple speed demon was in the center of the spotlight, his backs, too, deserve commendation for the interference given. White, Capt. Wieneceke, and Solheim generally spilled everything that might prove an obstacle. And there were other times that just sheer speed, use of the stiff arm, and change of pace were effective means of Baker tearing off long sprints, mostly around right end.

Right at the start hopes of a Northwestern victory soared, for on the first play after Baker had kicked off the visitors were guilty of a costly fumble. With the ball on the 18 yard line, something went wrong with the South Dakota signals, for the ball bounded back 5 yards, where Seidel and Mathews made a scramble for it, the former getting over the oval.

With the ball in possession of Coach Thistlethwaite's outfit, the Crimson line thrust back three attempts, but on the next play Baker brough a roar from the rooters with a drop kick of 20 yards. That was just the beginning of a busy day, especially for Baker.

March on Goal Begins.

After Funston of the visitors had missed a drop kick from the 30 yard mark, the Purple started for the first touchdown. Baker and Wienecke tore off two first downs, and then the latter was forced to punt. White intercepted a pass, and despite a 15 yard penalty, the march was on.

White hauled down a pass from Baker which netted 20 yards and put the ball on South Dakota's 28 yard line. This arranged the setting for Baker to scoot around right end and count the initial touchdown.

Two more touchdowns followed in the second quarter. Harold White, playing his first year on the varsity, was responsible for both counters.

Froelich Scores Final Counter.

During the third quarter Coach Thistlethwaite made several changes in the lineup, but the new men and those who remained in the conflict were not able to do much, while South Dakota, opening up with a determined aerial game, had success at times. The Purple appeared weak against this kind of game in this period as well as the final session when the Coyotes came close, losing the ball when Tim Lowry intercepted a pass on the Purple ten yard mark.

Froelich, who relieved Capt. Wienecke in the last quarter, accounted for the last touchdown, plunging from the five yard mark. Baker had a hand in this advance, which included his 45 yard run.

The game was efficiently refereed by J. Magidsohn, Michigan, who was aided by three other capable officials.

fanned four Giant batters. Three of these whiffs occurred in the fourth, but in between was a telling swipe that Terry landed in almost the same spot selected by Kelly. That, too, was a "cripple" that Johnson threw with a two and one count.

Going back to the glaring details of the twelfth, a punctured batter stands out as the happening that started the downfall. Gowdy was the batter, and Johnson plunked him squarely in the back. Then Nehf made his third single and the next incident was the blunder that definitely decided it.

Fail to Back Up Play.

Nehf's hit was a low drooping fly to center and McNeely tried to pick it off his shoetops. He failed to hold it. Picking it up, he threw the ball to second, but it went wide of Harris and rolled across the infield to the stand. It wasn't entirely a case of a bad throw. It also was a case of the vanquished club not backing up a play. Somebody on that infield should have been in a position to stop the ball. Gowdy went to third and Nehf to second before it was retrieved.

With two on and none dead and evidently figuring that Bentley might get hold of one of Johnson's foolers, McGraw sent up the big southpaw to bat for Lindstrom. He walked and the sacks were jammed. Frisch bounced into a force play at the plate, but Young who had fanned three times, sent a fluke single to center for one run and another crossed the plate when Kelly slammed a long fly to Goslin.

Griffs Blunder on Bases.

With a win within their grasp the Giants proceeded to cave slightly in the home twelfth and the Senators might have grabbed at least a tie if they hadn't blundered on the bases. The round opened with Shirley batting for Johnson. He survived at second because Jackson muffed an easy pop fly. A fly ball eliminated McNeely, but Harris came through with a single to center and Shirley hiked over the plate.

Then Rice, swift as a deer, hit safely to center. Harris went to third and Rice should have stopped at first, but instead he charged blindly on his way and was an easy out at the middle station. That was bad baseball.

A moment later Kelly, who had come in from the outfield to play second, made a one handed pickup of Goslin's slow grounder, threw him out at first and the show was over. There was no cheering the victors. Even the Giants took it quietly, just as they had taken the two home runs that ordinarily would cause at least a flutter on the bench.

Senators Appear Dazed.

Before the series the wise ones said Washington could not come back after its strenuous pennant struggle. Today, at least for a time, it looked that way. "Bucky" Harris' men seemed in a trance. They fielded well enough but at bat were only half hearted. Of course, Nehf was a great pitcher but he wasn't as good as the Senators made him look.

This dazed, listless way of doing things continued through the first five innings. Maybe the homers that Kelly and Terry hit off Johnson had something to do with the depression. In the sixth, however, McNeely opened with a double to left. It was just a fly ball that fell close to the foul line but it was a hit just the same and the Senators woke up. The run scored eventually because the Giants preferred not to attempt to cut it off. From then on Nehf found his foes somewhat persistent, but not strong in the pinches.

Had the Senators had that needed "kick" today in times of need the Giants would have been the softest kind of foe. They weren't primed for a stiff fight and neither did they want one.

Now with a win under their belts they may forget their troubles and go sailing through.

CHICAGO ROOTERS PULL HARD FOR WALTER TO WIN

Thousands of fans attending the city series between the White Sox and the Cubs yesterday rooted unavailingly for Washington and Walter Johnson. Throughout the Sox-Cubs game the fans watched a big scoreboard showing progress of the first world's series game, and when the Senators tied the count in the ninth even the Chicago players and umpires stopped to turn to the scoreboard.

With the ending of the Chicago game thousands of fans swarmed on to the field beseeching reporters in the press stands for latest world's series returns, remaining for nearly an hour to "pull" for the Senators, whose every play was met by a cheer.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TURNS FAN FOR DAY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—President Coolidge was a baseball fan this afternoon and the excitement which stirred 37,000 other fans to the wildest pitches of emotion brought the President also to his feet time and again, applauding vigorously the hectic points in the thrilling twelve inning opening battle of the world series.

Mr. Coolidge, a baseball follower of more or less enthusiasm, lighted his cigar and sat back at the opening of the contest apparently ready to enjoy a leisurely two hours. The cigar went out twice in the early part of the game, but when Kelly drove out a homer for the first marker and Judge followed soon after with the Senator's first hit, the stogy burned more steadily.

Cigar Is Forgotten.

As "Pep" Young, Kelly, Gowdy and the other Giant veterans began turning back to the bench after a third vain swing of the bat, Mr. Coolidge turned to Mrs. Coolidge, who was keeping a careful account of the game on the score card, to learn just who these victims of the mighty Walter Johnson were.

When Roger Peckinpaugh lined a solid blow far into left center in the ninth and sent Bluege over the plate with the tying run, Mr. Coolidge was among the first of the hysterical throng on his feet. The cigar had been forgotten. He turned and smiled with Speaker Gillett of the house and C. Bascom Slempe, his secretary, and his other guests, as they leaped shouting into the air, waving their hats. Mrs. Coolidge was at his side, waving her score card and applauding with all her might.

FIRST VICTORY MAKES GIANTS 7-5 FAVORITES

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Within ten minutes after the Giants had beaten the Senators this afternoon, the National league champions were made 7 to 5 favorites to win the series, and one bet of $15,000 at these odds and another of $10,000 at the same figure were placed by W. L. Darnell & Co., brokers of 44 Broad street, the center of the world's series wagering.

According to this firm, confidence in the Giants was restored by their victory and the stagnation that had struck betting on the eve of the opening game had been dissipated with indications that the total wagering would reach as high a mark as in previous world's series.

Betting on tomorrow's game was at evens, take your choice. The moderate bettors were wagering on the outcome of the series, rather than on individual games.

Bucky Harris' Pal Dies Victim of "Bean Ball"

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 4.—Death today claimed Festus Higgins of Minooka, baseball pitcher and close friend of Bucky Harris, manager of the Washington Americans. Higgins was 31 years old. An injury, suffered several years ago when he was struck on the head with a pitched ball, is believed to have hastened his death.

CITY SERIES NOTES

FIGURES for the fourth game of the city series played yesterday at the White Sox park, were announced as follows:

FOURTH GAME.

Attendance	22,956
Gross Receipts	$20,475.84
Players share	10,442.68
Commissioner's share	3,071.38
Each club	3,480.89

TOTAL FOR FOUR GAMES.

Attendance	69,562
Gross Receipts	$62,723.43
Players share [Complete.]	31,990.99
Commissioner's share	9,409.12
Each club	10,663.65

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	W.	L.	Pct.
White Sox	3	1	.750
Cubs	1	3	.250

The players will not share in the receipts of any more games. Their pool was completed yesterday and the total amount to be split is just under $32,000. That means that every player on the winning club will get about $765 and every player on the losing club about $510. Not good, but not bad.

It is likely that Alexander will go to the slab for the Cubs today, with Aldridge as a possible choice, depending on how well he has recovered from recent illness. Probably Cvengros will pitch for the Sox, but it might be Thurston or Robertson or Connally or Leverette, or most anybody.

Not the least attraction offered at the game today will be the score board tabulating the results of the second world's series contest at Washington.

Today's game will be at the Cubs' park and if good weather is on tap a park full of folks is expected. The south side is planning to go over en masse, whatever that is.

FANS GO TO CHEER, BUT STAY TO WAIL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—A pall of gloom hung over Washington tonight—all because Walter Johnson lost his first world series game.

More than 37,000 fans jammed their way into Griffith stadium today for the opening battle between the Washington Senators and New York Giants. Nearly that number, after twelve gruelling innings, trooped out of the park with heavy hearts.

The crowd was with Johnson and had counted on him. As he fought his way along, pitching deliberately, words of encouragement came from the stands, came from leather-lunged rooters, to whom he is an idol, came from high government officials who cast aside dignity to root like ordinary fans, came in scarcely audible whispers from a wife and mother who had journeyed from Kansas in the hope of sharing a triumph.

President Also in Tension.

Near the Washington dugout sat President and Mrs. Coolidge. Breathing in the same tense atmosphere as the bleacher fans, they joined them in their cheers. From a box in the upper tier Secretary Mellon watched the game. Back of home plate sat Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball who throughout the contest rested his chin on his hands which clasped the top of a walking stick.

After the last out had been made, the rooters momentarily clung to their places and not until a cheering Giant team dashed out of its dugout across the diamond did the movement toward the gates begin.

"We'll Win Tomorrow."

And in downtown Washington tonight expressions of regret that Johnson had to lose his first game were heard on all sides. The Senators had lost, but that didn't seem to matter, for sympathy for Washington's veteran twirler seemed manifest by all.

In hotel lobbies, cigar stores, cabarets, street corners, and other places, baseball was the topic in the air. Washington had lived to see its first world series—at times some thought the city wouldn't live through it—but from everywhere tonight came the expressed hope—"Well, we'll win tomorrow."

COHAN SAYS IT WAS BEST GAME EVER PLAYED

BY GEORGE M. COHAN.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Two great ball clubs played one great game before Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and 37,000 other Americans this afternoon.

For the first eleven innings it was anybody's game—everybody's—but in the twelfth it became the Giants' game against the gamest club they ever met. It was a tough game for Johnson to lose, but it would have been just as tough for Nehf to have tossed it off.

The biggest surprise of the day was the fact that nobody razzed the New York team—not a word about the scandal, not a murmur about the unfortunate occurrence from the crowd in the stands—they were there to see a game of baseball and, believe me, they saw one.

Best Game Ever Seen.

As far as I'm personally concerned it was the most thrilling world's series game I've ever seen, and I've seen them all. It was the best natured crowd ever gathered in a ball park—of course they were there with their horns and rattles and megaphones and all the usual props. They rooted and cheered and went just as dippy as any crowd of the kind ever did, but with all that they were the fairest, squarest lot of baseball fans ever assembled, and no matter whether Washington wins or loses the series, it's a cinch that this man's town will always be remembered for its downright good sportsmanship.

The New York rooters caught the spirit of the thing and applauded and cheered every member of the Washington team for their fast, snappy plays, just as they did for their own club. It was a sort of mutual admiration affair from start to finish, with the great crowd on edge until the last man was out.

No kicking, no alibis, no umpire baiting, no razzing of any kind—an honest to goodness ball game and a perfectly wonderful crowd. Even the usual grandstand comedians, the boys who make the funny cracks that keep the folks amused, were missing. The only comedy remark I heard pulled throughout the entire game was about Louis Mann's collar.

Talk About Lou's Collar.

Of course Lou's collar is an old story at the Polo grounds, but it was a sensation here today. The crack was as follows:

"O, look at that peculiar looking person with a cuff around his neck."

Johnson had enough stuff and strikeouts to win two ball games, but the Giants got the breaks. The Senators came within a hair's breadth of tying it up in their half of the twelfth, but a close decision at first base ended the greatest exhibition of the national game ever played anywhere in the old fool world.

West Point Cadets Win from St. Louis U., 17-0

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Army defeated St. Louis university, 17 to 0, in the opening game of the local football season. The visiting collegians made only two first downs in the contest and never threatened the Army at any stage. The West Pointers scored two touchdowns, Harry Wilson, formerly of Penn State, getting one, and Baxter, end, the other. Garbisch, Army captain, kicked a field goal for the Cadets.

HARRIS SAYS HE HAS BETTER TEAM DESPITE FIRST GAME DEFEAT

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 4—[By the Associated Press.]—"Tomorrow is another day," Stanley Harris, 27 year old manager of the Senators, said today in the dressing room after his team had lost to the Giants by the narrowest of margins.

"It's the first time I ever saw the Giants in action in a world series," he continued, "but after looking them over today I really believe that we have a better team and will go on to win the world's championship."

"We don't feel as if we were really beaten, although, of course, the Giants won a great victory. The last play of the game might have been called either way without more objection from the Giants than we made, and a game lost by such a margin can have only one effect on us—make us believe we can win with better luck and make us fight all the harder."

Harris complimented Walter Johnson on the great game he pitched under the handicap of occupying the limelight.

"Walter was not unhappy, though he wanted to win. He is just as good a man in defeat as he would have been in victory, and I think he deserved to win."

PRESIDENT STICKS TO FINISH OF GAME; OTHER SIDELIGHTS

TEN minutes before game time today everything was in readiness for the arrival of President Coolidge. A platoon of marines and doughboys and the members of both teams lined up in front of the executive's box. The President entered, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stearns of Boston. Upon reaching his seat the "chief" was given a new baseball, and he stood holding it while a hundred or more cameras clicked. Then he threw the ball out and Umpire Tommy Connolly caught it. Instead of departing after a few innings, as many predicted he would, the President stayed for the windup.

Despite the galaxy of notables, one fellow attracted more attention and caused more noise than all the others put together. That one fellow was "Babe" Ruth. He walked across the field before the game and at least ten thousand fans yelled in unison, "Hello, Babe!" They seemed to overlook the fact that a couple of pretty good ball players were with the Yankee star. The other two were Ty Cobb and George Sisler.

In various respects the fans demeanor was without precedent. It was loyal, almost unanimously pro-Washington and while vociferously keen for a triumph for the Senators, there was no razzing, no deriding of the National league champions.

Never before in world championship play has a pitcher with twelve strikeouts lost the decision. Indeed, Johnson's total today tied the nine inning record established by Ed Walsh of the White Sox in 1906. At that, the great Kansan was outpitched, though he should have won easily had not one break after another gone dead against him.

When he struck out twelve Giant batsmen today, Walter Johnson tied the world's series record, sung up in 1906 by Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox. Walsh's mark, however, was made in a nine inning game, while Johnson took twelve innings.

Ban Johnson's suggestion that Brooklyn should have been substituted for the Giants as the National league's series entry because of the Dolan-O'Connell scandal, found no support from Charles H. Ebbets, president of the Robins. "The Giants proved to me they were the best team in the league," Ebbets said. "I see nothing to prevent them from playing."

SAINTS, ORIOLES PLAY 13 INNINGS TO A 6 TO 6 TIE

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 4.—The third game of the "Little World Series" between Baltimore of the International league and St. Paul of the American association was called at the end of the thirteenth inning this afternoon on account of darkness, the score standing tied at 6 all.

It was a wild and woolly game, starting out as a farce and ending in a great pitching duel between Tommy Thomas of the Orioles, who relieved Jackson in the fourth inning, and Paul Fittery, a left hander, who was sent to the rescue of Tony Faeth in the sixth inning.

This tie game means that the clubs will have to remain here another day before leaving for St. Paul. Score:

Columbus, O., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—By nosing out Purdue 7 to 0 here this afternoon Ohio State will lead the western conference for a week, at least, in the race for the 1924 football championship. The battle was the only one carded where two Big Ten elevens clashed and was the middle western loop's opener. It was the Ohios' first Big Ten victory in the stadium.

The two teams fought nearly on even terms throughout the contest, Purdue getting the shade of advantage during the first half with the Bucks taking it during the last part of the fray. A lucky break brought the home team's score on the first play in the second quarter.

40 Yard Run for Goal.

Bill Hunt, halfback, heaved a pass to Marty Karow, fullback, after Marty had gained the open. He hung onto the ball, shook off one tackler and raced 40 yards across the visitors goal line. Hunt drop kicked the extra point. The same pair, both of them sophomores experiencing their first intercollegiate competition, brought the Buckeyes several neat gains during the game. They bid fair to emulate the Harley to Stinchcomb combination of Ohio State championship days.

Purdue's defense was slightly better than that of Ohio State, even though the former's line averaged a few pounds lighter. The Boilermakers gained steadily when the ball was in their own territory, but as soon as they threatened the Bucks goal posts they were stopped.

Wellman's Nose Broken.

Not once did Purdue penetrate any deeper into the Bucks' territory than the 25 yard line. Wellman, Purdue tackle, suffered a broken nose in the second period, which forced him out of the contest and weakened the visitors slightly during the second half. Lineup:

BADGERS TRIM AMES IN FINAL QUARTER, 17-0

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Though their secondary defense was perforated for sixteen completed forward passes, the University of Wisconsin eleven had a fourth quarter attack that brought them two touchdowns and a 17 to 0 victory over Iowa State college here today. The other Badger score came in the form of a drop kick in the second quarter when Doyle Harmon booted the oval 35 yards between the goal posts.

The Badgers won by a demonstrative score, yet the game was a bitterly contested duel throughout three quarters. Precise and accurate passing by Roberts and splendid open field running by J. Behm had Wisconsin constantly on defense, until McAndrew finally intercepted an Ames pass early in the fourth quarter and ran from midfield to the invaders' 8 yard line.

Soon after Harris hit the line for a touchdown, while Doyle Harmon made the extra point on a drop kick. The Badgers crossed Ames' line for the second time after Harris heaved a neat 30 yard pass to Leo Harmon, who caught the ball on the Iowan's 2 yard line. Capt. Harris again plunged across. Larson, substitute quarter back, made a drop kick for the extra tally. The lineup:

STEGER IS STAR AS WOLVERINES WALLOP MIAMI

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Brilliant open field running by Capt. Steger featured today's season opener in which the Wolverines swamped Miami, 55 to 0. The star halfback skirted right end in the second quarter and ran through almost the complete Miami team without any interference from his team mates for a touchdown. He duplicated the feat in the third quarter, running 35 yards. Rockwell, quarterback, made a number of shorter brilliant runs. Twenty-five thousand people saw the contest, a record breaking opening game attendance. Lineup:

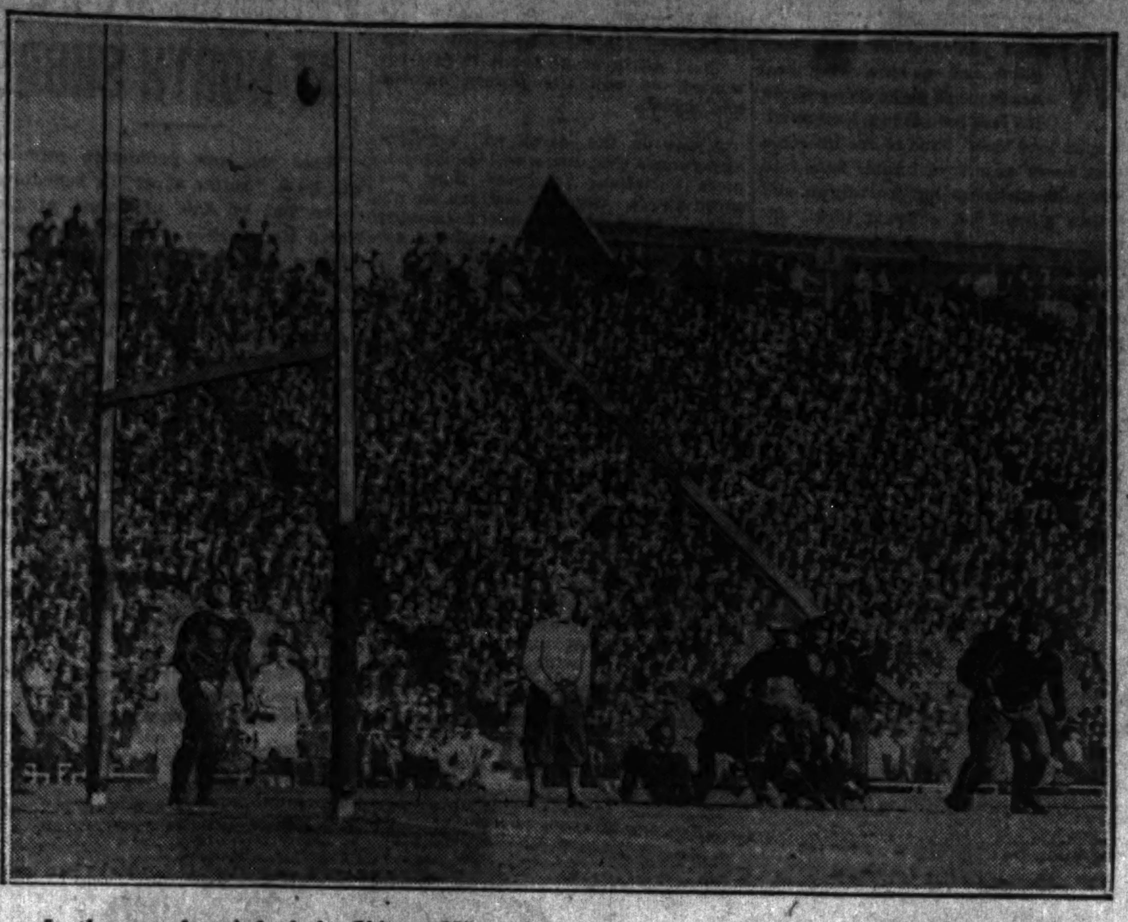
DEFEAT IS MAROONS' MEDICINE IN OPENING ENGAGEMENT



In the second period of the Chicago-Missouri game yesterday Arthur Coglizer, sophomore end, dropped back and booted a field goal for the only score of the game. In the foreground of the picture are shown the distressed faces of the Maroons as they watched the ball soar over the crossbar to give the visitors the lead.

Missouri's second chance to score yesterday against the University of Chicago came as a result of the play pictured here, in which Capt. Bond of Missouri is seen racing with the ball to Chicago's 17 yard line after having received a pass from Whiteman. To Bond's right is Harry Thomas. Shortly after this play Missouri tried to place kick, but the ball went wide. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

doubling Chicago's first downs. In punting, Richerson and, later Coglizer, gave Missouri a big advantage over the kicking of Bob Curley, Maroon quarter back whose work yesterday failed to show the luminous qualities of a year ago.

The game offered a number of thrilling incidents and showed sterling qualities, though considerable inconsistency, in several of the Maroons. Capt. Franklin Gowdy, who, instead of playing center where he has been trained this season, was at tackle, and Joe Pondelik, guard, showed their old reliable qualities.

Harrison Barnes, end, performed brilliantly, particularly on defense, though once he was caught napping on an end run. Bub Henderson earned laurels for himself with several fine tackles. In the back field, Harry Thomas seems destined to bear the burden of Chicago's offense. He went rather disappointingly yesterday until the second half when he bore his responsibility more smartly. Other Maroon backs, believed previously to be strong, were ineffective, among these being McKinney, Rouse Francis, and other men who were given chances during the game.

Maroons Miss Chance to Score.

An exchange of punts opened the game after Missouri's kickoff. Early in the quarter Harrison Barnes blocked two Tiger punts, recovering the second on the visitors' 30 yard mark. A score was in sight until Phil Barto dropped a pass from Kernwein and the chance passed into history.

Missouri opened the second frame with two successive first downs. The Black and Gold started its scoring campaign when the Tigers punted over Chicago's goal line, the ball being returned to the 20 yard mark. The Staggmen failed to gain and Curley's punt was blocked, Walsh, Missouri half back, recovering on the 12 yard line. Tuttle and Jackson made five yards, then Coglizer booted the three points. The second half saw numerous substitutions made by Coach Stagg, at first in an effort to stem the tide of victory and then to experience his new men, victory seeming futile. Early in the third period, a powerful campaign by the Maroons was cut short when signals were mixed and the ball was fumbled, resulting in the loss of a score of yards.

March on Maroon Goal.

Shortly afterward, Curley having punted to Lewis on Chicago's 43 yard mark, Whiteman turned loose a pass, speared by Walsh for a 10 yard gain and followed by another, Whiteman to Bond, which placed the ball on the Maroons' 17 yard line. From there, on the fourth down, Coglizer vainly tried for another field goal.

Interesting points in the fourth quarter were Harry Thomas' 9 yard sally through the line, Capt. Gowdy's recovery of Curley's punt after a Missouri fumble, and Bond's interception of Harry Thomas' pass on Chicago's 34 yard line. Following this play, Coglizer tried, in the last split second of play, to count another place kick, but failed.

Following the game the Missouri rooters, who came by special trains from Columbia, St. Louis, and Kansas City, staged a dance in the university neighborhood. The crowd yesterday was considerably augmented by the Boy Scout guests of Coach Stagg, who turned out, thousands strong, for the fray, parading before the opening of the game and occupying the south stands during the battle.

SOUTHERN GRID PLAYER KILLED IN AUTO SMASH

Samson, Ala., Oct. 4.—One member of the Hartford, Ala., football team was killed and another member was believed to have been fatally injured early today while en route from De Funiak Springs, Fla., where the Hartford and De Funiak teams played yesterday. By the side of a wrecked automobile the body of Ernest Wynn and J. B. Kinsaul, in an unconscious condition, were discovered by persons in a passing car.

Tilden Preps Beat Benld in Intercity Game, 12 to 2

Benld, hailed as the champion of southern Illinois, bit off more than it could chew yesterday when it tackled Tilden at Normal park, the final decision going to the Chicago eleven, 12 to 2.

K. Y. W. AT BAT

THE fifth game of the city series between the Cubs and White Sox, which will be played at the Cubs' park this afternoon, will be broadcast again by W-G-N, but the radio waves will go out over the K-Y-W station. Through an agreement made yesterday, "Sen" Kaney, announcer of W-G-N, will be at the microphone at the Cubs' park and the wire will be run through to the K-Y-W studio. W-G-N studio will broadcast its regular Sunday afternoon program.

ILLINI TRIM HUSKERS, 9-6, IN AERIAL GAME

reached the scrimmage line in most cases, and it was only the successful execution of forward passes which gave Illinois a victory.

Nebraska, however, is a strong team, one which will be a strong contender for honors in the Missouri valley conference. Coach Fred Dawson has accomplished a great deal with his green material, and it was no disgrace for his team to be beaten today. In fact, Nebraska supporters should feel proud of this year's eleven, as it is a fighting aggregation, one which will improve as the season wears on.

INDIANA WINS EASY GAME FROM DE PAUW, 21 TO 0

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Indiana won handily from De Pauw, 21 to 0, before a crowd of 7,500 here today. The Crimson's goal line was threatened only once, when, in the third quarter, Coach Bill Ingram jerked his entire first team and the scrubs held the Methodists for downs. They worked the ball down to the enemy's 12 yard line, where they were held.

Indiana failed to score in this period, but as soon as the final quarter started Ingram sent his regulars in, who marched down the field on line bucks and off tackle plays and registered a touchdown in four minutes. Ingram relied almost entirely on straight football, saving his open formations for the intersectional clash with Louisiana next Saturday.

The locals drew penalties of 105 yards, against 15 for De Pauw. Indiana made twelve first downs, against three for the visitors, and the locals completed two passes for 30 yards. De Pauw completed three, missed four, and had three intercepted.

GOPHERS TALLY 14 TO 0 ON N. D. U. IN HARD BATTLE

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Minus the great Earl Martineau, Ray Ecklund, and a few of last year's stars, Minnesota had quite a battle in its opening football game in the new stadium to win, 14 to 0, over the scrappy North Dakota eleven.

Playing far below expectations, the Gophers were held scoreless through the first quarter, and it was not until two unheralded stars, Peplaw and Schutte, were rushed into the game that Minnesota counted a tally.

One Minnesota score came in the third period, and the final tally in the last period, when the Flickertails were nearly exhausted and many subs had been rushed into the game. A recovered fumble by Lidberg made it possible for the Minnesota score. He got the ball on the North Dakota 20 yard line, and in three tries Lidberg and Schutte had the ball on the 2 yard line, from where Schutte went over for the first score. Abrahamson kicked goal. Another sensational 31 yard run by Peplaw in the middle of the fourth quarter made possible the second touchdown. The dash put the ball on the visitors' 13 yard line, and two line bucks brought Schutte over for the second touchdown. Abrahamson again kicked goal. Lineup:

AUSTIN AGAIN LOSES TO LOUISVILLE HIGH

Male High school of Louisville, Ky., for the second straight year drubbed Austin when the southern boys yesterday finished on the long end of a 26 to 0 score at the new Grant Park stadium. Last year the Dixie crew humbled the locals, 72 to 0.

Austin, with a much improved team than represented the school last year put up a plucky fight throughout, but the experience of the Colonels told before the battle had progressed far. At the outset the Austin line was ripped open, the Male High backs scooting through for consistent gains of varying length.

Capt. Normand Stars.

Capt. Normand, fullback, who played well on offensive and stopped many drives through the line, was easily the star of the game. On two occasions he registered touchdowns. His plunging was hard to stop, while his interference made possible many gains.

Ford and Samison accounted for the other two touchdowns. Ford hit the line for frequent gains and was successful in dashes around the ends. Samison, who replaced Fishback at center, rolled on a fumble for his touchdown.

Colonels Send in Subs.

As soon as the regular line had piled up a safe lead the Louisville coach sent a number of second string men into the fray. Austin also used a number of subs in attempting to get together a combination that could stop the well balanced southern eleven. Lineup:

EVANSTON TROUNCES MORTON IN SUBURBAN LEAGUE OPENER, 12-6

EVANSTON and Morton blew the lid off of the suburban season at Cicero yesterday with the North Shore squad landing on the long end of a 12 to 6 score. Capt. Levison put the big gold eleven off on the right foot by plunging over for a touchdown in the second period. The fleet Wilson aded six more points in the third quarter after a series of smashes and end runs. Morton applied the brakes in the closing minutes of play and shoved over a touchdown shortly before the final whistle. The lightweight and freshman teams of the two schools battled to scoreless ties. DE LA SALLE AND ST. RITA IN 7-7 TIE

St. Rita and De La Salle played their first game in the Catholic Football league yesterday, the engagement ending in a 7 to 7 deadlock on St. Rita field. In the first quarter Kelly, St. Rita half back, fumbled the ball on the De La Salle 20 yard mark, O'Brien of the visitors grabbing the ball and scoring a touchdown. A series of straight plays made it possible for McNichols to score for St. Rita in the third quarter. Lineup:

Fumble Gives Toledo 7-0 Victory Over Ypsilanti

Toledo, O., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Toledo university football team defeated Ypsilanti Normal college, 7 to 0, on a 40 yard run by Harrison, who received the ball on a fumble in the last three minutes of play. Domhoff then kicked the goal. It was a fight from the start to the last second of play.

HAWKEYES WIN COMEDY BATTLE FROM TEACHERS

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Charles R. Brookins, world's champion low hurdler, loomed as a genuine quarter back in the opening football game here today, featuring the civilizing of the South Eastern Savages, 43 to 0, by Iowa, in the initial bow of an Ingwerson coached team.

Brookins was let in at the end of the game and tore off 25 yards on the opening play. He pressed the ball to the line and allowed Boydston to punch the last yard for the credit and modestly kicked the goal himself.

The affair was not much of a game but was a good joke from the opening whistle. Harris of South Eastern Teachers started the fun when he picked up the ball after Parkin had carried the oval over for the first touchdown and fumbled. Harris led out with a ten yard advantage and lumbered the full length of the field while the Hawks plowed after him. The ball was called back and Iowa given the touchdown.

A few minutes later Capt. Parkin picked up a fumble and raced 40 yards to a touchdown, but again the ball was called back and a penalty administered to Iowa. Daniels, Negro guard, pulled a similar trick, intercepting a pass and running 70 yards for the final count. Lineup:

FOUR BOUTS ON EAST CHICAGO CARD FRIDAY

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

Decisions of Tribune boxing representatives are:

At St. Paul, Minn.—Martin Burke beat Fred Fulton [10].

Forfeits for appearance were posted yesterday by the principals in the three ten round bouts booked to open the local indoor boxing season at the East Chicago auditorium on Friday night. The East Chicago boxing commission has made a new ruling that boxers appearing in bouts over the eight round limit must put up a cash bond of $100.

The show is the first of a series of matches that Promoter George Oswego has booked for the Indiana arena during the cold months. In the star events, which bill be billed as a triple windup, such local favorites as Eddie Shea, west side Italian; Connie Curry, the Sioux City scrapper who makes his home on the west side, and Patsy Rocco, the aggressive East Chicago welterweight, are slated for action.

Shea resumes training this afternoon at the Mullen gym for his tilt with Frankie Garcia. Curry is matched to face Phil O'Dowd, the Columbus bantamweight, in one of the other tens, while Rocco will meet Jimmy Finley, the Louisville welterweight who claims the southern welterweight title.

Jimmy Gory of the west side and Johnny Murphy of Pullman will meet at 148 pounds in the eight round opener.

DRAKE DEFEATS U. OF UTAH 33-14 IN HARD BATTLE

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 4.—Taking advantage of every opportunity and playing good football throughout, Drake university of Des Moines, Ia., defeated University of Utah here today, 33 to 14, in the first intersectional game of the season.

Half Back Everett of Drake was the star of the game. He broke through the Utah line with ease and was responsible for all but one of the five touchdowns scored by the visitors. McLuen, in the fourth period, carried the ball over for the last Iowa points after Everett had made a sensational dash down the field with the pigskin.

Cummings field was crowded with more than 5,000 Utahns witnessing their first game of the year, and every play, whether by Drake or Utah, was cheered.

ATHLETICS O. K. IN THEIR PLACE, SAYS DR. HAWKES

New York, Oct. 4.—Unless athletics can take their place in proper perspective to the academic curriculum and in coöperative relationship to the rest of the college, trouble is certain to arise, said Dean Herbert E. Hawkes of Columbia college today in his annual report to Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university.

Athletics and religion have much in common, Dean Hawkes asserted, urging that the religious life of the student be analyzed and studied just as any other human trait.

"Whether it is possible permanently to keep the athletic interests of a large and vigorous college harnessed to the educational wagon some are inclined to doubt," the report said.

M'Tigue-Berlenbach World Title Bout Is Canceled

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—The world's light heavyweight championship battle between Mike McTigue, title holder, and Paul Berlenbach, Astoria's hard hitting contender, planned as an attraction for Madison Square garden on the night of Nov. 7, is definitely off. In its place, if present plans of Promoter Tex Rickard materialize, Luis Angel Firpo, South American heavyweight, and Fred Fulton, elongated plasterer of Rochester, Minn., will clash in a heavyweight elimination struggle.

Cornell Eleven Piles 27-0 Score on Niagara U.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Niagara university furnished strenuous opposition for Cornell today, but was forced to take the short end of a 27 to 0 score. The big Red team showed improvement in form since last week.

Cleveland Grennan Cakes Win Semi-Pro Ball Title

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 4.—The Cleveland Grennan Cakes won the semi-pro baseball title today by taking both ends of a double header from the Harmerville Consumers. The scores were 7 to 0 and 4 to 2.

Mike McTigue Signs for Providence Title Bout

New York, Oct. 4.—Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, signed today to defend his title against Frankie Carpenter of New York in a twelve round bout at Providence, R. I., next Wednesday night.

NEW A. A. FORMED.

Richmond, Va., Gray's A. A., just formed, will have recreation as its object among the military units of Virginia. It will stage boxing bouts in its armory. REAL TEST FOR STEINKE

CHARLEY LEPANNEN.

Finnish grappler who will meet giant German on mat at Coliseum Wednesday is a powerful fellow and is shown handling Big Bill Beth as if he were a lightweight.

Bone crushing holds will be in evidence on Wednesday night when six wrestlers, contenders for the heavyweight title held by Ed "Strangler" Lewis, lock grips in the wrestling show to be staged by Joe Coffey and Ed White at the Coliseum.

In the main event, Hans Steinke, who has been clamoring for a match with the champion, will take on Charley Lepannen, the Finn grappler, who appears to be one of the most finished European importations seen in recent years. This match should be a case of weight and strength against science, as the German will outweigh his opponent at least fifty pounds.

Lepannen Fast, Tricky.

Despite his enormous weight and strength, Steinke is effective in applying the body scissors. He appears to combine the best points of the hold introduced by Yussiff Mahmout and Joe Stecker. The Teuton has such long and heavy legs that once he secures the hold it is hard to break. In fact Hans has put so much pressure on opponents that he has broken their ribs.

Lepannen is fast and tricky. He knows how to apply the double wrist lock, the head scissors and wrist lock and knows a few things about the toe hold. It is unlikely he will be able to do anything with Hans with a head lock or body scissors. The Finn is ready for a gruelling encounter and claims he will be the victor if the match goes more than an hour. They will wrestle to a finish best two in three falls.

Renato Gardini, whose claim to the Italian heavyweight championship is disputed by Mike Romano, and Jim Londos, the Greek, will take holds in another interesting match. It will be their fourth meeting. On the three previous occasions, honors were about even, but all their matches were hard fought and brought about some interesting wrestling.

Nearly Won Crown.

Londos is one of the most effective of the heavyweights in clamping on double wrist locks, while Gardini's pet holds are the short arm scissors and the toe lock. He nearly won the title from Lewis in Philadelphia last winter by successful application of the toe hold. He also is a past master in applying head locks.

In the other bout, Wladek Zbyszko, brother of Stanislaus, the former heavyweight champion, will meet Andreas Costanos, a Spaniard, who possesses some wrestling ability. The younger Zbyszko is eager to meet any championship contender in order to secure a match with Lewis.

The principal match between Steinke and Lepannen will go on at 10 o'clock regardless of the results of the other struggles. Doors at the Coliseum will open at 7 o'clock, the first bout will be put on at 8:15 o'clock. Tickets are on sale at the usual places.

SYRACUSE BEATS MERCER, 26 TO 0, BY LATE RALLY

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 4.—Mercer college of Macon, Ga., playing its first intersectional game here today, held Syracuse scoreless for two periods and then yielded to superior skill and strength when nearly all the Syracuse regulars were thrown into the contest, the game ending with the score 26 to 0 in favor of Syracuse.

Syracuse scored 16 points in the third period on two touchdowns and a safety and 10 points in the final period on a touchdown and field goal.

Bradley Gridders Beat State Normal by 24 to 0

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Bradley overwhelmed State Normal here today, 24 to 0, in a game in which Coach Robertson of Bradley used thirty-five men. The tech scored almost at will with the regulars in the lineup. A 30 yard place kick by Friedrich from a difficult angle was a feature.

SOPHOMORES AT BELOIT TRIUMPH OVER FRESHMEN

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Members of the sophomore class of Beloit college won both the bag rush and the tug-o-war in the annual class scrap here this morning. The rope used in the tug-o-war broke twice before the yearlings were hauled through the waters of Turtle creek.

Members of the freshman class fled town last night to prevent their being kidnaped by the sophomores, but many were found and left stranded miles from Beloit without shoes or trousers. All had returned by Saturday noon.

Taylor Trunks Will Play in Industrial Loop Final

Taylor Trunks won their way into the final game for the Industrial league championship of Chicago yesterday by defeating the Kelly-Jones aggregation, 7 to 1. O'Connor's work on the mound for the winners and a home run by Hellman with the bags loaded were features of the game.

FRENCH STUDY UP FOR COMING OF SOX-GIANTS

PARIS, Oct. 4.—The announced barnstorming tour of the Giants and White Sox through Europe the last of this month and early November has started the French sporting scribes studying the vocabulary of baseball. Some of the French renditions of the terms familiar to American fans are quaint. The translation for home run is "a complete tour of the bases," while a foul tip is described by one writer as "the bat just flirted with the ball."

The fans here hope Babe Ruth will be included in the party of big leaguers. "Le Gros Bebe," as the French sporting sheets call him, is the only player whose name has become widely known here. His title to fame, however, is due rather to his money making ability than his knack of hitting home runs.

Woods and Waters by BOB. BECKER

WING SHOOTING IN THE MARSHES.

When you're sittin' in a duck blind and a blue wing teal heaves into sight doing about 120 feet per second, how much do you lead him? This is one question that every waterfowl hunter runs into when he picks up his scattergun and draws a bead on a flying bird. Although the hunter may have tucked away in the back of his head the dope on how fast birds can fly, only experience and plenty of it will ever teach him how to judge distances, estimate flying speeds and lead birds on the wing.

Our American game birds [notably the waterfowl] sure can split the wind when they step on the gas. When you look over the following table, which gives either the estimated or timed speeds of flight of some of 'em and see how many feet they can cover in a second, it makes you feel that after all, a miss on a duck is excusable. Here is the table of flights. Glance over it and then take a healthy lead at that bird coming down wind.

Bird—	Feet per second.	Aver.
Mallard	55 to 90	75
Pintail	60 to 100	80
Black duck	60 to 90	75
Wood duck	70 to 90	80
Widgeon	80 to 100	85 or 90
Blue wing teal	110 to 140	125
Green wing teal	100 to 130	115
Red head	100 to 130	120
Canvasback	130 to 160	145

Quail will average about 75 feet per second, as will the prairie chicken and grouse.

A day on the marsh will convince any gunner that ducks will show many more variations of speed than are given above. One day last fall we observed some black ducks coming toward us as they were looking for a place to feed and they couldn't have been making more than 30 or 40 feet a second. However, a short time later we saw three black ducks (that had been shot at) tearin' along and they were flying as if they had been sent for—showing a powerful sprint because of fright. We sailed into 'em but none of our shells did any damage. Our lead was way off.

Or, consider a teal. Let a scared bluewing flip into a 30 mile an hour wind then swing your gun on him and try to bag him. Talk about your inspired sprints, Mr. Teal knows how to stage 'em. Sometimes he is almost unhittable. But that's one of the fascinations of wing shooting. One has to make allowance for loafing speeds, sprint flights, and many other factors in wing shooting which keep a fellow on his toes if he wants to bring home the bacon.

RACE PROMOTERS PROMISE SPEED AT NORTH SHORE

What the new promotors promise will be a "better show" is scheduled to be put on this afternoon at the North Shore Polo grounds speedway when a number of well known auto racers will take part in contests. A crew of laborers has been at work all week putting the track in shape for fast driving and with the good weather that has prevailed, it is hoped new marks may be set for the oval. C. B. Barcus, a north side accessories dealer and H. M. Lewis, a dealer in oils are the promoters.

Margaret Leigh, the "Miss Chicago" of beauty contest fame, in a letter received by Mr. Barcus Friday, promised to be present as pace maker in the lining up of the racers.

The principal race of the day, for a purse of $200, will be between Curley Young in a Frontyford and Esthan Wenniston in a Nelson Brothers special. The distance will be five miles. There will be four other five mile events and one of fifteen miles. Other contestants will be Cliff Henderson [Rome]; H. C. Anderson [Chevrolet], who won the feature event in races at Milwaukee last Sunday, and Ernie Fosnaugh [Essex], Canadian light car champion.

"Bat" Nelson to Referee OlympicA.C.AmateurShow

"Battling" Nelson, former world's lightweight champion, will referee a boxing and wrestling show this afternoon at the Olympic A. C., 410 East 31st street. The show will consist of five amateur boxing matches and two wrestling bouts. Nelson between each bout will narrate different phases of his life story in the fistic ring. The story of his fight with Joe Gans will finish the afternoon's entertainment. The public is invited and the management explains that only a small admittance charge will be made.

The market is flooded with pipes that imitate the LYON shape—poorly made, unsatisfactory smokers. Be sure the pipe you buy is marked LYON

WHY the Lyon Pipe won General Dawes' approval

Every pipe smoker knows about the curious, upside down pipe that has become famous in a day—but not all of them know there is a big reason for this radical shape—a reason so vital that it promises to revolutionize pipe smoking. But let me tell you the story from the beginning.

Actual test brings approval

General Dawes has not always smoked this pipe. It was about two years ago that Mr. Lyon sent General Dawes one of his pipes for trial, to be paid for only if he liked it.

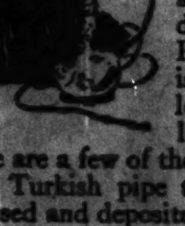
The answer was a remittance for the pipe and a dozen more like it; and his orders since for friends have averaged almost a dozen a week.

How Lyon came to invent this amazing pipe

There's a real story in the making of the Lyon Pipe—a real story of American perseverance in doing the things that can't be done. An injury had incapacitated Mr. Lyon at his old trade. He had set up in the real estate business on the outskirts of Chicago. Came a day—a dull day— with much smoking—and at evening, a long draw .... then a mouthful of "suds," the bane of every smoker's existence. Many a confirmed pipe smoker has become a chronic anti through one of these cataclysmic disturbances. For like cause many a well-seasoned briar has been disposed of as firewood.

But Lyon wasn't to be denied, so he set about perfecting a backfire-proof pipe—and the famous upside down model proves his success.

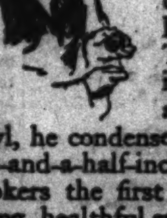
The Turkish pipe—the perfect smoke



For years pipe fanciers have conceded the Turkish pipe as the perfect smoke. The cooling chamber, the long stem, lets only the pure, dry smoke reach the mouth. For tobacco, be it known, is by no means dry when it leaves the bowl—water, light oil, ammonia and nicotine are a few of the impurities it carries. In the Turkish pipe these impurities are condensed and deposited out of the smoke. But who wants to carry a Turkish pipe around? So Mr. Lyon started to duplicate its efficiency.

A five-and-a-half-inch pipe with a "20-inch stem"

As is so often the case, the solution was quite simple. Mr. Lyon merely enlarged, a dozenfold, the condensing surface with which the smoke comes in contact on the way to the smoker's mouth. At the bottom of the pipe he provided a cold chamber that functioned like the famous bottle in the Turkish pipe. Then, by an ingenious arrangement of an outer casing and inside bowl, he condensed a "20-inch stem" into a five-and-a-half-inch pipe—and gave to you smokers the first practical air-cooled, nonbiting, healthful smoke ever provided.

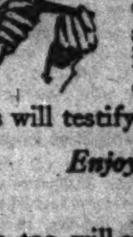


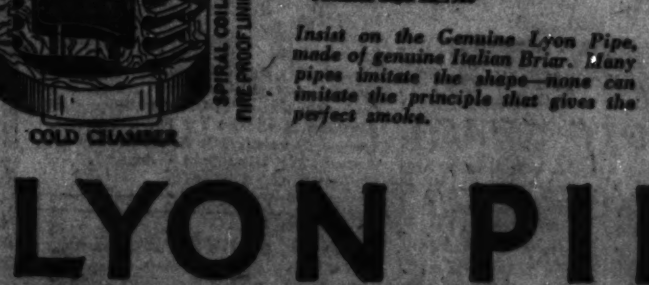
20 inches of wood gives air-cooled smoke

A little study of the cut will show you just how the trick is accomplished. The inner and outer parts are held together by a coarse thread. By simply cutting off the top two-thirds of one thread, Mr. Lyon had an open spiral tube or coiled stem between the casing and the walls of the bowl extending from the cold chamber below to the dry chamber above. Just follow the smoke through and you will see how it is made into the smoothest, sweetest smoke that ever won a man's heart.

Nicotine is separated from the smoke

As the smoke leaves the burning tobacco, it enters the cold chamber and deposits at once the bulk of the ammonia, light oil, nicotine and other corruption that pipe smokers have thought a necessary evil—then up through the long spiral air-cooled coil until only the pure smoke reaches the dry chamber. But if, by some long chance, some minute trace of moisture should remain, it must deposit itself here—a double protection to insure that the stem itself carries only the pure aroma—every puff is dry and cool and clean when drawn into the mouth. The principle is exactly the same as a steam separator—and the best part is that it works, as thousands on thousands of pipe enthusiasts will testify.





Insist on the Genuine Lyon Pipe, made of genuine Italian Briar. Many pipes imitate the shape—none can imitate the principle that gives the perfect smoke.

Enjoy the sweetest smoke you ever had

You, too, will enjoy a smoke from this famous pipe. Prove it for yourself. Get one right now and light up. There is no "breaking in." All you need to do is to moisten the bottom of the cold chamber—then fill 'er up. You can smoke a whole day without a trace of a bite! First and last it's as cool and sweet a smoke as a man ever enjoyed.

Clean once a month—oftener if you want. It's easy to do. Use an old tooth brush and wood alcohol, a common soap and as little warm water as possible. Dry with a clean cloth and it's ready for service again.

In the Lyon Pipe, the tobacco is kept dry and burns with the same flavor from beginning to end. The sludge is Condensed, Separated and Isolated, and the freed smoke does not thereafter contact with sludge. The smoke enters the smoker's mouth so cool as to be enjoyable, so clean it causes no bite, no dry throat if inhaled, and the stem stays clean. The bowl cannot burn out.

AURORA ENDS SEASON AFTER 25 DAY MEETING

BY FRENCH LANE.

Aurora, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Racing in the Chicago district for 1924 came to a close at the Fox River Valley track today. It marked the seventy-seventh day of the thoroughbred sport in this territory—the first time in twenty-five years a season of this length has been able to survive.

There has been twenty-five days of the sport here, following close on the heels of a successful fifty-two day engagement at the Hawthorne track in Cicero. The attendance at both places was surprisingly large, so large in fact that lovers of the turf are claiming that the sport has again been firmly reestablished on a sound and healthy basis.

Polly Mara Wins Feature.

To the 3 year old Chicago filly, Polly Mara, went the feature race honors of the closing day when she finished first in the five and a half furlong Thomas J. Donovan purse by the narrowest of nose margins over Miss Mischief. It was her fourth Aurora triumph.

Miss Mischief should have been the victor but for a blundering ride she got from the apprentice, R. Lombardo, as she was pounds the best and had taken a commanding lead in the early part of the journey. On the turn into the stretch Lombardo took her wide and it afforded Boganowski just the opening he was seeking. He sent the flying Polly Mara through on the inside and finally got the verdict at the wire. Far back of them came Liege in third place.

Many Close Finishes.

A lot of good racing was injected into the closing day card. There were thrilling finishes in most of the events, the lone runaway victory coming in the third race, which was the secondary feature. Hysteria got away in front and was so far in the lead at the turn that it was simply a parade. Good Morning and Babbling got the rest of the money.

The punters were away to a flying start on Modestas' win in the two year opening number and on Corto's flying trip to the wire in the second. Modesta just managed to get up and beat Bruneth at the wire, with Boo Boo third. Corto won fairly handily, makily his move on the turn into the stretch, and easily outstrided Lubeck and Richard Murray.

Two More Favorites Win.

The talent continued to score heavily in the last two numbers and when Isaman and Little Ann, two favorites, had accounted for them, the Palm Garden crowd was groggy. Both were at a mile and three-sixteenths, and while Isaman won easily under wraps, Little Ann had to race it out to the very end to get the verdict over Flibberty Gibbett.

CHICAGO BLUES PLAY CERMAKS TO 1 AND 1 TIE

The Cermaks and the Chicago Blues battled nine innings to a 1 to 1 tie at Cermak park yesterday in an effort to break the tie for first place in the semi-pro championship. The game was a pitching duel between Baichley and Black, each team making three hits. Baichley fanned eighteen men. In the first game of the double bill, St. Michael's, with "Lefty" Sullivan pitching, defeated Logan Square, 3 to 0. Scores:

Logan Square ....000 000 000—0 6 0
St. Michael' ....000 003 000—3 7 0
Batteries—Kelly and Dennis; Sullivan and Snyder.
Cermaks ....000 000 100—1 3 2
Blues ....000 001 000—1 3 2
Batteries—Baichley and Goldthwaite; Black and Wilrey.

COFFROTH WANTS EPINARD TO RUN AT TIA JUANA

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—James Wood Coffroth, owner of the Tia Juana racetrack, is leaving nothing undone in his effort to bring to the Mexican track the French 4 year old champion, Epinard.

Coffroth today announced that if Pierre Wertheimer would bring to Tia Juana the horse British and French critics united last fall in proclaiming the greatest thoroughbred of any age of the European racing year, he would add to his splendid stake program two $25,000 races. These races will be open to all comers, the distances to be fixed later on by mutual agreement.

CARDINALS MEET GREEN BAY TODAY AT NORMAL PARK

The Chicago Cardinals, piloted by Paddy Driscoll, former Northwestern university star, will clash with the Green Bay Packers this afternoon at Normal park in the second game of the season of the American Professional Football league. Both teams are evenly matched, and with Driscoll's educated toe and his excellent passing ability, the Badger state aggregation will have to be in their best form to put over a win on the local team. Winning from the Milwaukee Badgers last week, 17 to 7, the Cardinals made their first win of the season.

World Series Play by Play on Board at Arcadia Hall

The world's series games, play by play, are being posted for each game at the Arcadia hall. Paddy Harmon, well known local sportsman, is directing the display and the board which records every minute detail of the world's championship game is the same which was used by Tex Rickard in Madison Square garden. The board will be in operation each day of the series.

POUND TURF SATURDAY

WISE COUNSELLOR.
[Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

[Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

Here are some of the leaders in the third international race scheduled at Latonia next Saturday. In spite of two defeats by narrow margins, Epinard still is conceded a chance to win the third event, and the French horse has won so many friends by his gameness that a large part of those who follow the races would be glad to see him win. Black Gold has not yet started against Epinard, but Wise Counsellor has once defeated and once been beaten by the European racer.

The turf clan is gathering again, this time in Kentucky, for the third of the international series which will afford the French champion Epinard his last chance to show his flying heels to a band of rival American thoroughbreds.

Beaten at six furlongs by the Chicago colt Wise Counsellor, and then at a mile by August Belmont's Ladkin, but both times by the narrowest of margins, the flying Frenchman will be fighting with his back to the wall when the barrier lifts in the $50,000 race next Saturday at the Latonia track for the mile and a quarter battle.

Both of his conquerors will be at Latonia ready to throw back the French speed demon in his last attempt to grab glory on the American turf. Forty others are eligible.

Standing out in this crowd is the mighty Kentucky Derby winner, Black Gold, the two year old champion of a year ago, Sarazen, the champion filly of the west, Princess Doreen, and many other stars that did not race Epinard in his first two engagements in this country.

Black Gold raced Ladkin into inglorious defeat at the Hawthorne track in Chicago early last July at a mile and a quarter. It was the same Ladkin that conquered Epinard at a mile a week ago. Black Gold has never met Wise Counsellor.

Overweights: Hasty Miss, 5; North Pine, 2. Little Ann raced to the lead after going three-quarters and stood a hard stretch drive from the three-sixteenths pole home, and just lasted to win. Flibberty Gibbet raced well up all the way, came last in the stretch drive, and made a game try and just failed to get up. Lendonia, badly outpaced in the early racing, finished going gamely. Proceeds showed dull speed all the way. Hasty Miss made up some ground. The others were always outrun.

Dartmouth Eleven Trims McGill of Montreal, 52-0

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 4.—Dartmouth defeated McGill university of Montreal here today by a score of 52 to 0. The Canadians, playing a strange game, were completely outclassed but fought hard to the end. Towards the end of the fourth quarter the visitors carried out a drive which failed only after they had missed in two attempts at a field goal.

CHICAGO LEAGUE IN FINAL ROUND CUP GAMES TODAY

FINAL round games in the Chicago league cup race will be played today. ONWENTSIA HUNT CUP RACE WILL FEATURE MEET

Featured by the race for the Onwentsia Hunt cup in which three teams of three horses each will compete, the fourth annual Onwentsia Hunt race meet to be held on the grounds of the Onwentsia club at Lake Forest next Saturday will include both steeplechase and flat races. A varied program of races for both men and women will make up one of the most attractive series of events offered since the hunt race meets were started in 1921. The meet will be run under the sanction of the National Steeplechase and Hunt association.

A Detroit hunt club will send one of the teams for the feature event while the other two teams will represent the Onwentsia club. The race is an extremely interesting one over a three and one-half mile course. Well trained horses are a necessity for the chase and John Borden and Benjamin Leslie Behr, members of the Onwentsia club, recently have purchased a number of steeplechase racers.

Two Events for Women.

The Ladies' Hunt Plate and the S. S. Durand trophy will be the two races for women and many entries have been received for both events. The races are open to amateur women riders only. A silver trophy is offered the winner of each.

A number of horses of well known high rank will be entered. Horses in the Detroit team include Beehive, which won the Fourth Dragoon cup at Toronto last year, and Ruralist, a 5 year old gelding, which has shown remarkable form in practice this summer.

Mr. Behr, captain of the Onwentsia Hunt team, will enter Burgoright, a horse which has been a consistent performer in the horse show ring and in steeplechase racing. Burgoright has won three steeplechases and a $1,000 stake for hunters at the Rochester horse show. Venture, winner of the Manor point-to-point race at Maryland last spring, and Impartiality, recently purchased by Mr. Behr, will complete his team.

Borden Has Team.

John Borden, captain of the second Onwentsia team, will enter Safety First, purchased in the east recently; Fox Hill Girl, which ran second in the Maryland cup steeplechase, and Djahn Ghir, a French horse with a good record. Mr. Borden also will enter Grandpa in the Tally-Ho chase, a two mile cross country race over brush jumps.

Other events on the program include a polo pony scurry, open to amateur riders on any pony which has played in ten chukkers during 1924, at three furlongs; the Jorrocks stakes open to amateur riders at three-quarters of a mile on the flat, and the Lake County Hunt cup, for amateur riders at two miles over brush. Silver trophies are offered winners of these events.

The meet will begin at 1:30 next Saturday. Provision has been made to take care of all spectators. General admission is $1.

ORANGE COUNTY TEAM WINS WATERBURY CUP

Westbury, N. Y., Oct. 4.—The Orange county four won the Monty Waterbury memorial polo cup today when they defeated the Shelburnes in the final round on International field.

Devereaux Milburn, captain of the United States international team, was unable to go in as back on the losing team because of an injured leg, and was replaced by Tommy Hitchcock Jr. Hitchcock was the outstanding player on the field, but even his brilliant playing could not enable the Shelburnes to triumph over the better mounted and more smoothly working combination of Harriman. The Shelburnes improved with each chukker and at times outplayed their opponents with East and Beard standing out along with Hitchcock. They pulled from 2—6 to 6—7 and the outcome of the match was in doubt almost to the end. Lineup:

Orange County [9].		Shelburne [7].
W. Harriman	No. 1	(a) I. A. Beard
J. D. Nelson	No. 2	Harry East
M. Stevenson	No. 3	E. T. Boseke Jr
R. S'bridge Jr.	Back	F. Hitchcock Jr.

Scores—Orange County: Harriman [2], Nelson [2], Stevenson [3], Strawbridge [2]. Shelburne: Beard, East [4], Hitchcock [2]. Umpire—Capt. Wesley T. White, U. S. A. Timekeeper—William H. Rocap.

Score by chukkers:
Orange County .....2 1 3 0 1 0 1 1—9
Shelburne ....0 0 2 1 1 1 1 1—7

OPEN SUNDAYS AND EVENINGS

YOU can enjoy all the comforts of an enclosed car with greater safety at a small expense and without the cumbersome looking, vision-interfering, makeshift curtains and similar enclosures. To equip your car with FULL-VISION ENCLOSURES it takes only two days.

So Neat It Harmonizes with the Lines of Fine Cars

The FULL-VISION ENCLOSURE is the only one made entirely of steel, glass and rubber. Each pane of glass is weather-tight and rattle-proof being set in a rubber cushion. The outside edges of each steel frame are finished with extending feather-edge rubber. This rubber fills the space between frame and body, frame and top and frame and frame. The frames never come in contact with the car or with each other, yet, they are perfectly weather-tight and rattle-proof.

All doors open. FOUR Large Ventilators easily controlled. No change required in touring top. Enclosure weighs about half as much as an average passenger. It can be readily removed for summer storage and put on in a few hours. It stores flat against the wall, requires little space.

Don't take chances with human life driving with storm curtains or types of enclosures which obscure vision. Remember—a few days' illness from exposure will cost you more than this enclosure. Prepare in advance for disagreeable weather.

We have manufactured more enclosures than all other enclosure manufacturers in Chicago. Telephone or call for circular giving full details.

VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR AGAIN WINS R. & A. TOURNEY

BY JOE DAVIS.

Lewis W. Pitcher, a veteran of the civil war, for the second year in succession won the Royal and Ancient golf tournament at the Midlothian Country club. Mr. Pitcher clipped two strokes off his last year's card and finished with 105, topping the division confined to players of 70 and over. L. Washington won the low net prize, 107—30—77.

Winners of gross and net in the other divisions were:

Seniors, 65 to 69—F. W. Porter, 98; F. A. Ingalls, 103—21—82.

Juniors, 60 to 64—F. M. Bostwick, 81; L. R. Dewey, 89—20—69.

Sophomore, 55 to 59—C. H. Scholle, 90; C. H. Thorne, 95—20—75.

Freshmen, 50 to 54—C. W. Booth, 83; C. L. Nichoys, 94—20—74.

L. R. Dewey and H. G. Van Nostrand, with nets of 72, tied for the J. C. Gray prize.

SKOKIE.

Fred W. Hill yesterday won first prize in the "iron derby handy-cap," in which the players' habilaments were a midiron and a derby. Hill had a low gross of 91, which C. M. Cavenee and G. L. Sibley, his nearest rivals, with 93, said was better golf than Fred usually plays when he wears regular raiment and carries an assortment of clubs that would make Walter Hagen envious. C. G. McMahon, D. Beaton and Harry R. Kimbark tied at 94 for fourth place.

RIVERSIDE.

R. B. Goodwillie, 80—8—72, and R. H. Sherlock, 81—9—72, tied for the H. B. Sayre trophy, and also first prize in the sweepstakes, class A. Goodwillie also won his semi-final match, 3 and 2, against R. T. Pritchard in the club championship event, while K. G. Richards and J. F. Roche Jr. postponed their match.

EVANSTON.

Walter W. Ahlschlager won the club championship title by a margin of 8 and 7 against Dr. H. J. Coombs in the thirty-six hole final. Winners in the sweepstakes were G. F. Baker Jr., 81—8—73; G. W. Burt, 102—29—73, and A. L. Appleton, 93—19—74.

OLYMPIA FIELDS.

In the September class tournament finals over No. 3, F. E. Banks defeated Dr. I. A. Port, 1 up, in class A; T. A. Marsh defeated Dr. S. L. Drake, 1 up, in class B, and H. E. Alger had a home green victory against J. R. Byrne in class C.

RIDGEMOOR.

Shooting his first game in the 70s, Frank Mesce, with 73—9—64, won the low net prize. John A. Simpson won the class A medal, defeating Dr. Ballinger, 2 up.

MAYWOOD.

In the final round of the competition for the president's cup, F. Wilcox defeated Judge Nuter, 4 and 3, in the first flight; J. Kent and G. Brown finished all square at thirty-six holes, in the second flight, while C. A. Phillips defeated B. H. Lancaster, 3 and 2, in the third.

FLOSSMOOR.

Winners in the handicap at Flossmoor were: Class A, M. J. Bransfield, 82—4—78; class B, A. O. McLean, 90—14—76; class C, C. B. McGibbon, 97—20—77.

CHARLES HARDY of Lincoln Park, flanked by five of his clubmates, yesterday at Big Oaks took first place in the preliminary round of the inaugural Illinois junior championship tournament with a score of 40—40—80. At the second hole Hardy put his approach shot over the green, while at the eighteenth tee he drove into a trap. These incidents put two sixes in an otherwise good card, which follows:

Out ....5 6 4 4 4 4 5 3 5—40
In ....4 4 4 4 4 5 5 4 6—40—80

Trailing Hardy in close order were Bob Stewart, 81; Johnny Connell, 82; Sam Gilbert, 83; Bob Engberg, 83, and Harold Stewart, 84.

A number of youngsters who were unable to compete yesterday will play their rounds today. The lowest sixteen will be paired for the first round in the championship meet.

EXMOOR.

Constant C. Hopkins won the handicap at Exmoor with a card of 77—3—74. P. Walter, 83—8—75, was second, and Dr. F. H. Martin, 92—22—75, third.

CALUMET.

Lee Thilges won the playoff for the Ashcraft trophy with a card of 81—1—80. His opponents were T. V. Warren and J. H. McElroy, winners of the second and third flights. P. M. Gerhart won the blind bogey event.

PARK RIDGE.

President George L. Turnbull of Park Ridge will have the pleasure of handing himself a prize as he won the Last Chance trophy yesterday from W. N. Lane, 3 and 2. Results in finals of the class championships were: class A, E. H. Barker defeated J. B. Davies, 2 and 1; class B, O. E. Grigsby defeated C. A. Brooks, 3 and 2; class C, H. Stafford defeated C. Hamburgher, 1 up, 19 holes. Professional Alfred Hackbarth in his last four rounds has had scores of 68, 65, 68, and 69, a total of 270 for 72 holes.

OAK PARK.

Some "tall" guessing was done in the blind bogey event, the figure being 91. J. Meier, 98—7—91; Joe Hook, playing from scratch, 91, and L. D. Terreo, playing plus 6 had a gross of 85 and a net of 91. M. A. Evans took the sweepstakes prize with 84. Dr. T. E. Roberts won the Old Boys' cup, 2 up, against L. R. Schermerhorn.

LARAMIE.

An exhibition match, open to the public, will be played this afternoon. Miss Ruth Shults, Cook county open and Illinois public parks champion, paired with George E. Hartman—of the Western Advertising Golfers' association, will meet Miss Grace Saunders, Marquette champion, and Charles F. Kinnucan of the Kiwanis club at 3 o'clock.

GLEN OAK.

R. A. Hammond and M. C. Gunderson tied at 85 in play for the Charles L. West Memorial trophy at Glen Oak. Winners in the blind bogey event were Mrs. M. McCormick, 77; R. A. Hammond, 72; William Ross, 72; George Hammond, 71; J. Flanagan, 71.

THE Chicago delegation that will compete in the inaugural seniors' championship tournament under the auspices of the Western Golf association next Wednesday and Thursday at the Algonquin Country club, St. Louis, will leave for the Mound City tomorrow night in special cars.

It is expected that the meet will draw an attendance of more than 200 players, many of them from Chicago. Headquarters will be established at the Chase hotel in St. Louis.

GLEN VIEW.

Most of the playing members took part in the Harvest Home tournament. D. J. Molloy, with 88—16—72; John H. Nyman, 80—6—74, and Rollin W. Keyes, 78—3—75, were winners in the handicap. The winning foursome included E. A. Engler, J. N. Welter, W. O. Batchelder and C. K. Peck, who had a net of 323.

RUTH LAKE.

W. O'Neill and J. E. Creed tied at 68 in the blind bogey at Ruth Lake.

EDGEBROOK.

Mat Jans won the Edgebrook championship, defeating W. L. Vance, 2 up, in thirty-six holes.

BUTTERFIELD.

A. O. Figge won the Golfers' trophy at Butterfield, defeating J. A. Packenham, 4 and 3. Winners in the sweepstakes were Ray Simpson and A. O. Figge.

EDGEWATER.

The Harvest Home dinner drew a big attendance. Winners of the low net prizes were C. C. Kawin, 85—11—74, class A; J. B. Bremner, 91—14—77, class B; Dr. W. C. Schulze, 97—18—79, class C.

In the club championship tournament second round matches were decided as follows: H. A. Lundahl defeated L. E. Gosse'in, 3 and 2; D. A. Matteson defeated F. W. Brummel, 4 and 3; Hiram D. Fargo Jr. defeated J. R. Murphy, 4 and 3; J. G. Condon defeated E. A. Maginnis, 1 up. Lawrence J. O'Toole won the autumn trophy in class B, defeating Judge R. M. Smith, 3 and 2, in the deciding contest.

GLEN FLORA.

The Glen Flora course at Waukegan, considered one of the most difficult in the state, felt the sting of a new record of 33—35—68 by Bob MacDonald. The previous low figure was 69, made by Jock Hutchison. Par is 72. After dropping a stroke at the first hole by taking three putts, MacDonald reeled off four birdies and played par on the other holes. His 33 out was 1 under par. Coming in, Bob had a birdie at the thirteenth and par figures at the others. His 36 was 1 under par and his 72 for the round 4 under.

RAVISLOE.

Winners in the blind bogey were Dr. Wollenberger, 88; S. M. Lederer, 88; L. M. Katz, 97, and D. S. Simon, 89. The number was 88.

ACACIA.

A. A. Hopkins, 70; S. McRoy, 71, and Dr. B. F. Brown, 73, were the winners in a blind bogey tournament.

SOUTH SHORE.

A. Eilsergaard, class A; H. B. Sever, class B, and L. C. Wagner, class C, were the winners of the class medals in the final contest.

THIEBAULT WINS CLASS A TITLE AT NORTH SHORE

Walter P. Thiebault won the class A championship at North Shore, defeating R. C. Boozer, 11 and 9, in the thirty-six hole final. Thiebault gained a big lead in the morning when he turned in a score of 76. F. D. Breit won in class B from J. S. Caine, 5 and 4, thirty-six holes, and in class C, A. W. Wigglesworth defeated R. E. Bain, 4 and 3.

J. S. Caine won the President's trophy from L. A. Macomber, 2 and 1, thirty-six holes. The junior championship went to A. B. Bode, and Mrs. A. D. Collins won the women's title from Mrs. H. H. Harrison, 3 and 2. Dr. E. T. Schildberg was first in the blind bogey contest.

NOTES OF THE CUE ROOMS.

Jacobs [34] beat Bell [30], 34 to 16, last night in Mussey's, 10 West Jackson, three cushion handicap billiard tourney. Haglund [30] was the victor over Gordon [25] in the same parlor, when he beat him, 30 to 15.

HARRISON, 7; CRANE, 3.

Harrison added another game to the one side of the ledger yesterday in taking the measure of Crane on Harrison field. The score was 7 to 3. Lineup:

NOTRE DAME TOO HUSKY; LOMBARD LOSES BY 40 TO 0

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Lombard and Notre Dame played four quarters of listless football here today in the opening game of the 1924 season, Notre Dame winning, 40 to 0. Sensational runs ranging from 25 to 65 yards added a dash of color to the contest at various stages and were responsible for the majority of Notre Dame's points.

Lamb, captain and star quarter back for Lombard, was carried from the field early in the second period with a fractured collar bone, sustained when he was tackled in open field by Bella, Notre Dame end. Lamb's removal from the game had a noticeable effect on the Lombards' attack and the visitors were practically helpless after his injury.

Don Miller scored twice for Notre Dame at the outset of the second quarter on end runs. Connell uncorked a 60 yard run for a touchdown in the third, and O'Boyle, a sophomore half, broke away for a pair of 50 yard sprints in the concluding period. Lombard outplayed the second team Rockne started and began early in the contest to open up their aerial game. Many passes were completed, but none of them were good for more than 3 yards and a few were completed for losses.

HOLE-IN-ONE CLUB

DETROIT, MICH., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Miss Betty Holland scored an ace at the sixth hole at the Belle Isle Golf club. It was her third game at golf.

Genoa Junction, Wis., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Edward Lozzeroir scored an ace at the seventh hole, ninety-six yards, at the Nippersink Lodge course.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—C. H. Hoffert scored an ace at the St. Joseph Country club, making it at the eleventh hole, which measures 150 yards. He was playing with H. B. Rowland, J. R. Wall, and Don Miller.

R. C. Lusk, vice president of the Calumet Country club, has so improved his game since watching the experts play in the western open championship that he made the eighth hale, 143 yards, in one yesterday. Mr. Lusk was playing with Professional George Knox, J. F. Gilmore, and H. W. Clayton.

R. R. McKelvey, who three weeks ago made the fifth hole at Park Ridge in one, scored an ace yesterday at the fourteenth hole, 153 yards.

Playing over the No. 3 course at Olympia Fields, G. Blinn made the fifteenth hole, 178 yards, in one.

MIDDIES GIVEN SCARE; VICTORS IN 14 TO 7 TILT

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 4.—Opening their schedule of football games here today, the Annapolis Midshipmen were forced to extend themselves to the limit to defeat William and Mary college of Virginia, 14 to 7.

TEAM EVENT TO OPEN SIX DAY CYCLE RACING

Chicago's amateur bike racers will shine when the six day racing starts at the Coliseum Saturday, Oct. 25. Custom decrees that the first night shall be given over to sprint racing, with the international six day grind beginning the following evening. This year Manager Paddy Harmon has decided to stage a one hour team race for the amateurs as the feature of the opening night. From sixteen to twenty teams will start.

Practically every local cycling club will be represented with one or more entries in this team race. It will be run under the same rules which govern the last hour of the six day race—a sprint every mile and points determining the winner. The crowd is sure to get plenty of thrills from this event, as the amateurs always start jamming as soon as they get under way and quit only on the final lap.

De Paul U. Eleven Ready for St. Mary Tilt Tuesday

The De Paul U. football squad is rapidly rounding into shape for the opening game with St. Mary's college of Winona, Minn., Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at De Paul field, Webster and Sheffield avenues. The home team this season is coached by Harry Adams, former quarter back at the University of Montana and all-mountain selection for the last two years.

NOTES OF THE CUEISTS

THE Chicago Billiard league will meet tomorrow afternoon at the office of Billiards Magazine, 35 South Dearborn street, at 2 o'clock to make arrangements for its ninth annual tournament.

Harry Cline, the veteran Philadelphia player, is now associated with Sol Allinger's room in Philadelphia, where he is in charge of the upstairs room and giving instructions.

Augie Kieckhefer, who is preparing for his three cushion match with Willie Hoppe, will meet Pierre Maupome in exhibition games this week. They will play 400 points in blocks of 50 at 3 and 8 o'clock. They play Tuesday and Thursday at Musey's Madison street room and Wednesday and Friday at the Kieckhefer Recreation.

LINCOLN PARK LIGHT OARSMEN BEAT HEAVIES

Lincoln park lightweight oarsmen defeated the heavyweights by three lengths in an eight oared shell race at Lincoln park lagoon yesterday at a half mile. The race had been postponed from last Sunday.

The lights took the lead at the start and finally pulled away until they were safely in front before the race was half over. All they had to do to win was keep to the pace. The makeup of the crews follows:

	LIGHTWEIGHTS.	HEAVYWEIGHTS.
Bow	Voosenmyer	Anderson	Bow
No. 2	Doyle	Hess	No. 2
No. 3	Seigler	Owens	No. 3

PULLMAN, 13; MORGAN PARK, 0.

Pullman invaded Morgan Park yesterday and after a strenuous afternoon romped home with the long end of a 13-0 score. Shuden was responsible for all the scoring.

BADGER CROSS COUNTRY SQUAD DRILLS FOR MEET

Madison, Wis., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Two weeks of practice have brought the University of Wisconsin cross country squad of thirty-five into fine condition for the opening dual meet of the season here against Marquette university, Oct. 11.

The Badgers will enter ten men who, according to Coach Mead Burke, probably will be Capt. George Piper, George Schutt, Tom Carter, Russell Perry, John Bergstresser, Ray Kubly, John Petaja, Walter Link, Ralph Shilke, and Wells Sherman. The Wisconsin dual meet schedule is:

Oct. 11, Marquette at Madison; Oct. 18, Minnesota at Madison; Oct. 25, Michigan at Ann Arbor; Nov. 8 or 15, Chicago at Madison.

Congregationals and Lutherans Tie Again

Grand Avenue Congregationals and the St. Paul Lutheran teams, fighting for flag honors in the Church A. A. race, finished up after nine innings of play yesterday with the score tied, 8 to 8, at Blues park. This is the second time that these two teams have had to call off their championship tussle because of darkness. The pitchers' duel between Stampa and Vick featured the game with each giving eight hits. The tie will be played off next Sunday.

COUNTY LEAGUE TO MEET.

The Cook County Football league, at its meeting tomorrow evening will start an innovation in football leagues by having one of the officials of the association present to discuss changes in rules. Every Monday night this league expects to have one of the city's well known coaches to give a lecture.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALF

KEEP THE GAME CLEAN.

THE approaching convention of the various rules committees in New York should consider seriously the question of bidding conventions in auction bridge.

In other countries such conventions are not allowed, being unsportsmanlike and unfair. Such bids as two no-trump to indicate four aces, any bid which would indicate an established suit, or any other bid of like character indicating a certain card or cards in the bidder's hands, are simply unspeakable and should not be tolerated in any respectable club.

The writer has never used but one bidding convention—to-wit: double of one. This I have never considered to be an arbitrary convention, as players never double the bid of one for a purpose of securing a score above the line. This makes the double of one a natural signal, and for that reason is not offensive.

It is too much to hope that the present committee will forbid these particular conventions, but it were far better to abolish also a double of one than to let the lot stand. The fact that there is no profit in the doubles of two or three will ultimately consign those conventions to innocuous desuetude, but in the meantime they put American players in a bad light before the world.

It is, of course, possible to arrange the cards so that a double of two, for instance, might gain, although in real play it would happen very rarely. On the other hand, there are many opportunities for large gains against rash original bids of two, and these gains must be sacrificed if the bid is always considered informative.

5,000 Illinois Students See Game in Gridograph

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—When Britton made good his drop kick, giving Illinois the edge of the game with Nebraska at Lincoln today, 5,000 University of Illinois students went wild with joy as the feat was flashed on a gridograph.

ATHLETIC EVENTS AT RADIO PICNIC ATTRACT STARS

The special athletic events that will feature the radio picnic to be held Saturday, Oct. 11, at Grand Park stadium under the auspices of the mayor's radio commission are drawing the leading athletes in this part of the country. With the entries still open, there are enough stars entered to assure record breaking performances in every event.

In the track events both the I. A. C. and the C. A. A. have entered their leading point winners.

In the bicycle events all the leading riders will take part. There will be a one mile for class C riders, a two mile class B and a five mile open race. These events are open to all riders registered with the Amateur Bicycle League of America.

Wanted—A Treasurer

Large Radio Corporation in Chicago desires to get in touch with a man who is fully qualified to act as its TREASURER. This man must be thoroughly experienced in handling of FINANCE, BUDGETS, CORPORATE HOLDINGS, DIRECTORS' MEETINGS, BUSINESS ORGANIZATION and ADMINISTRATION.

We are looking for a man to take active executive part in company management and one who is accustomed to handling several hundreds of thousands of dollars. This position will offer the right man an opportunity to make an investment in the company together with his services.

We anticipate that our sales will reach nearly a million dollars this season and do not want to hear from any applicant who is not big enough to direct the Departmental operation of this connection.

In reply state fully your qualifications, your past and present connections, and salary requirements. This is an exceptional opportunity for the right man to step into a lifetime position and a future.

MOTORDOM

Americans Blaze First Motor Trail Through Canada

Lincoln Highway Pioneers Show Neighbor Crack Highway.

A. F. BEMENT, vice president and secretary of the Lincoln Highway association, accompanied by E. S. Evans of Detroit, one of the founders of the association, arrived in Victoria, B. C., last week, completing the first drive across western Canada to be accomplished by motor and winning the gold medal which has been offered for the accomplishment since 1912.

The trip was made in an effort to lend impetus to the work of the Canadian Highway association, which is promoting the construction of a trans-dominion road, to be known as the Canadian highway and to form the ultimate backbone of a dominion-wide arterial highway system. Americans everywhere are interested in the development of the highways of Canada and particularly in this through route, which will enable American motorists to follow with confidence along a well marked trail into the scenic beauties of the Canadian northwest.

This section, while familiar to thousands of Americans who have made the rail trip via the Canadian Pacific and viewed the beauties of that incomparable region surrounding Lake Louise, has never received its rightful recognition as a tourist playground, due to the lack of connecting highways which would permit tourists from the eastern section of the United States and from eastern Canada to drive through to the Pacific coast in comfort and safety.

While the Lincoln highway officials report that the road leading westward across Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and British Columbia is far superior to what the average eastern or middle western American would expect, it lacks as yet an important link in the mountains of British Columbia, which, when completed, will open a through route destined to become one of the most poular drives on the North American continent.

Bement, in his report to the headquarters of the association, states that he and Evans were enabled to traverse this section by driving along the roadbed of the Canadian National railway down the Fraser canyon through a region, the beauties of which were unfortunately largely lost to the tourists because of the necessity of continuously paying strict attention to the safety of the car. This hazardous drive led through seventeen tunnels and over 150 trestles.

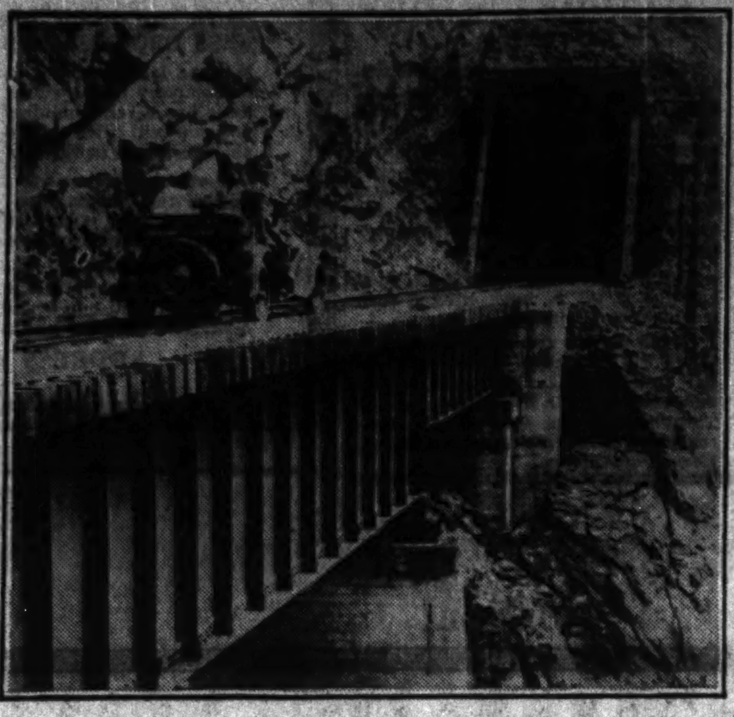
In a talk before the Canadian club of Victoria, following his arrival, the Lincoln highway official asserted that the development of the Canadian highway, along the lines of the development of the Lincoln highway during the last ten years, would unquestionably mean more to the provinces it traversed than the development of the Lincoln highway has mean to the American west. Once the Fraser canyon road—the missing link at present—is constructed at an estimated cost of $1,250,000, and word can be sent forth to the American motorist that a feasible and safe connecting road can be followed from Chicago north by way of Minneapolis and St. Paul to Winnipeg, thence westward across the prairie provinces and into the scenic wonderland of Alberta and British Columbia.

BLAZING CANADIAN TRAIL



American enterprise has accomplished another pioneer victory in the first successful motor trip from Winnipeg to Victoria, Canada, by an all-Canadian route. Austin F. Bement, secretary, and E. S. Evans, one of the founders of the Lincoln Highway association, won their way through this hazardous trail, using the roadbed of the Canadian National railway at many points. They are shown here negotiating one of the 150 trestles and one of the seventeen tunnels along the route.

High Speed.

Vehicular traffic not only moves from 30 to 50 per cent faster in Paris than in New York and Chicago, but there are fewer accidents in comparison with the density of automobiles. One of the most dangerous crossings in Paris is that on the Place de la Concorde, at the foot of the Rue Royale.

Keep Plugs Clean.

Keep the spark plugs clean. Inside and outside keep them free from carbon and oil. Don't widen the spark gap and wonder why you have trouble starting your car and why the engine misfires and doesn't work well. Spark plugs should be snappy workers.

Two Hundred Motor Thoroughbreds at Closed Car Show

NEARLY 200 automobiles, representing over $600,000 worth of the motor car builder's art, will be on exhibition at the Second Annual Enclosed Automobile show, which opens at the Coliseum on Saturday, Oct. 11, at 2 p. m. This exposition, conducted by the Chicago Automobile Trade association, will continue throughout the following week, closing Saturday, Oct. 18. The doors of the Coliseum will be open daily from 10:30 a. m. to 10:30 p. m., except Sunday, Oct. 12, when the show will be closed.

Forty-one dealers, representing forty-six makes of cars, will present to public view the newest models of enclosed cars. Sedans, coupes, broughams, phaetons, English coaches, imperial and royal limousines, victorias and French landaus, suburbans, town cars, cabriolets and berlines will pique the curiosity and intrigue the imagination—a closed car for every variety and grade of taste, at prices suiting every pocketbook. Cars from the inexpensive, plain, yet neat, little closed body type at less than $600, to the luxuriously appointed imperial limousines and French landaus, at nearly $8,000, will be on view.

The "setting" for this array will be in keeping with the beauty of design and finish of the cars displayed. The dome of the Coliseum will be draped with green and gold bunting, so arranged at the sides and ends of the building as to completely hide the galleries. The floor space will be relieved by tall posts and columns decorated in green and gold, and the various exhibits will be separated by gold fences, while each exhibit will be identified by a green and gold sign.

Interest in the Enclosed Automobile show this year will, it is anticipated, be more keen than usual. The price of admission has been reduced from 75 cents to 50 cents.

Work Bench Trick.

When threading a piece of round stock, as when making a stud, it is difficult to hold the stock tightly in the usual type of flat-jawed vise. If held in a pipe vise, the stock will usually be disfigured, which is undesirable. A good way to do the work is to attach an ordinary lathe dog to the round stock and insert it between the jaws of the vise with the tail downward. In this manner the dog does all the holding, while the vise merely serves to keep the dog from turning.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question $5 is awarded to George R. Elliott, 837 Lakeside place, Chicago.

The Question.

How do you go about putting the car in shape for winter driving?

Where Asked.

White Sox park.

The Answers.

Clarence A. Weber, 2920 Southport avenue, real estate—The most important thing in entering the winter is to have the battery and wiring on the car inspected and overhauled. I like to get all of the little things in good shape before cold weather sets in, and then the big repair job simply doesn't happen.

John Schmitz, 5739 North Clark street, retired—I take my car into the authorized service station when winter is coming on and have a thorough inspection made of the motor and an estimate given me of all the things needed to put it in first class shape. Usually there are little things that ought to be done, and I have the repairs all made at once.

William E. Dorgan, 1040 Grace street, investigator—First thing to do is to take the car into a reliable service station and stand over the mechanic while it is thoroughly inspected and tested. All of the bolts should be tightened up and the water system cleaned and repaired if necessary.

Charles E. McAbee, 2224 Burling street, retired—My experience has been that a thorough overhauling is the best precaution against winter car troubles. The motor should be cleaned, the crankcase drained and refilled, and the transmission filled with lighter oil. The lighting and cooling systems should be inspected and put into first class shape.

Floyd Fitzsimmons, Benton Harbor, Mich., promoter—The car ought to be inspected first and all of its equipment should be checked over and put into perfect shape. Brakes are particularly important. They should be inspected, tested, and relined if necessary. A little money put on the car in the late fall saves a lot of repair money during the winter.

Motor City Finds 60 Per Cent Brake Power in Test

DETROIT has just experienced its first brake testing campaign, and it proved a complete success. Motorists simply "got the habit," as those in charge hoped they would do.

The campaign was under the auspices of the police department, Detroit Automobile club, and Detroit Auto Dealers' association. Approximately 35,000 drivers had their brakes tested during the two weeks' period.

An interesting point that was brought out was that 60 per cent of the cars taking the test had good brakes. The other 40 per cent either had defective brakes or brakes that simply needed adjustment. Sixty per cent is considered a fair average.

Various automobile dealers and service stations supplied mechanics to work at the several testing stations, and so strict was the committee that it caused the removal of working uniforms from the men when they bore the name of cars or dealers. White coats were supplied by the committee for the men, so that there would be no indication of advertising for any one concern.

Heavy Penalty.

In New Jersey a drunken driver of a motor vehicle must serve a jail sentence of from thirty days to six months and lose his license for a year. A second offense causes his license to be revoked for five years.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

BODY styles and the possibilities offered by the modern motor car chassis for individual line development are featured in a brilliant style salon opened yesterday at Chicago Cadillac headquarters. The purpose of the exhibit is to acquaint Chicago owners with the many styles of bodies to be built next season and their purposes. The exhibit is also introducing for the first time the new and distinctive line in custom coach work now being built to order for the company in the recently established Fisher custom body department.

Oversold to the extent of 7,800 cars although the production is at the highest point ever attained by the factory is the remarkable business condition reported by the Nash Motors company of Kenosha.

Three new "De Luxe" models have been introduced by the Chevrolet Motor company. The line includes sedan, coupe and touring cars embodying the latest improvements and equipment.

The Lansing plant of Durant Motors has increased its schedule from 40 to 55 working hours each week on the order of W. C. Durant, who looks forward to a certain increase in car demand this month.

General Motors officials are authority for the statement that the time is not far distant when the term "automobile" will mean a motor car with an enclosed body. The percentage of closed cars of General Motors make has increased from 28 in 1922 to 40 per cent of the output during the current year.

Duplex—exclusively Studebaker
—a new kind of car!

A closed and open car combined—the advantages of both at an open car price!

Value Points
New Big Six

The New Duplex-Phaeton Body—it solves the closed-open car problem.

Genuine Balloon Tires.

New Satin-Lacquer Finish.

Spanish chrome tanned leather upholstery.

New idea in ease of operation and control.

Vibrationless Engine; force-feed oiling system with new idea in oil supply. Full 75 h. p. block test.

Four-Wheel Hydraulic Brakes optional—totally unlike any other system on American cars.

See the Studebaker Enclosed Models at the Chicago Closed Car Show.

THE new Studebaker Duplex models give the comfort and protection of a closed car—with all the advantages of an open car, plus the good looks, riding comfort, interior finish and fittings that no open car could ever give!

Yet the price is no higher than that of an open car.

The appeal of its simplicity, convenience and durability is instant and decisive—with a touch of the hand you draw down the four roller enclosures and in thirty seconds your airy open car is a snug, comfortable enclosed car. With equal ease the enclosing sides can be rolled up into the roof and you have an open car again.

The Duplex Body is especially built for the roller side enclosures, the roof is framed and shaped in steel—permanently beautiful and steel-strong to support the rollers, and the upper part of the Duplex is integral with the lower part. It is a unit body which harmonizes perfectly in beauty and function.

There is no other body like it on any other car at any price—because it is exclusively a Studebaker creation, made only by Studebaker. You can buy the Duplex from no other maker.

The new Duplex is available for each of the three new Studebaker chassis—the new STANDARD SIX, the SPECIAL SIX and the BIG SIX.

And these three new chassis are the evolution of the famous chassis of the five preceding years. Each year they have been improved and refined.

But this year the new models are climaxed with every tested and proved betterment that experience and science have thus far developed.

They are paramount exemplars of modern automobile design.

Simply stated, this means that money cannot buy more modernly perfect automobiles than the new Studebakers—we have the Duplex models ready for your inspection. Come in today!

FREE NEW BOOK

Fill out and mail the coupon below for our new illustrated book on heating the home with oil. This book gives all the facts you want to know. And we will also tell you whether or not your present heating plant can be adapted to oil, the cost, terms, etc. MAIL THE COUPON NOW.

Act Now! There is still time!

Burn oil instead of coal this winter

This proved new heating system fits right in your present heating-plant—takes but 2 hours to make the final change! Now offered at new low prices on a new plan of payment—installed for less, probably, than your initial coal expenditure this fall.

Cold weather is almost here. But there is still time to get oil-heat for next winter—if you act now.

Later, there will be delays, probably. The usual last-minute rush will tax our organization to the limit. Now is the time to decide—to install your oil-burner.

Decide first, which make of oil-burner you will have. Here is the method we suggest you use in fairness to yourself.

First: Inspect Kleen-Heet. Allow us to demonstrate it for you. Either come to our salesroom, or let us send an engineer to you. Then inspect rival oil-burners. Ask them to demonstrate—ask them to match Kleen-Heet's exclusive features. Make your own comparisons.

Second: Ask a few of your neighbors who have enjoyed Kleen-Heet for several winters. Let them tell you of its amazing performance. There are more than 2000 homes in Chicago alone that are Kleen-Heet equipped. We will give you the names of any of our users. They will convince you, as only a satisfied user can.

This is what we offer in Kleen-Heet: absolute reliability; clean, healthy heat at your command day or night—whenever you want it; the elimination of the bother and annoyance of tending the furnace; the elimination of dirt and soot and smoke; additional basement space for household uses.

We know we can guarantee these things, because of Kleen-Heet's successful performance in countless thousands of homes all over the country.

Kleen-Heet is not an unproved unit being experimented upon at the expense of customers—it is a finished product, perfected, proved by service under all conditions.

Tested and listed as standard by the Underwriters' Laboratories

THERE are many who have decided to have oil-heat in their homes—some time—but who have let the matter drag because they lacked sufficient information—they did not know all the facts about oil-burning. Possibly, they had not heard of this proved heating unit.

This offers a new book which has just been prepared by our experts—beautifully illustrated—telling in an authoritative way the difference between burning coal and burning oil for home-heat. We want you to have this book. Read it carefully, then decide if oil-burning will not make your home more livable, more comfortable—cleaner.

2 hours to change your furnace from coal to oil

Perhaps you do not realize how simple it is to install Kleen-Heet. Skilled workmen do the job in an amazingly short time. The fire is out in the furnace but two hours while the old-fashioned grate is replaced by the oil-burner. The house will not cool off before the oil-heat starts.

We handle all details of installation, start you off for the year. And we offer you 24-hour-a-day service, should you require it.

Kleen-Heet has brought to home-owners a new conception of home-comfort. Coal fires died, needed constant attention. Coal deliveries were uncertain, prices soared. All this Kleen-Heet ends.

When your tank needs refilling, a swift motor truck glides to the curb. A hose connection is made and within a few minutes the tank is filled. Quickly, quietly—that is all. Local oil companies give quickest service to home-owners—they pride themselves on it.

No two homes are identical. Hence one type of burner cannot fit every type of home. Yet many companies making but one type try to do this. Kleen-Heet makes a wide range of oil-burners for every requirement. Bungalows use them, average city and country homes—many skyscrapers and hotels are Kleen-Heet heated. We have the burner for your exact requirements.

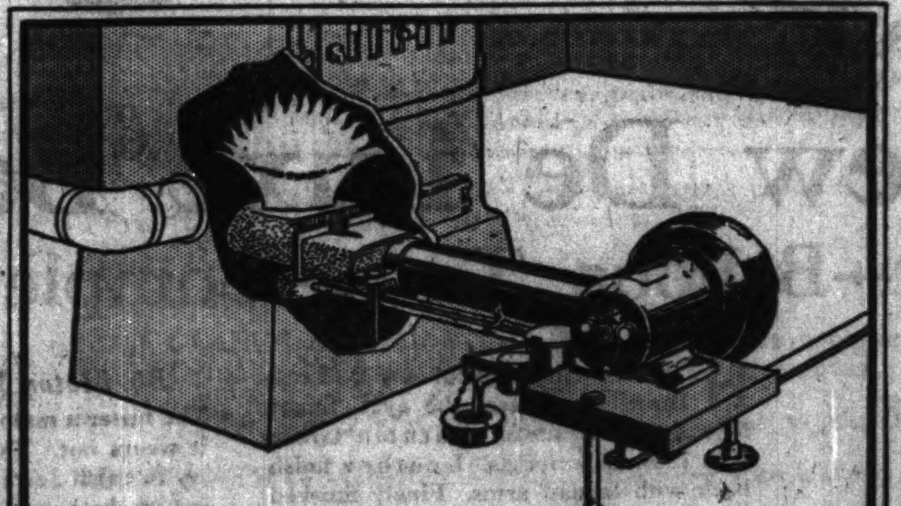
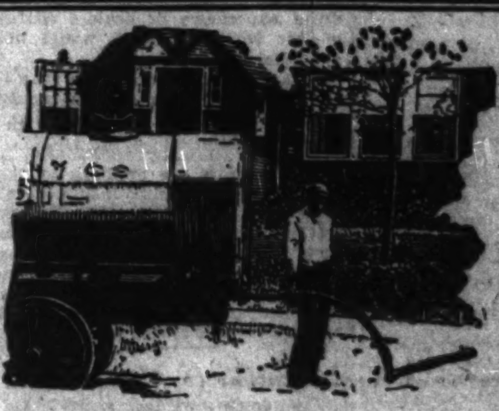
Read the questions and answers on this page. Many of your questions will be answered right there. They are the questions most people ask when we first talk to them.

Then let us send an engineer to talk to you about your own specific problem. He will answer other questions, give you further information. He will tell you exact installation costs, actual operating expense, based upon your own home.

Just fill and mail the coupon now. Before it is too late, do this.



When cold weather begins, simply set the thermostat in your living room to the degree of heat you wish your whole house kept. That's all. Kleen-Heet automatically regulates the temperature after that with no bother or attention on your part whatever.



Banished the dirt and confusion of the coal-wagon when the bin needs filling. A swift motor-truck glides to the curb, a hose connection is made and in a few minutes the oil-tank is filled. Quiet, quick and clean.

This answers your first 7 questions about oil-heat

QUESTION: Is Oil Heat dependable?
ANSWER: Yes. Modern ocean liners, new locomotives, industrial plants everywhere are being equipped today for oil-burning. Engineers the world over have passed upon this question. They vote that oil-heat has passed the experimental stage.

In countless thousands of American homes you will find Kleen-Heet. Many have been in use five years and more. Proved, reliable, they have brought to home-owners a new conception of home comfort.

QUESTION: Is Kleen-Heet economical?
ANSWER: Yes. Kleen-Heet operates with the lowest grade, clean, free flowing oils on the market. Unlike dirty coal, filled with clinkers, slag and slate, every drop of oil burns.

Burning oil is at least as cheap as the $12-a-ton coal you have been using—many have found it more economical. You save the expense of a furnace man—$15 or $20 a month—and the nuisance and expense of ash-hauling, too.

QUESTION: Is Kleen-Heet entirely automatic?
ANSWER: Yes. Absolutely. You simply set the thermostat in your living room when the cold weather starts. After that, without further attention, Kleen-Heet regulates the temperature of the entire house within one degree of temperature. You set it once and forget about it.

QUESTION: Are oil supplies constant? Will the price of oil remain at present low levels?
ANSWER: Yes. There are vast quantities of oil in America. Prices have constantly been lowered as production efficiencies have been discovered. Unlike coal, oil prices will always remain low.

QUESTION: Is Kleen-Heet silent in operation?
ANSWER: Yes. Kleen-Heet is the quietest oil-burner on the market because it has the simplest construction. Many makers gear their burners up or down to suit your requirements. Kleen-Heet makes the exact type for your needs. In gearing the motor up or down, inefficiency enters. It is wasteful, noisy. Kleen-Heet is absolutely silent in operation.

QUESTION: Have you a type suited for my home?
ANSWER: Yes. Kleen-Heet is made by the largest and oldest makers of automatic oil-burners in the industry. There is an exact type for every requirement. Not the "nearest thing to it," but the actual type that will work best in your home. We have no rivals here.

QUESTION: Is Kleen-Heet expensive to install?
ANSWER: No. On our new plan of liberal terms, some types of Kleen-Heet can be installed for as low as $25 down. The monthly payments will exceed by very little the $20 to $25 that furnace-tending and ash-removal cost. Other larger types will be installed for an initial payment not exceeding what you'd probably pay for your fall coal supply—not needed with Kleen-Heet.

If you will mail the coupon, our engineer will call and give you precise information about installation and operating costs as applied to your own home.

Or call at our nearest salesroom and have Kleen-Heet demonstrated.

Big Motor Plants Increase Speed for Fall Months

Man Power in Detroit Industry Totals 197,621.

BY WHITCOMB WILLIAMS.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—A change for the better, not drastic, but quite perceptible, is noted in the automobile industry. The hum at present is as nothing compared to the roar of a year ago, but several factories are increasing their output in order to fill the incoming orders for both immediate and future deliveries.

Right now the number of men employed in Detroit in the manufacture of automobiles and trucks, either directly or indirectly, is 197,621, a decrease of about 12,000 from that of one year ago, when every plant was working at capacity. Of the number now employed about 50 per cent are working not quite full time, and are employed by seventy-nine concerns which are members of the Employers' association.

Another distinct indication of business generally is the quickened movement in the truck end of the industry as reflected in orders for motors and parts, for immediate delivery. The apparent healthy revival of truck demand at this season of the year is unusual and indicates a general upward trend.

Continental Motors corporation considered the largest manufacturer of heavy duty motors, is experiencing an unprecedented increase in demand for heavy duty engines and orders for immediate deliveries is believed to presage a continued demand during the next few months.

The truck industry naturally is reguarded as an automotive trade barometer, for with truck business good, business in general must be in line, and this is reflected in increased demand for passenger cars.

The revival is particularly noted in the used car field. Recent announcement of a determination on the part of dealers to put an end to "shopping" by car owners by adhering strictly to a fair and reasonable allowance on used car trade-ins, is believed to have had the effect of assuring used car buyers of dollar for dollar value. In any event, business in used cars in experiencing a boom, according to members of dealers' associations.

As expected, the demand for closed cars is great, almost to the total exclusion of open models. Manufacturers, profiting by past experiences, have fortified themselves accordingly, with the result that purchasers will not be obliged to wait long for their winter cars.

According to Benjamin H. Cram, well known statistician and economist, the greatest stride ever taken towards stabilizing the automotive industry is the one taken by General Motors and Chrysler in their announcement that dealers from now on will not have more cars forced on them than they can readily dispose of.

This announcement, Cram claims, should have been made, and adhered to, years ago, and that sooner or later every manufacturer must adopt the plan. Had it been done a year ago the painful experience of dealers during the last several months would not have developed.

Chrysler further announces that it will produce in each current month only as many cars as were sold in the previous month.

Manufacturers are profiting by the "ill winds" that resulted in slowdowns during the late spring and summer months. They have been brought sharply to a realization that being overstocked with high priced inventories cramped them, and, in fact, sent many companies into receivership and bankruptcy, and others on the verge.

THE END OF A LONG TRAIL

Even the best of motors have little hope of a pleasant hereafter. When they die they all go to this sort of place, and they may reappear either as "used parts" or simply as junk. The latest estimate shows 15,500,000 motor cars operating in the United States. Chicago dealers set the value of junked cars each year at about $2,000,000,000.

Mountain to Mohammed.

While down town in Phoenix, Ariz., the other day, the owner of a sedan discovered there was fire under the hood of the car. Instead of stopping where he was and looking for an alarm box, he proceeded to drive several blocks to the central fire station. Chemical extinguishers were brought immediately to the rescue as the driver clapped on the brakes and yelled, "Fire! Boys, come and put me out!" It was the first time that a blaze ever was brought to the station.

FAN NEGLECTED.

The fan of the automobile is one of the most neglected units and is often to blame for noises that are attributed to the timing gears. The fan bearings usually hold a lot of grease, and, like wheel bearings, go so long on one greasing as to slip the owner's mind when they need a repeat greasing.

Miami Clears Decks to Welcome 25,000 Visiting Motors

SPECIAL arrangements are being made by the Miami Motor club and the affiliated clubs of the American Automobile association to care for a record automobile traffic to Miami this winter, according to W. S. Maxwell, secretary of the Miami organization.

Maxwell is now on the roads from Miami to Jacksonville, Jacksonville to Savannah, and Jacksonville to De Land, investigating conditions. Information gained will be placed at the disposal of northern automobile clubs in routing travel south.

Hope that present detours between Jacksonville and Miami on the Dixie highway will be removed before Nov. 1 is expressed by Maxwell. He says word from affiliated members of the American Automobile association indicates that 25,000 motor cars will be routed to Miami this season. The association has prepared special maps showing routes to Miami and other points in Fliorida for use of tourists.

Cars Test Roads.

New York state has three cars equipped with a road testing device. Twice a year—in spring and fall—these cars cover all the principal highways of the state, thus not only enabling the bureau of highways to know whether the state is getting full value from contractors, but also how much wear is inflicted on the roads by reason of summer traffic as well as by winter snows.

Road Celebration to Bring 50,000 Cars to Chicago

DUBUQUE, Ia.—[Special Correspondence.]—Through its chamber of commerce this city is taking the lead in planning a great demonstration when the Grant highway concrete paving shall have been finished between Chicago and Dubuque, making the route a good as well as a short one from the head of Lake Michigan to Yellowstone park and the Pacific northwest.

A procession of 50,000 Iowa automobiles, en route for Chicago on the same day, is a notable part of the plans for this celebration, which will take place as soon as the stretch between the Mississippi river and Stockton, Ill., is completed and open to traffic. The rest of the road in Illinois, about a hundred and fifty miles of it, is already paved and in use.

On account of its directness, its low average altitude, and its avoidance of dangerous fords in those bridgeless days long ago the route now taken by the Grant highway from Chicago to the Pacific coast would likely have been the one used by the gold seekers of '49 and the Oregon pioneers, if they had known more of the topography of what was then called the Great American desert, and if they had not been restricted in their movements by the necessity of outfitting at points lower down the Missouri river than Sioux City, where the Grant crosses the Big Muddy.

But if Dubuque was not the crossing point on the Mississippi for the gold hunters of that time and for those who suffered hardships in their journey to reach the promised land in Oregon, it is nevertheless true that this city shares with Chicago the distinction of having furnished most of the covered wagons which are now the symbols of that adventurous migration. The pioneer of that period who did not have a Peter Schuettler wagon, fabricated in Chicago, had a Cooper wagon made by the late A. A. Cooper of Dubuque, but now no longer manufactured.

Illustrating strikingly the difference between those days and these is a motor trip taken by A. A. Cooper, son and namesake of the famous wagon builder. With him were Mrs. Cooper, their daughter and son. Starting July 5 and returning Sept. 21, they practically circled the continent in a little more than two months and did it in a leisurely manner, inasmuch as Cooper desired to inspect a number of hotels along the route.

Kalls for Karefulness.

A fourth "K" has made its appearance along one of the roads of Massachusetts, to add to the warnings of the "K. K. K." motorists have been seeing occasionally on highways in various parts of the country.

This "K. K. K. K.," however, stands out as the initial designation of the warning "Kurves, Korners, Kids, Kaution."

It appeared recently on the sharp curve in front of Blodgett lodge on Lake Sunapee, Massachusetts.

Reasons for Heating.

Broadly speaking, there are four main causes of overheating. The engine may generate too much heat, due to defects in carburetion or ignition. The engine may be overloaded, due to friction in the chassis parts, and the overloaded engine then may develop, through no fault of its own, more heat than the cooling system can dispose of readily. The third fault may be due to the cooling system itself, which may not radiate heat fast enough, due to the water not circulating through the cooling system, or to the air not flowing through the radiator fast enough to properly cool the water passages and the water within them. The fourth and last general cause, poor driving, includes the manner in which the car is handled, as well as the other faults in a general way.—Automobile Digest.

"Road Mopes" Find Rough Going in Eastern Village

COLONIE, N. Y.—This village, until this year noted for its strict enforcement of a twenty mile speed law, has decided that slow driving is equally dangerous as fast driving. The village, midway between Albany and Schenectady, was a notorious speed trap until passage of a bill by the state legislature last year directed against speed traps.

Police Justice Howard N. Hall has announced that Colonie patrolmen, mounted on four cylinder motorcycles, will in future be known as men put on the road to prod the twelve mile and fifteen mile an hour drivers up to twenty-six and twenty-eight miles an hour. They will arrest for speeding only those who go thirty miles an hour or faster, and those whose speedometers are correct have little to worry about immediately above thirty, he said.

Judge Hall is now finishing his third season as police justice and, instead of becoming hardened by the frequency of arrests and the protests the victims make, he professes to view the situation more from the driver's viewpoint than he did when he took office.

"Every now and then," he remarked, "a man comes along the road at twelve or fifteen miles an hour, holding up a long string of cars behind him. This man is just as dangerous as a speeder, in my estimation. The cars behind him do not want to be held up at such a slow rate and naturally they will try to pass the whole line to get a place where they can travel along faster. In doing this they take dangerous chances of hitting some one going in the opposite direction."

Judge Hall says the number of road offenders in Colonie grows fewer every year, and the village does not want to cause good drivers any inconvenience.

RIGHT, WATSON!

If you want to know who has been driving the family car last, just cast your eye on the mirror. If it reflects the driver's seat, it was mother or daughter. If it faces the seat next to the driver, it was son. If it is turned so as to reflect the traffic behind, it was father.

USE A WRENCH.

When a rim for a clincher tire becomes bent, it may easily be straightened by a large wrench being hooked under the bent part of the rim. After slipping a piece of pipe over the end of the wrench to increase the leverage, pressure is applied in the direction toward the bent section. This will cause the rim to be bent back into place.

Ample room for five.

Lasting Performance
More than a billion miles of carefree service for a hundred thousand owners has proved Jewett staunch and able! Little wonder that Jewett's fine performance stays fine! For Jewett has giant power. That's why Jewett outperforms others. Takes hills in high without rushing. Crawls slowly in high through traffic, then accelerates quickly ahead of others. Pulls slowly in high where the going is bad.

Big Motor Means Less Wear
The faster a motor turns over—the faster it wears out. That's logical. Some cars try to equal Jewett's big power by speeding up their smaller motors. Such power is short-lived, naturally. Because Jewett's Paige-built motor is big—power is developed without need of wearing, straining motor speed. So its life is long!

In every part—Jewett is husky to match this big power. Extra deep frame, heavy duty axles, all-steel universal joints, long springs. Lighter cars cannot have equal strength or sturdiness. Neither can they have equal safety. Weight accurately measures the quantity of steel and other materials which you get for the purchase price. Jewett's extra pounds of fine materials means extra life and extra value!

Jewett gives sound value. You buy years of keen enjoyment—freedom from care.

There Are Some Things You Cannot Picture Nor Describe

The Silent Swiftness: the Soft Smoothness: the Fleetness: the Flexibility—the Luscious Luxuriousness—of this "Vertical-8-Superfine" are indescribable. You must see and feel, to understand

SINCE IT WAS DISCOVERED, the great writers of the world have tried to describe, and famous artists essayed in vain to portray, the magnificence of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

YET YOU WHO HAVE SEEN IT—and who had read extensively about it—were speechless with emotion when your eyes first gazed upon this American Wonderland.

AND TRY AS YOU WILL, you cannot now describe it to your friends. When they ask you, you exhaust your vocabulary and finally in despair exclaim—"You must see, to understand and appreciate."

ANOTHER EXAMPLE is the Taj Mahal—Palace of Love—wrought with gems of priceless value and of transcendent beauty.

THAT STRUCTURE has been for centuries the despair of writers, the distraction of painters.

YOU MUST SEE. And seeing, you "feel" something that expresses itself through no other sense.

YOU CAN APPRECIATE THEN, his feeling of impotence, when this writer is set the task of describing the various phases of performance of this latest product of the Rickenbacker laboratory and shops.

HIS ONLY MEDIUM—his only means of access to your mind—the words which have become the nomenclature of this trade up to now—while that which he would describe is more advanced than the language of the day.

IN TIME, THIS AND LIKE CARS will develop terms which will more nearly depict its quality. But not yet.

FOR NO WORDS CAN CONVEY to your mind any idea of that which you have not yet seen or felt.

IMAGINATION CANNOT GO beyond the limits of experience.

SO ALL WE COULD TELL YOU, must be interpreted in terms of your past experience with other cars.

AND EVEN THO THAT EXPERIENCE has been with the best the world has produced, still your pre-conception of this "Vertical-8-Superfine" will fall far short of your realization.

WHEN FOR THE FIRST TIME, with your own hand on the responsive steering wheel, your own foot on the sensitive accelerator, you tool her down a straightaway and round a turn, you will admit that never before, have you handled a real automobile.

HOW SHE "ROADS!"—hands off at a mile a minute or more, and still she holds straight as an arrow the crown of the road. Yet the slightest urge on the wheel—and she responds like the thoroughbred she is.

NOW FEEL THE ACCELERATOR—you must press it gently at first for the response is instantaneous.

CLOSE YOUR EYES and try to estimate how rapidly she accelerates.

NOW GLANCE AT THE ROAD—but not at the speedometer—and tell if you can, by the feel, how fast you are going.

NOW LOOK!—and you are going twice as fast as you thought.

WHAT IS THAT AHEAD?—looks, from here, like a steep hill.

BUT IT IS NO HILL—unless your senses deceive. For you are almost unconscious of your extra pressure on the accelerator, and she takes it as easily as if it were level stretch.

YOU WONDER HOW MUCH STEEPER it would have to be to offer any perceptible resistance to this powerful car.

THAT GIVES YOU SOME idea for comparison with the best cars you have previously driven.

FORTY MILES FEELS LIKE TWENTY, sixty like thirty—seventy like thirty, too!

NOW TRY THE BRAKES—those wonderful Rickenbacker 4-Wheel Brakes—which set the standard for present safety codes and revolutionized an industry.

THOSE 4-WHEEL BRAKES—that have proven the solution of the traffic problem—just when it seemed insolvable!

THOSE MECHANICAL BRAKES—that act just as quickly and surely in winter as in summer—because there are no pipes, tubes, valves, nor hose to leak—no liquid to congeal and impede their action or render them useless.

THOSE "INTERNAL, EXPANDING" brakes—enclosed and protected from water and sand in summer, from freezing in winter—and which are therefore always ready and always sure.

TRY THOSE BRAKES! First at 20 miles per hour—if you are not used to first class 4-wheel brakes.

THEN WHEN YOU HAVE SEEN what it feels like to stop in 14 feet at that speed—without shock or jar or a squeal from the contact of shoe with drum—

TRY THEM AT 40—50—60—or as fast as you dare to drive. You will be amazed to find that at any speed they are just as smooth, just as certain and just as silent.

NOTE THAT THEY DO NOT affect your steering in the slightest.

NOW ASK YOURSELF what was the basis of all that propaganda against 4-Wheel Brakes when, a year ago, Rickenbacker first made this great improvement; what were the arguments then—what the explanations now—by those makers who then condemned, but have since adopted, this feature.

TELL YOU THE ANSWER:—they were not yet ready—and wanted the world to wait for them!

REMEMBER THAT, when some makers try to discount the tremendous effect, on future types, of this latest Rickenbacker achievement.

SAME ANSWER will serve!

ANOTHER ERA HAS BEGUN—this "Vertical-8-Superfine" has elevated automotive engineering—and motoring—to another and higher plane.

BUT—WHILE WE ARE TALKING you are "feeling" something you cannot describe.

THAT IS ALWAYS the experience of those who first drive this car. And the greater the past experience of the driver, the more intensive and thrilling the sensation—the more poignant the emotions.

NOW YOU UNDERSTAND why it is futile to attempt to describe that which we have felt—and know you will feel—when first you drive this car.

SO WE INVITE YOU to come in and see; study in detail the many points of excellence.

YOU WILL FIND in this "Vertical-8" many features that are as yet to be found in no other car in the whole world.

COME IN TODAY—store will be open to receive you.

DON'T DELAY. Come right now—or phone....................... and a demonstrator will be at your door.

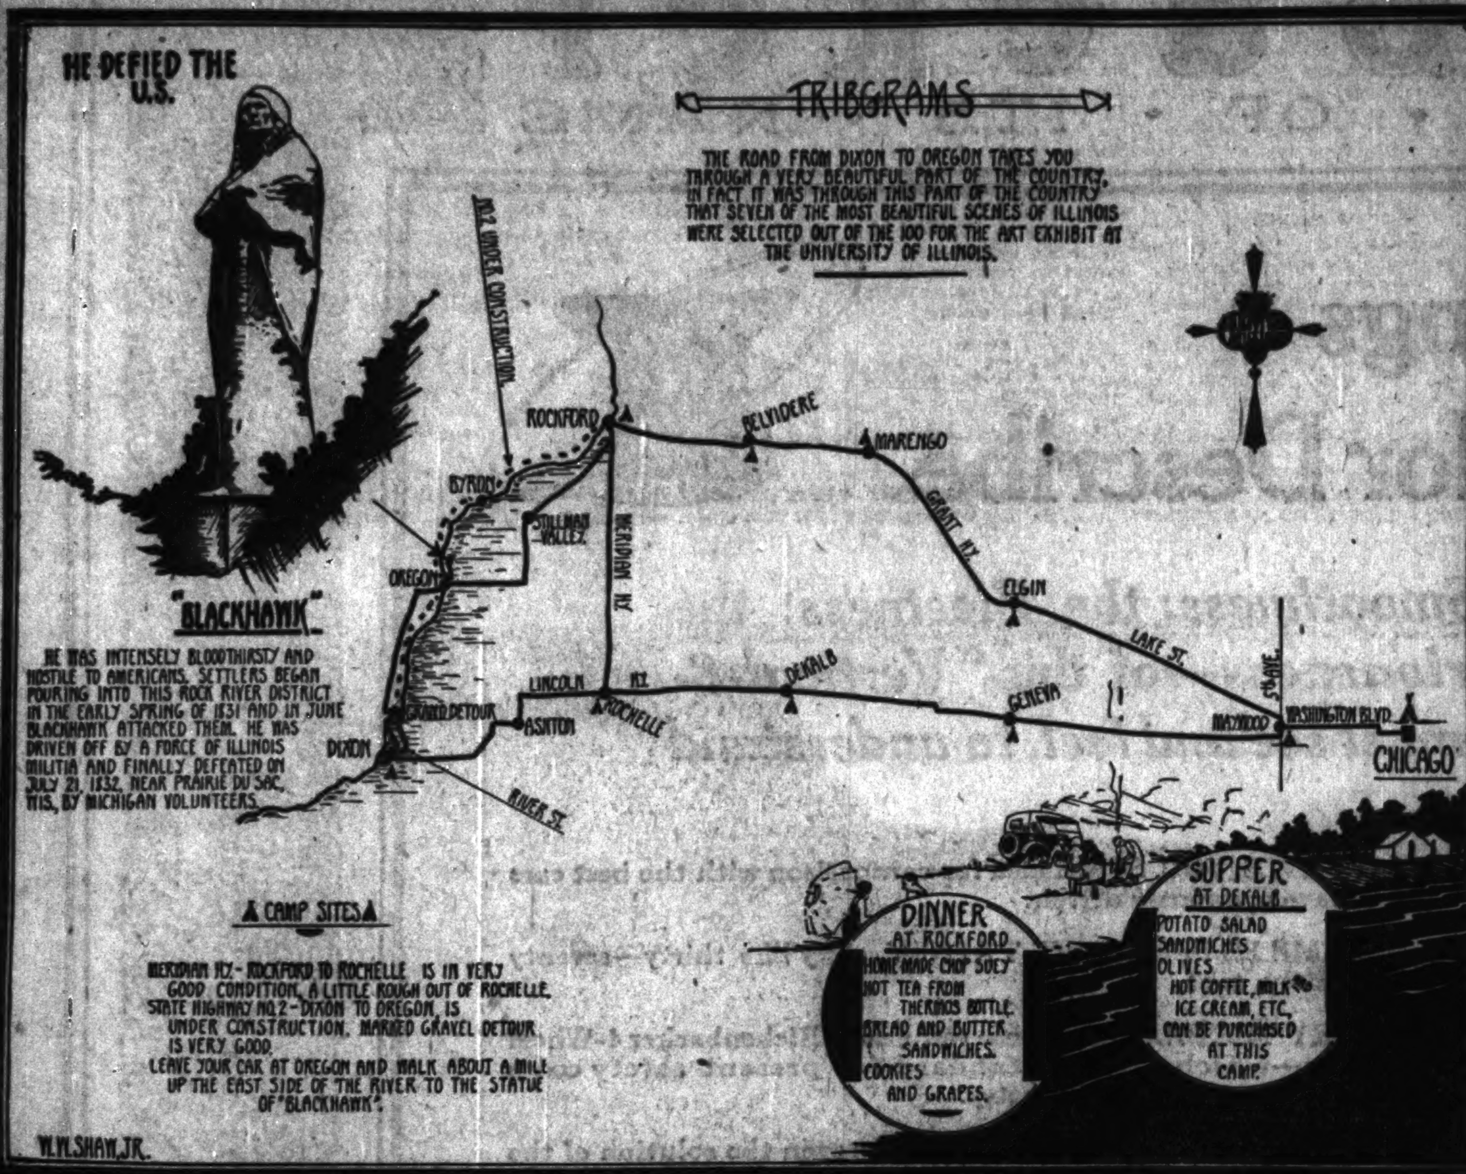
XXV. A SCENIC CIRCLE IN ILLINOIS



TRIBGRAMS

THE ROAD FROM DIXON TO OREGON TAKES YOU THROUGH A VERY BEAUTIFUL PART OF THE COUNTRY. IN FACT IT WAS THROUGH THIS PART OF THE COUNTRY THAT SEVEN OF THE MOST BEAUTIFUL SCENES OF ILLINOIS WERE SELECTED OUT OF THE 100 FOR THE ART EXHIBIT AT THE UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS.

HE WAS INTENSELY BLOODTHIRSTY AND HOSTILE TO AMERICANS. SETTLERS BEGAN POURING INTO THIS ROCK RIVER DISTRICT IN THE EARLY SPRING OF 1831 AND IN JUNE BLACKHAWK ATTACKED THEM. HE WAS DRIVEN OFF BY A FORCE OF ILLINOIS MILITIA AND FINALLY DEFEATED ON JULY 21, 1832, NEAR PRAIRIE DU SAC, WIS., BY MICHIGAN VOLUNTEERS.

AUTUMN has opened a delectable week-end tour through some of the most interesting country Illinois has to offer in this Rock river valley circle.

The suggestion affords perfect concrete going both to and from the lovely valley where bluffs and woodlands reflect so much of the state's early history, and good gravel along the river.

Either Roosevelt road or Lake street may be used in leaving Chicago. The first is now open and in good shape to Dixon. The latter is completely paved with the exception of railroad grade crossings to Rockford. Illinois route 2, the river road, is under construction, but an excellent, all-gravel detour is well marked between Rockford and Dixon.

October Drivers Warned of Extra Highway Hazards

Autumn Speeders, "Leaf Skids," and Cold in List.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

MOTORISTS planning to tour extensively in October are warned against certain motoring hazards peculiar to this month in a bulletin just sent by the American Automobile association.

October is the most popular motoring month of the year and, as such, is often the most dangerous. It is pointed out that the scenic attractions and the stimulation offered by the weather frequently leads the driver to forget some of the fundamentals of his safety in handling the car.

Thomas P. Henry, president of the A. A. A., says that there are a maximum number of cars on the highways during October and that each motorist has just that many more cars to look out for, thus demonstrating the necessity for greatest precaution at the time of greatest enjoyment of the car.

He points to the survey made by the U. S. bureau of public roads covering conditions on Connecticut highways as typical of conditions generally. The Connecticut survey showed that the peak month for traffic was October when the main arteries were crowded with tourists, with local motorists out for recreation and with business cars.

"October is to be taken seriously for other reasons as well," he adds. "This is the time of year when wet leaves on the highways present a constant hazard to motorists who fail to keep their minds on the business of driving safely. 'Leaf skidding' is particularly dangerous in the early morning when the sun has not had an opportunity to dry out the dew that is being held under the leaves.

"It is fine to get up early on an October morning, jump into the car and enjoy the advantages of an early start on the day's journey, but it is hazardous to imagine that you are the only party to get an early start. Many accidents are the direct result of the early motorist's imagining that he has the whole road to himself.

"The days being shorter in October the tourist is likely to have many miles of his run in the dark which, in itself, is a matter calling for precaution. Many persons who forget that summer is waning in October continue to figure that they can travel just as many miles by daylight in October as in August. The result is they frequently find it necessary to blunder their way along over strange roads in the dark.

"Cold days in October, and particularly cold nights, call for the rain curtains in the case of open cars. Frequently the driver is not accustomed to driving closed in, and unless he takes precautions against being fooled by 'blind spots' in the closure an accident may be the result.

"Every motorist who tours this fall should bear in mind that one of the most attractive features of fall motoring is to return home without having taken any unnecessary risks. This is not possible unless one starts out fully acquainted with the hazards."

Big Export Trade.

The total value of all automotive products exported from the United States in July was $14,758,142, according to statistics in the Detroit office of the U. S. bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. Although the lowest thus recorded this year, this figure was considerably in advance of the monthly average in 1923. The July exports of $14,758,142 compare with preceding months as follows: June, $16,294,524; May, $20,966,227; April, $22,829,150; March, $21,326,273; February, $19,556,226; January, $18,465,202.

$50,000 Price Cut May Sell Cars for This Manufacturer

IF cost alone were the criterion, the perfect car is here.

In San Francisco, a manufacturer is thinking of reducing the price of his products from $75,000 to $25,000 each, and produce them in quantity lots! The car has a twelve cylinder motor, develops 150 horse power and can go over 100 miles an hour.

Besides the ordinary everyday improvements on average "high priced" cars this one has a gasoline tank that holds fifty-two gallons, a reserve fuel tank, reserve water tank, a seven gallon oil tank from which the crankcase can be filled while the car is running, and many other such conveniences.

A car, made in England for the maharajah of Alwar, is so constructed as to run from high into reverse without clashing of gears. It merely slows itself down and backs up with one operation.

That car runs near to the $100,000 mark in price.

3,000 Licenses Suspended.

Nearly 3,000 operators' licenses were suspended in the first half of this year for violations of the motor vehicle law in Connecticut. Reckless driving was the principal cause of licenses being revoked, followed by intoxication, evading responsibility, fatal accidents, operating without a license, operating unregistered cars, failure to report accidents and miscellaneous causes.

Northwest Farmers Favor Gas Tax to Pay for Roads

WISCONSIN farmers voted more than 4 to 1 in favor of the gas tax proposal in that state in a recent survey by the Wisconsin Farm Bureau federation. Minnesota farmers and other citizens will vote in November to authorize the legislature to put the money from such a levy, if made, into the road fund. The legislature will decide whether a tax will be put on gasoline and all other details of the proposal.

Wisconsin farm bureau officials announced that 84 per cent or more than 36,000 farmers answering questionnaires favored the gas tax. A total of 36,904 farmers reported, 30,513 expressing themselves as favoring such a tax and only 6,466 opposing it. Wisconsin gas tax indorsements include those of 400 town boards.

The Minnesota proposal will take not more than $8 from the average car owner and $5 or less from the great majority in return for the use of more than $4,000,000 a year in extra highway improvements.

Have 'em Tested.

The motorist who has a conscience does not have to be told he should have his brakes inspected at periodic intervals. He knows he is a potential killer—more deadly than the deadliest gunman. He is aware that the hapless pedestrian has no protection from the menace of a brakeless car other than the agility of two legs.

RUBBER USED.

Blocks of rubber are being used in automobile construction to eliminate sudden shocks, noise and the necessity for lubrication at various points in the chassis.

More Through Streets.

Traffic congestion is one of the greatest causes of motor car accidents, according to Todd Stoops, secretary-manager of the Hoosier Motor club. He states that the club is now surveying Indianapolis with the intention of recommending more through streets for the increasing number of motor cars, which will tend to relieve this congestion, and also help the natural growth of the city.

Better Camps.

The increasing favor with which the motoring public regards outdoor camping in preference to hotels when on the road is evidenced by recent complications of figures at Washington, D. C., which show over 2,000 camp sites in the United States, most of them being equipped with every facility for the motor tourists' comfort and convenience.

Deadly Gas.

Carbon monoxide is not a poison in the generally accepted sense of the word, but it gets in its deadly work by suffocation. As indicated by its name, carbon monoxide is a sort of transitory stage between straight carbon and carbon dioxide, and as a result it has a great affinity for additional oxygen, which it absorbs in changing from carbon monoxide to carbon dioxide. When the monoxide is breathed in it is taken up by the blood. Thus the oxygen from the air, also taken up by the blood through the lung cells, is absorbed by the carbon monoxide instead of actually being absorbed by and purifying the blood. Hence the effect is the same as if the breathing had actually been cut off.—Automobile Digest.

SPARK PLUGS.

The importance of efficient spark plugs cannot be estimated, says a well known automobile engineer. Never wait until they misfire and always buy the best quality obtainable.

FARM AND GARDEN

Wisconsin Proud of Progress with Certified Potato

Develops Into One of the State's Great Industries Within a Few Years.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

KITCHENERS will have to shine up a few extra kettles, pots, and skillets to take care of the extra million bushels of spuds now being harvested in America's potato patches. The quality is superfine, and there will be enough "taters" for Uncle Sam's whole family—big ones to bake, fry, and boil and little ones for soup.

It is estimated that there will be 413,000,000 bushels—a million more than last year—when they are all dug. The crop in the western states is generally poor, but in the northern states it is good.

Wisconsin alone will have about 5,000,000 bushels more than last year if the forecasters are not too optimistic with their guess of 31,000,000 bushels. Badger farmers, who hold first, second, or third place in potato production every year, say their spuds this season are not unusually large but that they will be of good size at digging time. The field run will contain a small percentage of small potatoes, crop reporters say.

Use High Grade Seed.

The high quality of table potatoes on the market each year, particularly this fall, is no doubt due largely to the superior grade of seed used in the principal potato growing areas.

At Rhinelander, the center of certified seed potato growing in Wisconsin and the headquarters of potato poolers, growers are preparing to ship out their twelfth crop of pure bred seed potatoes. More than 600,000 bushels will probably be produced in the state this year. They are grown in the northern counties, principally Forest, Florence, Vilas, Langlade, Lincoln, Price, Bayfield, Barron, Marinette, Door, Waupaca, and Waushara. Two hundred and twenty growers have signed contracts to sell their seed potatoes for the next five years through the coöperative selling agency. This includes about 80 per cent of the certified growers in Wisconsin.

Oneida County Leads.

The seventy-eight pure bred seed potato growers in Oneida county produce about a third of the certified crop in that state. They have this year almost 1,500 acres—700 each of the Green Mountain and Triumph varieties and 53 of Early Ohios. All of these are grown for seed, and will yield more than 200 bushels to the acre. If all pass the inspector, there will be more than 300,000 bushels of high grade tubers produced in Oneida county. At least two-thirds of these will measure up to the inspector's standards, according to A. J. Brann, county agent at Rhinelander, making a total of 200,000 bushels.

Oneida county sold about 150,000 bushels of seed potatoes last year at an average price of 85 cents a bushel. Some sold locally at 75 cents and others were shipped, bringing as much as $1.40, while the market potatoes were about 30 cents.

Most of the Green Mountains were sold to Long Island growers. A few carloads were shipped last year to Tennessee. Triumphs go to Florida, Alabama, Georgia, and Louisiana.

This season's crop will be the first sold through the pool, which is supervised and managed by Amos Radcliffe.

Strides in Twelve Years.

There were no pure bred seed potatoes grown in Wisconsin twelve years ago. This great industry has been developed within a comparatively short time and has become one of the best paying propositions attempted by Badger farmers. It is one of the outstanding industries they boast about. They were shipping out about twenty carloads of potatoes a year before the certified idea was introduced to give a cash crop.

J. G. Milward, then farm adviser in Oneida county and now with the college of agriculture and secretary of the Wisconsin Potato Growers' association, gave northern Wisconsin farmers a start with this new cash crop. W. D. Juday was the chief worker in standardizing the varieties. The county's growers have held first place five or six times during the twelve years at the state potato shows.

It took a train with more than 100 cars to haul certified seed potatoes out of the Rhinelander district last fall, and a longer train will be needed this year.

Highly Specialized Work.

Certified seed potato growing is like the pure bred live stock business—highly specialized. Farmers must know potatoes, varieties and kinds that do best in their territory, and familiarize themselves with various diseases.

When these men began twelve years ago, they were not familiar with varieties, and knew little about the pests that wiped out potato fields all over the middle west, but they've mastered nearly all there is to know. They demonstrated what they knew about potatoes by winning the championship of the United States at the National Potato show held at Grand Rapids, Mich., a few years ago.

They don't attempt an enormous acreage, but keep their fields down to about fifteen acres so that close attention can be given to the crop throughout the growing season. There are a few large fields, and in one case as many as 1,000 acres are grown on one farm, the largest potato field in the world, with rows a mile and three-quarters in length. These big fields are found on newly cleared land where soil and climate are ideal.

Takes Modern Equipment.

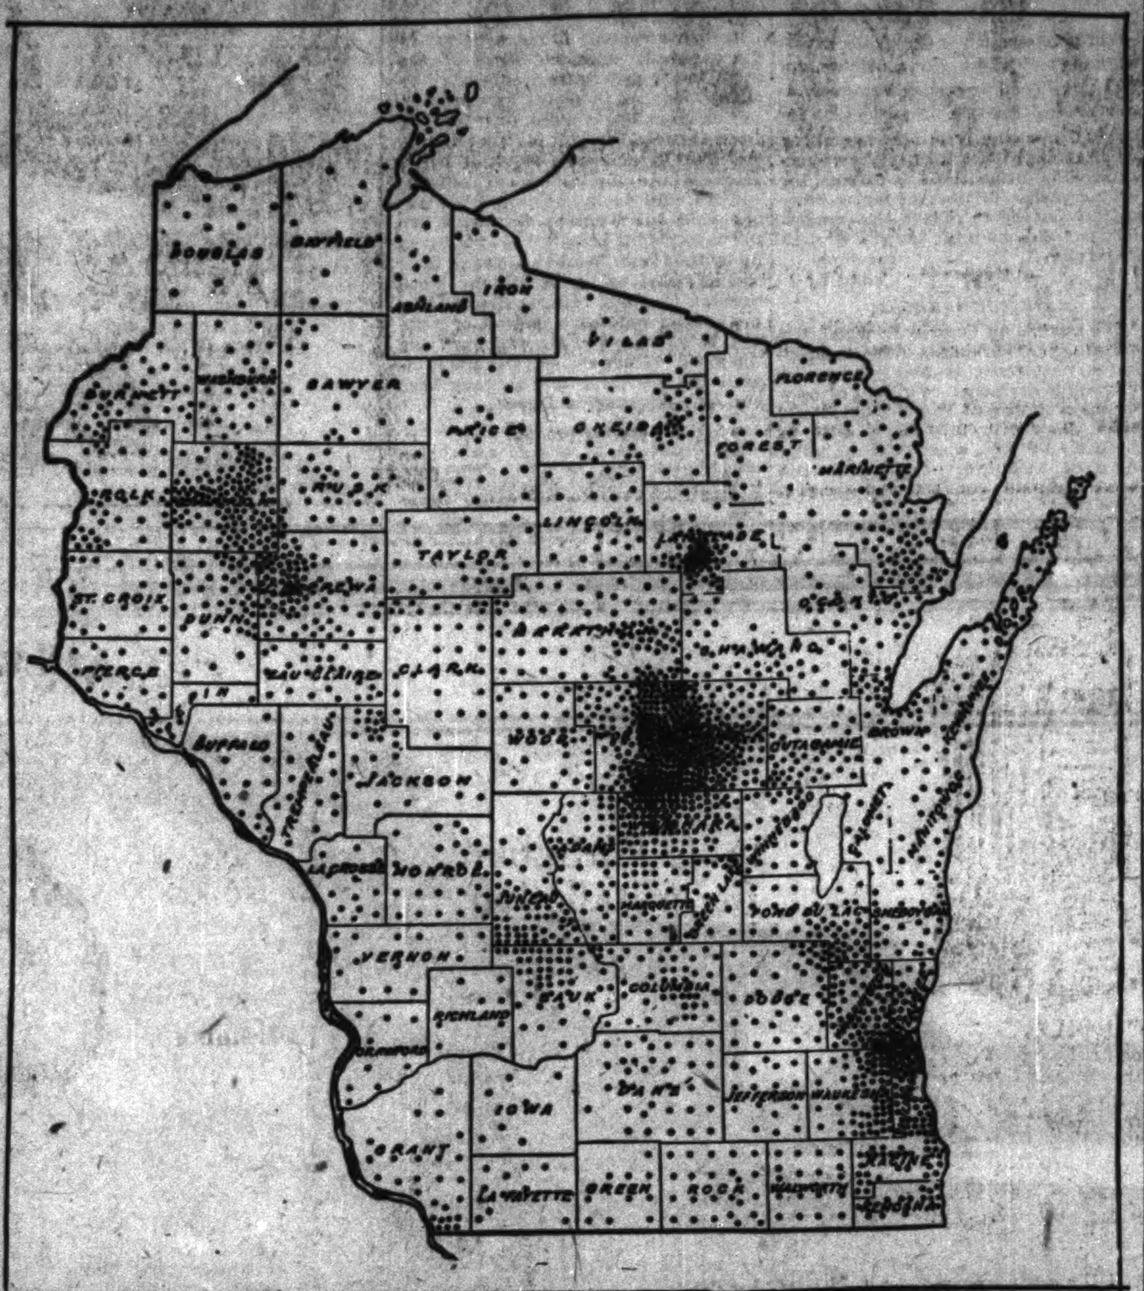
The most important factor in the growing of certified seed potatoes, experts say, is in having men who will rigidly adhere to the fundamentals in producing clean, pure, high quality varieties. Practically all of these lake region potato growers have modern equipment—power sprays, planters, etc. They use Bordeaux mixture to prevent blight, one of the common enemies.

The crops are rotated regularly to rejuvenate the soil and keep it clean. Rhinelander growers commonly follow a three year crop rotating system, planting oats with clover, leaving the legume on for a year, and cutting it the second year. The clover is plowed under before the potatoes are planted.

The distribution of high grade seed from certified potato growing counties into other parts of Wisconsin has put the production of table market spuds on a better paying basis. Potato growing has become popular in every county in the state.

The increasing demand for high grade potatoes has stimulated greater interest in this special line of farming. Clubs are being formed to interest boys and girls. Six carloads of certified seed potatoes will be shipped out of Rhinelander within a few weeks by members of the boys and girls' agricultural clubs in Oneida county.

PEPPERED WITH POTATOES



[Map prepared by Wisconsin crop and live stock reporting service.]

WISCONSIN GROWS POTATOES IN EVERY COUNTY.—Certified seed potato growing in northern Wisconsin, centering around Rhinelander, has become one of the best paying farming specialties in the state. More than 600,000 bushels of certified pure bred seed potatoes will be harvested in thirteen northern Wisconsin counties this fall. The above map shows the location of the potato growing areas in each county. Each dot represents 100 acres, giving an idea of how completely the state is blanketed with potatoes, and showing the heavy producing sections.

GARDEN NOTES

The practice of leaving pumpkins in the patch long after the killing frosts is entirely too common. The best pies are made from pumpkins stored as soon as the vines die. Store in a warm, dry place.

Fall is the time to set out Darwin and cottage tulips that bloom in the spring. The first of October is a good time to set them in this section.

Gather popcorn as soon as it is ripe and store it in a dry place if you want it to pop like a bunch of firecrackers exploding.

Iowa has such a bumper crop of potatoes this year that crop specialists at the state college are advising growers to sell their spuds as soon as they can dig them and get them on to the market. A report says Iowa has one of its greatest potato crops, with a yield double the average. A grower in Appanoose county reports a yield of 520 bushels of potatoes to the acre. That is an excellent yield when it is considered that 200 bushels to the acre will satisfy most growers in the big potato sections of the central west.

POULTRY TIPS

With a total of 1,341 eggs heaped high on her basket, Lady Purdue, a college hen of Indiana, broke the world's record for long distance laying a few days ago at Lafayette. No other hen with a trap nest record was ever known to lay that many eggs. Lady Purdue, hatched in April, 1916, started out with a record of 217 eggs her first year, and has produced 98 this year. Her mother was a good layer, but the feathered family lost the family Bible and Lady Purdue has to be listed in the egg record book with "unknown ancestry" printed in parenthesis after her name. She knows how to lay eggs, but is cackled at by aristocratic pure bred hens with established ancestry.

Nearly 11,000 farmers started improved their flocks by using pure bred male birds as a result of the extension work carried on by federal poultry experts last year. More than 300,000 farmers added some improved methods of poultry production to their systems of managing flocks, including culling, better feeding, controlling diseases, and buying better stock.

The ideal time for pullets to start laying is the latter part of October, according to H. L. Kempster of the Missouri station. He says this will make them molt about Dec. 1, which will give the producer the high prices for November eggs.

A Rainbow Garden of Tulips for $2.00

In the May flowering tulips, with their huge blossoms on stately stems, we find the supreme expression of color. No other flower can compare with the wide range of brilliant and delicate tints and shades which is offered by the Darwin, Cottage, and Breeder types. They will provide a brilliant spring show in any garden.

"RAINBOW COLLECTION" with planting directions, 50 bulbs, 5 each of ten varieties, postpaid 300 miles, for $2.

Beginners' Bulb Offer

To introduce you to the joy of spring flowering bulbs, we will send the following bulbs, all of first quality; 6 crocuses, 6 early tulips, 6 May flowering tulips, 3 narcissi, 3 daffodils—24 bulbs for $1.00, postpaid.

Water Flowering Narcissi

They will come to flower in bowls of gravel and water, or fibre and water, and produce flowers for the holidays. Only large bulbs produce good flowers; the larger the finer. We offer the pick of the excellent crop harvested this year in France. Fancy bulbs, 60 cents per dozen; mammoth bulbs (14 ctm.), 70c per dozen; jumbo bulbs (15 ctm.), 85c per dozen. These prices are postage prepaid; cash and carry, 10 cents per dozen less.

Nickel Radiator
Disc Wheels
Natural Wood Wheels optional (with Balloon Tires only)
Doors front and rear of standard width
Trunk at rear unusually large
Generous seating space and leg room, particularly in the rear

$576 Cash or Trade
Balance Easy Monthly Payments

The NEW HUPMOBILE CLUB SEDAN Is One of the Great Attractions at Our Autumn Enclosed-Car Show

where you can also see the De Luxe Sedan—the Two and Four Passenger Coupe

Every up-to-date feature you can desire in a closed car, at a price notably low for such a car as Hupmobile.

The Club Sedan gives you a degree of comfort and convenience rarely found in its type. Three large doors afford independent entrance, and both rear-seat and front-seat passengers have ample leg room.

Moreover, you have balloon tires, disc or natural wood wheels, color choice of either beige or blue Duco finish, and other advantages—all for a delivered price that brings this model within the reach of new thousands.

The logic of selecting the Club Sedan in preference to closed cars which cannot compare with Hupmobile, must make powerful appeal to any careful buyer.

MOTOR CARS of a DIFFERENT SCHOOL

INSTEAD of making a motor car to be traded in after three or four years of use, a distinctly new principle in motor car design and construction is presented in a new ten year car—the Jay-Eye-See.

This achievement in automobile construction is the result of years of painstaking effort. The highest possible degree of refinement and permanency has been attained by an ingenious process of development.

Not only have the chassis and mechanical parts of this car been made supremely fine but the finish and all details add permanent distinction. But more important than good appearance is the absolute certainty that this car will serve you as faithfully and unfailingly years from now as it does the first year you drive it.

Whether you are considering the purchase of an automobile or not, be sure to see the Jay-Eye-See and get the surprising, heretofore confidential story of its development.

GRAINS ADVANCE AGAIN; JAPAN IS AMONG BUYERS

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain markets yesterday resumed their upward trend.

While they failed to get into new ground, the close was at net gains of 1⅝@3⅛c on wheat. Corn was up ½@1⅞c, oats ⅝@1⅛c, and rye 1½@2⅝c.

Entrance of several new countries into the market as buyers of wheat, Japan taking two cargoes at the Pacific coast as well as buying futures in Liverpool, while Switzerland also took two cargoes and Portugal was after nearly 1,000,000 bu. These factors combined with impressive strength in Winnipeg, where values were sharply higher, were sufficient to bring about a change in local sentiment. The advance easily was attained.

Rye Leads Week's Upturn.

Rye furnished the sensation in the grain trade during the last week, and at the close showed a net gain of 17⅞@18⅝c as compared with the previous week, while wheat was up 8¼ to 9⅝c, corn 1⅛@1⅞c, and oats 4⅝@4⅞c for the week. Foreigners took provisions on a liberal scale with advances to a new high for the season on lard. The close was 90c@$1.20 higher on lard, 45c on ribs and $1.05 on bellies.

Rain and snow which promise to delay the movement in the Canadian northwest caused considerable apprehension in Winnipeg among shorts in the October delivery and they covered freely. There also was back spreading between Chicago and that market. With some buying by exporters, net gains there were 4¾@6⅝c, with October $1.63 at the last, the highest figure on the crop. Calls sold at $1.72 there after the close. Final trades on December here were $1.48¼ to $1.48⅜, May at $1.52⅞ to $1.53, with a high of $1.53¼. July closed at $1.39⅝.

Big Export Demand.

Export demand was reported as very slow in some quarters, while in others there were claims of a big demand and sales at the seaboard were finally estimated at 2,000,000 bu. Exporters bought around 1,000,000 bu domestic springs at Duluth. No sales were claimed here. Liverpool was only ¼ to ⅝d lower at the last, the buying of futures by Japan being a feature.

Forecast for wet and much colder over the corn belt, with freezing temperatures over the northern sections of the belt, brought in a better class of buying in corn and the finish was $1.11⅞ to $1.12 on December, $1.14⅝@1.15 on May and $1.15⅝ on July, December touching $1.09 at the opening of 1⅞c under Friday's close on execution of stop loss orders by commission houses, while the top was $1.12⅛.

Oats Sold for Export.

Winnipeg oats are selling at 7⅝@8½c over Chicago, and the wide discount of American grain is attracting considerable attention. There was rather free buying on the belief that a good export business would be done in domestic grain on account of the wide difference, and the market advanced quickly. The seaboard reported 100,000 bu sold for export.

Heavy commission house selling was in evidence in rye, but there was aggressive buying and at the last December was $1.33⅝ and May $1.37½, the best figures of the day. Export sales were only 100,000 bu.

Lard Sold for Export.

A liberal export business was put through in lard at the seaboard overnight and removal of hedges by cash houses had considerable influence on values. The close was at net gains of 32½@55c on lard, with ribs 10@11c higher and ribs 10c higher to 7½c lower. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date aggregate 4,121,000 against 4,325,000 last year. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Conflicting reports came from the seaboard as to export business in wheat. The larger interests reported sales of 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 bu. Japan was reported to have taken two cargoes of No. 3 Manitoba from the Pacific coast, Switzerland two cargoes and the United Kingdom and the continent also bought grain, largely hard winters and Duluth springs.

Duluth reported around 1,000,000 bu sold to the seaboard for export. There has been some reselling of durums of late, but in many instances it has been replaced with hard winters at a discount. Rye sales were only 100,000 bu.

Advance in futures checked domestic demand for cash grain here during the day, with sales of only 3,000 bu wheat, 15,000 bu corn and 35,000 bu oats. Deliveries on October contracts were 31,000 bu corn.

Demand for cash wheat was fair with the basis little changed at 3¼@4½c over December for No. 2 red and 2@3c over for No. 3 red. No. 2 hard was ½c over to ¼c under the future and No. 3 hard ½@1c under. Receipts, 115 cars. Outside markets were unchanged to 2½c higher, with St. Louis leading.

Offerings of cash corn were fair and the basis here about ½c lower as compared with the December. No. 2 mixed sold at 2@2½c over, with yellow at 3@3½c and white at 2½@3c over. Receipts, 151 cars. Outside markets were unchanged to 2c lower.

Cash oats sold fairly with No. 2 white 1¼@1½c and No. 3 white 3¼@3½c under December. Receipts, 143 cars.

STEEL MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—STEEL—Prices unchanged.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

The local unlisted securities market continued active with a generally strong undertone last week.

By-Products Coke made a further advance of 8 points to 40 bid. The preferred was in demand at 103. Chicago Railway Equipment common was up 2 points at 43 bid, offered at 45. The preferred was also stronger at 25 bid, 27 asked. Interstate Iron and Steel moved up 4 points to sales at 63. Stock was wanted at the close at this figure with offerings at 66. Kellogg company improved $1 to 22 bid. Palmolive common was 10 points higher, 70 being freely bid. Numerous buying inquiries for Bucyrus common forced this issue 6 points higher to 89, while the preferred was wanted at 101.

Congress Hotel common, which has been dormant for some time, was in demand at 117. Creamery Package sold at 31¼, and was later quoted extra 50c regular dividend and 50c extra, at 30c bid, 31½ asked. Brunswick-Balke-Collender common rose some 2 points to 95 bid, offered at 96. In selling at 96¼, the preferred regained its dividend. After selling at 105, Insurance Exchange preferred closed with stock offered at this figure and buyers at 104. Federal Electric preferred changed hands at 23.

Considerable irregularity was noted in the public utility shares. Continental Gas and Electric was the feature, advancing from opening sales around 78 to high sales at 100. This improvement was occasioned by the announcement of the United Light and Power company to acquire the Continental Gas and Electric company by exchanging one and one-fifth shares of United Light and Power class "B" preferred and 1 share of United Light and Power class "A" common for each share of Continental Gas and Electric common. American Public Utilities was again active, high sales being made at 96. After selling up 4 points to 91, Lehigh Power securities closed easier at 88½@89½.

United Light and Power class "A" common warrants improved from 14½ to high sales at 21, but later reacted to 17 bid, 18 asked. American Super Power improved fractionally to sales at 26. Commonwealth Power Corporation common was weak, reacting from 110 to low sales at 101, closing at 102. Western Power common, after selling up to 44, eased off to low and last sales at 39⅞. Northern Ontario Light and Power common declined to 44 from a high of 48. Stock was wanted at this figure at the close with offerings at 45.

Little trade was noted in the sugar group, although prices were generally firm. Closing bid and asked prices follow: Columbia, 6½@6⅞; Godchaux preferred, 29@30½; Holland-St. Louis, 4@4½; Michigan, 6⅝@6⅞.

In the motor group Paige-Detroit was without feature, sales again ranging between 14 and 14½. Ford of Canada was weak, relinquishing 11 points in selling off to low and last sales at 434. Timken Axle and Motor Products were easier, the former selling off fractionally to 3⅞ bid, 4 asked, and the latter some 2 points to 86 bid, 88 asked.

RAW SILK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—RAW SILK—Unchanged.

U. S. VALUATION OF I. C. REVEALS NO "WATERING"

BY O. A. MATHER.

The much repeated charge by radical politicians of "watered" railroad securities got another jolt yesterday. It came in a tentative valuation by the interstate commerce commission of the Illinois Central, one of the big systems of the country.

The Illinois Central is valued at $347,630,187 as of June 30, 1915. That was nine years ago and nobody would deny there has been a considerable appreciation since then.

Worth More Now.

At the date of valuation, the Illinois Central carried its property at a book value of only $156,391,814 and its total assets at only $229,163,505.

Furthermore, against the commission's valuation of $347,630,187, the total par value of Illinois Central securities outstanding was only $263,106,146. This was divided into $153,212,700 funded, $109,293,446 common stock, and $600,000 non-negotiable debt of affiliated companies.

The commission fixed the cost of reproduction of Illinois Central directly owned lines, new, as $196,139,392 and the cost of reproduction, less depreciation, at $147,365,286. Cost of reproduction for both owned lines and those owned by subsidiaries was set at $322,514,050 and cost of reproduction, less depreciation, at $250,954,823.

Assets Exceed Capitalization.

While these figures are based on valuations of nine years ago, and also show assets much in excess of capitalization, Illinois Central officials indicated yesterday they will contend that the commission's valuation was still below actual value.

ADDRESS A L 118, TRIBUNE

Barron's and Foreign Bonds

In August, BARRON'S, the National Financial Weekly, announced a series of eight weekly articles on foreign government loans by William L. Raymond, author of "American and Foreign Investment Bonds" and "State and Municipal Bonds."

The widespread response to this announcement and the general interest in foreign bonds, heightened by the adoption of the Dawes Plan, has led to the decision to increase the number to a total of fifteen articles. Mr. Raymond is now in Europe gathering the additional data to complete the series.

Six articles have already appeared, dealing with the national credit and government loans of the United States, Great Britain, France, Russia, Austria, and Hungary. A limited number of the copies of BARRON'S containing these articles can still be supplied at the regular price of 20 cents a copy.

The seventh article appearing in BARRON'S of October 6th, which will cover Brazil, Argentina, and Uruguay can be obtained at the prominent news-stands.

The remaining eight articles will include discussions of the bond issues of Belgium

Bolivia
Canada
Chile
Czecho-Slovakia
Denmark
Dutch East Indies
Finland
Holland
Italy

With week-end hog supplies hardly large enough to test prices, being considerably below trade requirements, market ruled strong to 10c higher, although top and average prices held steady at $11.35 and $10.60, respectively, due to quality. Outsiders were principal buyers, taking over 1,500, with practically all of the number left over being pen holders.

Favorably influenced by immense decreases in hog receipts, and wider domestic outlet for products, values of live swine have gained fully 85@90c since a week ago and $1.25@1.35 in two weeks, with instances of even sharper advances on packing grades. Traders placed Monday's probable receipts at 35,000, against actual arrivals of 56,826 a year ago, which was the largest day in October, 1923, when the week's total reached 172,786.

Receipts Continuing Small.

Hog receipts last week totaled 87,100, smallest since October, 1920, being 9,700 smaller than arrivals previous week, 62,100 smaller than a year ago and 23,700 below the ten year average. Shipments from Chicago at 29,600 were practically 35 per cent of the week's offerings and about the same number shipped out the previous week.

Estimated average weight of hogs at Chicago last week at 244 lbs, stood 2 lbs heavier than previous week, 1 lb heavier than a year ago and 13 lbs above the ten year average. General average price of hogs last week at $10.15, stands highest since July, 1922, being 60c above previous week, $2.45 higher than a year ago and $1.50 above the ten year average.

Good Net Advance.

After a sensational jump in value early last week, cattle lost practically half of the advance, but closed mostly 50c above a week ago, with weighty steers sharing in the full gain. The week's general average price of good beef cattle figured at $10.10, there being only one higher week this year. The average stands $1.35 above the low week in June.

Prime 984@1,011 lb yearlings brought $12.00, the week's top. Fancy pure bred Angus heifers, averaging 828 lbs, reached $11.30. Butcher stock advanced unevenly during the week, with best light young stock up sharpest. Stockers and feeders closed 25@50c higher. Calves gained 50c. Cattle receipts last week at 56,300 were smallest in nearly two months, barring holiday periods, including 9,500 western rangers, against 14,000 previous week and 21,000 a year ago.

Sheep Receipts Large.

An increase in western range lamb offerings swelled last week's sheep receipts to 127,800, the second largest of the year. However, notwithstanding this big increase in supplies, killing stock ruled on a strong to higher trend from start to finish, closing fully 25@50c above a week ago. Fat aged sheep were highest in six weeks, while top lambs at $13.35, stood highest since Sept. 15. Strength in the feeder division vanished after midweek, although closing prices held about steady with a week ago and 15@25c under the recent high time.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 19,000 cattle, 35,000 hogs, and 22,000 sheep, against 19,633 cattle, 27,415 hogs, and 23,734 sheep a week ago, and 30,111 cattle, 56,826 hogs, and 25,189 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 65,000 cattle, 130,000 hogs, and 120,000 sheep, against 74,606 cattle, 172,786 hogs, and 123,779 sheep a year ago.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—COTTONSEED OIL—Closed at net gains of 26 to 32 points. Sales, 11,600 brls. Prime crude, 9.37½c nominal; prime yellow spot, 11.00@11.75c; October closed 11.16c; December, 10.95c; March, 11.29c; May, 11.49c, all bid.

SHARP GAINS IN COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—COTTON—Futures closed at nearly the top with an advance of about $2.50 a bale over the previous day's finish. There was a better showing in Liverpool and an increase in the general buying. Houses with spot connections took the offerings freely, shorts covering. Indications for unsettled and colder weather in the western belt were a strengthening influence. Hedging sale and profit taking were a feature toward the last. Estimates on the crop are 11,500,000 to 12,500,000 bales, based on Oct. 1 conditions, with an average around 12,000,000 bales. At the close net gains were 40@58 points. Prices follow:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.	Last year.
October	26.35	25.98	26.35	25.95	28.10

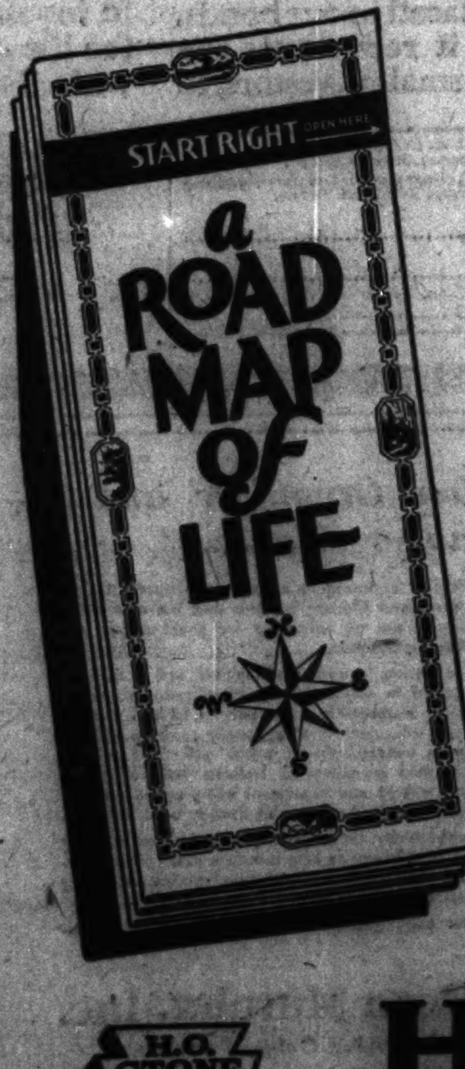
a Road Map of Life



NEVER in your life have you seen anything like this—a marvelous map wonderfully illustrated in richest colors to show you how to get where we all want to go—to Independence—to Easy Street. And regardless of its great cost, it's yours for the asking.

The illustrations here can hardly give you a faint idea of what this unique production is like. It sells nothing. It's a service into which this house has put thousands of dollars and nearly ninety years of investment experience.

This Marvelous Map Is Yours—Free of Charge

Unfold it page by page until you spread out its full 56 inches of panorama. Pictures by a noted artist delight you. Clever cartoons make you say "That's just what happened to me!" Onward you go and see the joy-riders on the Road of Extravagance and what a detour down Get Rich Quick Road will do to you. You laugh heartily at the calamities happening in cartoons to the adventurers on these roads. Yet real experience is back of these pictures—they may save you the loss of all you possess.

On the Main Highway

On the other hand, you profit positively by the road signs, pictures and cartoons on the Main Highway to Independence.

Here you find real opportunities for your money. You see why thrift brings happiness, puts men and women into business for themselves and makes joyful homes.

Travel this road for a while and you find it leads into beautiful EASY STREET where everyone wants to live. Here are model homes, automobiles, recreation, hospitality, the good things of life, financial independence. And in the distance the sunset of life provided for.

Though years of preparation and heavy expenditures have gone into the Road Map of Life, we want to send it to you without a cent's charge or a hint of obligation. You'll find it more wonderful than you imagine. It must be seen, its pleasures and pointers shared with your family. Call or mail this coupon.

Are You Interested in Building INDEPENDENT INCOME

Why should you read this unusual Free Book

You should have this book if you are interested in any living problem. It answers the questions that trouble the rich as well as the poor—the wage-earner as well as the high-salaried man—the young man or woman—the father or mother—or the boy or girl in school.

Do any of these problems worry you?

1 Do you earn a good salary, but find you are unable to lay up anything for the future?
2 Are you wealthy, but feel that you are not getting all you should out of life?
3 Does the problem of building an independent income concern you?
4 Do you worry about your children's future?
5 Can a person save too much?
6 How can you provide your family with the good things of life?
7 Can a man or woman on small wages become independent without speculative risk?
8 What is the difference between speculation and investment?
9 Shall I buy stocks or bonds?
10 Are all bonds equally safe?

ALL these and many more moral, living and financial problems are answered in this free book. It is a book with a safe, healthful view point. A book that gives hope and points the certain road to a happier, fuller life to rich—to poor—to those who spend too much and save too little—as well as to those who save and sacrifice too much and spend too little.

Phone, Call or Send Coupon. The book costs nothing and may give you much. No salesman will call.

WORDS OF MAGIC STILL SOUGHT TO RIGHT WORLD

BY SCRUTATOR.

From an evolutionary standpoint the Constitution of the United States may be regarded as a link in the chain of social theory worked out by judicial process which underlies our form of civilization. It, in a measure, constituted a ratification of a process which destroyed feudal status and made modern business possible by putting men on a contractual basis with one another.

But it is more. It extends the doctrine of contract to the relations between man and the state, even when the state may claim to represent a majority of one's fellows.

In that and in its provisions for amendment of the contract only by extremely deliberate processes, the constitution recognizes a social fact considered extremely important in this day, when the influence of heredity on human destiny is so much better understood than when the constitution was adopted.

That is that society or the "social organism" consists not only of the present generation but of those yet unborn, and that it may well happen that the temporary interests or immediate happiness of those now living are not altogether consistent with the interests of future generations. It attempts to conserve the social inheritance of capital, culture, and habits that give the civilized man his advantage over the savage.

That fact explains much of the opposition to the constitution and the Supreme court, which is only one phase of the general assault on business.

Stripped of nonessentials, the whole thing is a reaction toward discarded social forms by those elements of modern society who are not well adapted to industrial freedom and the individual responsibility that it demands.

Our constitutional system is workable only by a people of good mentality and morals. It is part of a civilization based on the sanctity of the pledge and the ability to take thought of the morrow, the two things that distinguish the man from the child, the citizen from the barbarian.

Our constitution does violence to another vestigal human trait. In setting up a contractual relation between the individual and the state it shears from the state its pretensions to omnipotence. It minimizes the complex of ideas summed up in that word, "sovereignty."

In his speculations on magic, totemism, and taboo, Freud advanced the idea that the savage and the child consider themselves all powerful.

When contradicted by the facts of life they are not convinced. The child goes off into the realm of "make believe" and "let's pretend." The savage resorts to the world of magic, spells, incantations, and images. How plausibly this fits the mental phenomena of contemporary politics!

The same superstition as to the power of the state, the potency of a majority, the virtue of an act of the legislature! Phrases and panaceas to match the philters of witchcraft!

Investors' Fidelity and Deposit Co.

Last February we published an article describing a plan under which the small investor could purchase stocks on the partial payment plan with an absolute guarantee that the stocks had actually been purchased for and would be delivered to him when paid for. This was known as the "Gaines plan," and a company composed of reputable Chicago business men and known as the Investors' Fidelity and Deposit company was formed to operate under this plan.

This company has been doing business for some months, and, we are informed, has been attaining a measure of success and living up to its agreements with its customers.

It now develops, however, that the company has made some alterations in the original plan, and, as we described to our readers the elements of safety against possible fraud in the first plan, we feel it our duty to point out to them the change that has been adopted.

One of the chief factors of safety was the agreement in the contract that the stock selected by the customer would be bought outright by the company and deposited in one of the Chicago banks or trust companies, which bank or trust company would send the investor a receipt showing that the stock was being held in his name and giving the certificate number and number of shares. This was one of the strongest points in the plan and the one which made it practically fraud-proof.

This part of the plan has been altered and the company no longer agrees to give the purchaser this safeguard. No mention of such an agreement is made in the new contract which has just been adopted. Officials of the company inform us that the banks do not wish to carry the stocks in the name of the customer while he is paying for them, and that instead the stock will be purchased for the customer but carried in the name of the company's treasurer. When it is deposited in the bank the bank will issue a receipt for it to the company, stating the number of shares held and giving the certificate number. The company says that it then will send this receipt to the customer. This is not specified in the contract, but we have no reason to doubt that they will do it. This feature, however, lacks the protection afforded the investor under the original plan, as the stock is not held in the bank in his name and could be withdrawn at any time without his consent or knowledge.

We do not want or intend in any way to reflect on the integrity of the officers and directors of this company. We have been to some pains to ascertain their standing, and believe them to be thoroughly reputable business men. We want simply to point out that the change in their plan of operation which we have described has, to our mind, removed one of the elements of safety which caused us to comment favorably on the original plan.

In order to deal fairly with those who purchased stocks through them under the old plan, the company is sending out letters informing these customers of the change in methods and asking their assent to the new plan, offering them the privilege of canceling their contracts if they do not care to give this assent. This seems eminently fair and an indication of good faith on the part of the company.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

The grain trade last night was bullish. A good many lines sold out Friday were reinstated in wheat and rye early in the day. The seaboard and Winnipeg were bullish, while the cash trade here complained about inability to sell wheat to the east. The inclination of the trade is to look for higher prices on all grains.

Wheat market has become a big professional affair with more outside interest than at any time this year.

Big buying of May corn was on by houses that have been bullish for some time. Many local professionals also are working on that side, while houses that have been large buyers at times are disposed to sell and consider the market as more of a two sided affair.

A local trader discussing the reports of export buying of oats says it is well to consider the fact that Argentina is selling oats freely. The United States has a big surplus of oats and with prices relatively low a foreign demand is expected later.

"Bulling wheat at $1.50 in October will hurt somebody," says John C. Husted of C. A. King & Co., Toledo. "This country has eight months ahead in which to economize. Bread prices have staid down, but may advance any moment. Prosperity in the bank but not with the people will cause sharp reduction in our consumption. Stop, look and listen."

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1924: Fairchild News Service.]

MANCHESTER, N. H.—The 10 per cent wage cut which employés of the Amoskeag Manufacturing company agreed to accept in order that the selling price of goods might be lowered and thus increase production, has been indefinitely postponed by the company. The cut was to have become effective Monday and the same day the company was to announce a reduction in the selling price of all of its goods. However, the unexpected rise in raw cotton during the week has made it impossible to cut the prices of goods at present, and, while the present prices obtain, the management will pay workers at the old rate.

WALL STREET NOTES

The general stock list was unsettled at the close yesterday by a selling attack directed against Illinois Central issues, following publication of reports that an $11,000,000 issue of preferred stock shortly would be offered to common stockholders for subscription. While the rumors of new financing lacked official confirmation, both the common and preferred shares were under pressure, yielding 2 and 2¼ points respectively.

Railway Steel Spring declined 3 points and losses of 1 to 2 points were registered by Fisher Body, Stromberg Carburetor, American Chicle, Mack Truck first preferred, Union Tank Car, Woolworth and Otis Steel preferred. The motor, food, tobacco and public utility shares gave the best demonstrations of group strength, although the price movements in each was by no means uniform.

"Location of the Property"!
A VITAL FACTOR TO THE INVESTOR

IN A GREAT city like Chicago, adding thousands to its population every year, it might be thought, upon shallow consideration, that any location, by virtue of its being within this great city, is one destined to increase its value.

We have found that locations which, in their day, were considered quite superior, have by reason of certain conditions, not only failed to hold to their then valuation, but instead have actually decreased. Other properties, coming within the scope of our knowledge have increased in value due to certain distinguishable conditions.

It is a complete understanding of these conditions, gathered over a period of 69 years of experience in the real estate loan business, which makes it possible to anticipate today the conditions of tomorrow, as they affect location.

There are convincing arguments of safety in every issue offered by Baird & Warner.

3000 Miles of Dollar Bills

IF all the money which has been invested in Lackner, Butz & Company bonds were converted into dollar bills and placed end to end, they would stretch from Maine to California.

That all this money has been entrusted to us is convincing evidence of the confidence which is placed in our bonds. Much of it represents the savings of small investors, to whom the loss of either interest or principal would mean severe hardship.

Our First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds are protected by every safeguard that 20 years' experience can devise. We firmly believe that they represent the ultimate of safety in investment. Send coupon for list of issues yielding 7% with absolute safety.

Association Organizer and Manager Wanted

There is in process of organization a large and important civic association of which prominent Chicago business men are now members. The Association is not an enterprise for profit and is not sponsored by professional promoters.

A program of expansion is now contemplated and a man of unusual ability is required to assume charge of carrying out plans for quickly increasing the membership. The man to fill this position successfully must be well educated, of exceptionally pleasing address, possess ability to speak convincingly at public gatherings and to confer effectively with men prominent in business and social life. He must have initiative, energy and experience along selling and advertising lines, the kind of man who invariably finishes what he starts.

This is a rare opportunity for a man of unquestioned integrity and reputation for accomplishment to help launch a great civic enterprise, and at the same time receive liberal compensation according to results obtained.

Address by letter only, giving fullest details regarding experience and record.

STOCKS SEESAW WITH FADING OF POLITICAL SCARE

The New York Times.

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—Today's week-end stock market threw no fresh light on the actual state of the financial mind, regarding presidential politics or anything else.

In one sense it might have been called an active market, for total transactions were much the largest of any Saturday since August. It was the fourth largest two-hour market of the year. But a survey of the day's movement of prices showed little but confusion and indecision. There was no uniform direction to this movement. Advances of 1 to 3 points occurred, and so did declines of exactly similar extent.

Market Action Affords Comfort.

On the whole, the market's action reassured speculative Wall street, because at least half of the market had recovered from the previous day's "political scare" and resultant collapse of prices. But it was quite impossible to discern any actual tendency.

Taking the market as a whole and judging from the "averages," railway shares declined fractionally, industrial shares advanced fractionally and the average was raised about ⅛ point.

About all that could be said of the day's business was that the violent decline of Friday was brought to a halt.

Small Price Changes Predominate.

With the exception of a few high priced issues, net changes at the close were generally confined to small fractions. The extent of the recovery, however, was small. Only a few issues were up a point or more.

Bethlehem Steel was the feature of the independent steel group, advancing about a point in connection with unconfirmed rumors of pending mergers. Illinois Central dropped back sharply on reports to the effect that the company is contemplating offering additional preferred stock. Oil shares as a group were firm, especially the fuel oil stocks.

New York Banks Stronger.

In view of the attention paid a week before to the deficit in the statement of the New York associated banks, their statement today was not without significance. The preceding deficit of $19,587,000 was changed to a surplus reserve of $42,169,000, a change explainable wholly by the $68,665,000 increase reported in the actual reserve held for member banks by the reserve bank.

This is a far more rapid recovery of position than occurred after any other recent "deficit week." It would seem to foreshadow easy money.

Chicago stocks were quiet and generally weak yesterday, although price changes were fractional in the active issues. Stewart-Warner declined a major fraction and smaller losses occurred in Swift International and Union Carbide. Montgomery Ward gained half a point and International Lamp was about steady. On small sales, United Light and Power "A" common declined 1¼ but the "B" preferred shares advanced 2⅛. Yellow Taxi gained a small fraction. The governors admitted to trading $3,500,000 Pacific Spruce corporation first mortgage and refunding 6½ per cent sinking funds bonds, an additional 50,000 shares of Wolff Manufacturing company non-par common stock and an additional 25,000 shares of Borg & Beck company non-par common stock.

Ford Owners

Get Rid of That Scared
Feeling

Whether you operate one Ford or a hundred we want you to make a trial of the NO KICK TIMER now. How much money will it save you in a year if the NO KICK TIMER pays for itself in 2,000 miles as we claim?

Can you afford to be without this remarkable, yet inexpensive improvement, that gives heretofore-unheard-of safety and added efficiency in starting and operating Ford motors?

Please do not form an opinion of any kind until you have proved it yourself. Just glance over this ad; then telephone or call on the nearest dealer for a NO KICK TIMER on our 10 Day Trial basis.

SAFETY Removes all danger of injury to your arm or damage to your starter from "Kick Backs" resulting from the disastrous second spark. The ingenious RECEDING CAM FINGER makes ignition contact impossible upon a reverse movement of the motor. It relieves you of "That Scared Feeling."

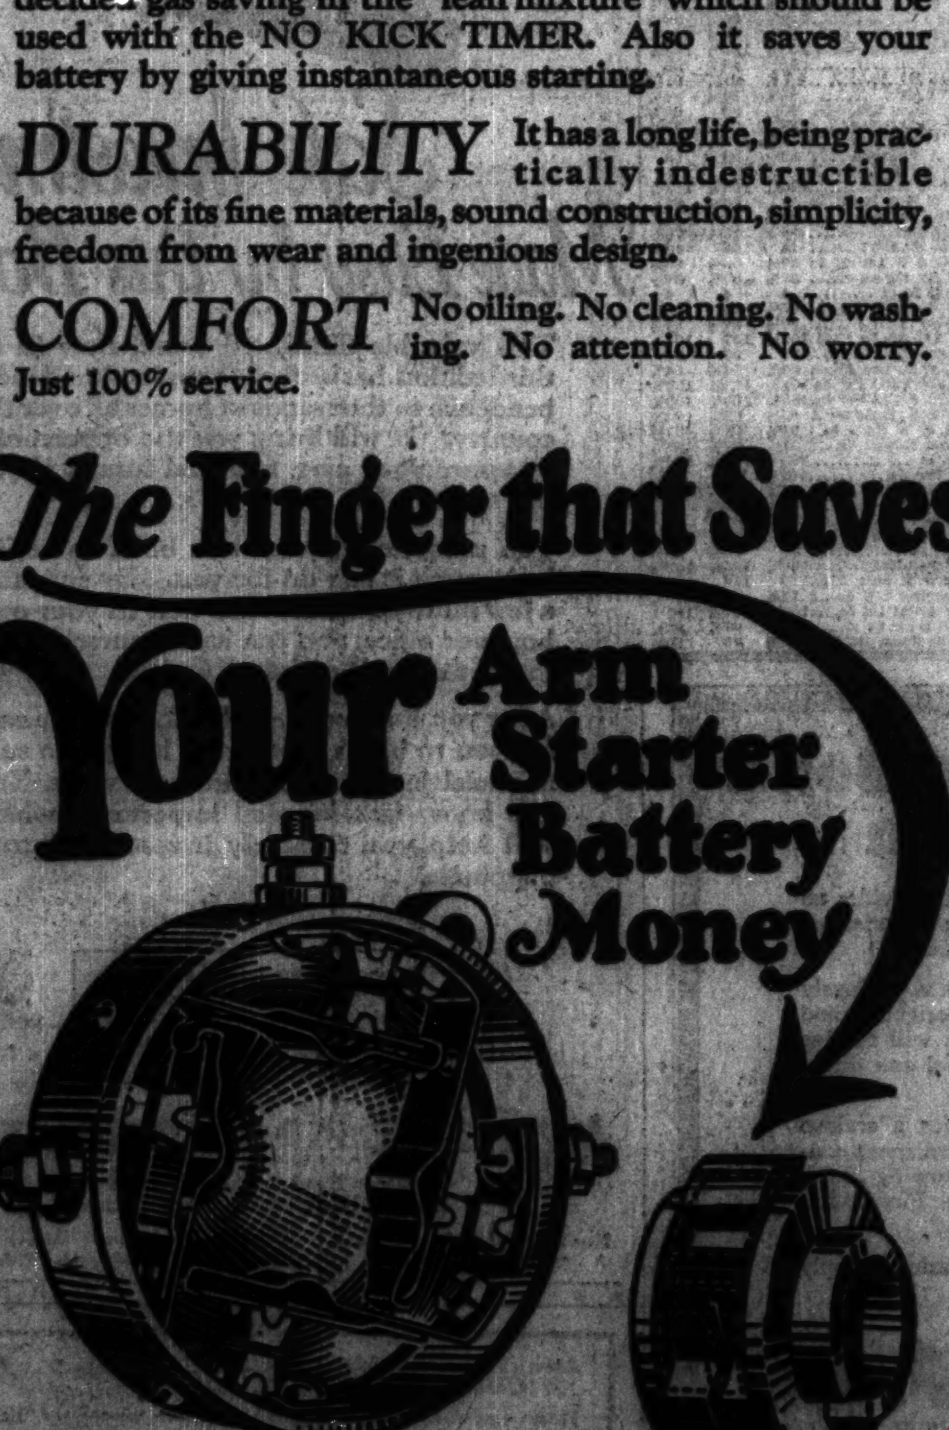
POWER Superfine CARBON GRAPHITE contacts produce a HOT SPARK of GREATER INTENSITY. This gives greater power from vastly improved gas combustion and the least carbonization.

ECONOMY A remarkable gasoline saving comes from the Intensely Hot Spark and Complete Combustion. In addition there is a decided gas saving in the "lean mixture" which should be used with the NO KICK TIMER. Also it saves your battery by giving instantaneous starting.

DURABILITY It has a long life, being practically indestructible because of its fine materials, sound construction, simplicity, freedom from wear and ingenious design.

COMFORT No oiling. No cleaning. No washing. No attention. No worry. Just 100% service.

The Finger that Saves Your Arm Starter Battery Money



NO KICK TIMER

For Ford Cars Trucks and Tractors

Just put it on your Ford motor and forget it. It is the last word in efficient ignition, mechanical ingenuity and long-lasting service.

It gives you all the service of an expensive distributor ignition system plus distinct advantages of its own—all for the price of a timer.

Absolutely no second spark "Kick-backs" on the crank handle or the starter. (No injured arms or broken starter shafts.) No "Kicks" from users.

10,000 MILE GUARANTEE

With each NO KICK TIMER dealers give our Unconditional Guarantee of satisfactory service for 10,000 miles. If during this time your NO KICK TIMER should not function to your entire satisfaction, return it to your dealer or direct to us and you will receive a new one, without argument or question.

10 DAYS MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE FREE TRIAL

Every dealer handling NO KICK TIMERS is authorized to give you an unconditional 10 Days' Free Trial. Return it after 10 days and receive your money back if you are not more than satisfied. No obligation. No questions asked. If you keep it you get the 10,000 Mile Guarantee.

BEGINNING A NEW SERIAL—

Sandhills

By Hugh McNair Kahler
and Donald G. Herring

A southern love story full of action and dramatic touches

Swift rides in the night through forest and sandhills . . . a girl fighting for existence . . . moonlight raids with horse and gun . . . dark plotting and treachery . . . love and adventure help to make this new serial interesting from the forest fire in the opening installment to the great crisis of love and action in the last chapter. You will enjoy this story with its unusual setting and its dramatic situations. It is by two popular authors who have collaborated to write one of the most fascinating tales of the year.

SANDHILLS

INSTALLMENT I.

Before the Flame.

A THIN, aromatic haze clouded the spaces between the scrub oaks with a pearling mist and spiced the air with a fragrance remotely pleasant—a smell that made Jane Borden think wistfully of autumn afternoons on Long Island, of early wood fires burning cleanly in wide hearths. She enjoyed it with a hint of melancholy; they were burning leaves somewhere, she told herself; winter would be closing in soon. She gave the restless mare her head, as if to outrun the thought.

Already the ride had carried her well beyond the limits of her earlier explorations in this brown, desolate sandhill country. The barren monotony of the landscape seemed to urge her on, as if some welcome contrast must be waiting for her beyond each of the successive rises which showed their straggling profiles of stunted, scattered scrub against a gray-blue sky, and the careless, winding lanes had led her beyond any sense of location; she relied on the mare to find the way home when she was ready, and rode on, drifting through a vaguely unfriendly chain of little thoughts, her mood colored by the country.

She woke suddenly to a consciousness of the thickening haze. It stung her eyes now; the mild fragrance had become, all at once, an acrid smell that hurt her nostrils and tightened something in her throat. The mare seemingly liked it less than Jane; she flung her head nervously, snorted, and trembled. Jane emerged from a blue of unwelcome reflection to a reality still less pleasing. Stories of forest fires came back to her with a sudden terrifying force; the smoke had followed her stealthily, like a sly, hungry beast; until it was near enough to spring.

Fear was a novelty in itself. Jane Borden could not remember ever having felt as she felt now, and the realization that she was afraid helped to clear her mind; panic was an affair of fools. She had read, with a contemptuous pity, of people who went suddenly mad in an emergency, and the thought that she could be as witless spurred into wakefulness a pride of intellect.

The fire couldn't be near or she would see or hear it; there must be time to ride around it. She remembered the fatal blunder would be to run before it; the wind was perceptibly rising and touched now with an admonitory warmth; the smoke thickened quickly as she reined in the mare and tried to think. Far away noises came to her, a succession of faint, popping sounds like distant gunfire. Terror swooped down on her; she fought it back, clinging tightly to her self-control as to an only chance of escape. She forced herself to reason; it might be better, after all, to run before the flames on the chance of finding a stream or a clearing.

Plainly the mare agreed. It needed no touch of the spur to send her at a gallop along the rutted sand of the land. As the road lifted to the crest of another low ridge Jane felt the hot wind more distinctly. Beyond, where the path dipped toward a branch with its evergreen margin of thorn and creeper, the air was cooler and cleaner, and she thought of people in stories who had saved their lives by cowering in some little stream till the flames had passed. Again she hesitated; farther on there might be no better chance than this brook; she rose in her stirrups, twisting in the saddle to look behind her, and the mare, as if aware of her lessened attention, chose the moment for a desperate leap forward.

A low branch seemed to thrust out like an arm and snatch Jane from the saddle. She found herself ankle deep in the boggy leaf mould beside the branch, staring through the smoke that had swallowed the horse. Fear lay on her now like a tangible thing, so that she lifted her arms as if to throw off a suffocating weight. The snap and crack of the fire behind her was suddenly near and dreadful, urging her forward into the little stream. It was barely deep enough to cover her feet; she realized that there was no safety in it, plunged across to the farther bank, running clumsily in her awkward riding boots.

The smoke was thick and hot as she came to the crest of the next rise; she choked and strangled and her eyes closed obstinately against the fumes. She stumbled on blindly, one arm over her eyes, breathing, when she must, through the sleeve of her coat, crashing into the thin, hostile scrub, scarcely feeling the slash and whip of low, brittle branches that tried to catch and hold her back, intent on closing her brain against the paralysis of fear.

Impersonally, a part of her intelligence seemed to stand back and ridicule her. This desperate struggle was a mere flourish, with no one to see and applaud; the end of it was visible and sure. She was on hands and knees, now, crawling before a dancing fire that leaped and chuckled and sang behind her. It was all silly, all a part of that folly that had brought her into this wilderness, had tempted her to this ride, had given the mare that chance to unseat her. All silly and all futile; she might as well——

A VOICE came to her, a deep, clear, carrying hail through the smoke. She tried to answer, but her tormented lungs could only cough and strangle. She scrambled toward the sound, sobbing. The fire was close now. She could feel the hot breath of it on her neck. Again the shout reached her, nearer now; she could hear a crashing in the dry wood; through the smoke she saw dimly a figure running toward her. She managed to lift her arms.

"All right. I see you."

She crouched, her arms over her face, a great wave of relief rising in her. Queer that she should take it for granted, like this. As if this man could keep that fire from harming her. After all——

Fear came back to her as he stood beside her. What could he do? Carry her faster than the fire. Wasn't he trapped, as she was?

"Didn't you have a match?"

He spoke with a perceptible touch of reproof, she thought. A match! With the world burning up behind her! She heard her choking laugh. An idiot—a man crazed by his danger, perhaps. She saw him stoop and cup his hands about a tiny flame, saw the tinder dry tuft of bunch grass blaze up at her feet, saw him spread the flame swiftly in a wide swatch before them. She cried out.

"O, don't! Now it's on both sides of us."

He did not answer. A great roaring rank of flames fled away across the grass. Behind them, terribly close, another line of fire ran up, a narrowing island of safety between.

"O, why did you do that?" She wrung her hands. "We had a chance——"

"Don't talk." He pulled her abruptly to her feet. "You're safe now."

She was too spent to resist. He half carried her in the path of the fire he had set. The dry grass had gone in a brief puffing flare, like an explosion, leaving the bare sand powdered with a gray, fine ash and dotted with blackened root clumps. Here and there a dead scrub oak had caught fire and blazed on; but the menace was gone; the roaring blaze outfooted them, raced on before, eating a path where they could safely follow. She understood now; fire was the only thing that could fight fire, just as the old catchword had it. She had never realized the grim truth of the mouthworn phrase. She glanced back in time to see a wave of angry flame sweep up to the spot where the man had found her and die down, as if some great hand had fallen on it.

"I beg your pardon—I didn't understand——"

"Don't talk." His voice was abrupt, as with authority, touched, she felt, with a grave rebuke. His grip on her arm urged her forward over the hot sand toward the fire that danced away from them now, like a merry, playful thing which had never meant to harm anybody. She saw it vanish suddenly, die out as quickly as the pursuing blaze had died, in a dwindling glow of scattered ember. The smoke lifted and thinned perceptibly. Above the note of the fire which had overtaken them on either side she could hear far away shouts, mellow, musical voices. The man stopped short, rubbing a sleeve across his eye.

"You will be safe now. We have back-fired here. Follow the lane to the house. They will give you care there."

SHE was displeased with herself for a mild resentment. The man had saved her life. It didn't matter if he spoke ungraciously.

"It was lucky you happened to see me." She chose the first words that offered. He frowned and she paused, puzzled at the sudden sternness of his face. It made her think of an old print that had hung in her grandfather's study—Cromwell, wasn't it, or Hampden? There was the same effect of flint in this man's face.

"It was not luck that I was there. I saw your horse when it crossed our backfire, and knew that the rider might be afoot before the flame. I went on to search and found you."

She wondered at herself for the deepening irritation. She was almost angry.

"It was lucky, wasn't it, that you should see the mare and think of her rider? If you hadn't——"

"I do not give it the name of luck." His mouth went grim. Again she thought of the man who had cut off a king's head. "You'd best go on to the house. They'll care for you."

"I—I'm sorry if anything I've said offends you." She kept her obligation before her. "I didn't mean——"

"There has been no offense." He nodded stiffly. "Your way is yonder. I must be at my work. This fire is not in hand."

She saw him striding away over the scorched earth, a long, lean, straight figure in worn corduroy. He did not look back. She watched him until a break in the level hid him, and then, still weak from the fright and struggle, she walked on in the line he had pointed. Suddenly she stopped short, staring across the clearing that opened before her. Her breath went deep, and she remembered the queer, keen pang she had felt when she had first seen a mass of men in uniform halted and motionless on a wide drill ground.

They were like an army, she thought—those great, still, straight trees that drew a line across the horizon as if on some precise parade. After the desolate monotony of the bunch grass wastes and the leafless, spindling scrub, the sight of these old pines was arresting, incredible. From where she stood Jane Borden could see that unbroken battle front for what seemed an endless distance, drawn straight across the gentle rise and fall of the bare land before her as far as her eyes could reach, their close mass of lofty foliage, high in the air, a deep, dense blue black against the hazy sky.

She stood and stared at them, vaguely conscious of shouts in the scrub behind her, of the dull noises of the fires. The forest drew her toward it at the last. She plodded through a sandy farm road that crossed the clearing between ordered ranks of low, flat fruit trees, the bared branches red and lustrous, trees that seemed absurd distortions unworthy of the name, with those high pines beyond them.

The lane led into the high wood, twisting about between the great brown boles. A thick covering of fallen needles carpeted the wide, clean spaces clear of undergrowth. Thin, faint strata of diluted smoke hung in the shadow, and the sound of the wind in the branches had the somber majesty of distant surf and something, too, of its mystery. Jane Borden had an uneasy sense of intrusion, as if she had come unbidden into the remote and guarded sanctuary of some ancient faith.

The mood was still upon her when she emerged on a little clearing in a shallow valley where a stream fed a low tangle of ever green vines and shrubs. She saw a low, four-square house of weathered wood below twin sycamores, their white and naked limbs ghostly against the background of the pines and the green creeper that hugged their trunks. Around it were old shrubberies, pruned to dense clumps of leafage almost black above the naked, gleaming sand; inclosed in a low hedge of box she saw the winter wreckage of a flower garden. The house and the silvery gray walls of the lesser buildings beyond it had the look of fixed and changeless things, as if they had been here always and would always stand.

A woman came to the door. Jane saw that she was gray, though her face was smooth and pink and her body as straight as one of the pines. The girl stood for a moment, meeting the direct look of clear gray. Then, without understanding why, she felt her lips relaxing in a smile. Here was a friend.

THE woman at the door turned abruptly and spoke in a tone of command, a voice so touched with authority that Jane Borden seemed to hear the snap of a whip in it.

"You Sallie! Carry hot water up to the west room."

She came toward Jane, walking briskly, her manner still colored by the same conviction of authority. Jane discovered a curious attitude of compliance in herself; she was reminded of the old nurse who had ruled her destinies till she was seven and whose word had been something more respectable than law.

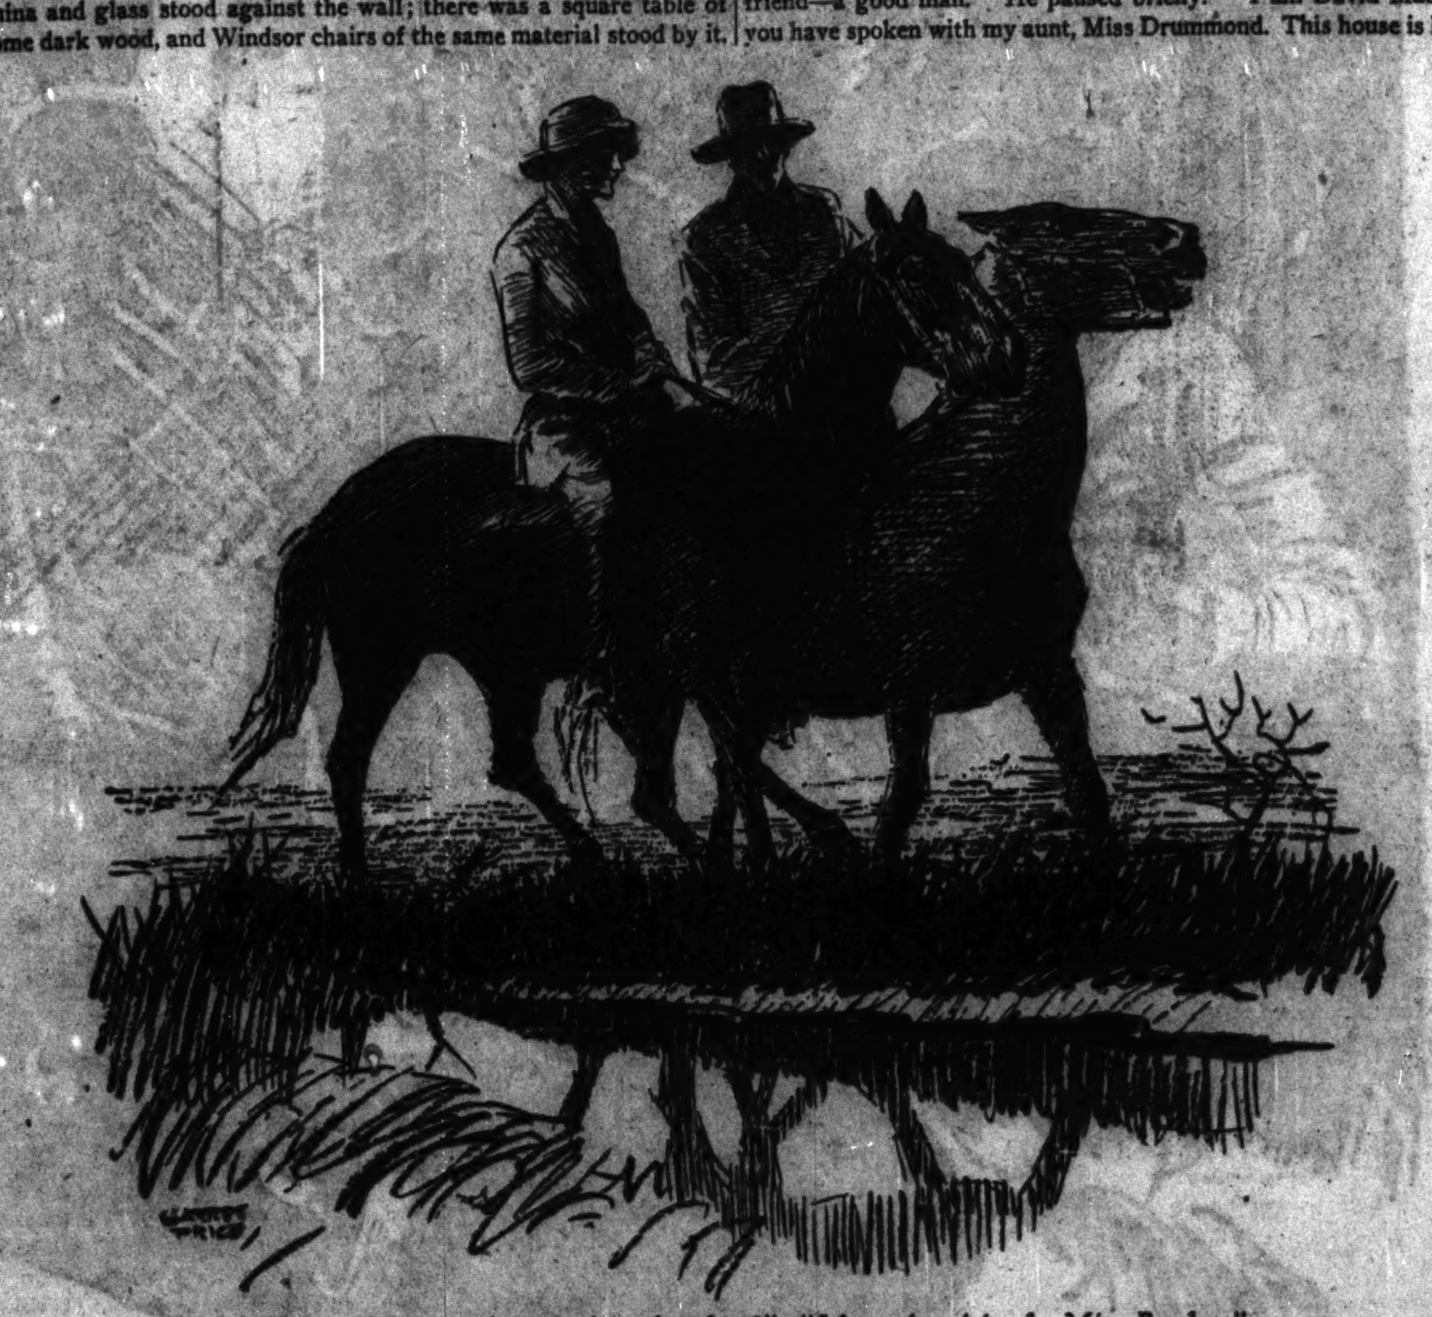
"Come in." It was less an invitation than an order, but Jane felt the cordiality below the peremptory tone and smiled as she moved forward.

"My horse was frightened by the fire and threw me," she began. "A man over there"—she gestured toward the fireline behind—"told me to come here."

"That would be Davie McIvor." The head moved in a remarkable gesture in which somehow Jane detected amusement and irritation and sort of esoteric apology. "It would be like him to—send you." There was a deep scorn in the word. "A great, lean, sober body, was it? That's Davie, then." The lips pressed grimly shut. "Come in." The tone warmed and softened. "You'll be the better for soap and water and a comb and glass."

Beneath her weariness Jane was amused and drawn. No one had spoken to her thus since old Maggie had gone home to Scotland. She liked the sense of protection in the strong arm which went about her and yielded to it gratefully. They went in.

The architecture interested her in spite of her fatigue—a low, wide roofed gallery connected two sections of the house—she guessed that the kitchen was at one end and the living quarters at the other. A door opened from it to a long, low ceiled room finished in unpainted wood instead of plaster, a straight stair ascending one wall. A great fireplace of rough stone dominated one end and an open cupboard of china and glass stood against the wall; there was a square table of some dark wood, and Windsor chairs of the same material stood by it.



"You and he—you're not friends, then?" "I have few friends, Miss Borden."

She found an effect of intentional, studied austerity, rather than poverty in the simplicity and meagerness of the room and its furnishings. Somehow they had the look of usage and utility which made her feel a decorative value completely wanting in the exotic comforts of the hunting lodge she had left—was it only a matter of hours since? Here was a house in perfect harmony with its setting, she thought, in better taste than her own.

A fat Negress appeared on the stairs, a shapeless bundle of gingham, a scarlet cloth tied over her head, a great tin water can in her hand. She showed white teeth by way of greeting, her face a net of tiny radiating lines.

"Done carried up the water, Miss Ailie."

Jane liked the voice and slurred consonants of the speech. It wasn't at all like the dialect of story books or of the stage. Already the northern bred antipathy toward the race had begun to lessen in her; these backwood Negroes were strangely appealing, utterly unlike the impersonal, mechanical servants she had known.

The stair reminded Jane that she was tired; the woman's arm about her was a welcome support, and she dropped wearily into the single hickory chair beside the four-poster, surrendering more and more to the dominant personality of the other. She heard the grateful sound of water splashing into the basin; felt a sensuous pleasure at the touch of the warm, wet cloth deftly applied to her face and hands. More and more she remembered old Meggie and the nursery at home. It occurred to her that she had grown up suddenly, had missed old Meggie more than she had known.

It was natural, somehow, to let this woman help her off with the riding boots, to accept the suggestion of a rest between the linen sheets, to drop almost instantly asleep while the descending steps still sounded on the bare treads of the stair.

SHE woke to a gentle dusk, amazingly refreshed in spite of surviving aches and stiffness, aware of an edged hunger and a sharp curiosity about this place and people. Her clothes, cleansed and pressed, were on the chair. As she dressed she analyzed her earlier impression of the room. Again she felt the intention of its bareness, the effect of a stern avoidance of the unessential. This, after all, she thought, was the sound index of what people called good taste—the limitation of furnishing and gear to need and use. Here it went deeper, she decided, as she looked more closely. She had seen such beds in antique shops; the highboy and the mirror and the chair were the sort of thing for which collectors squabbled at auction sales. She had no great knowledge of furniture as an art, but she recognized in these simple fittings a dignity and charm somehow associated only with the craftmanship of an older, simpler age.

From the stair she saw that the table had been laid for supper, old china and plain silver on the bare wood. The man who had found her in the scrub stood before the stone hearth, erect and grave and still, his glance meeting hers directly and with no touch of self-consciousness.

"Have you rested?" His voice was even, and the question, she felt, was no idle gesture of shallow courtesy, but an honest inquiry. He wanted to know.

"O, splendidly, thanks." She tried to make her answer match his tone. The word, with its intrinsic exaggeration, displeased her ear. She should have said, she thought, no more than that she had rested well. "I haven't begun to thank you for——"

He interrupted calmly. "You owe we no thanks. It was not, she felt, the insincere disclaimer of false politeness. "I did only what any man would do, given the guidance that I had."

She was dimly aware of something like reproof, and was puzzled.

"You have had a merciful escape," he went on slowly. "There is no great danger in our grass fires for those who know their ways, but to a stranger they can be deadly." His tone changed. "We have caught your mare. She has taken no harm."

Jane Borden had a queer, reluctant sense that he disliked her, disapproved of her, perhaps; that this sober courtesy covered a distrust, at least. It was absurd, of course. The opinion of a backwoods farmer mattered less than nothing to her, even though she lay under a heavy debt to him. A faint impatience toward him responded to the thought; it was too bad, she felt, that she had not been rescued by a man more sensible of the privilege. Sheppard Gail, for instance. She smiled at the idea. How he would have enjoyed it, with his elaborate flourishes of gallantry! The contrast between the two men, near neighbors, both products of the same soil and surroundings, seemed somehow to amuse her.

"YOU are Miss Borden, I think." His voice interrupted the comparison. "I remember your father. He was my father's friend—a good man." He paused briefly. "I am David MacIvor; you have spoken with my aunt, Miss Drummond. This house is hers."

She bowed in mechanical acknowledgment of the introduction. It was odd that he should claim friendship with her father, she thought. Robert Borden had been little given to easy intimacies. She remembered him—a man perpetually absorbed in affairs, kind to the little girl whose presence in his house had never seemed to be a major consideration. As a substitute, her uncle, Warren Borden, had found a ready favor with the ten year old orphan; a jolly, companionable uncle who had no dignity above games of parchesi on the floor and boisterous rough and tumble in the snow.

"I barely remember him myself," she said, rather to end an awkward pause than to inform him. "He must have had a queer fancy for this country—I mean it was odd, his caring for it as he did. He was so absorbed in his business that I can hardly picture him as liking anything else."

"He saw farther than most—your father." MacIvor spoke slowly. "He believed in this country. If he had lived——"

She found herself following this thought. If Robert Borden had lived, his daughter would not be reduced to exile in a barren waste of sand and scrub oak, with no better future before her. His brother, Warren, had been a better playmate than he, but no fit husband for Robert Borden's estate. If her father had survived, there would be something more than the hunting camp and a bundle of worthless stocks and bonds.

"Yes," she said, "it would have made a difference."

Miss Ailie came in briskly from the gallery. "You've rested well," she declared, her glance approvingly on the girl's face. "You'll be ready for your supper now." She looked at MacIvor, her lips tightening.

"Davie MacIvor, did I or did I not say you were to wear your other coat? What manners are these for your father's son, with a lady to supper and all?"

Jane smiled at the uneasy look in the man's strong face. He wore an expression which carried her back to her nursery days when old Meggie had chidden her for stains on her pinafores.

"I—I forgot, Aunt Ailie. I'll go change now."

"You'll not. You'll keep us waiting no minute more for our food. You'll take your supper as you are, and serve you right." She gestured peremptorily at the table, and he drew back her chair with a simple deference which somehow gave Jane Borden an impression of a courtesy that went deeper than the superficial gestures to which she was best accustomed. All this, she thought, was real, true. She liked the way her own chair was drawn back in turn.

"Say grace, Davie MacIvor—a short one." Miss Drummond stressed the adjective. Jane bowed, concealing the twitch of her lips. MacIvor prayed briefly, using a simple Saxon idiom which lent a sobering force to the petition. It occurred to Jane Borden that she had not heard a blessing over a meal since old Meggie had gone home. It was rather good to hear one now; to find people who still believed in God, like Meggie.

HER hunger surprised her, and her relish for the plain food which the old Negress set before her. Hot bread and a great dish of moist corn meal, slices of broiled ham, honey, marmalade, and coffee. She ate without persuasion. There was little talk, as if these people came to the table for a single purpose and gave it a single attention. Again she was pleased; it was real, this honest, undisguised hunger.

MacIvor looked up from his plate. "I sent a boy to carry word that you were safe. I will ride back with you if you have finished your supper."

Something drew the girl's eye to Miss Drummond's face. It was grim; the gray eyes regarded her nephew with a disfavor more eloquent than speech. Jane rose.

"I've quite finished, thanks. I'm ready now."

Miss Drummond came to her feet. For the first time Jane became aware of her dress—a stiff and creaking black silk, with a touch of old lace at the throat. It was odd that she hadn't noticed it before; she could not remember what Miss Drummond had been wearing in the afternoon. One did not notice this woman's dress, she thought; no matter what she wore, she was Miss Drummond, she—she went all the way through, Jane decided.

She took her leave of the old lady with a genuine warmth. MacIvor, who had gone out to order the horses, appeared at the door.

"We'd best start now, Miss Borden. It's a weary ride by the shortest line—a good six miles at the least of it."

There was an indescribable sound from his aunt, and Jane saw again the grim contempt of the mouth. Miss Drummond kissed her cheek.

"You can trust him to find you the road, my dearie," said the significant voice. "He knows that much, the great—gumph!"

Beyond the pines, across the clearing where the low trees showed silver gray in a thin moonshot dusk, scattered glints of yellow light showed where old stumps burned on in the path of the fire and the air was flavored with an acid smell of resin. It reminded Jane of her stumbling flight before the racing flames; she owed this big, awkward man her life, and she had barely thanked him. She spoke abruptly.

"I don't know how to tell you that I'm grateful, Mr. MacIvor—if you hadn't found me——"

"You owe no thanks to me," he said bluntly.

"But I do—my life is rather valuable—to me." She laughed softly. "If you hadn't happened to——"

"We see that differently, Miss Bordon. I have no belief in what is called chance."

She understood and was a little pleased that she left it at this.

RIDING between the fruit trees through the smoke stained twilight, she had a sense of slipping back through time to another age; this man was no modern. He belonged back with Cromwell's psalm singing regiments who backed their faith with dogged blows. She groped for speech; her life had been cast among those to whom silence was at once an affront and a reproach.

"What are these trees?"

She was not curious. It was a chance remark, made merely to stir the man's slow tongue. He startled her by a sudden loquacity.

"Peaches—they're in their fourth year now—no more! Show me the soil that will grow trees like these in four seasons! And they call our land a desert!" He laughed shortly. "A desert—when it has made a forest like that bit that I have saved, and can make an orchard like this one that you see! MacIvor's Madness, they call it! Mad McIvor——" he stopped abruptly. "You will think them right if I go on. Yonder is the short road to your house."

She did not press the topic. Men who were loquacious on their personal concerns were always tiresome, like Avery Blent, with his talk of commitments and manipulations and gains and losses in the market. It was better to let sleeping hobbies lie, she had discovered.

"It's safe to cross the burned land, so soon?"

"Yes." He nodded. "There is no danger now. The fire has passed and till the grass has grown again and withered there is nought for it to feed on. We burn over a safety belt before the woods each year."

"Mr. Gail didn't warn me against fires. If he had I might have waited for him to ride with me," she said. "You know him, I suppose?"

"Yes, I know him." She caught an underkey. He seemed to bite off the last word.

"I didn't expect to find anybody like him in a place like this. He's interesting, isn't he?"

"Some find him so, I think." Again he gave the effect of leaving more unsaid than spoken. It was clear that he disliked Sheppard Gail, but it was even clearer that he had no intention of saying so.

"You and he—you're not friends, then?"

"I have few friends, Miss Borden." He held the conversation stubbornly to the frequency of grass fires in the cutover lands, to the destruction of plant food which they caused, and, when she suffered it, fell silent again. In this fashion they came at last to the fork of three roads which she recognized as near the lodge.

As they turned into the path toward the camp the sound of hoofs came to them from the converging road. Jane was mildly relieved when Sheppard Gail's pleasant, drawling voice greeted her.

"Thought I'd ride over and see how you all were making out, Miss Borden. Who's that—hello, Dave! Never reckoned I'd catch you riding out with a lady."

"I was bringing Miss Borden home." MacIvor spoke grimly. "I will turn here, now, if you permit, Miss Borden. Gail will see you to the camp, no doubt, and I have a long ride still before me."

There was no mistaking the rebuff to Gail's good natured greeting, and Jane Borden was annoyed at the forthrightness of the tone. MacIvor disliked Gail—it was natural that he should, she thought—but that did not excuse this sort of rudeness, which became, in her presence, almost an affront to her.

"O, you must come all the way, Mr. MacIvor. My uncle will want to thank you——"

"There is no need of that," he broke in quietly. "I have far to ride and a hard day behind me, Miss Borden. I'd best turn back at once. Good night."

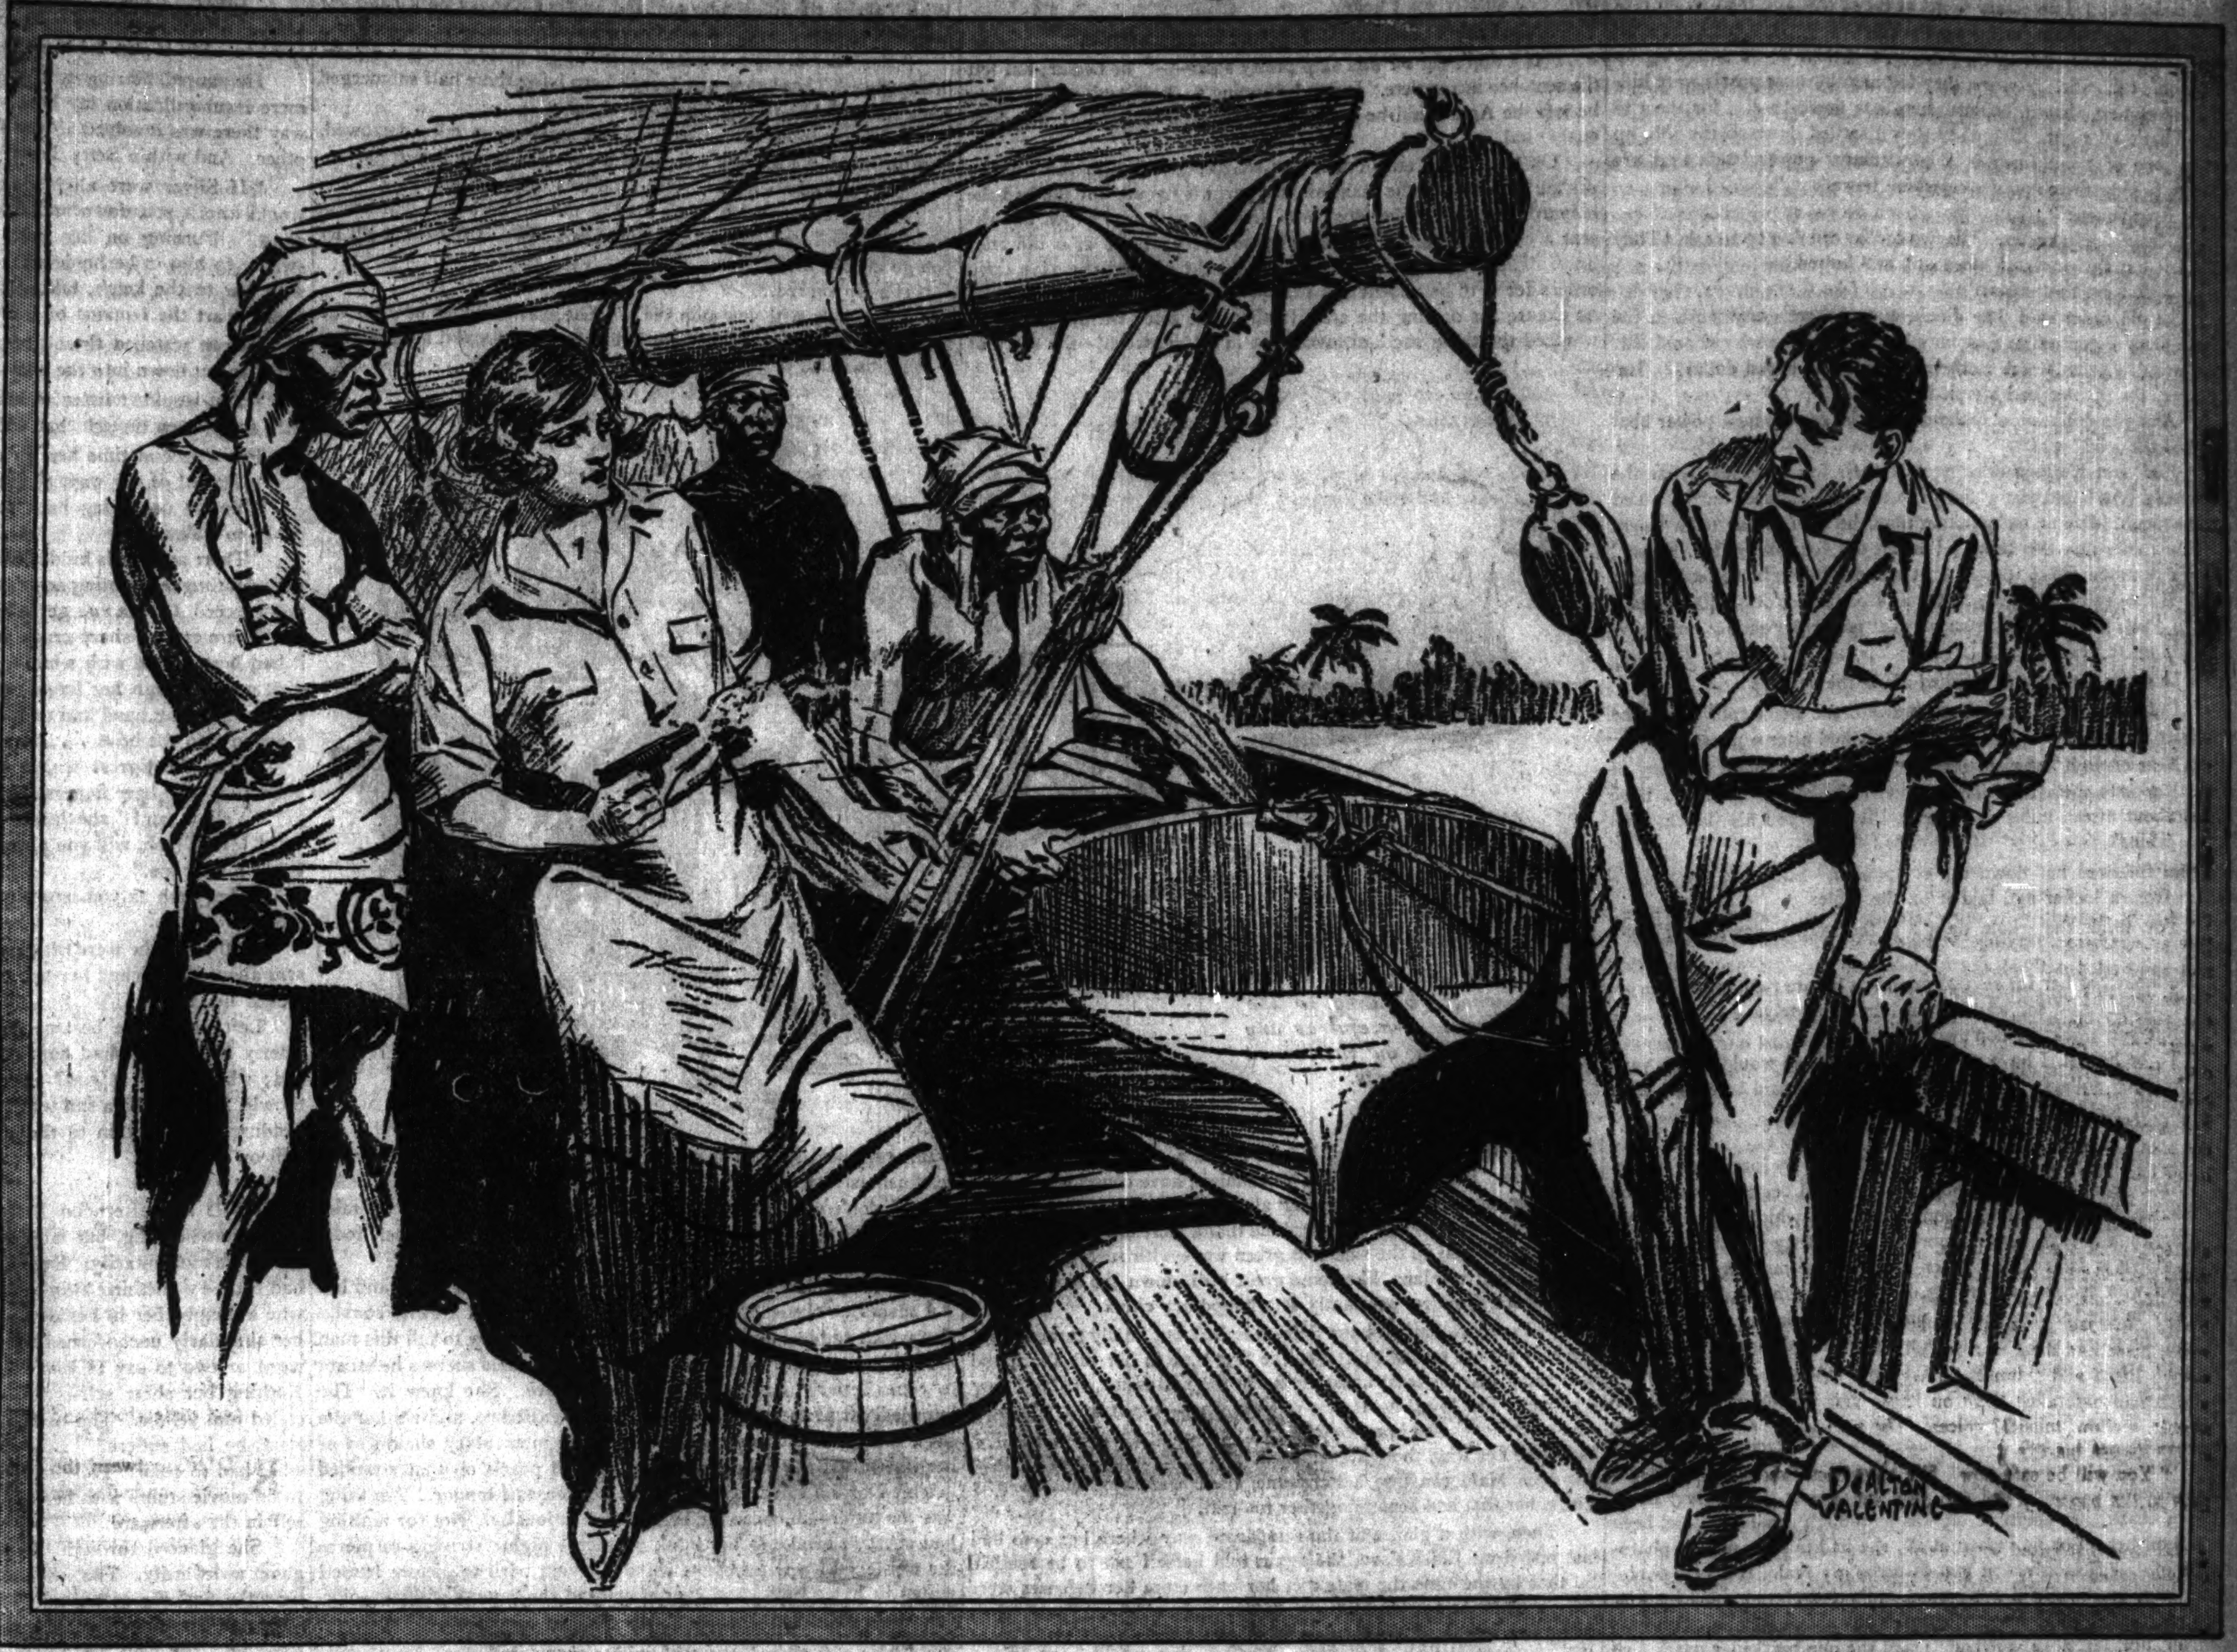
The Tale of a Maid Who Sailed a Ship and Searched for Treasure, and What She Found at Her Journey's End



There came a sharp crack and a pain in Kelson's arm as though it had been seared with white hot iron

A WHITE man, clad only in trousers, shirt, and broken canvas shoes, sweated under the baking sun on the wharf of Iloila in the South seas. Interminable mountains of bales awaited handling by the lumpers—seven near-naked Negroes and the white man, Jim Kelson. He worked harder than the rest, and perhaps this was why they laughed at him on occasion. The evasion of labor is an art among colored wharf laborers. Also it is a joke to have a white man brought so low.

Jim paused a moment to wipe the moisture from his forehead, when his eyes fell on a tops'l schooner a mile or so away. She was making for the wharf, bending to the breeze, graceful as any creature on the seven seas.

The man's fingers slid from his bale hook. Two ships had called at Iloila during the six weeks he had been stranded there like a rat in a trap, but neither had been able to sign him on. Optimism was rekindled at sight of the schooner.

Ignoring the yelp of a colored "boss boy," Jim presently turned his back on work, walked over to fosset, sluiced his hands and face, and picked his way among the merchandise.

On the schooner a sail rattled down. She luffed, and sidled to the wharf. A puzzled expression settled on Jim's face. He had expected to see some gnarled old mariner on the poop, or perhaps a youngish mate capable of man handling anything with two arms and two legs. Instead the vessel was being run by a girl, who evidently understood sailoring.

Jim waited just long enough for the gangway to be thrust ashore before he walked on board, then stood ridiculously nonplussed before the girl from whom he wanted a job.

"Pardon me, I'd like a word with the skipper," he said, after clearing his throat. "My name's Kelson."

She was sunburnt and freckled, with gray-green eyes which rested on him only a full second before she answered.

"This is my ship. What do you want?"

What did he want! He had come across that gangway starving for a chance once more to find his place in the world of men, for the chance of a rolling deck under his feet, for the right to civilized food and a place to sleep. During the last sixty nights his only resting place had been on the beach.

What did he want! Ten minutes ago he would have been able to define his wishes fairly accurately. He still wanted a chance to find his place in the world of men, but a complication had arisen which as yet he could only vaguely understand.

"If you've room for a deck hand aboard, I'd be glad," he said. "I'm stranded."

The gray-green eyes scanned him again, more closely this time. As a hobo he couldn't have chosen a better rig. A tear at the knee of his trousers flapped in the breeze: the hat in his hand was a travesty.

"Can you navigate?"

"I've a master's certificate."

"What happened?" The question was comprehensive.

"Went broke. Just plain rotten luck. Finished up here without a bean."

"Why, I guess I've a job I could give you, Mr. Kelson," she said, "but maybe you wouldn't care to take it. It's up to you. The mate of this vessel was washed overboard two weeks ago, and I hadn't been able to give him his pay for three months. This ship's safe is pretty nearly empty. Mr. Silver had been with me for three years, so he understood. Stuck by me, you understand. Now, if you want to get away from Iloila, here's your chance, but that's all I can offer you for the present. Of course, if my luck turns, you'll draw ordinary pay. If it doesn't—well, you'll have worked your passage, that's all."

"I'll take a chance," he said quickly. "But I may as well tell you, there's no cargo to be picked up at Iloila."

"I don't want cargo—just now."

"Where are you bound?"

"Why, frankly, I don't intend to tell any one till I get clear of Iloila."

Jim raised his eyebrows fractionally. At least, it was an unusual proceeding.

"Of course, if you put it that way——"

"I do. Very definitely. Are you coming?"

"There isn't any question about that."

AND for the space of twenty seconds these two bits of human flotsam studied one another. Nothing could have been more opportune for Betty Trask than his arrival. Silver, the drowned mate, had been her shield and bulwark in these waters. The sea itself had few terrors for her. She loved its moods, even as she had infinite respect for them. On this schooner her own father had taught her the mysteries of his craft. It was a byword among those who knew her that Betty Trask could sail the Apia Maid as cleverly as any skipper under the Southern Cross. It was the only life she knew, and for that reason she had clung to the schooner long after her fathers death. Nor had she ever positively needed Silver's physical protection. With a revolver she could break nine bottles out of ten in mid-air when they were flung overboard, which knowledge carried deep conviction into the minds of her Kanaka crew.

But even with the heart of a lion a woman needs a white man around when she is running a trading schooner. And as far as she could judge, Jim Kelson, though an entire stranger, was a man on whom she could depend, a man whom she could like. There was something about the steadiness of his eyes that appealed to her. He was no weakling, in any sense of the word. In the lines near his mouth there lurked good temper and humor, but his chin was obstinate. The woman who set herself the task of twisting him around her little finger was foredoomed to disappointment.

She broke the brief silence with a light laugh that was all courage.

"I'm afraid it's almost a case of the blind leading the blind," she said. "We're a couple of down-and-outs. Anyway, slip ashore and get your dunnage. As soon as I can have the water barrels filled we shall pull out of this."

"Everything I own in the world is in my pockets," Kelson answered. "So I'm ready now."

Half an hour later the Apia Maid cast off and turned due north, with Kelson in much too dreamy a frame of mind for an active sailor. Knocking about the world had become a habit with him, and hardships, once passed ceased to exist. But this odd twist in the game had come too swiftly for him to assimilate readily. Besides, there was the girl. She acted on him as a magnet acts on steel filings. He told himself a dozen times that first afternoon, while the schooner bowled along with a full set of canvas under an azure sky, that love was lunacy, and that, anyway, men didn't fall in love at first sight outside of books. And yet every hour he knew the bond that held him was growing stronger. He watched the wind play with her tawny hair, watched her poise like a bird, balanced on the swaying deck, yet caught the spirit of weary anxiety which lay ever behind her quick smile, noted the unmistakable signs of poverty. The running gear on the schooner was in a condition to make a good mariner's heartache. The food on the ship was of the simplest. The mate who died in this girl's service hadn't had any pay for months—but he had understood! Jim Kelson wondered just what manner of man that mate had been. No wonder he had understood and stuck by her. A man couldn't help sticking by a girl such as this if he were half way human.

"MISS TRASK," Jim began awkwardly that evening as they sat together on the poop when the stars were dancing overhead, "I don't want to ask any question you don't care to answer, but some time, don't forget, I've got to know where we're bound for."

The stars went on dancing a while before she answered. He almost wondered whether she had heard.

"You're quite right," she said at length. "We're going up the Fly river in New Guinea."

Kelson's brows crinkled.

"The Fly river!" If interrogation rang about his words, he didn't intend it. Sooner or later she would explain.

There was no sound save the sea's gurgle at the prow of the schooner and the tapping of a loose halyard. An ebony hued Kanaka stood motionless at the wheel. The moon glinted on the water, spraying it with a million ever changing fairy lights; half a thousand glistening flying fish shot up, hung in the air a space, and then sank from sight. But these things passed unnoticed by the man and the girl on the poop. For the present he was not really concerned as to their destination. Enough for him that he was here.

"Maybe you'll think I'm crazy if I explain, Mr. Kelson," she said eventually. "When you get down to your last five hundred dollars in this trading game you have to do something that counts, or else step ashore and keep a peanut stand. So I'm taking a longshot. My luck has been fierce this last eighteen months. Everything I've touched went wrong. It's like any other business: you carry on just as long as your capital lasts. Well, I've got so near to the end of my tether that it's begun to hurt."

"You mean you'll quit if you fall down on this thing, whatever it is?"

"I mean I'll have to. There's a mortgage on the Apia Maid for the last repair bill at Sydney, and, if a full sized miracle doesn't happen, there'll be nothing left but to sail into Sydney, sell my remaining share in the ship for about a couple of thousand dollars, and buy a ticket back to the United States. I've got an aunt up in Massachusetts who wants we to go and live with her, but——" She broke off, eyes roving the rim of the moonlit sea.

"You mean you'd miss this life?" put in the mate.

"Miss it? Why, it's everything in the world to me. And there's another point: I don't come of a race of quitters. My dad sailed this schooner for fifteen years. It was his home, and mine, too, most of that time. And when you've made a home in a ship it's worse than having your back teeth out to hand it over to any one, especially, if it's because you've failed. It's a nasty word, that—failure."

"But you're not through yet."

"No, and I don't intend to be if I can help it. Mr. Kelson, five days ago a sailor told me a queer yarn about a lot of missing pearls and then offered to sell the secret where they were for a hundred dollars. When I tell you I fell for it, what will you say?"

"Why—why, I wish you luck, that's all," said Kelson. "It sounds as if you'd taken an almighty big chance, though."

"Taken a chance! There are people I know who'd say I ought to be locked up in a lunatic asylum. But I paid the old pirate his price—one hundred perfectly good American dollars—when it only left chicken feed in the safe."

"What made you fall for it?" The man was watching her face intently. She leaned forward, nervously eager.

"I don't believe I'd ever be able to explain. I've tried to think it out fifty times, but I can't. I suppose the real fact is I figured that he was telling the truth, though, Lord knows, everything was against him. He came on board the Apia Maid at Groona, where I'd gone to discharge cargo. He was about half drunk, sailor fashion, but seemed to have his senses, and he was respectful, so I let him talk a while. He was deckhand on a ship that was leaving by that tide for Chinese ports. Don't make any mistake: he was just as crooked an old villain as I've struck in years. But he didn't tell his story, as you'd expect a crook to tell a yarn he'd invented. I felt all along it was an unsavory business, and it's no less unsavory now, but I put him through the third degree before I came across with the currency. I laid it on the table between us, figuring that he'd be more likely to open up if he saw the cash, only I had my gun handy."

KELSON uncrossed his legs. He was growing interested, though he didn't relish the idea of her crossing swords with a tipsy sailor.

"He told you where the pearls are?"

"No. It isn't even as hopeful as that, quite. I won't say it's an even money chance. But I think I got the truth out of him. He's been on a pearling schooner, the owner of which had struck it rich. They were lying at some island after pearling for eighteen months when he and another man chloroformed the owner, dumped him on the wharf, and sailed off, with the pearls on board, as far as they knew. The owner hadn't had a chance to sell them, and they made sure he hadn't got them on him when they dumped him on the wharf. After they got out to sea they searched the schooner from end to end, but couldn't locate the pearls. And then they got scared, because there was a pretty long stretch in the penitentiary ahead of them if they were caught. They didn't dare run into any port because it was dollars to doughnuts they'd be arrested.

After a while they came to New Guinea and turned up the Fly river, intending to run ashore in some quiet spot, break the schooner into matchwood if necessary to get at the pearls, and then go on foot to the trading station further up the river. They ran her ashore all right, but wrecked her in the process, and then began smashing up the whole caboodle. You see, they felt certain those pearls were hidden somewhere aboard, because there was nowhere else for them to be. That's all right. But when they'd settled down to the job, up comes one of those fussy little government power boats that are always poking their noses everywhere nowadays."

"Frenchman?"

"Heaven only knows. The two crooks didn't stop to ask. They doped it out that it was a close call, and bolted."

"Didn't get the pearls?"

The old sailor said they didn't, and if there's any truth in the whole story I guess that part may be true, or else why should this man want to put his neck in the noose for a hundred dollars? Remember, the pearler had struck it rich."

"And you don't know if the men in the government power boat finished the job?"

"No. But it's long odds against their knowing just what the game was. As I told you at first, I'm taking a chance; but it looked good enough. I've no more notion than the man in the moon where the law comes into this thing. I'm not out for piracy, Mr. Kelson, but it's common sense, isn't it, that somebody ought to fetch those pearls if they're there. And, as far as I can make out, nobody aside from the two thieves and me knows that particular schooner is lying wrecked up the Fly river."

The water rippled and swished along the vessel's side.

"Did he—I mean the sailor—indicate the exact spot where the schooner is supposed to be lying?" Jim asked after a pause.

"Near enough," she answered. "He made a rough drawing of the entrance to the river. The schooner lies at the back of a little island about fifteen miles up. Come, I'll show you his sketch. It's in the cabin."

Jim followed her down the companion. She took the sailor's sketch from a locker and laid it on the table.

"You think the whole thing's a fool game, don't you?" she asked.

He looked at her for several moments before replying.

"I haven't said so," came from him ultimately.

"But you think so, don't you?"

"To be honest, I have no idea. Most sailors would spin a yarn for a hundred dollars. I can only repeat what I said before—I wish you lots of luck."

THIS time it was Betty who was held silent by intangible forces. An indefinable quality about the man had begun to seize upon her imagination. There was something here which she could not ignore. In a way it was humorous: she, Betty Trask, who had turned down at least half a dozen proposals of marriage from men who had won success in varying degrees, she who had fought her own way in life for five years, doing men's work and often beating them at the game, she who had been compelled during those nomad years to regard man as an ever present danger, was now made thoughtful by the mere presence of a stray beachcomber who had come to her, penniless, asking for a job.

"Thank you," she said at last, and, with curious abruptness born of instinct centuries older than herself, left him, mounted the companion, and walked for'ard. Leaning against the rigging, Betty tried to analize her emotion. It was as though some trick had been played on her. For no reason at all, she had taken a mental photograph of Jim Kelson which was disturbingly real. It was a photograph that lived. There was a quiet smile that played about his lips. Men had made love to her in the different ways of men, at times with alluring fire, but always it had lacked the one particular spark that alone could set something within her aflame. She wondered——

Betty Trask shook herself quickly, told herself plainly not to be a fool, and swung on her heel. He was on the poop when she passed by. "I'm going to turn in, Mr. Kelson," she said coldly. "Good night. Call me if anything happens, and rouse me anyway to relieve you for the second watch." She turned away, disappeared without looking back.

For ten minutes afterward Jim's eyes were fixed on the spot where he had last seen her. Then he pulled out a pipe, thumbed tobacco into it thoughtfully, and forgot to light it. He cast one mechanical glance up at the farflung canvas, and leaned over the rail, eyes fixed on the vessel's phosphorescent wake. For hours he barely moved. Then he suddenly straightened himself, lighted his pipe, and told himself not to be a blame fool.

Nevertheless, the second night watch had merged well into the morning watch before he called Betty to relieve him.

When she came on deck there was a pronounced air of frigidity about her.

"Didn't I give definite orders that you were to call me to take the second watch, Mr. Kelson?" she asked.

"Why, I thought you looked all in, Miss Trask. You've been taking too many watches lately, haven't you?"

Here, Betty sensed, was a Rubicon. Once she began accepting anything save his legitimate services as mate, he would have her at a disadvantage.

"So long as you are mate of this vessel," she said steadily, "I expect you to carry out orders implicitly. Let that be clearly understood."

A maddening ghost of a smile played about his mouth. A good night's sleep—the first for over a week—had had a wonderful effect on her. For all her pseudo austerity, she looked five years younger. Rest had smoothed away lines of weariness, and her gray-green eyes wouldn't have sparkled so fascinatingly yesterday, even if he'd made her twice as angry.

"You couldn't have stuck it much longer, Miss Trask. I'd like you to forgive me if I say I'd be happier if I were human first and a sailor afterwards. A man can stand more of this sort of thing than a girl; and remember I've had eight hours' sleep every night for weeks."

BETTY'S toe was tapping the deck impatiently. Silver had talked to her that way many a time, but Silver was old enough to be her father. Silver had dangled her on his knee when she was eight. In a way she had loved the gnarled, mahogany hued old man for his devotion and loyalty. His death had come as a blow from which she had not recovered. Silver would have gone through fire and water for her, but he always obeyed her—except in just such matters as this. It was too early, altogether too early, for a new mate to assume such discretion.

The sparkle in those eyes of her warmed to a flash.

"We have no contract, you and I, Mr. Kelson," she said. "You'll leave this ship at the next sizable port we touch."

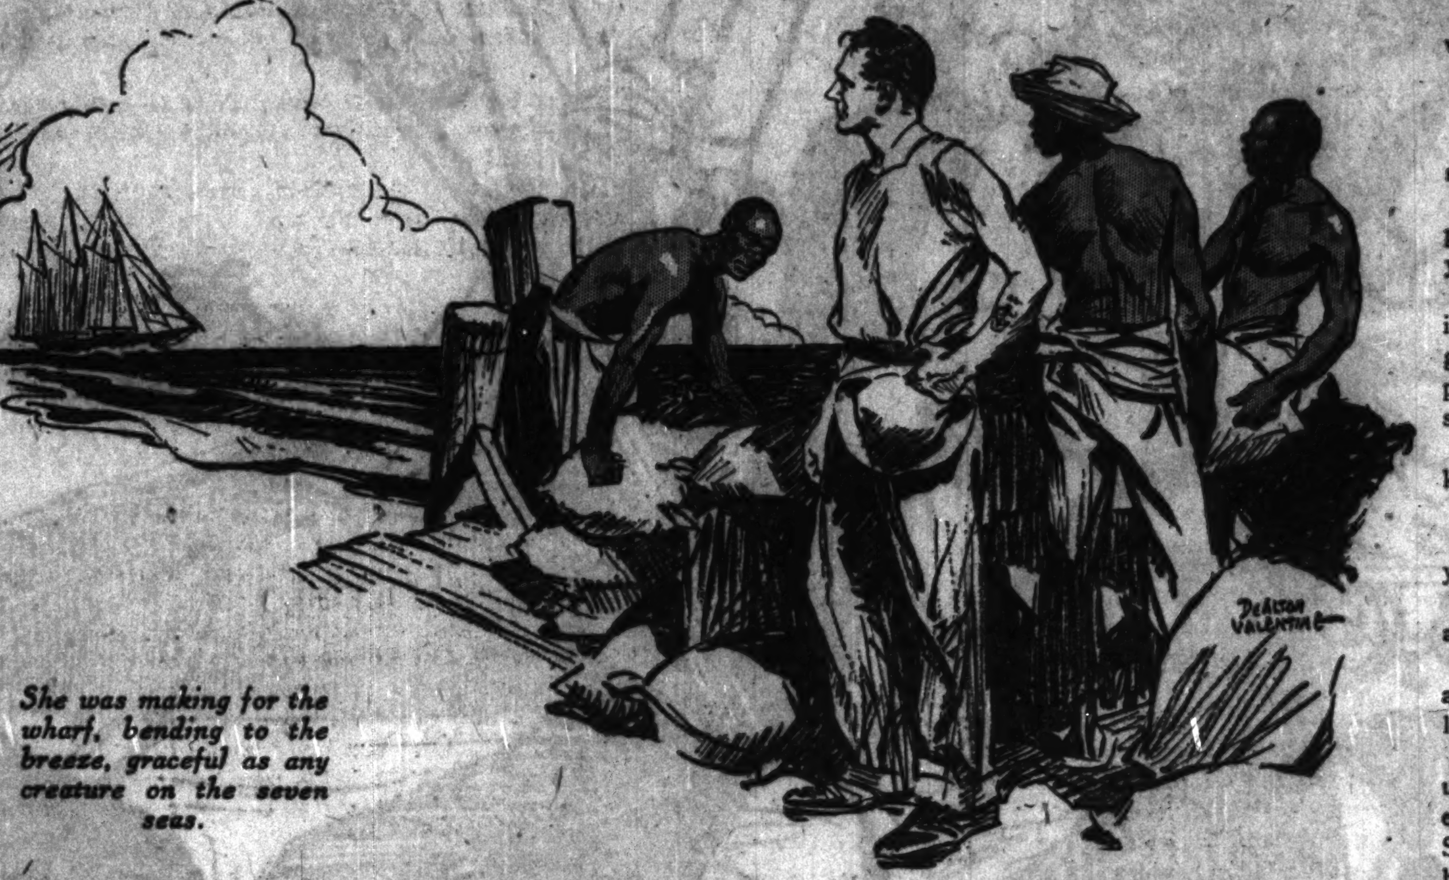
Again that maddening smile.

"Whatever you wish." He said it as though addressing a child, and Betty could have found infinite joy in kicking something. Almost she hated him then. And what galled her worst of all was the knowledge that he knew. Knew he had stirred something within her that could not be accounted for by mere disobedience. A touch of color began to mount her cheeks. He watched it deliberately, fascinated; watched the flame of her eyes. Then took off his cap respectfully and quietly went below.

In the cabin he stared blindly before him for a while.

"If I don't get off this ship pretty soon——" he began; but left the sentence incomplete. It was beginning to dawn on him that when he left the Apia Maid he would leave also something that was curiously vital.

On the poop Betty Trask was snapping orders to the Kanaka bos'un. The set of the mainsail was perfectly good, but she had the halyards sweated. The tops'l was drawing with every inch but she sent a couple of men scrambling up to overhaul and stop the bunt lines. There was a possible doubt about the jib and she gave crisp orders for it to be unbent and the spare set in its place. Then with no excuse for driving the crew further, she stood on the poop and watched the thing she had loved best in all the world—the sway of this Apia Maid, a creature of infinite grace, as it raced like a finely bred horse. Exactly as the race horse might have conscious pride in its power, so might the schooner almost have an intelligence and spirit of its own. It seemed incredible that a mere mass of inanimate matter could ride up the side of a green wave with such glorious assurance, then volplane, like some great bird, down the slope ahead, shaking itself almost petulantly at a temporary check.



She was making for the wharf, bending to the breeze, graceful as any creature on the seven seas.

For perhaps half an hour Betty watched, but finally turned, leaning bare elbows on the rail. For the first time in her life she found something just the least unsatisfying in the possession of this flying schooner. She loved it—if that was the word—but it wasn't human. And of a sudden she knew that for years, though adventure a-plenty had come her way, though excitement of a kind held her every time the Apia Maid ran into a hurricane, there was some human note within her that had been altogether too still.

Then, with a glance at the companion way where her eyes had last rested on Jim Kelson, she again told herself not to be foolish. So that by the time the mate met her once more her defenses were fully alert. She treated him with quiet indifference—and saw something fine in the set of his shoulders. She spoke to him coldly of ship routine—and wanted to darn a rent in his shirt. She weighed him in the balance against Peter Firth, the prosperous Manila shipping agent, who had often offered to lay his big hands, big heart, and big fortune at her feet—and she wondered what sort of woman Jim Kelson's mother was.

AN armed truce still lay between them when the coast line of New Guinea first loomed under the schooner's bow.

"Do you know these waters, Miss Trask?" he asked, his eyes fixed on the blur ahead that might have been haze.

"Never been here before," she answered. "Have you?"

"Never. I hope you won't mind my saying it's supposed to be pretty tricky. Especially up the mouth of the Fly."

She shot a searching glance at him. Was this a veiled reflection upon her skill? Or was it momentary concern for his own skin? A slight frown swept her forehead. For an instant she was filled with a wild desire to test him. Many a time, trading in the Carolines, with Silver perched on the heel of the boom, she had picked her way through uncharted reefs, guided only by the color of the water and some sixth sense which none save a real sailor could even understand. Once, in a race for cargo, she and Silver had felt their way through five miles of that sort of thing with a margin, at places, of two fathoms between rocks, and got in hours ahead of their rivals. She would have loved now to drive the schooner full tilt through this danger zone, partly to see how her beachcomber of a mate would react under the strain and partly to show him that she was in every sense of the word mistress of the Apia Maid. But on second thought she took a more rational course.

It was tedious and hazardous threading through the intricate shallows under reefed sail. Something of the gold miner's spirit when, after long last, he comes within reasonable reach of his great goal, captured Betty Trask as the schooner rode into the river's wide mouth. This was her one last desperate hope. Until now, faced as she was by the possibility of failure and disillusion, she had never quite realized how black an outlook life held for her. In a way, for years, everything had been one continual gamble, but this was the greatest. Literally, her whole future hinged on the next few hours. Once or twice she glanced at Kelson, and on each occasion a vague shadow crept into her face. There was something about the man which she sensed she ought to fathom but could not. Perhaps she was mistaken, but there seemed to her a curbed uneasiness in him, a restlessness in the eyes which she had not noticed before. Intuitively, unreasoningly, she had hitherto felt that in the last analysis she might count on him; but now she was conscious of misgivings. Almost it appeared that he was avoiding her. That quiet smile about his lips was there at times when he spoke, but it seemed different. Perhaps it was forced, she fancied.

Picking her way by the aid of the old sailor's chart which bore a rough resemblance to the contour of the land, Betty came at length to the island indicated, and triumph shone in her eyes when finally, on rounding the northern point, she saw a stranded ketch. So far, at least, she realized the old sailor had not been lying.

With infinite care the girl maneuvered the Apia Maid to within a hundred feet of the abandoned vessel, and then a boat was lowered. With Takani, the colored bo'sun, and another Kanaka deck hand she prepared to row across. Kelson drew near.

"Pardon me, Miss Trask, but shall I go first?" he said almost brusquely. "That ketch—well, she's been lying there half submerged some time, and you never know——"

Betty regarded him directly. Her gray-green eyes narrowed. Comfortingly she felt the weight of a revolver inside her dress.

"Never know what?" Her tone was cold, deliberate.

"Well, for one thing, there may be natives on board that ketch, or——" His face hardened. "Miss Trask, I—I'm darned if I'll let you go aboard first."

Her lip curved.

"And how will you stop me?" She was building now on the revolver, and, though her fingers itched to stray toward its bulk, her hands remained still. The man's face twitched: clearly she saw the restlessness that possessed him.

"I don't want to use brute strength—against a girl," he said, with a touch of irritation. "At least, you'll let me come over, too."

BETTY realized that she was fighting some unseen force, and her senses quickened. There flashed into her mind a swift conviction which stabbed doubly. It had seemed necessary to tell this man everything, but now that they were so near possible success he meant to come between her and any treasure trove. She knew it. The knowledge was to her as real as her own existence, and neither the swift flush that mounted her neck nor the momentary shakiness of her knees had any relation to hypothetical pearls on that stranded ketch. Nor did salvation come from her sense of humor. The thing was too bitter—too near for her to view rationally. Not for nothing had she lain awake in her bunk on recent nights striving to pierce the mystery of new problems engulfing her; tried to picture herself mated to Peter Firth, and ever visualized the canvas without color.

With a quick movement Betty dropped into the boat.

"You stay there," she said, with a tightening about her throat; and then, as the sailors rowed, sat still, curiously weary. The man called her back, shouted angrily, even threatened, but she hardly heard him. Other emotions were far too near the surface for any appeal or bullying to have effect on her.

Nor did the sight of the ketch, when she and Takani climbed aboard, rouse her from a spirit of cold, angry misery. The wreckers had gone to work here ruthlessly, wrenching off locker covers and tearing woodwork away. The vessel was waterlogged and splintered. One comprehensive glance showed her the hopelessness of her quest. From that sloping deck she turned toward the schooner eyes which held a glitter.

"Love!" She spoke aloud unconsciously. "There's no such thing! Dear God, what fools women are!"

Takani followed her over the side into the boat again, and she returned to the Apia Maid, head held proudly even in the moment of utter defeat. Kelson was there, watching her keenly as she stepped aboard.

"No luck?" he asked with ill concealed anxiety. She brushed past him in silence.

Swift equatorial nightfall was coming. The girl went straight to her cabin, determined to let the schooner ride there until down. With daylight she would work the vessel out through the network of channels, drop this beachcomber at the first convenient place, and sail on to Sydney, there to pick up new threads of life. Hands tightly clenched, she stood in the center of her little stateroom with everything lost excepting only her own unquenchable spirit. Stiff and erect the girl remained for a while, and then suddenly crumpled up on her bunk, head buried in a pillow, which soon became wet with tears. For hours she lay, until there came forgetfulness in sleep.

AT dawn, fresh and alert, mind bending more rationally to events, the girl wondered why she had been satisfied with a mere glance at the splintered ketch. The old sailor had told her that he and his companion began to break her up. But they were interrupted and bolted before they finished.

Betty sat on the edge of the bunk and dangled her feet. In one complete day she could have the upper part of the pearl ship hacked completely to pieces if necessary. Instinct had led her to believe the old sailor's story in the first place, wildly improbable though it had seemed; and there was nothing yet to prove that he had lied.

"I'll do it—to make sure," she decided, a new light in her eyes. She ate a hurried breakfast and then went on deck. Kelson came toward her.

"Do you mind telling me exactly what you're going to do now, Miss Trask?" he asked.

A biting retort rose to her lips, but she choked it back.

"I'm going on with the job I've started," she stated with quiet authority.

"I wish you'd let me run things for a bit," he put in. "This is no work for a girl."

"Mr. Kelson," she retorted, "this is my funeral, anyway; so, if you don't mind, I'll run it while I can. That's clear, isn't it?"

"Listen." There was something almost belligerent about him now. "I told you I'd no wish to use brute strength, and I still don't want to. But if you drive me far enough——"

He paused, blazing eyes on blazing eyes. Something more than mere insubordination lay here—infinitely more. In an inextricable way there was involved all the feeling that each had inspired in the other. And within Betty Trask's heart revolt stirred new fires.

"If Silver were alive today," came from her, cuttingly, "he would knock you down and then throw you overboard—at my request." Turning on her heel, she summoned Takani and spoke swiftly to him in beche-de-mer. She wanted all the Kanakas to go with her to the ketch, taking whatever implements they could, to break apart the remains of the wreck.

Kelson watched these preparations, and then, as the girl prepared to get down into the boat, he stepped in front of her.

"You wouldn't listen to reason," he said. "Now I'll stop you with force, even though that will make you hate me."

For a second time her lip curled. She drew out her revolver.

"Get out of my way, please."

"You're not going back to the ketch." He stood firmly and spoke to Takani.

"There are pearls hidden on that wreck," he said in the Kanakas' polyglot tongue, pointing across to the ketch. "Go and find them. If you succeed, I'll see you get a big share."

There came a sharp crack and a pain in Kelson's arm as though it had been seared with white hot iron. The man turned toward the girl, and although her finger was still trembling on the trigger, he put out a strong hand and took the weapon from her as the Kanakas scurried into the boat.

All of the tigress within Betty was roused, but, even so, she knew that with bare fingers she was no opponent for an armed man.

"Yellow cur!" she lashed at him.

"Miss Trask, will you please go down to your cabin. I'm afraid you'll hinder me."

"Men such as you ought to be horsewhipped!" came from her acidly.

As though she were little more than a child, he put one powerful arm about her, picked her up, carried her to her own stateroom, and locked her in.

Left alone, she became curiously calm. The impossible—the utterly impossible—had happened. Where was this thing going to end; where could it end? Presently she heard a familiar sound. Slowly, laboriously, a sail was being hoisted; the vessel was drifting, heading down stream to the sea. And the native deckhands were still on the ketch.

UNTIL late afternoon Betty sat still. At first her anger was overwhelming, but later the utter ludicrousness of it all made her laugh momentarily. Even now she was not actually afraid. Men had caused something akin to fear in her at times, yet this cave man who kidnaped her in her own ship, monstrous though that was, left her singularly unconcerned for her personal safety. But she had a word or two to say to him. O, yes, she would make him squirm. Nothing but sheer self-control had kept him impassive when she called him yellow. The barb had gone in deep. For one second, at least, he had suffered. But that was nothing; just a foretaste of what had to come. Holy suffering cats! No man living was going to do movie stunts with her and her schooner and feel proud of himself in the afterward.

She glanced through the porthole. The Apia Maid had gone about awkwardly. The schooner was well out to sea now. She could hear the flapping of canvas in the breeze and knew by the vessel's irregular lurching that something was wrong. The man wasn't steering. The Apia Maid yawed off on the starboard tack, came up into the wind, poised there tremulously a while, then yawed off again. What crazy tricks was the beachcomber up to? He'd soon have the sticks out of her with his antics.

She turned—and most of the color drained from her face. A sheet of paper lay where it had been pushed under her door. A message, obviously. What new indignity was this that he was thrusting upon her? She stared at the thing for several minutes, fascinated. The schooner yawed and lurched drunkenly, evidently not under control.

Her first impulse was to ignore the paper, and, retiring figuratively to high ground, await the enemy's next move. But presently she walked over slowly, drawn toward the door in spite of her sense of outraged feelings, and picked up the note. The hand that held it became less steady as she read:

> Your door is open, but please read this before you come out. The life of the girl I love was in my hands, and I knew she had some doubt about me. If I'd told her the truth, she might still have had some doubt. And the least slip would have caused her death and mine too, probably. The pearls are just outside this door. I swam over to the ketch for them in the night. I was the man they doped and dumped ashore at Kalaki. I'd hidden the pearls behind a screwed-up panel in a locker. They're yours now, every one of them. I don't blame you a bit, but if I'd told you the Kanakas had planned to murder us both if we found the things you couldn't have been expected to believe me implicitly. Takani understands more English than you think. He must have overheard you and me talking, and then I overheard him planning a general kai-kai. After that, I couldn't take any chances. Could I, dear?"

Betty didn't notice that the schooner was still yawing about, didn't now see the words scrawled on that sheet of paper, because everything was blurred and hot tears rolled down her cheek. Not even the pearls were uppermost in her thoughts, for as she opened the door she picked up a little leather bag and never dreamed of looking at its contents.

Three steps from the cabin door she uttered a quick cry. It was fear, this time; real gripping fear. Jim Kelson lay on the floor, face downward, while the schooner yawed and lurched.

The leather bag dropped from her fingers as she darted forward, falling on her knees beside him.

"Jim—Jim!" came from her tremulously. She pillowed his head on her lap and fearfully her eyes stole to the telltale bandage about his arm. This was her work. True, she hadn't meant to shoot, but it was her finger which had pressed a little too hard on that trigger. It was her blind suspicion that had been the cause of it. Her brain reeled when she saw the whiteness of his face. She knew now, beyond all question, that she had wounded the human being whom she loved more than everything else in the world put together. And as she stared down into his face with wide open eyes her fear grew until she shook.

His lids fluttered. He looked puzzled for a moment, then smiled, the old smile that had first caught at her imagination.

"Jim! My dear! My dear." She lowered her head and with her tears raining on his cheek, pressed warm lips to his.

"Gosh, I must have fainted. First time in my life, too," he said, still smiling. "Do people always think they're dying when they faint?"

"Jim, dear, I love you. Please, please tell me you forgive me."

"I know now I did die," he said, "'cause I'm in heaven."

ARISTOCRACY vs. BASEBALL

The Story of a Wealthy Pinhead Who Had a Son Named Reggie

By GEORGE M. COHAN

WINCHELL RIVINGTON of Newport, R. I., Boston, Mass., Palm Beach, Fla., and Paris, France, was not only a multi-millionaire and a society hound, but a hundred per cent New England blue blood to boot.

"It has taken several generations to build up this great wall of dignity around our family, and I don't intend to permit you to topple it over."

He said this to his only son and heir, Reginald Rivington, standing on the front lawn of the famous Rivington estate at Newport, Rhode Island.

The old man was all dressed up in his golf suit with a bag of clubs hanging over his shoulder, ready to hop in his Rolls-Royce and speed onward to the country club for an afternoon's outing with several other multi-millionaires who were probably dressed up as funny as he was.

In contrast to his father's comic opera makeup, Reginald stood there with his face encased in a baseball mask, a chest protector buckled around his waist, a catcher's glove on his right hand, and juggling a National league ball with his left.

He and the pantry butler (an old-time shortstop in the Eastern league) had been playing catch on the front lawn that morning when the old man appeared and interrupted the game.

"How many times have I told you that I will not permit this abominable game of baseball to be played on these premises?" said the old man, as Reginald lowered his head in a hangdog fashion.

"And playing with the pantry butler, too. Good God, boy! Have you no regard for our social standing?"

The old man was sore; Reginald realized it, too, so he kept his head lowered, fearing that if he looked up and took another peek at his father (who looked like an ad for a smoking tobacco) he'd burst out laughing and hurt the old fellow's feelings.

"You're incorrigible, absolutely impossible," went on Reggie's father. "What in Heaven's name you find to amuse yourself in that mud-gutter game of baseball I can't understand. Here you are, a boy seventeen years old, with millions and millions at your command, wonderful palatial homes in five different cities, stables of horses, beautiful country clubs which I myself have promoted and financed for the sole purpose of perpetuating the name of Rivington, and with all this you insist upon passing your idle hours in that filthy getup, tossing a baseball back and forth with a pantry butler."

Reggie didn't reply. He knew he was in bad, so he played dead.

Old man Rivington continued to rave.

"I should think for the sake of your mother and me you'd make an effort to try to be a gentleman and play at gentlemen's games. There's that glorious tennis court I had laid last summer in hopes of your using it, untouched and going into decay. There are all those wonderful polo ponies in the stables, eating their heads off and dying for the want of a romp. Guns and fishing tackle all over the attic floor, and never once have you even looked at them. And what of your yacht? The beautiful boat for which I paid four hundred and thirty-two thousand dollars! Look at it, out there in the bay at anchor, just as it's always been since the day I had it brought here on your sixteenth birthday. You never drive any of the four automobiles I bought for you; not once have you given a thought to your airplane since it arrived. You absolutely refuse to interest yourself in anything whatever except this cheap, common, obsolete game of baseball, which, at its best, is a disreputable lowbrow sport, engaged in only by the poorer classes. It isn't fair to me, Reggie. It isn't fair to your mother. You must bring yourself to realize that if you continue on like this, the good name of Rivington will be the laughing stock of all Newport society. Come, come, my boy, forget all this nonsense. Be what you really are; a gentleman's son, and run upstairs, like a good lad, put on the golf suit I bought for you, and come with me to the country club and begin a gentleman's life today. Come on, son, I beg of you, please."

All during this long speech Reggie stood there juggling the baseball up and down and apparently not paying the slightest attention to anything that was being said.

The pantry butler, who had been standing on the lawn about seventy-five feet away, waiting for the return of the ball, finally came forward and said, "If you're not going to play any more for a while, I'll go in the pantry and do a little work."

"Yes, and you stay in the pantry," shouted the old man, "and if ever I catch you out here on my lawn again I'll hit you over the head with a golf club."

The pantry butler, as I have already said, was an old-time shortstop and in his time had served four years in the Rhode Island state penitentiary for murdering two spectators in the Rochester grandstand for kidding him when he struck out with three men on bases.

Reggie, knowing all this, realized that the old man's life wasn't worth a nickle, so spoke up like a little major.

"Don't blame him, pop; it's all my fault," and as he said this he winked at the pantry butler, who took the cue and hurried back to his work.

"Come on, son, put on your golf suit and come with me," pleaded Reggie's father.

"I don't like golf, pop. It doesn't appeal to me at all."

"Then let's put on our tennis suits and have a go with the racquets," suggested the old gentleman.

"I'd rather not, pop. It doesn't interest me in the least."

"Then let's get aboard the yacht and take a trip down the bay."

"No use, pop. I cant warm up to that kind of stuff. The only thing I enjoy in the way of sports is baseball, so if it's just the same to you I'll call the pantry butler back and go on with the game."

The old man lost his temper, grabbed the baseball from Reggie's hand, and threw it as far as he could; then he tore the mask from off Reggie's head, threw it on the lawn, jumped on it, and was just about to grab for the chest protector when Reggie side stepped, ran to the front porch, in the door, through the hallway, and up the stairs to his mother's room.

No sooner had Reggie entered the room and slammed the door behind him than it flew open again and his father blew in, white as a sheet and trembling with rage.

Reggie's mother, who was standing in the center of the room shaking up a pitcher of cocktails she had just mixed for the bridge game that was going on downstairs, became so alarmed at the sudden entrance of her only son and husband that she dropped the pitcher, which smashed to the floor spilling the contents all over a brand new twelve hundred dollar green silk dress.

"What's the matter with you two idiots? What are you trying to do, frighten me to death?" yelled Reggie's mother, as she dried the front of her skirt with a three hundred dollar lace handkerchief.

"I've just had it out again with this obstinate son of yours," shouted old Rivington to Mrs. Rivington, who lifted her green silk skirt and waded her way out of the Bronx river. "I've told him for the last time," went on the old man, "that I will not stand for that confounded game of baseball being played on these premises."

"O, Lord, at it again, eh?" exclaimed Mrs. Rivington in dismay; and then, turning to the boy, continued, "Where in the world do you get these rough-neck ideas, Reggie? Surely not from your father or me. For over two centuries now, both his family and mine have represented and stood for the finest things in high class New England society, and here you are disgracing the true blue blood of your ancestors by playing at a ruffian's game."

"And with the pantry butler, too," shouted the old man.

"Horrible, unbelievable," exclaimed the old lady.

"It's all your fault, Matilda. After everything's been said and done, you're to blame for this," cried the old man, as he pounded his fist on a nine thousand dollar table, inlaid with mother of pearl.

"My fault! What do you mean?" challenged the old lady, as she kicked a seventeen hundred dollar footstool out of her way, and leaned over the table with fire in her eyes.

"I mean," yelled the old man, "that it's been the same old story ever since the boy was nine years old. Ever since that nurse girl took him to the Boston Commons where he mixed in with a crowd of young ragamuffins, he's never had a baseball out of his hands."

"And you blame me for what the nurse girl did?" screamed the old lady.

"You put the ad in the paper," shouted the old man.

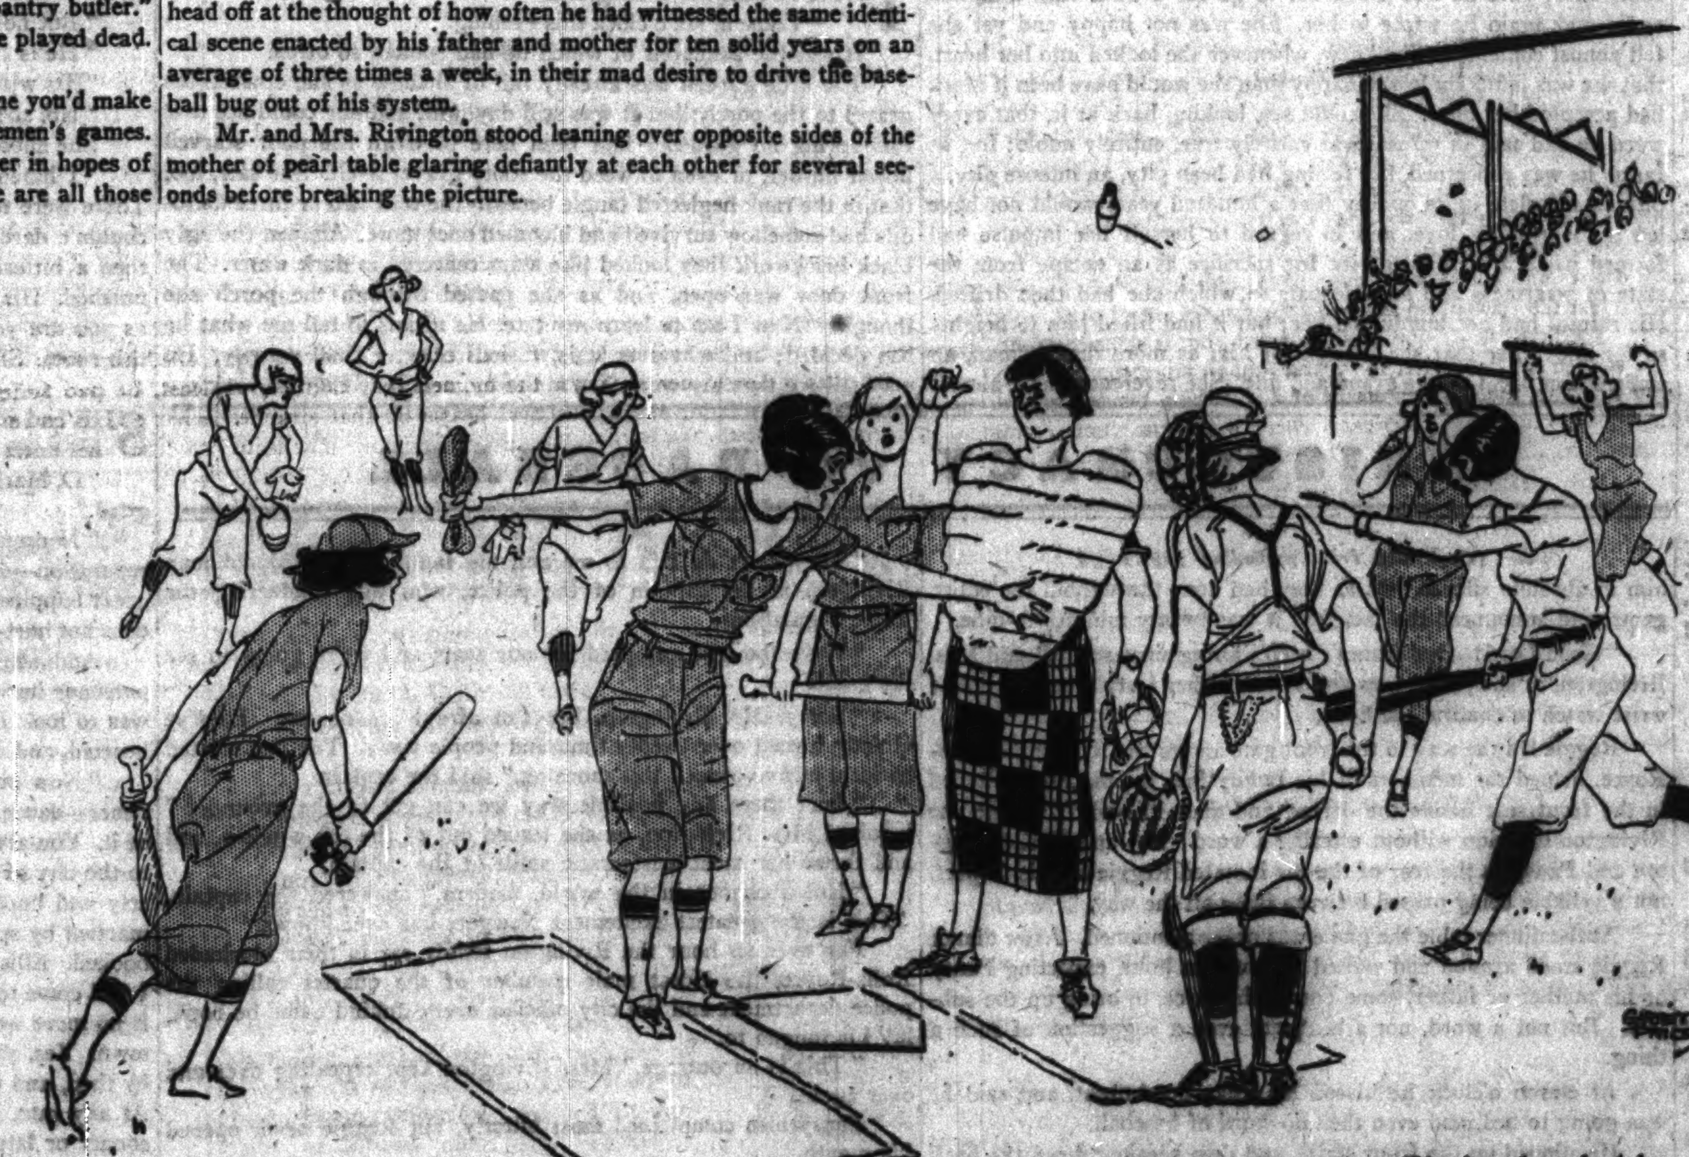
"You engaged her," retorted the old lady.

"O, shut up," hollered the old man.

"Shut up yourself," shrieked the old lady.

During this battle of words Reggie stood there laughing his head off at the thought of how often he had witnessed the same identical scene enacted by his father and mother for ten solid years on an average of three times a week, in their mad desire to drive the baseball bug out of his system.

Mr. and Mrs. Rivington stood leaning over opposite sides of the mother of pearl table glaring defiantly at each other for several seconds before breaking the picture.



Mrs. Rivington ran away. The last heard of her she was umpiring in a female baseball league.

They finally walked to different corners of the room, and each sank into a four thousand dollar tapestry chair.

Reggie pulled the baseball protector from off his chest, threw it on the table, ran his hands through his hair, walked to the center of the room, and shouted at the top of his voice.

"I won't stand for this any longer. I'm all through. I'm going to declare myself right now, once and for all. Do you hear what I am saying? Do you understand?"

It was the first time in his life that Reggie had ever spoken to his parents above a whisper, and the shock was so great that both Mr. and Mrs. Rivington became almost paralyzed with fear. They sat there staring at the boy in utter amazement, thinking, of course, that he had gone suddenly mad.

"I never interfere with any pastimes or pleasures pursued by other folks, and I don't see where anybody's got any license to interfere with or even criticize mine."

Then, turning to his mother, he went on; "You have your bridge games, house parties, dancing crowds, and Mah Jong gatherings to amuse you;" and to his father, "while you have your golf, your kennels, your yachts and race horses and a thousand other pleasures to pass the time of day. No one ever tells you folks that you can't do this and can't do that; that it's not good form; that you're disgracing society, belittling the 400, tossing your dignity into the gutter. No. No one ever challenges you folks for anything you do, because you only do the things that are being done by a lot of anemic, thin skinned, weak kneed snobs that wouldn't understand a regular game even if they saw it played. Well! I want to go on record right now for saying that I'm going to get some regular fun out of my life and that the only way you're ever going to take a baseball away from me will be over my dead body. I love you, father, and I love you, mother, with all my heart, but I love my little baseball, too. I've devoted the last ten years of my life learning how to hold on to an out curve, and now one of the greatest ball players in America, disguised as a pantry butler, is receiving fifty dollars a day for teaching me how to catch an in-drop. You might as well know the truth, the whole truth, right now. I'm going to be a baseball catcher—a professional baseball catcher—and no one's going to stop me. You can turn me out, disinherit, disown me if you like, but my mind's made up, my future planned, and that's just the way it's going to be," and he walked out of the room, slamming the door after him.

Mr. and Mrs. Rivington were flabbergasted, knocked senseless. Both fell in a dead faint.

Five minutes later they were carried to their respective bedrooms, tucked under the sheets, and hot water bottles placed at their feet.

For several days the old gentleman lay in his bed and raved. "My son, my only son, a ball player, a horrid, filthy ball player. O, the disgrace of it all."

And Mrs. Rivington in the adjoining room would bellow, "What have I ever done to be cursed like this? O, to think I brought a maniac into this world," and then she'd bury her face in an eight hundred dollar pillow slip and weep bitterly, long and loud.

Several days of this sort of agony prevailed in the Rivington mansion, but by the end of the week Reggie's parents were able to sit up and talk things over.

"To think that he'd stoop so low as to deliberately smuggle a baseball player into his own home in the guise of a pantry butler," moaned Mrs. Rivington, as she sniffed her smelling salts from a twenty-two hundred dollar jeweled bottle.

"No use in going over all that again," declared the old man. "Diplomacy's our only weapon now. Send for Pansy, and let's see what she thinks of it all. Pansy has always been able to handle Reggie fairly well, so perhaps her advice would be the best, after all."

"The same idea struck me last night," said Mrs. Rivington, "so I called Pansy on the long distance wire at 4 o'clock this morning, and told her to take the first train home."

"When do you expect her?" inquired the old man.

"She ought to be here right now," replied the old lady.

At this point Pansy blew into the room, face flushed and out of breath, wondering why she'd been sent for and what could have happened to spoil her vacation which she was enjoying so much at the Van Winthrops estate at Lennox, Mass.

The Van Winthrops are supposed to be the oldest and richest family in New England, and old man Van Winthrop is said to be the bird who first thought up the idea of eating apple pie for breakfast.

It was quite an honor to break into the Van Winthrop circle, so, naturally, Pansy was sore as a boil to think she'd been suddenly called back home.

Pansy was eighteen years old, a year older than Reggie, his only sister. Pansy had blonde bobbed hair, blue eyes, and an ad-lib brain.

"What's the riot?"

That was Pansy's opening speech as she made her hurried entrance.

"Your brother's been at it again," said Pansy's father.

"At it again, and worse than ever," added Pansy's mother.

"You mean he's been playing baseball again with the children of poor parents in the village?" inquired Pansy.

"Even worse than that," answered her father.

"Your dad caught him dead to rights throwing a ball back and forth with the pantry butler," added her mother.

Pansy burst into tears; so did her mother; yes, and her father, too, and the three of them cried from four o'clock in the afternoon until half past seven that evening, without stopping.

After a long drawn out conference it was decided to let Pansy handle the matter exclusively, so the following morning at the breakfast table, when she and Reggie were alone, Pansy went after him, hammer and tongs. The conversation ran as follows:

"I suppose you know that pop and mom are both sick abed and under the doctor's care!"

"No, I didn't know it. What's the matter with them?"

"You know very well what's the matter with them. It's the way you've been carrying on that's laid them both on the flat of their backs with high blood pressure and nervous breakdown."

"You mean because I——"

"O, don't try to play dead," interrupted Pansy. "They told me all about it. "How you swore you were going to become a professional ball player and that you loved a baseball just as much as you did your parents, and all the other rot. O, Reggie, how can you do and say such things? Don't you realize that you are everything to your father and mother and that the only way to bring sunshine and happiness back into their lives is to go to them and promise faithfully to give up this tenement district sport, this beastly game of baseball, now and forever."

"Now, wait a minute, sis. You've got this thing all wrong. Baseball is played in all the great universities throughout the United States."

"Yes, but only by the common herd who are working their way through college. You never heard of a Van Winthrop or an Amesbury or any other of the old solid New England names being connected with the vulgar game. O, Reggie, I beg of you, I plead with you to come to your senses before you bring shame and dishonor on the good name of Rivington. Please, please, for my sake, for mother's sake, for father's sake, for God's sake, swear to me now, brother mine, that you'll never look at baseball again as long as you live. For the honor of the family, Reggie, please."

Pansy had been taking courses in elocution and diction and had also been tipped off by a professor of dramatic art that she possessed natural talent in that direction, so with this thought in mind she threw every ounce of the fire and fervor in her makeup into the speech which she finished with outstretched arms, breathing hard and with a look of suffering misery registered on her face.

Reggie sat and looked at his sister earnestly and sympathetically for several seconds before he spoke.

"Do you really feel that way about it, sis?" he finally said. "Do you actually believe that baseball should be confined to the lower classes?"

"Just as it's always been," snapped Pansy, with decision.

"Have you ever seen a real game of baseball, Pansy?"

"How can you ask such a question, Reggie? Are you trying to insult your own sister?" Pansy started to walk out of the breakfast room in a huff, but Reggie grabbed her arm, swung her about, and held her by the shoulders.

"I'll make you a fair proposition, sis," said Reggie. "There's a ball game down in the village tomorrow afternoon between the Newport Grays and the Woonsocket Wolves, two of the best semi-professional teams in New England. If you will come down there with me and look at the game from the start to finish and allow me to explain it to you as it goes along, and if at the end of the contest you can conscientiously tell me that you consider it a vulgar, tenement district, lowbrow, filthy sport, I'll not only promise never again to play the game but I'll also promise to donate the rest of my life to preaching, writing, and working against baseball as faithfully and honestly as William Jennings Bryan has taken the stand against booze. Is it a bet?"

"Yes, it's a bet," said Pansy, and after shaking hands with her brother she kissed him and then hurried to her mother and father's quarters to report the result of the proceedings.

"And did you agree to go to this game?" inquired old man Rivington after hearing of Reggie's proposal.

"Of course I did. Why not?

"And he agrees to give up the game forever?" questioned Mrs. Rivington.

"Forever," answered Pansy. "All I've got to do is to look him in the eye at the end of the contest and call it a vulgar game, and he's through with it for life. That's the agreement."

"There's a catch in it somewhere," muttered the old man.

"I'm afraid so," mumbled the old lady.

The three of them sat down and discussed the matter for several hours and went all over the possibilities of some trick or other being connected with Reggie's proposition. By midnight they had decided that instead of permitting Pansy to go to the game with Reggie alone that they (Mr. and Mrs. Rivington) would also accompany her and make sure that nothing was said or done to intimidate, influence, or frighten the girl into declaring herself in favor of the atrocious game.

The next morning when Pansy broke the news to Reggie that their father and mother also had decided to attend the contest she rather expected the boy to kick over the traces, object to the arrangement, and call all bets off, but much to her astonishment, Reggie jumped up and down like a schoolboy and fairly shouted with joy.

"Good! Great! Immense! I'm tickled to death," hollered Reggie, and he ran to the back of the mansion, in through the kitchen door, and for fully fifteen minutes he and the pantry butler rolled all over the pantry floor, laughing their fool heads off.

Mr. and Mrs. Rivington and Pansy Rivington sat through nine long, bitterly contested innings of baseball between the Newport Grays and Woonsocket Wolves without batting an eye or a change of expression. The score stood 2 to 2 at the end of the ninth, 3 to 3 at the end of the tenth, 4 to 4 at the end of the eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth. Each side scored again in the fifteenth, and the score stood 5 to 5 up to the end of the eighteenth. In the nineteenth inning each side scored two runs, making it 7 to 7 as they went into the twentieth. Darkness crept on and on, until at the end of the twenty-fourth inning the ball was scarcely visible to the naked eye.

At the end of the twenty-fifth the two captains of the contesting teams and the two umpires held a consultation in the center of the diamond, and a few minutes later the announcer shouted through his megaphone, "Ladies and gentlemen: Instead of calling the game on account of darkness and declaring it a tie, which is the customary procedure in contests of this kind, the captains of both teams have decided to resume the game at ten o'clock tomorrow morning, starting with the twenty-sixth inning, and have agreed to fight it out on these lines if it takes all summer."

The frenzied crowd shouted its approval and cheered the members of both teams as they ran towards the clubhouse.

Reggie looked at his time piece. It was 8:40, daylight savings time. He turned to the members of his family, who still sat beside

Elaine at the Gates by W. B. Maxwell

INSTALLMENT XX.

Broken Bars.

THE bay window was all dark, and the hall was dark, too, but a little light gleamed in the passage to the kitchen. As Elaine stood there she heard some one moving about in the kitchen—doubtless Mark's charwoman, putting things together and about to leave for the night. It was now past nine o'clock.

He was in the dining room. She knew he was there. She paused before turning the handle and opening the door.

"Mark!"

He was seated at the dining room table, on the side farthest from the door, with a lamp by his elbow, and the light shining on his face as he looked up at the sound of his name. The room smelt of dust and discomfort. There was no cloth on the table. A mass of papers occupied most of its surface, and, at the far end, pushed away, as if in disgust, there was a small tray, with a bit of cheese and half a loaf on it, and a bottle of water and a glass close by. This was his supper, and he had not touched it. No wonder. This was the best that wretched old woman could do for him. It was all cheerless, dreadful, and he himself made almost a symbolic picture of a neglected and deserted man.

She knew then what she was going to say.

"Elaine, dear! What brings you here?" He had risen from his chair, and was looking at her.

"I am sorry to disturb you, Mark—but I wanted a little talk. Do sit down again, and I'll sit here—if I may."

As she spoke she began to move a chair towards the table, where she could sit facing him. But he checked her.

"I don't think you had better sit down, Elaine."

She ceased to move the chair, and stood with her hand on the back of it.

"The fact is, I don't think you ought to be here at all. I don't think it's wise."

"Yes, but that is what I have come to speak of. The case—our case. Mark, I want you to stop the proceedings. I don't want the case to go on."

"You don't want the case to go on?" He himself sat down as he said this. "May I ask why?"

"Because I'm ready to come back to you—if you still want me."

"If I want you! How do you mean?"

"As your wife, Mark—your real wife."

"O, no, Elaine. You can't possibly mean that."

"But I do, Mark. I do. I can't bear your being alone like this. I can't bear it. Take me back, Mark—and do with me what you like. I am ready. I am——"

"Hush. Don't say things that you may regret. Don't tempt me beyond my strength."

HE had put one hand before his eyes, as though to prevent himself from looking at her, and with the other he gripped the edge of the table.

She stood there, smiling, and presently spoke in a gentle, confident tone.

"Let us talk about it quietly—as you used to say, Mark. I am quite in earnest. Now may I venture to sit?"

"No," he said, sternly and harshly, and he dropped the hand that hid his eyes and gripped the table with that, too. "No, keep on your feet. Keep where you are. Don't come any nearer."

"Mark!"

"You ought not to be here—and the sooner you go the better. Understand that I do not dream—that I could not dream—of taking advantage of the strange impulse, or weakness, or whatever it is, that has led you to make such an unexpected—such an astounding proposal."

"You are not very kind, Mark."

"Am I not? O, but I think I am, Elaine. Kinder, much kinder, than you are to yourself."

"You refuse then? You don't want me any more?"

"Hush. Don't—don't, please, Elaine. Walk up and down. Oblige me by letting me see you walk."

"O, I'm quite all right, Mark," and obeying him she moved along the room and returned to the same place.

"No, my dear, you're not quite all right. You still limp." And unexpectedly he put his hand to his eyes again, as if they had filled with tears. "If nothing else—that limp—that limp—has saved you, Elaine. You may sit down now. You may say what you like. You are risking nothing now."

"Don't think me ungrateful," he said presently, "or that I don't really understand all the nobility of your offer. Of course it was pity that prompted you. You had got it into your head that I was still sorrowing for the loss of you—still miserable—pining for you. Just pity for me."

"Or for myself, Mark. I am lonely, too."

"Ah, but you mustn't think of that—not yet. You are still so young. You have so much time before you. Be brave, dear Elaine. Don't give up hope."

"Ah, there may be much. Things that surpass hope. Elaine, dear, trust to time. And trust to me, too, if you will."

"But I do trust you, Mark."

"Very well. That's right. I am always thinking of you, my dear—always hoping—always praying for you. One moment. Tell me this. There was no particular distress, no sudden sense of trouble, that brought you to me tonight?"

"No, I don't think so, Mark. I simply couldn't help coming."

"I see. That true great heart of yours! You are always true. You kept your promise to me."

"Of course, I kept it."

"Yes, I know you have kept it."

AND it seemed to her then, by his manner of saying this, that he was implying that he knew she had kept the promise because he had been seeing Arnold Thorne. It seemed, too, in the next moment, that he was about to speak to her of Arnold; but he did not do so.

"Very well. Now give me another promise if you can. Promise to remain here still. I want to know that you are accessible if I wish to get you. Elaine, give me eight months from today, ten months, during which at any time you promise to come to me here if I summon you."

"Do you mean for you to change your mind about taking me back?"

"O, no. That's over—done with. Forget it. Of course, I do not require that you should stay if the work becomes distasteful—or if your health fails. But keep in touch with me. If you are obliged to go away, give me your address and be ready to answer the call if I send for you."

"All right. I promise."

Then she got up. He remained seated, looking at her.

"Mark!" She had opened her arms in a gesture of invitation or appeal. "For the last time. You refuse?"

"Absolutely."

"Then good night."

"Good night. No, one more minute—now you have stayed so long. You know I'm not ungrateful, don't you? You understand me—you read my thoughts—you don't really need to be told them. If I answer plainly and firmly, that's not ingratitude—or rudeness. It's only to make it clear that my answer is no—a thousand noes—a thousand million times no, Elaine." His voice had the jerkiness, the unnaturally high pitched notes, that she had noticed for the first time when he sat by her bed and talked to her in the hospital. He steadied it a little, and as he went on she saw his hands shaking. One on each side of him, they still held the edge of the clumsy table. "But, of course, you know I want you—and that if it was right—if it wasn't wicked and impossible—I would never let you go through that doorway tonight. O, yes, you know—you feel my true thought. I can see it in your dear face. I want you—I want you, Elaine—not only as much as before—but more—more, as rivers are bigger than streams and seas than oceans. I want you as sick men want health—as dead men want life—I want you as men in the deepest part of hell want heaven."

"Mark!"

"And yet down there in the burning pit certain men are like me, Elaine. They wouldn't—they couldn't take heaven in exchange for hell, if it was only offered in pity. They would say to the angel of mercy what I have said to you, 'Thank you, no.'

"And you needn't pity me, Elaine. Truly, I am not a case for pity. On my honor I am doing very well," and his voice grew jerky again, and those shaking hands made the whole table and the lamp on it shake, too. "Getting on famously . . . I am trying—and I am going to succeed. I am going to get back all—all that I lost. But not you, Elaine. You were never mine."

After opening the door she said good night to him again. He did not stir from his seat.

"Good night, Elaine. Take care of yourself. Do your duty. And come when I summon you."

ABOUT a month after this their marriage was annulled. She became Miss Fletcher again.

And time, with its immense interminable todays and its small insignificant yesterdays, made up weeks and more weeks until nearly a year of them had gone by her. Mark Awdrey came to see her now sometimes; once he had asked her to go for a walk with him, and again and again he wrote to her. She was not happy and yet she felt almost contented. She knew, whenever she looked into her heart, that she was infinitely less unhappy than she would have been if Mark had accepted her offer. She could see, looking back at it, that every word he had said in refusal was entirely true, entirely noble; for, so far as he was concerned, her feeling had been pity, an intense pity, a pity so complete in its quality that a hundred years would not have led it to ordinary love, and in regard to herself her impulse had formed itself in a blind desire for sacrifice as an escape from the state of weariness and semi-despair to which she had then drifted. His refusal had not humiliated her; but it had lifted him to heights so far above her that she thought of him as more than human, an embodiment of all that is grand and fine. She reverenced him, almost worshiped him; but, again if she analyzed her thought, she knew that between them the normal of man and woman was, at least on her side, as impossible as it had always been. In giving what she had brought herself to think of as little she would have lost all—beyond and above all, she would have made him lose, too, lose that essence of his strength which made him what he was.

Her sense of calm or contentment, then, was derived from him, from the knowledge of his affectionate interest in her and his undeviating solicitude for her welfare. It banished the loneliness. How could she be alone if, as he told her, he was always thinking of her and often praying for her? More even than in the past she held him as her spiritual guide and guardian; she felt confident that he would never abandon her; and she knew he was leading her, as resolutely as of old, towards some appointed end. At night the same thought, although vague, filled her dreams. Her hand was in his; confiding, trustful, it clung to his hand, and he was leading her through darkness and danger towards some place of safety and light. She had no fear of the darkness, because she was with him, and she knew that the light was surely coming.

Awakening from this recurrent dream with a strange full sense of confidence and hope, she used to think sometimes of the atrocious dreams in which he once used to figure as the source of personification of fear and evil. Perhaps it was the afterglow of the new and happy dream that tinged her thoughts with an increasing sense of expectancy; but, in any event, now that another year was coming to strong, brave life, she felt often an almost feverish elation of the spirit.

Nature itself seemed to be sending her messages of hope; the exultant joy of the Easter festival was brightening the faces of all her pious companions; the wind that blew to her from the river had a sting of glorious health in it, a flavor of the wide sea, a warmth that it had carried from warm sunlit lands. There were days in early April when she had almost a child's illusion of some wonderful fantastic bliss that was coming, if not to the whole world, at least to her, Elaine. Something must happen. These premonitions or fancies were too strong, too frequent, to be altogether meaningless.

Moreover, Mark in his letters said strangely enigmatical but exciting, stimulating things; such things as one says to a child on a long journey, but only when the journey is nearly done.

"Keep up your courage, dear Elaine, and be prepared for anything. You have been brave, and your steadfastness shall not be wasted."

THEN he sent her a telegram.

"Come at six o'clock this evening."

It was the summons of which he had spoken so often.

The little garden was already full of shadow as she crossed the gravel to the porch; but it was still daylight, and she could see that this spring no gardener had been here to clean the poor starved flower border, or even to weed the sooty gravel itself. She saw, too, that in the rank neglected tangle beneath the wall two or three daffodils had somehow survived and bloomed once more. Against the ugly black brickwork they looked like stars reflected in dark water. The front door was open, and as she passed through the porch she thought, "Now I am to learn my fate. He means to tell me what he has decided; and whatever it is, I shall obey, I shall comply. He may tell me that my work lies far away, and that I am to pack my things and start at once. Perhaps I may never see this place ag after today."

The sitting room door was open also, and he called to h cheerily.

"Is that you, Elaine? Faithful as always. You have come to th sound of the striking clocks. Shall we have the light, or can we go o with the blindman's holiday for a little while?"

She said she liked the twilight best.

"Very well. Then let us sit here near the window, and hav what there is of brightness."

She sat facing him and folded her hands on her lap; in her atti tude, in her whole air of close attention and complete submission there was something so childlike as to be almost pathetic.

"I have nothing to tell you that is not good news, that you won' wish to hear. Prepare your mind for pleasant, not for grievo tidings," and he looked at her closely, and smiled. "You have been s brave in adversity, Elaine, that you wouldn't let a little bit of goo luck upset—knock you over—would you, dear? Of course, not. B clearly understand that tonight I am not the bogey or demon—b quite another character—say the fairy. Yes, think of me as the goo fairy of the piece."

She understood that all this talk had little meaning, except a a preparation for something that was to startle her, to shake her. Sh divined that what he had to say was of unestimated, of tremendou importance, and that he was afraid of the shock with which it migh strike her.

He smiled at her, but looked at her anxiously.

"Well, what could a fairy give you—what boon, what gift big enough to make all the past seem nothing at all and your time of waiting but a minute of distress? Think of the biggest thing you could ask for. It is going to be yours, Elaine. Now shall I tell you what it is?"

"Yes," she said faintly. "Tell me, Mark."

"The man you love. He is to be yours at last."

"Arnold Thorne!"

"Yes, Arnold—of course. Who else? Silly girl, how many me do you love? Has there ever been more than one?" She was trembling violently, and he leaned forward and grasped both her hands. With infinite gentleness and yet with calming strength he held them. "Elaine, don't be afraid of happiness. Face it boldly. Happiness never hurts."

"But I don't understand—I can't believe it."

"Believe it—believe it. Don't be afraid. You are free—you know you're free."

"But he—Arnold? How can I? How can he?"

"He is free, too."

"His wife? Pearl? Is she dead?"

"No, she left him—of her own accord. You never knew that."

She shook her head negatively; she could not speak.

"I hated not letting you know, but I was certain it was best. There were too many risks and chances in it. And the one risk w couldn't dare run was the chance of giving you definite hope an then a bitterly cruel disappointment. But now it's all right—a finished. His decree nisi was made absolute yesterday. He is as fre as you are yourself. I am going to put your hand in his—here— this room. Silly girl! What's the matter? Elaine!"

SHE had slid from the chair to the floor, and she lay her head upo his knees and wept.

"O, Mark—O, Mark—how good you are to me—how good—ho good."

"Nonsense. But it makes me very glad—very happy. I m reparation—didn't I? And he is worthy of you, Elaine. There's my great happiness. He is a noble good fellow. Elaine, on my honor, does not hurt—there is no pain for me—because of that."

And while she lay there clinging to him and before he cou persuade her to get up, he told her how, when he went to France, was to look for Arnold; and how he had found him ill and broke hearted, and most terribly in need of a nurse and a friend.

"Now pull yourself together. How silly to cry. Why don't yo dance—dance for joy? I tell you it is all joy. More and still mo of it. You are to have your other wish, too. You are going with hi to the city of dreams—you know, the wonder town, the place of li erty and hope. Arnold will take you there at once. You are to b married by special license, because time is short and your berths a booked. Ellis Kaye is waiting out there impatiently. And some d I will come to see you. Some day, perhaps, when I am old and the is no more work left in me, I may come out there and settle in yo town. Yes, your town, Elaine. For you will have made it your o by then, and every heart in it—as you always do, as you always d At any rate, I shan't stay here—and you are sure to see me ag sooner or later. I was always a rolling stone.

"There, that's better. Quick, dry your eyes. And wait quiet and happily. Elaine, he is coming to you—your Arnold is com here now. Listen and you will hear his footstep."

They sat then for a few minutes scarcely talking at all, u Mark again told her to listen.

"Do you hear?"

Yes, she heard it, and even in that moment of overpowering em tion thought of the poet's line, "My dust would hear it and beat h I lain for a century dead." It was his footstep—quick, firm, stro

"Now, as steady as you can be, Elaine. Will you have th lamps or meet your lover in this kindly dusk?"

"The light," she murmured tremulously. "Give me the li Mark—as it was in my dream. And I want to see his face—ye want to see his face."

"Here she is, Arnold."

When presently they looked round and spoke to him, Mark not answer. He was not in the room. And when, a little while a that, they went to look for him he was not in the next room or stairs either. He was not in the house.

BUT on the following Saturday he came to see them off at S ampton, whence their ship sailed for New York.

It was a very different departure from the one years ago w he himself left this same port starting the unfinished journey Buenos Aires. On this vast boat there seemed to be no hurry, confusion or excitement, not even the ordinary emotions of lea taking; it absorbed its crowds of passengers as easily and quietly any great town with ample hotel accommodation absorbs the tra loads of people that come into it from the surrounding coun indeed, as soon as one got on board one had difficulty in remembe it was a ship at all.

They all three of them were together for an hour in the comf able stateroom that had been reserved for Mr. and Mrs. Thor Mark and Arnold, seated on the sofa beneath the two window portholes, talking in the quietest and most commonplace manner; Elaine, now sitting, now moving about, busy with the trifling ant cares of their installation. The steward came and asked for th voyage tickets, promising to save them all trouble. The stewa him in absolute silence, just as they had done throughout the entire game, and announced the fact that it was twenty minutes to nine.

"Good Lord! Our dinner's been waiting since seven," said Mrs. Rivington, as she jumped up and looked at her forty thousand dollar wrist watch to confirm the hour.

Reggie led the way to the front gate and to the Rivington Rolls-Royce, helped the members of his family into the machine, crawled in the front seat beside the driver, and made the whole trip to the Rivington mansion without uttering a word. Mr. and Mrs. Rivington and Pansy in the rear of the car imitated Reggie in this respect, not a syllable being passed between them all the way.

At the dinner table the game was never mentioned. After dinner Reggie stood around and waited for over an hour, expecting Pansy or his mother or father, some one of the three, to bring up the subject. But not a word, not a hint, not even a suggestion of such a thing.

At eleven o'clock he kissed his folks good-night, and said he was going to bed, and even then no word of baseball.

He slipped up the front stairs, and then sneaked down the back stairs and out through the kitchen door to the back lawn, where the pantry butler was waiting to greet him. They shook hands, had a quiet laugh, and then walked a hundred yards away from the mansion before starting the following conversation:

"How did it look to you from the grandstand?"

"Wonderful."

"I guess everybody there thought it was on the level."

"It was the best cooked up affair of the kind ever pulled. They couldn't have done better if they had rehearsed it a month."

"Are the players all satisfied?"

"Why wouldn't they be, with two hundred for each man?"

"What have you decided on for tomorrow?"

"We'll start the twenty-sixth inning at ten o'clock, just as announced, but I'll guarantee that if your folks start for the game you'll never get near the grounds."

"Great," chuckled Reggie. "Wonderful!" giggled the pantry butler, and they shook hands, had another quiet little laugh, whispered "Good night," separated, and hustled off to bed.

The next morning at breakfast Reggie naturally expected some one to break the ice and either denounce or praise the game, but, no, not a word. Just the regular good morning stuff and the usual conversation.

At nine-thirty the head butler appeared and announced that the car was waiting, and Mr. and Mrs. Rivington and Pansy fell all over one another trying to see who would get to the front door first.

Reggie hopped in the machine without saying a word, and when the driver inquired "where to?" old man Rivington bellowed, "the ball park."

When they got within three blocks of the grounds the traffic was so congested and the crowd so huge that they stood still in the blockade of automobiles for fully half an hour before the traffic policeman announced that no more persons would be admitted to the game on account of the great overflow now on the field.

He followed up this announcement with a friendly tip to the occupants of the cars that it would be a good idea to get out and walk back home, because it looked as though the line would not break for three or four hours.

"They can't do this to me and my family," shouted old man Rivington at the captain of the police, who was conducting the traffic regulations.

"We've bought and paid for our seats and we're going to see the game."

"Sorry, Mr. Rivington, but I'm afraid it's no use. They've already turned over twenty thousand people away. The line started to form at five o'clock this morning," said the captain.

"Isn't there any possible way we can get to the grounds?" inquired Mrs. Rivington, as she leaned out of the car window, and and threw her most aristocratic smile at the captain.

"Not a chance in the world, madam," answered the captain. "This is the greatest excitement Newport has ever known."

For over an hour the Rivington family sat in their blockaded Rolls-Royce, the eldest male member of the quartet calling the police department and the city officials every unkind name he could lay his tongue to.

"This is an outrage," Mrs. Rivington kept repeating over and over again.

Pansy also complained most bitterly, but Reggie never opened his mouth.

It was two o'clock in the afternoon before the Rivingtons arrived back home, without as much as getting even a look at the eighteen extra innings it took to decide the interrupted game, which was won by the Woonsocket Wolves in the forty-third inning by a score of 10 to 9.

When old man Rivington heard the final result he forgot about his wild threats to oust all the city officials, put new men in the jobs, and get even for the discomfort and inconveniences suffered by himself and family, and confined his remarks to the relative values of the two teams.

"I'll bet right now that the Newport Grays can beat them two out of three—yes, sir, I'll bet money on it."

"I'll make a wager myself on that," said Mrs. Rivington.

"So would I," agreed Pansy.

"Get those two teams together next Saturday, Reggie, and I'll back the Newports for ten thousands dollars," shouted the old man.

"Yes! Do that, Reggie," said the old lady.

"Think you can arrange it, Reggie?" asked Pansy.

"Sure—I'll fix it O. K.," said Reggie.

And he did and the game was played and won by the Woonsocket Wolves, and some one won ten thousand dollars from old man Rivington. We suspect the pantry butler.

The old man got so stuck on baseball that he bought himself a franchise in one of the big leagues and made Reggie the regular catcher.

Pansy fell in love with a shortstop, and became a ball player's wife.

Mrs. Rivington became the biggest bug of all, and went so mad over the game that she ran away from her home and family, and the last heard of her she was umpiring in a female baseball league in the northern part of Canada.

Which only goes to prove that baseball is not altogether a gentleman's game, after all.

ELAINE AT THE GATES . . . . . . By W. B. Maxwell

came, solid and sedate, like an old fashioned lady's maid in a well conducted house, asking for Mrs. Thorne's keys, telling her about bathrooms, hairdressers' shops, making her understand she should not be troubled in the slightest degree. Trouble—the whole ship was devised and constructed to save people from trouble. Page boys came asking if there were letters for the post, if they wanted stamps, or books from the library.

"Thank you so much. Thank you so much." Elaine kept saying this, and "Not at all," "Not at all," said every one else.

It was wonderful. Life was wonderful. Everything was strange, overwhelming, but full of delight. This was not like a cabin on a ship; it was a room, with the round table there and the vase of flowers, and behind the table those two men on the sofa, talking and smiling. The beds were real beds, not berths. There was a clock over the door. The two wardrobes had mirrored doors that reflected vistas of endless comfort, unceasing convenience.

"Well, it has been a rush for you," said Mark, "but you've got through, all right."

"Yes," said Arnold, "it has been a rush, but I don't think we have forgotten anything."

Elaine sat in an armchair, and looked here and there with restless eyes. She was restless only because of the whirlwind of events through which she had passed; the incredible waking dream, in which she and Arnold had been bustling hither and thither, surmounting impossible obstacles all the time—difficulties of securing their passports, difficulties made by wicked, disappointing tradesmen, difficulties of every sort, big and small. Yes, it had been a rush.

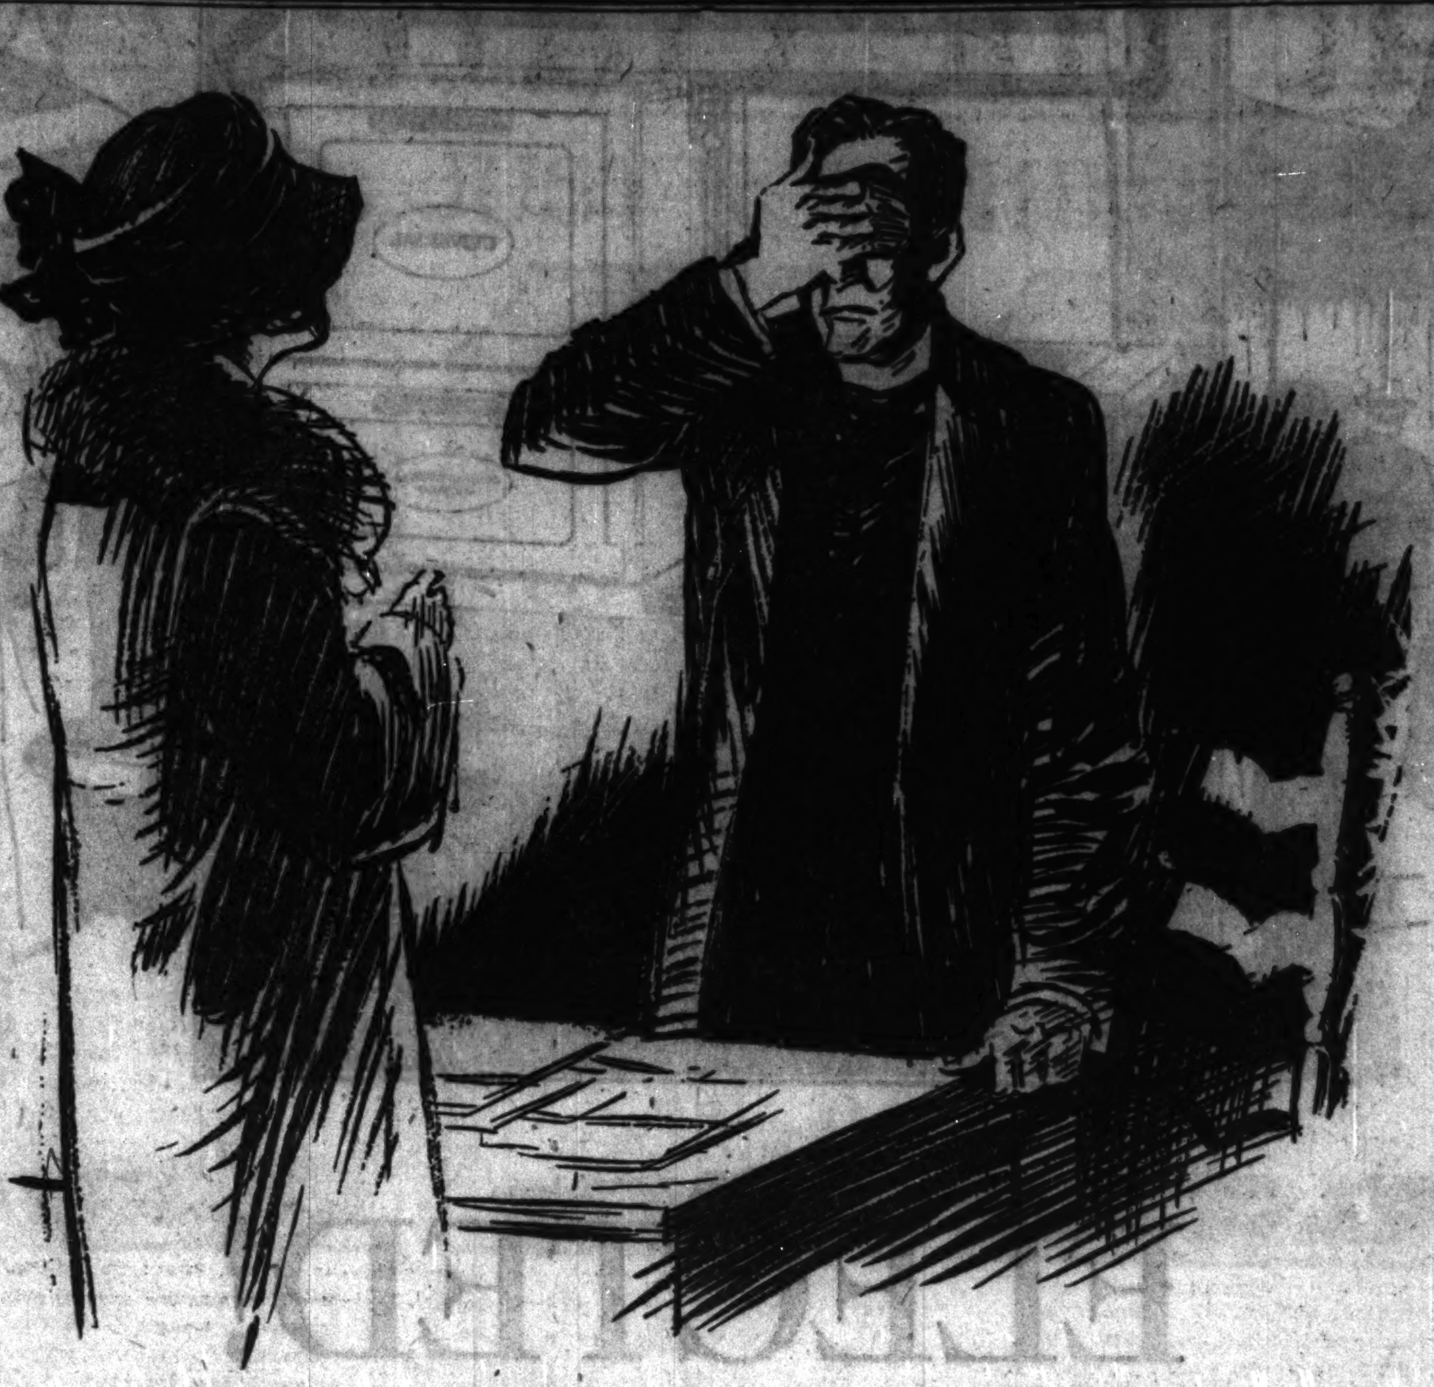
"By the way," Arnold was saying, "you have a letter for me to take to Ellis Kaye."

"No. I meant to write one, but I haven't done it. I'll send it after you. Give him my best regards."

Elaine listened, yet scarcely heard what they said—those two men sitting there, talking in such a calm, prosaic fashion. The sunburnt one in the blue suit and the brown shoes was her husband. He belonged to her. He was hers. And already it seemed that this gigantic possession had always been held by her. She knew the look of those brown shoes standing in their trees, waiting to be pushed outside the door, and the queer aspect of the blue suit after it had been brushed and folded, and put upon a chair in a corridor by some invisible, nocturnal working assistant. They were man and wife. They were the married couple who had been living for three days in rooms Nos. 375-6, on the fourth floor of a London hotel. "Mr. Thorne has gone out, ma'am. Mr. Thorne asked me to say that he has gone down to the reading room, and will wait for you there." That was how people had been talking to her about her husband for three days—for three days—for the whole of her life—the whole of her real life—as it seemed. Wonderful, imposible, but true.

Always he had been hers—always. Only things, chances, queer tricks of fate, had been keeping them apart, trying hard to keep them from each other. But fate couldn't—life couldn't—death couldn't do it. Always they had been meant for each other; and she thought, with a sudden throbbing in which a little pain mingled with the joy, that they two possessed the greatest gift, the surest promise of happiness that any husband and wife can hold, and that was a common past. That past, which they owned and shared, needed them to keep it alive and save it from fading utterly. But for them and their joint care of it, it would go; it must have gone; no one else could guard and cherish it.

And as she thought in this manner it was as if all the gentle ghosts of the past grew bright and strong, stretched their hands towards her, and asked her for kindness and remembrance. Aunt Edith, Arnold's mother, her old governess, Mr. and Mrs. Marsh, servants, gardeners, their poor and humble friends—all these had known them both; while both remembered them they could not fade. Then she thought, with warm compassion, of less fortunate wives, who had to be contented with husbands that they had never met except as grownup men, for whom behind a certain year, a fixed date, there was mere blankness or conjecture; who had never seen the man they loved when he was young and innocent, who had never felt with him a child's unsullied joy, a child's undaunted hope. How small their wealth compared with hers.



"Hush. Don't say things that you may regret. Don't tempt me beyond my strength."

MARK and Arnold went on talking, but for her, during a moment or two, their voices ceased to sound, and they themselves had vanished. She had gone back to the time before Arnold had any existence in her mind, long, long before she had ever seen Mark Awdrey's dark, stern face. At this moment she was again a little child. She was standing outside high gates and looking through their iron bars at happiness. She was near to it, yet cut off from it, longing for it, but not daring, not even thinking of an attempt to reach it. Then with a jerk of the head she looked round, her eyes shining, and saw again those two on the sofa. The gates were drawn, the bars were broken. She had entered her sunlit realm; her kingdom of delight stretched out before her, with no boundaries to hope, no limit to anticipation except the limits of a human future.

The steward had come to the door, not fussily or disturbingly, rather grave, deprecating, apologetic, announcing that those great covered gangways, the gangways that protruded from the quay, would be withdrawn in a minute or two.

"Yes, ma'am, we're just off."

"That means good-by," said Awdrey, rising from the sofa and coming round the table.

"No," she said, "not good-by, for you're coming out there to see us." And while she held his hand he stood smiling at her gravely."

"Yes, Elaine, count on me one of these days——" and he spoke over his shoulder to Arnold. "I tell your wife I'm a rolling stone. I can never keep in one place for very long. . . . Well, good-by, old chap. . . . Good luck."

The steward was leading him along the corridor, and they were following. Elaine made her way through the groups of people in the broad vestibule on the great staircase, and leaned over the balustrade. Mark Awdrey had gone down the next flight, and was by the beds of flowers and the great mirrors on the broad landing of the deck immediately below theirs. Next moment he passed out of sight on the flight of stairs below that. When she and Arnold came out on one of the promenade decks presently the gangways had gone. It was wonderful here, too. The side of the ship as she looked down was like a cliff. They were so high above everything that as she looked out across the great shed in which the railway trains were waiting, she saw the whole town spread at her feet, and diminished to toylike insignificance. The roofs of the two churches in the high street were completely visible as a bird might see them, but apparently close to the ship, and farther than the town one saw sloping uplands of open country smoothed to a maplike level. The river seemed absurdly narrow, with a pretty woodland shore and meager distances that melted into haze long before they met the skyline. The sky itself, towards the west, was golden and cloudless, and all about them the light grew soft and weak. The sun was already down, the day would soon be gone.

IMMEDIATELY below her all the people on the quay blackened and grew vague, and suddenly she became aware of the widening gap of steel gray water between the dockside and the ship. The enormous vessel was moving, it was beginning to glide. There was no vibration, no sense of movement, it was as though an enormous piece of the land itself had broken away and gone adrift. Invisible tugs were busy pulling and pushing the vast bulk, and slowly, almost imperceptibly as it moved, it yet seemed already to be moving fast. The entrance to the big shed, with the peep of galleries, platforms, railway coaches, had slipped far behind. All those people had dropped back, too, the quay opposite the shed was empty, as swiftly it crept away. Then they saw Mark Awdrey all alone in that empty space, hurrying, running, keeping pace with the ship. He waved to them, they waved to him. Then the dock, the shore, the church towers, seemed to swing to the right hand; the ship was in the river, and as they leaned over the rail they saw Mark Awdrey alone at the end of the quay—a thin little black figure with a raised arm still waving to them. Then next moment many other people, who had hurried, too, came surging out of the shed, the whole end of the pier was filled with the black crowd.

They could distinguish him no longer among the throng, but they stood there watching till all grew faint, till the wall of the shed, the wall of the quay, darkened and darkened, absorbing those little black people, making them vanish. Then the docks, and the town, with its roofs and churches, the narrow river, and the gentle sloping shore, grew faint, too, seemed to sink, to fade, and there was nothing there but a long low ridge, and the dying light of the yellow sky. Those busy tugs were dragging and pushing the ship down the river, pulling her round the sharp corners of the impossibly difficult channel. Soon they would get her into better water, soon they would let her shake them off, and then in a little while she would be free, in the open sea.

M. ANATOLE FRANCE wrote "The Man Who Married a Dumb Wife," and heaven knows that many beaming bridegrooms have actually married dumb wives—some dumber than others. The churches are full of them. "Other People's Lives," by Henry Albert Phillips, is a novel about a fellow who tripped to the altar—and at the altar—with a sweet young thing who, we have no doubt, believed that Rachminoff was a kind of caviar. He was a pleasant fellow, this Duncan Wyatt, full of ideas and pipesmoke, and he had once been editor of a magazine called "Snoopy Stories"; but his troubles do not really begin until he establishes his bride, the scintillant Cynthia, in a honeymoon boarding house in greater Manhattan. From that day forth all is strife and turmoil. Not that they quarrel—no, no: but it would seem that every time they turn around life deals them a Duncan Sister kick. Eventually they betake themselves to what is known as the country, lured thither by some of that jolly why-pay-rent-own-your-own-home propaganda. And Louie Firpo never had a more enjoyable time inside the squared ring with Mr. Dempsey than had this young husband battling the elements at "Westminster Estates," the suburb wherein he and his dumb wife build their little nest—on the installment plan. If you have ever dwelt in a suburb or if you have ever journeyed to a suburb to partake of that barbaric rite known as Sunday dinner, you will find this a real and, at times, an amusing novel.

A fine book is Donn Byrne's "Blind Raftery." (Observe, please, that it is not Raferty—but Raftery.) Those of you who had the good fortune to come upon "Messer Marco Polo" two—or was it three?—seasons ago, will doubtless never allow a volume of Mr. Byrne's to go by unread; for that slender little "Messer Marco Polo" was a grand portion of literature. And here, now, is "Blind Raftery" that can be read in an hour and remembered a lifetime. It is a tale of "the chief poet of the Irish nation," the "dark" Raftery who saw more of beauty in his wanderings about the world than men with eyes can see; and of his young Spanish wife; and of the poet's enemy, Daffyd Evans, the Welshman of Claregalway. There is drama and sentiment and poetry in this story of Ireland at the time of the South Sea bubble; and a magic to Mr. Byrne's musical prose that lifts "Blind Raftery" to a high place among the books of any year.

Konrad Bercovici

That rollicking Roumanian, Konrad Bercovici, has burst forth with another book. And you could never guess what it's about. Yes, you are right—gypsies again! But nobody writes such dashing, colorful tales of wandering people as does Bercovici, and if you do not believe it, read one of them in this new book, "Iliana"—or glance at his picture. Some of his best gypsy stories are included in this volume: "Muzio," "The Woman," and "Jancu Gian," and others. And each one of the eleven stories bears the three stars of highest recommendation that Professor O'Brien can hand out. And Professor O'Brien, you know, is the gentleman who annually plucks the "Best Short Stories" from the season's output of magazine fiction. Thus, now that Three-Star Hennessey is no more, we may talk of Three-Star Bercovici, whose yarns have a kick in them. Klever kid, Konrad.

H. Warner Allen has concocted a delectable volume called "The Wines of France," and after you have read three pages of it you will wonder how Volstead escaped lynching. Mr. Allen's opening chapter on "The Gentle Art of Wine Drinking" is so tempting that it would cause a temperance lecturer to throw himself into the Seine. Though a temperance lecturer in France would be thrown into the Seine. This book is the apotheosis of wine. After reading it you will weep with remorse that you did not, in 1919, stock your cellar with Burgundy and Bordeaux and sauterne and Pol Roger and cognac. Or, if you did, perhaps, have the wisdom to stock your cellar, Mr. Allen's book will make you appreciate to the utmost your good fortune.

"Where Strange Gods Call," by Harry Hervey, is something more than one of those green jacketed travel books. It is the spirited chronicle of a romantic young man who goes adventuring all over the east: across the Pacific to Zamboanga, in the Philippines, to Japan and China, through the Malay archipelago that Joseph Conrad wrote about, to India. This is really an extraordinary book in its color and imagery and romance. It is not merely a book of places, but of places and people. We have always rather felt that it was the people and adventures he wrote about that carried Frederick O'Brien (that chaste traveler!) to fame with his first South seas book. Mr. Hervey has put that same zest and charm into the characters that stray across the pages of "Where Strange Gods Call"—and he writes three times as well as Frederick O'Brien.

Commodore Ashton Stevens of the Saugatuck Yacht club, author of "Actorviews" and other works, has been chiding us, none too gently but firmly, for what he considers our overpraise of "The Green Hat," Michael Arlen's chef d'oeuvre. Ah, that is the curse of enthusiasm! To us "The Green Hat" is such a triumph of the sort of writing we enjoy that we fired off colored rockets in its honor. And mayhap we did commit the venial sin of overpraise. Superlatives, it is true, are precarious, but we believe that such a rare novel as "The Green Hat" is entitled to a blast of cheering from the housetops: forsooth from the pinnacle of Tribune tower. Yet, alas, even up there we are not out of range of well aimed bricks.

Since our opinion of J. U. Nicolson's "The Sainted Courtesan" appeared in print, we have been twice assailed for neglecting to mention the name of Boris Riedel, the young artist who illustrated the book. It was indeed an omission, and we make haste to atone for it by proclaiming that Mr. Riedel's black and white drawings are enormously effective.

Here is a book, "The Passionate Adventure," which offers you an evening's entertainment quite out of the ordinary run of fiction. It is by Frank Stayton, the English play writer, and much of its action is sufficiently dramatic to be set forth under the banner of Col. A. H. Woods. Adrian St. Clair (there is a theater name for you), a fastidious Londoner "of wealth and position," as the cinemas say, comes back from the war to find himself estranged from his lovely wife, Drusilla, and restless and bored with the tranquil existence of Mayfair. In one of his clubs one evening he overhears an eminent specialist say, "If I were drifting into discontent, I should go down into the East End and study life in the raw." Adrian recalls, too, a conversation with a man of his platoon, a pickpocket, who dwelt pleasantly upon the jolly life to be lived in London's lower depths.

"If yer wants ter 'it a bloke, yer just 'it 'im, an' go on 'ittin' 'im until yer tired," explained the pickpocket. "If a gal tykes yer fancy, yer sye, 'Come on!' An' she says, 'Well, I dunno!' . . . An' there yer are. . . . 'Tain't sech a bad life, tykin' it orl rarnd." Lusting for adventure, our hero procures a makeup of old clothes, puts aside the monocle of Adrian St. Clair, and adopts the monicker of Jim Higgins; then, with a golfing week-end as an alibi, sets forth for London's East End.

And here he encounters Vicky, a merciful Magdalene who loses her heart to Jim Higgins almost before that masquerader has time to lift his hat to her—an act of etiquette which Horrible Herb Harris, her burglar beau, would never have performed. But several otherwise valuable columns would be required to narrate the amazing adventures of the errant Adrian—adventures entailing a murder or two, a Scotland Yard inspector who had been dining with Adrian's wife that very evening, and other thrills. "The Passionate Adventure" reminds you of a play—except that it only costs $2.

Gilbert Frankau, who is something of a novelist in England, has just done a volume of stories, "Men, Maids, and Mustard Pot," and we enjoyed immensely those of the stories we read. Most of them tell of that jolly group of persons that spend the season each year in pursuit of the elusive fox, and they are the best tales of hunting and hunting people we have ever read. Some of them, it is true, relate to adventures beneath the palm trees of Cuba.

There is no tremendous art to Mr. Frankau's writing, but he can spin a yarn that carries you breathless over the hazardous fences of Leicestershire, with galloping hunters in the wake of the music of hounds; and there is, too, much humor in these yarns. Mustard Pot is a great yellow hunter with more intelligence than most of the people who ride him, and he carries his riders through an amazing series of adventures. This is a volume of stories that should appeal to everybody who fancies horses.

There is one literary man in America for whom we profess a prodigious admiration, and that man is William Allen White. Not only because he is the editor of one of the great newspapers of what New Yorkers who came from Ohio call the middle west, and because he wrote one of the finest novels that ever came out of this country, "A Certain Rich Man," but because he is at the present moment candidate for governor of Kansas on the anti-klux ticket.

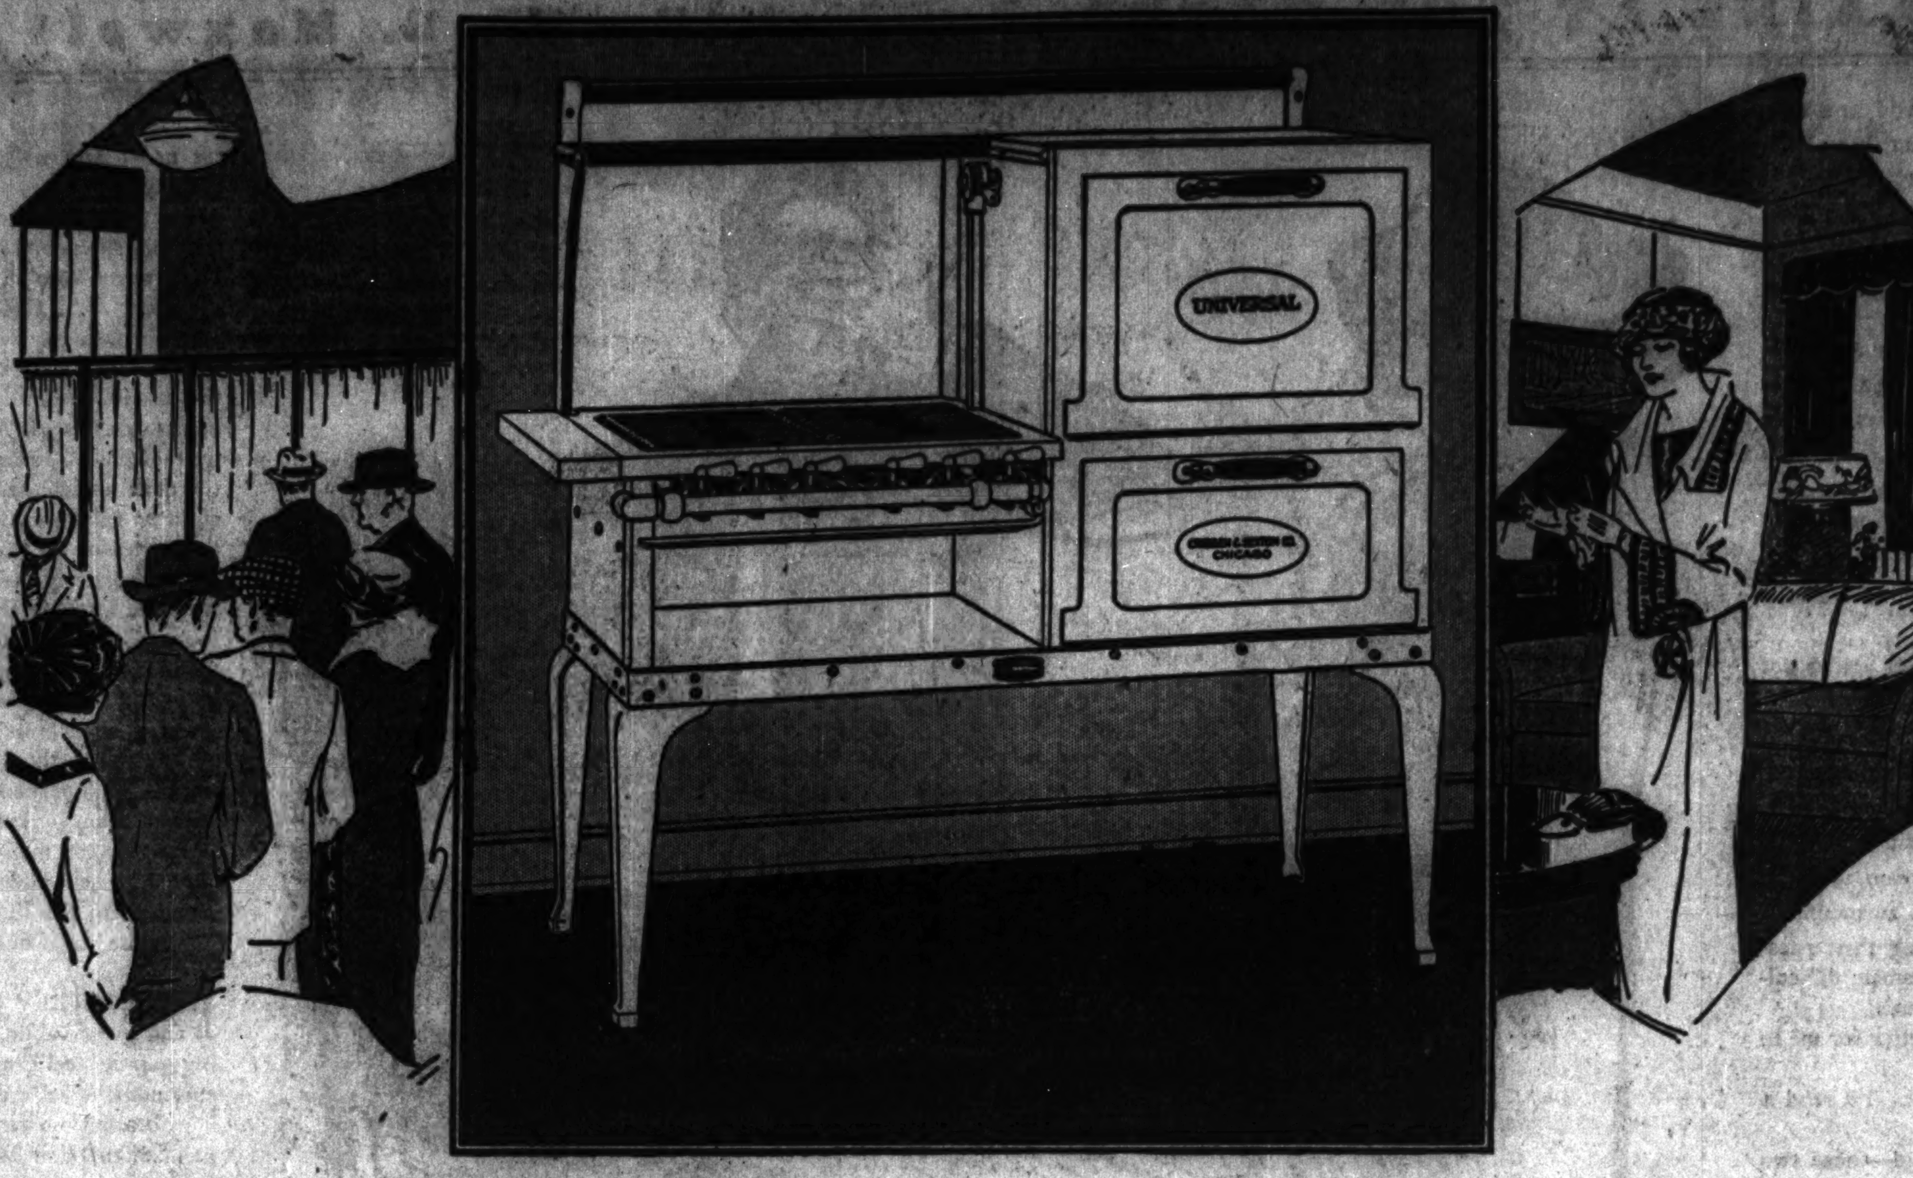
To Architects and Builders

Modernize your apartments with "the new and finer gas range"—Universal. Save crating and freight costs. Service direct from factory.

"You can do it better with Gas"



ELECTED!

By an Overwhelming Majority of Women Voters

Thousands of women have investigated and cast their votes for the Universal—the gas range that is the last word in efficiency and economy—so scientifically designed that any woman can cook delicious meals as expertly as the most experienced cook—so modern in all its arrangements that cooking can now be done with far less effort than ever before.

The Universal plays a large part in making any kitchen a model of beauty, convenience and cleanliness. It will win your "vote" when you see it.

Here are the Eight Points in the Universal Platform.

1. Universal Oven Heat Control. [See illustration and description.]

2. Sanitary white porcelain finish—as easy to wipe off and keep clean as a china dish.

3. Universal grates are sanitary—no cross bars or niches to collect dirt and grease.

4. Cast-iron supports hold the burners firmly in place at just the right distance below the grates to assure efficiency and economy of gas.

5. Oven burners can be taken out readily for cleaning without removing any bolts or taps. [A patented feature.]

6. The oven and broiler doors when open form substantial, convenient working shelves. Will support two hundred pounds.

7. Oven burner is located from front to back, assuring a direct, free and uniform circulation of heat.

8. Aluminum fused oven linings will not rust, burn off, peel or chip. Add greatly to the life of the range.

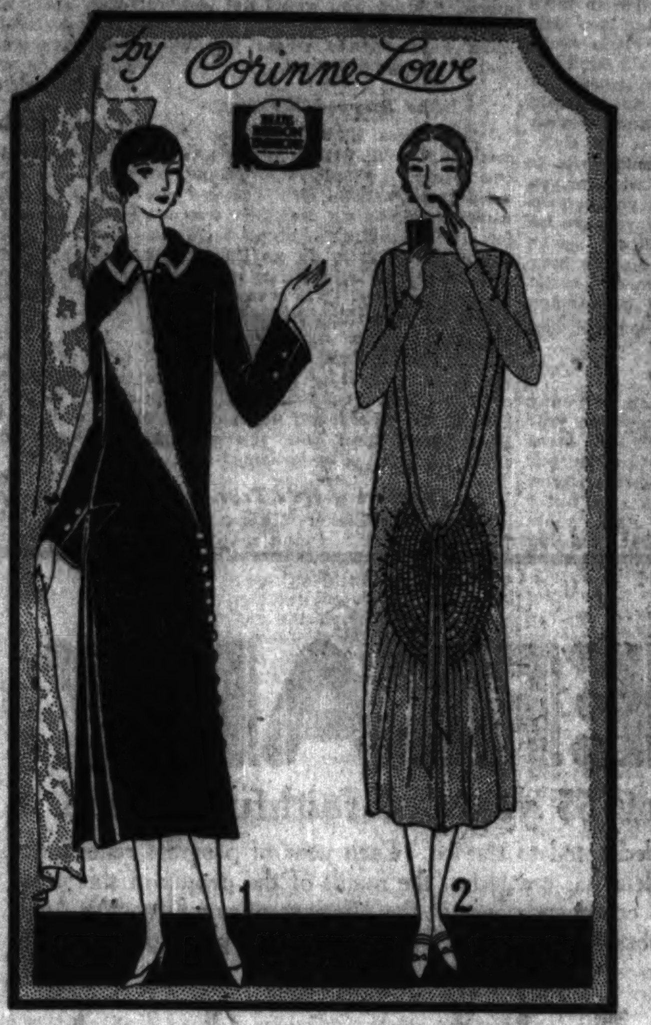
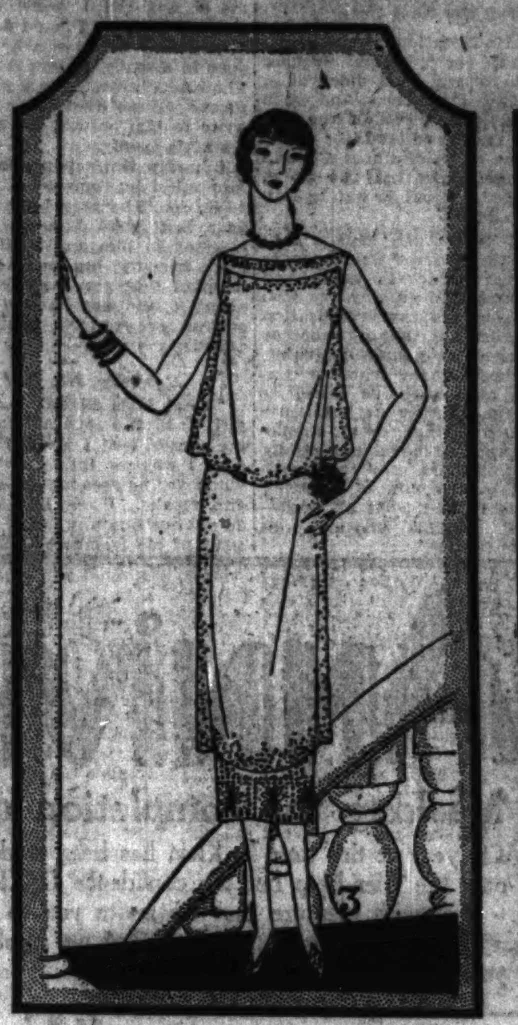
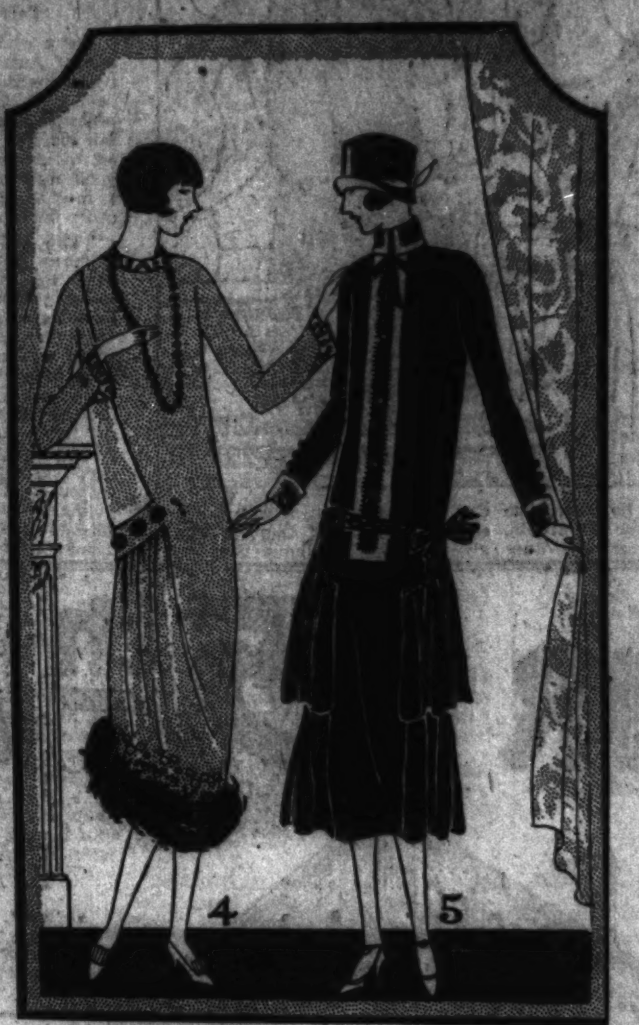
DANGEROUS CURVES AHEAD; JUST NOW THE STRAIGHT SILHOUETTE

by Corinne Lowe







NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—The woman who sat beside me thought so, too. So did the woman who sat in front of me. And by the time all the models had been shown at that particular opening of autumn modes we were engaged in a sort of class recitation.

Here was the drill of facts in which we engaged: First, there is a change in the silhouette, but this change one feels rather than thinks. So subtle it often is that it can hardly be put into words. One knows only that in some uncanny way the model was created last spring, although almost identical in contour with the one created this autumn, has suddenly lost its message. Quite unexpectedly it has become a mere ghost of present fashions. It is a thing of the past.

Secondly, there is something brewing in the silhouette. No, it's not the Empire and it's not the Directoire, although both have certainly influenced a number of details in autumn showings. The new note so strongly sensed is that of 1890. Yes, ladies, there are dangerous curves ahead! And, although this 1890 suggestion is infrequent in present collections, many experts see in such hints accurate prophecies of the theme which will sweep us eventually from the straight line.

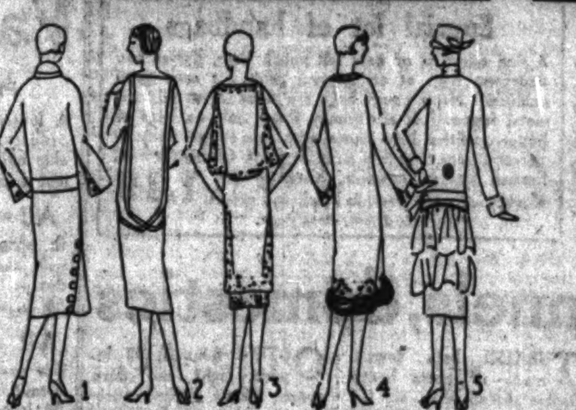
Now, the person who is wishing this period upon us is M. Patou, that handsome young Frenchman who vies with Chanel in setting the modes for the most fashionable women of every country (including Scandinavia). His influence is so potent that I am sure if he cries, "On, ladies! Leave your clothes that look like men's bath robes and go back to the dear old nineties, when women wore molded bodices and full skirts!" most women will follow him, as did the children the Pied Piper of Hamelin. Provided, of course, that M. Patou cries it loud and long enough.

Later on I shall illustrate the molded bodice typifying the 1890 impulse. On this page, however, my artist has been chiefly concerned with showing you certain variations of the familiar straight line. All are creations of famous French designers, and all have some novelty of detail to recommend them.

I shall begin with the frock from Berthe at the right. It is of velvet, which, by the way, is one of the most popular fabrics of the season, and its skirt attains a special character through the use of flounces. No, not "just flounces!" We don't say that this year. For if there is one single element which has challenged the skill of the autumn designer it is the flounce. It may be either circular or gathered. That does not matter. The success of this season's flounce depends, just like make-up, on the way it is put on.

There are at least one hundred different ways of applying a flounce this season. Among the most spectacular of these methods is the spiral winding tier utilized by Jenny. Still another—one remarked in a Patou model—is to start off your flounces directly in the center of the front and continue it only to the center of the back. In this case, as you will see, the two flounces slope downward in front and are placed considerably higher in the back. Also, they are shirred to the foundation.

The collar of this model brings me to some vital statistics—vital, at least, for the woman whose throat is not so decorative as it was ten years ago. It our throats are more like the swan song than the swan, we are glad to know that high collars are much with us this season. They most certainly are. Every here and there one sees a good old fashioned choker, perhaps buttoning straight up the front. Still other neck lines are achieved by winding a wide band around the throat and then tying the same in an aggressive bow. A third version of the mounting collar is furnished by the numerous variations of the scarf treatment. Then, too, there is a lovely new effect much used by Lanvin which is wonderfully becoming to almost any face, young or old. This is an upstanding flounce framing the face and head in the way folks used to do when they were contented with just looking their best instead of their most chic.



OTHER VIEWS OF TODAY'S MODELS.

The Berthe model at the right has a high turn down collar formed of the black moire edged with white organdie, which appears on the front of the corsage and as the medium for turn back cuffs. Tiny silver buttons fasten the collar and more silver is struck for the monogrammed buckle through which the moire belt is slipped. Of the same metal are the buttons on sleeves and corsage.

The sleeves of this model are typical. Long and often quite fitted—such is the season's most popular call to arms. Do not imagine, however, that this is the only suggestion on the subject we have had from Paris. Far from it. There, for instance, is the modified leg o' mutton, appearing frequently in coats and more occasionally in frocks. There, too, is the peasant sleeve. Also, one encounters frequently the sleeve broadening at the end of its seven-eighths length and admitting thereby an undersleeve of contrasting material.

Of course, Lanvin's attitude always seems to be "sleeve it to me." One may always look forward to her thinking up some charming original sleeve treatments. This autumn she has not disappointed us. And her new balloon sleeve, which I shall illustrate later on, is one of the outstanding points of interest in this province.

But Lanvin, too, sometimes fails to have anything up her sleeve. For example, the frock of black crepe back satin second from the left attests to the fact that she often makes a quiet and unobtrusive sleeve. This is a charming frock, and the shirred oval ornamenting the front is an absolutely novel detail. So is the narrow tie of self-material encountered both back and front. The fact is that here Lanvin seems to tied over the back, for you will see from the small views that the narrow streamers falling from the shoulders are crossed and caught in the side seams of the frock.

For the utility frock of this season one has a choice of many different fabrics. The velvet and crepe back satin of the two models I have described represent two selections of unimpeachable wisdom. Wool jersey in a beautiful soft finish is a third. Velveteen, and especially a new variety known as velours frisson, is a good fourth. One sees frequently the ribbed silks, rep and also some little moire. Also, of course, satin and various species of crepes. But none of these is comparable in the degree of enthusiasm which it has evoked to kasha. Beyond all odds we find in kasha not only the most fashionable of sports clothes fabrics but also the one most enthusiastically sustained throughout the entire realm of daytime clothes.

Second from the right we find a word that Drecoll has to say regarding the possibilities of navy kasha for the general utility gown. This is trimmed at neck line and on the sleeves with bands of white satin appliqued in designs of gold leather. This leather is repeated on the skirt just above a band of black fox, and finally the vein is exhausted in three huge gold buttons accenting that half portion belt. The last named, appearing only at the side front, negotiates that draped effect which draws the skirt higher on one side than on the other.

The metallic touch on this frock is typical of both suits and general wear frocks of the present season. Gold buttons and gold braid are the most accustomed experiments in this direction, but touches of metallic leather are by no means infrequent. One recalls, indeed, that Jenny finishes off a stunning black costume with a choker collar of soft gold leather.

Furs are used frequently on the general wear frock, but they are not, as a rule, put on with a cornucopia. They are used sparingly—nevertheless tellingly. All the good old classic pelts make their appearance in this field, but all of them are eclipsed by the vogue of leopard. A black satin frock with standing collar of this showy pelt giving the cue to the godets of the skirt; a tan kasha with judicious applications of leopard; a brown velveteen coat dress set off with the same fur—these are merely three examples of little frocks that have hunted and found big game.

MIXED MARRIAGES

By Doris Blake

Similar Tastes And Similar Interests, As Well as Similar Family Background, Reduce the Risks Of Marital Unhappiness

ARE like beliefs, like forms of worship, like nationalities among the parents of engaged young persons more prophetic of married happiness than may be predicted for unions in which there is a wide divergence in family background?

Anna Garlin Spencer, special lecturer in social science at Columbia university, says it is true that wide divergence in family background is accountable for many of the tragedies of broken families after love has cooled and the facts of sober obligations incurred have become obvious.

The difference in language, which is found so often a barrier to unity between the respective parents of the young people who choose each other in marriage, in Mrs. Spencer's opinion, is but a sign and symbol of deep seated and ineradicable divergence in family tradition, in fashion of customary ways of living, in scale of moral values, and in personal habits. It is rather a matter for astonishment, the lecturer believes, that so many "mixed marriages" turn out well than that a minority prove disastrous.

Bringing Them Together.

"That mixed marriages will continue in the future is inevitable, with our increased complexity of life, which brings together in school and in labor, in social gatherings, and in political association, all sorts and conditions of men and women," says Mrs. Spencer.

Though love may laugh at parental differences, as it laughs at prison bars, a day is bound to come with the discovery that congenial relatives are necessary to the general scheme of happiness.

Mrs. Spencer sees a great social need in the United States for means of acquaintance and friendship for the young in lines of association in which a safe and helpful marriage choice may be made.

"The effort of all social arrangements for the young in families where the elders do not try to reinstate parental control, but rather to give a chance for safeguarded independence of choice, is to bring together young people who should find, each one of them in that group, a chosen one of the right sort," says the sociologist. "Financial capacity, mutually congenial relatives, suitable age and similar tastes, and acquaintance giving reasonable basis for hope for permanent agreement in essentials might insure suitable marriage."

In the marriage choice of youth our authority sees many advantages in friendships within a group bound together by similar culture and outlook.

Making the Choice Wide.

"One fact which many overlook when making estimates of the mistakes in marriage is that personal choice among a circle of friends was not only never so free for young people, but also never able to cover so wide a range of divergent national and racial backgrounds as in the United States. Marriages in this country often bridge or try to bridge a chasm between centuries of social development, and continents of educational influence."

The reason why one is chosen and another is not is never clear to any but the ones who make the choice. To them it may be a mystery. Something of racial need both for mixture and for persistency of type, something of hidden demand of temperament for a complementary personality, something of easy awakening of passion and easy holding of attention, something of requirement for a larger sympathy than most friends can give, and the favored one seems able to supply—all these, Mrs. Spencer suggests, enter into the selection of the chosen one from all the rest of one's friends.

The need, therefore, is for as wide a range of personalities and for as large a chance to make friends with the suitable and truly congenial as can be given to youth in order that the choice may be really free and the result happy.

Church to Answer.

To whom may we look for answer to the appeal for that social activity which will give the best opportunity to youth in its quest for the perfect other half?

"To our churches," is Mrs. Spencer's reply. "The value of the church in social life is immeasurable. It is within its power to offer the best opportunities for a choice within social ranges most likely to offer the right choice.

"It is not necessary or best to do as the Friends have done—turn out of the communion those who 'marry out of meeting.' It is not a wholesome sign when religion puts bars before the marriage altar, for one's true mate may be found in another temple than that in which one was consecrated in infancy. It is, however, true that like beliefs, like forms of worship, like use of the same tabernacle. Sunday after Sunday, which bring parents and elders of families together, give chances for the young to form wide and strong attachments of friendship within a circle of like quality and tastes.

"In spite of the fact that many people bridge vast social chasms with high success in a marriage venture, the majority of happy marriages are of those who do not have to engage an outside interpreter in order to understand each other in reaction to social habit, ethics, and culture."

Taking the Next Best.

For a real adaptation of the meaning of human service, Mrs. Spencer points to the church that aids young people to find themselves and each other in a friendly circle of the like minded, like mannered, and like spirited, within the circle of whom a really good marriage choice may be made. It meets a need not met so well by any other social agency.

"The sad fact," she says, "that so many young men and women never meet the right mates in youth and marry perforce, if at all, any one who comes along, makes any organization that naturally and simply enables those who need it to make acquaintance with those among whom a congenial mate may easily be found is socially useful. Either as substitute for home surroundings, or as supplement to unhappy or inadequate family life, the church home may be a benefactor in this direction of enabling young people to find what all need—friends and possible chosen ones among these friends."

ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Don't Be Too Anxious.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 and in love with a fellow who is a few months my senior. I do not know if he loves me or not, but I would like to have you tell me how I could find out. His family and mine return visits every once in a while, so you see I don't see him often. Sometimes it is six months. Please tell me whether or not I should write to him or wait till another visit from his family. M. C."

I hardly think you should write to him unless he expresses a wish for you to do so. The only thing you can do, dear, is to show him that you are interested in him and would like to be more friendly, but in doing this bear in mind that you must be diplomatic about it and not have it appear too evident or you will spoil the whole affair.

No, No, No!

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young girl of 16 and love a fellow one year my senior, and I know that he loves me. I was not introduced to him, but whenever he sees me he always smiles and speaks. I love him dearly, but I do not see him any more. And I know some of his friends by sight. Do you think I ought to stop them and ask them? BLONDE."

No, Blonde, do not make inquiries of his friends about this young man. You must remember that you were never introduced to him, and it is one of the hard and fast rules that you should have nothing to do with a young man to whom you have not been properly introduced. You make yourself common by picking up with strangers, dear, so do not do so any more. I know you would not care to have yourself so branded, and you must have friends whom you have met in the proper way.

She Stopped Writing.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man, 23. I went with a young girl for two years. Finally her people decided to move, and she promised she would never forget me. She wrote a few letters and then stopped. Please advise me what to do, as I love this girl dearly. It is breaking my heart. SOLDIER BILL."

Bill, the best thing to do is to write her and ask her why she does not answer your letters. Tell her you feel you have a right to do this because of your long friendship. Of course, Bill, if she has found some one she likes better than you, the graceful thing to do is to step aside.

Wonders if He's True.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 19 and go with a young man of the same age. I have known him about two months and have gone out with him often. He has treated me nicely and I really love him. He has told me often he loved me. Will you please tell me if he is true? STELLA."

The young man has treated you nicely, Stella, so I wouldn't question him if I were you. Of course, dear, you should not take him seriously when he tells you he loves you. After all, you have known him but a short time—too short a time for him to make such declarations, don't you think? You have reason to feel he cares for you, or he would not wish to spend his time with you.

Must Be a Reason.

"Dear Miss Blake: Is it possible to treat any one nicely when you hate him worse than poison? My brother's pal is around our house quite a good deal and I can't make myself even speak pleasantly to him. Why is this? I went out with him once and spent a most miserable evening. What is the matter? J. O."

J. O., I think the young man must have done something to you at some time which caused you to dislike him so. It is not natural to dislike a person without a reason, particularly to dislike one as much as you seem to dislike this boy. For your brother's sake, try to be pleasant to him when he comes to your home, dear. It is not necessary, though, to make a personal friend of him.

FINE FOR OLD FOLKS!

Take Haley's Magnesia-Oil—milk of magnesia and mineral oil combined

When nature relaxes her vigilance and permits the bowels to become clogged with accumulating waste matter, a tablespoonful of Haley's Magnesia-Oil, once or twice a day, will restore the bowels to their normal activity.

A perfect combination of milk of magnesia and pure mineral oil, Haley's Magnesia-Oil provides at one time an efficient antacid for disordered stomach, and a most natural lubricant for the bowels.

The mineral-oil carries the milk of magnesia straight to the lower bowel where it is most required. It is harmless, causes no griping or nausea, and has only the palatable taste of magnesia, which is lost entirely when it is mixed with milk.

Buy a bottle of Haley's Magnesia-Oil today, and keep it always on hand. If your druggist can't supply you we will mail postpaid on receipt of price. Trial size, 35c; family size, $1. The Haley M-O Company, Indianapolis.

Every Gray Hair a Sign Post of Age

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

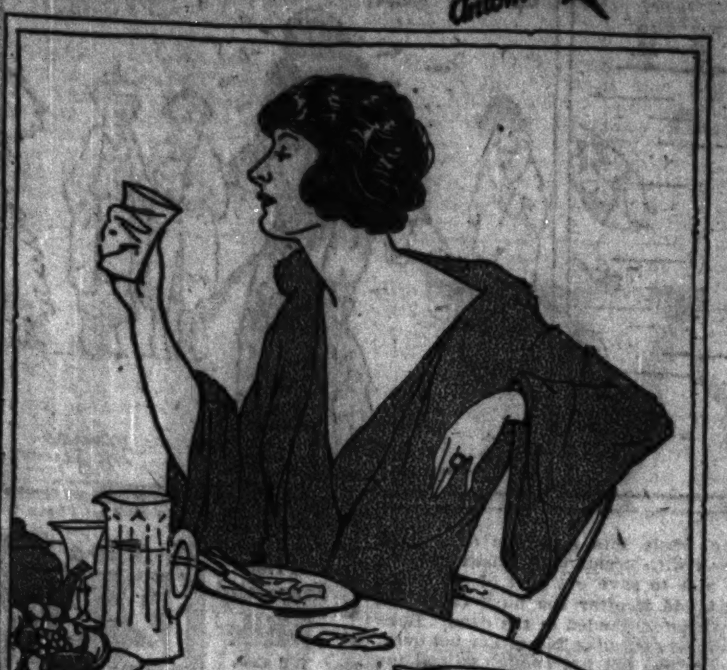
GET ON THE WATER WAGON

Six Glasses a Day Is the Ration Prescribed by Physicians to Maintain Health

by Antoinette Donnelly

What's you: beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply, send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.



NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Even the most rabid prohibitionist, to enjoy health and life, must be a "wet," according to Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension institute.

Not so shocking to the Volsteadians, however, for the "wet" indorsed by the well known physician is a man or woman who can and does consume six glasses of water a day.

The human body is not a solid possession, Dr. Fisk reminds us. The average body is more water than fat and muscle, the average proportion being 75 to 80 per cent. Brains included, we are three-quarters per cent water.

When we grow old, our chances of being dried up are so poor that Dr. Fisk flouts as ridiculous that common expression as applied to old age. The water content of the body in old age is from 81 to 84 per cent, as compared with the 75 to 80 per cent in earlier life.

"When I say that health and life itself depend on our being 'wet,' I am not exaggerating," writes Dr. Fisk in a current publication. "If the amount of the water content in the body is reduced by only 10 per cent, it results in serious disorders. If it is reduced 20 per cent, death is almost certain to follow. There have been cases where a person has survived beyond this point, but a loss of 22 per cent is, I believe, a limit beyond which human beings cannot live."

Three Things Necessary.

The three things necessary to life are, first, oxygen; second, water; third, food. We can live longer without food than without water. Without the latter to drink in some form, we could live only a limited number of days. Under ordinary conditions, Dr. Fisk says, a person will not suffer in health if he reduces considerably the amount of food he eats. In many cases he may be better off physically. But he cannot with safety cut down his water ration to any great extent.

There is nothing new in Dr. Fisk's water prescription. As he says himself, doctors are always advising drinking a certain amount of water a day. But the advice seems to go in one ear and out the other. The reason for this indifference, the doctor believes, is that we do not understand the facts on which the advice is based.

If we understood better why we must have water to maintain health, we would be heavier consumers.

Professor Rosenua of Harvard classifies water as food. So does the Life Extension institute, which calls it a regulating food.

"Water is absolutely necessary to build up the body and to maintain its functions," continues Dr. Fisk. "It is the most necessary kind of food. Meat, for example, could be entirely eliminated from the diet without serious consequences. But it would be a fatal experiment to attempt to go without water."

Carries Off Waste.

We need more than six glasses a day. But from the liquids we drink and from the food we eat we get much more. As Dr. Fisk says, people imagine they eat in order to get the necessary proteins, carbohydrates and fats, which is true, but one of the most important elements in food is the water it contains, and most of it contains a great deal of water. Some vegetables contain as high as 95 per cent water, such as cucumbers, lettuce, beans, and celery. Melons and fruits are almost entirely composed of water. Tea and coffee are practically all water. Milk contains a large percentage of water. It is impossible to exist healthfully on a diet that does not include fruits, vegetables, and milk for this reason.

The six glasses per day are to be taken in addition to the water consumed in the course of the ordinary diet.

The reasons given by Dr. Fisk for the cultivation of the "wet" habit is that water plays a great part in carrying off the waste and poisonous products through the bowels and kidneys. In addition, it is a lubricant to the entire system. As the physician explains, there are many extremely delicate surfaces within our bodies. If water were not supplied to moisten these surfaces, the friction to which they are exposed would injure them. It enables the body to store up heat, and equalizes the amount of heat in the various tissues.

Water is necessary to the process of digestion. If water were not received into the system with the fruits and vegetables and milk consumed, digestive troubles would be more appalling than they are.

Exploding a Theory.

When should water be consumed outside of that included in the food we eat?

The old theory that drinking water with meals is harmful has been exploded by physicians. Instead of interfering with digestion, the medical consensus now is that it aids it. Water stimulates gastric secretion.

Dr. Fisk recommends that a glass be taken with each meal, one between meals—morning and afternoon—and one at night. In hot weather, when water is lost from the body through perspiration, more should be taken.

Those with chronic kidney trouble, high blood pressure, or heart trouble, are advised against the habit of excessive water drinking. A physician should advise in each individual case the amount of water required by persons suffering any of these disorders.

Another popular theory is flouted by the head of the Life institute. He does not believe it harmful to drink cold water when overheated. He urges discretion in the quantity consumed, but thinks there is no reason why we should not drink cold water, slowly and moderately, when we are warm. In fact, taken in that way, he believes it is beneficial. The temperature of tepid water is so close to that of the body it excites practically no sensation in the mouth or as it passes down to the stomach. Iced water, on the other hand, gives a certain thrill, or shock, which is refreshing and stimulating to many persons.

Dry Habit Dangerous.

Under ordinary conditions, we cannot depend on the sensation of thirst to urge us to drink water. The fact that you never feel thirsty signifies not that your system does not need water but that you have the dry habit. Any people who have this dry habit have a day ahead awaiting them to pay the penalty, if they are not paying it now.

A warning is issued against excessive water consumption by the ordinary healthy person. From ten to twelve and fourteen glasses are too much in addition to what is obtained in the diet. Half a dozen glasses daily are enough, unless during hot weather or after unusual physical exertion. Two or three glasses a day are not sufficient, on the other hand, to make up for the daily evaporation of water from the body.

BEAUTY ANSWERS.

ALICIA: AT 20, 5 FEET 5, YOUR weight of 126 pounds is practically the standard weight. I do not think you wish to reduce fifteen pounds. You are well and healthy, which is the the main thing, don't you think? Unless you find yourself piling on weight you should not think of reducing, but as a precautionary measure you may eat lightly of candy and sweets, also of bread and rolls.

MISS R.: A HAIR TONIC CONtaining 25 per cent alcohol should not be used by persons with dry hair, as it has a tendency to dry the hair. If your hair is oily it will be all right to continue using it.

K. R. T.: RUNNING OVER ON the heels indicates weak ankles. It would be well for you to wear high shoes for a while, and be sure they are properly fitted. You could wear them during the day, and around the house, but if you wish to dress up when going out you could change to low shoes. I have some good exercises for weak ankles which I'll be glad to send you on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelop.

Practical and Fancy Needlework

SETTING IN MEDALLIONS.

AS ALMOST every woman who sews knows, lace medallions of all shapes and sizes can be bought, and the variety of things for which they may be used is almost endless. Camisoles, combinations, night dresses, negligees of all materials, baby caps, pillow cases, bureau and table scarfs, and so on without end.

Butterflies, some with wings spread out straight, others with wings in different positions, are among the most beautiful of these medallions; and setting them in materials is lovely work. Then there are beautiful edgings—some made in deep points, and across the upper edge a sort of insertion or beading—making a beautiful trimming for the bottom of a slip, or, reversed, it could be set around the top of a slip.

And, of course, there are oval shaped, round, oblong, and, indeed, all kinds of edgings and insertions as well as separate medallions.

The material to which lace is to be applied must be absolutely smooth; then lay it on something flat, and pin the butterfly or whatever you are using in position—using fine, small pins. Basting down all edges and going slowly enough to avoid fullness, are the next steps. Then, with a fine needle and thread, hem the lace down all around—working from the right side. Take the bastings out and cut away the material underneath, leaving one-eighth of an inch margin everywhere. Working from the wrong side, hem the raw edge down to the lace in tiny stitches, so that every bit of raw edge is covered. This method has to be followed where the outline of the butterfly or other lace edge follows small, successive scallops.

Where the lace edge has fewer of those small curves the raw edge is turned back, so that the edge of the insertion on the right side is in the edge of the fold; then overhand in small, closely taken stitches, directly over and through the insertion edge and through the material as well. In this overhanding the raw edge will be caught in and roll by itself, and when straightened out the lace will look as though it were woven into the cloth.

Lace insertion can be made to follow any sort of line by basting one edge down along the bottom, or wider edge of the curve first, then by pulling up a thread in the opposite edge of the insertion, the fullness is adjusted so as to follow the desired line perfectly, and hemmed down in place. The material is then cut away underneath, leaving a narrow margin on each side; and the raw edge is rolled back and hemmed down, or the material is creased back and the finishing done as described above.

Butterflies may be effectively used by buying a transfer pattern, and after ironing the design on the cloth, cut the material away like the illustration, and baste underneath a round or square meshed net—any preferred lace, or silver or gold cloth—leaving a wide margin everywhere. The butterfly outline is then done in the buttonhole stitch—the stitches going through the material underneath as well. The body of the butterfly is embroidered solid, as are also the fine ribs that divide the wings.

ANSWERS TO SEWING QUESTIONS.

MRS. P. H.—I am glad you liked the peacock and rose design, and am sorry I haven't any crochet patterns to send you, but some will be shown in this department from time to time.

MISS L. R.—The directions for working were given under the picture; and it can be crocheted or done in cross stitch. We have no practical and fancy needlework book.

* *

MRS. F. D.—I am glad the needlework articles interest you, and am sorry I haven't a pattern of the emblem; but have sent you an address where I feel sure you can get it.

* *

MRS. E. P.—Yours is the second request received today, asking for a pattern of the Masonic emblem, and I have mailed you an address where it can be obtained.

* *

MRS. T. K.: If you will send 10 cents to the circulation department, giving the date of the issue containing the part of the alphabet you lost, the paper will be mailed to you.

* *

MRS. J. J.: If you will write to the circulation department, enclosing 10 cents for each installment of the alphabet you wish and giving the dates that they appeared, they will be sent to you.

* *

MRS. K. L.—There are many fancy work magazines published, giving pictures and directions for making all kinds of lace. You had better look through some of them, and maybe you will find what you are looking for.

* *

MISS E. S.—I am sorry, but I don't know how to make bead portieres. Maybe you could get the information you want in some fancy goods shop.

Women the World Over

The bulk of the wealth of the natives of India is converted into jewelry, which is carried around by women who are fond of displaying their gems.

At the age of 101 years, Mrs. Georgianna Collett of Oakland, Cal., is still alert and active, thinking nothing of splitting wood or moving the kitchen stove.

Beulah L. Henry of Raleigh, N. C., holds more patents than any other woman in the world, being an inventor of forty-seven articles, thirty-three of which are already marketed.

The first honors conferred upon an American by the Poetry Society of Great Britain went to Mrs. Alice H. Bartlett of New York, who has been awarded the society's gold medal.

Jean H. Norris, New York's only woman magistrate, is being spoken of as the successor to Judge Olvany, recently elected Tammany chieftain.

PIES.

PIES lost out as national dessert some time since. At least one great commercial pie maker failed. Ice cream became the national dessert, but now there seems to be a great and grand revival of the pie in spite of all that dietitians can say and in spite of the fact that before there was a science of dietetics or eating, pie crust was called a poison and the cause of many sorts of digestive disturbances and a renowned maker of nightmares.

A superior pie comes only from the hands of the superior cook, or at any rate one superior in that class of cookery. There is no secret about pie crust making. It is the product of the skillful manipulation of three simple ingredients—flour, shortening, and water, with a little salt.

Rather low grade pie crust is made with baking powder. A high grade top crust is often made by buttering with great care a rolled out sheet of the crust, then rubbing flour into the butter and, finally, when the pie was ready to go into the oven, rinsing off the top with cold water. This with the heat makes the top flaky, but if the crust part is poor and hard and dry, that does not help much. A flat pie with a dry crust, especially of the type of dryness that poor baking powder biscuits have, is anything but a dainty thing.

A soggy lower crust just about spoils a pie, and while it may not be good manners to leave it on the plate, the act is the best of dietetic good sense. Wire pie plates, perforated tin plates, have been some of the devices used to prevent the soggy crust, but the best device is to put the pie into a hot oven at the start, with greater heat below than above.

Artistry and Skill.

This is why fireless cooker pies, especially those of apple, may be quite superior; the stone below being hotter than the one on top, but this must be fairly hot as well. A well baked pie crust is not likely to sweat on the bottom and so become soggy as it cools, but some cooks think it best not to set a pie just from the oven on a solid surface, but on something like a cake grill.

To have a fine and handsome top and edge to a pie becomes a matter of both artistry, skill, and correct baking. The Italians with their short pastries (pasta frolla) will cover a crust filled with a fruit puree with something cut out to represent a rose with its leaves or make something equally fine in figures. The English have paste cutters for leaves, diamonds, and other forms, which they cut out and fasten on to their meat pies in particular, making them most ornate. The lattice top is popular with home cooks, but if made of dry and ragged strips of pastry it is certainly inedible. Some home cooks cut out pieces of pastry with a thimble-sized cutter and call the effect, when these are placed over the pie, "polka dot."

Amount of Pastry Per Pie.

There are cooks who make a pastry shell for a medium sized pie with one-half cup of flour, two tablespoons of shortening, and two tablespoons of water, and use only twice this for a top and bottom crust. They have to be expert in rolling or first expert in binding the ingredients into a marvelously smooth mass. The amateur would best take for a pie shell three-fourths of a cup of flour and from two to four tablespoons of shortening, with as scant amount of water as possible. One way to use less water is to chop the shortening into the larger half of the flour, use only water enough to bind this, then work the rest of the flour into this damp dough, but as much working of the dough is undesirable such a method in the hands of the unskillful may produce poor results.

The Shortening.

Fancy pie makers use at least two kinds of shortening, lard with a little butter to season or flavor the crust, and some use three. Beef fat in the shape of suet was formerly used entirely for crusts which were not supposed to be eaten, but these were just casseroles of pastry in which to bake something deliciously. A modern trick is to melt shortening, combine it with the water, and mix the flour into this, or, better, this into the flour. Baking powder is used in such crusts, and if these could be compared with those of the old school when the latter are made to perfection, they would suffer much by comparison.

Some cooks have their shortening as cold as possible, cut it into bits, and then work it with the flour. Others chop shortening into the flour with two knives and others with a biscuit cutter. The old way was with cool, quick fingers to work the shortening and flour together until the product was something like a fine meal. This was bound with the least possible water.

For One Small Plain Pie.

Sift one cup of pastry flour, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, on a bread board; chop into this, one tablespoon at a time, three tablespoons of shortening, or more if you want a shorter crust. Gather the whole up in a little cone in which you can make a little well, then fill this with two or three tablespoons of ice water—the amateur will find three almost too little, since the commonest mistake of those learning to make pie crust is to use too much water. Add the water a little at a time, and knead the whole with a stout case knife. Handle with the hands as little as possible.

Put a rubber ring on the ice, set the dough in a plate on that, and leave it on the ice for at least fifteen minutes. If there is time, take it out, knead it a bit, and chill again. There is nothing that smooths a pie crust or cookie dough like this. After the chilling it can be rolled thinner, and so forth. In putting a bottom crust into the plate do not stretch it, but lift it at the sides and let it fit the tin easily. A rim is made for custard and cream pies by leaving a wide margin and pinching it up to form a low wall of pastry.

For Two Pies with Puffy Crusts.

In making larger portions of dough for crusts an old fashioned wooden bowl and chopping knife may be used. For a sort of household puff pastry—to distinguish it from that the expert makes—chop half a cup of lard into two and a half cups of sifted flour until it is as fine as it can be made, or for about ten minutes. Dissolve a half teaspoon of salt in a half cup of ice water, make a well in center of prepared mixture, work the two together with knife or spoon, turn out on floured board, and with as few manipulations with the hand as possible work it into shape to roll in a long narrow strip. When rolled, spread on a little soft butter. Fold one one-third from one end and then the other end—a third—on that. Turn half way around and roll out again and butter lightly, repeating the process three times and using about one-quarter of a cup of butter.

It is a good plan to chill this for an hour before making it up. It is difficult to put a large quantity of butter into a dough in a similar fashion for it breaks through, nevertheless, practice with this is a good way to prepare oneself to make a real puff pastry to use in all sorts of ornamental ways.

Pie Edges.

The pie wheel is a clasic utensil. It both makes a fancy and a thin edge. Unless the edge or the meeting place of the two crusts is thinned by pinching or in some fashion, the rim is likely to be too thick and dry to be palatable. Wet the lower crust around the edge before putting on the top, and then use wheel or fork or fingers. A strip between the upper and lower edges, glued with water to them, is often used in making fruit pies, with the idea that when the juice boils this keeps it from boiling out.

An easy way to make edges is to put a large square crust rolled thin over a plate, put in filling, then fold over the four corners of the paste on top of the filling, dumpling fashion, and then to put a small fancy round of thin paste over the center. This gives some chance for originality of treatment.

One Large Squash Pie.

Two cups of sieved Hubbard squash, one pint of milk, two eggs, one-half to one cup of sugar, two tablespoons of butter, spices, and salt to taste. The butter may be omitted, but a little in both squash and pumpkin pies improves them. Scald the milk and add the butter to it when it is hot and then add this to the squash, to which first should be added the spices. Just a pinch of ginger and cinnamon and a grating or two of nutmeg are sufficient for a squash pie, and pumpkin pie is more wholesome and also more delicous with less spice than what is commonly added to it.

When the milk and squash mixture is cool, add the beaten eggs, and pour the whole into a rather deep plate lined with crust, with raised rim. It is best to save out part of the filling and add it after the filled crust has been safely landed in the oven. Bake forty-five minutes in a rather hot oven, but in one not hot enough to boil the filling after it gets hot, at which time the heat may be lessened somewhat.

Cooking Pumpkin for Pies.

Pumpkin contains 92 per cent of water. It is therefore best when cooked by dry steam and in its own juices. This means long cooking and the condensation of some of its natural flavoring elements, as some of the water is dried out. After washing, cutting the pumpkin in strips, and peeling these, cut them in inch square dice or yet smaller, and put them in the top of a large double boiler, continuing the cooking until the pumpkin looks dark and dry, then sieve. A thick iron kettle covered and kept over just enough fire to let the contents simmer is the next best thing for the long cooking, but a little water is needed at the start, and if there is the least bit too much of fire the pumpkin will finally burn on.

GOOD NIGHT, MRS. BROWN, I ENJOYED MEETING YOUR GUEST OF HONOR SO MUCH HE IS AS CHARMING AS DISTINGUISHED ---

Answer below.

ANSWER TO WHAT'S WRONG HERE

Nothing. If the guest of honor at a dinner party is a man he waits for a woman to suggest leaving before he takes his leave.

POSLAM WORKS MAGIC FOR UGLY SKIN TROUBLES

No matter how long you have been tortured and disfigured by itching, burning skin eruptions put a little of that soothing, CONCENTRATED Poslam on the sore spots and the suffering stops instantly! Healing begins at once and soon your skin is clear and well again. At all druggists, 50c.

We recommend the daily use of POSLAM SOAP Which contains 7% of Poslam Ointment

Children Are Ill if they won't play

Watch them carefully. You can forestall a serious ailment with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

WHEN you see a child moping, avoiding companions and toys and play, look at its tongue and you will usually find it coated—a reliable symptom of constipation.

Forthwith give a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It will operate in a few hours and the child will feel better again. If there is also feverishness, sneezing and sniffling give another teaspoonful the following night, to make sure that all danger is past.

It is perfectly unnecessary to give young children strong physics and cathartics as they are apt to set up a bad habit they will later find difficult to throw off.

A mild vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin meets all their requirements, and as it is pleasant to take you will find no difficulty administering it.

Experienced mothers learned its value long ago, for it has been on the market over thirty years, and Mrs. Josie Clark, Rocky, Okla., and Mr. Charles Lewis, Blackwood, N. J., attribute the general good health of their families to the prompt use of Syrup Pepsin at the right moment. They have it constantly in the house, knowing they can relieve over night constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, flatulence, headache, sour stomach, fevers, colds and other disorders accompanying or due to a constipated condition of the intestines and bowels.

You can buy a bottle at any drug store at an average cost of less than a cent a dose.

The ingredients of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are very generally known, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics, and wholly free of opiates and narcotics. The formula, which is on every package, was written by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practiced medicine for forty-seven years.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very rightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Pepsin Syrup Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not inclose postage. It is free.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Give it to any member of your family, young or old. If it does not come up to our promise your money will be refunded. It is our invariable guarantee.

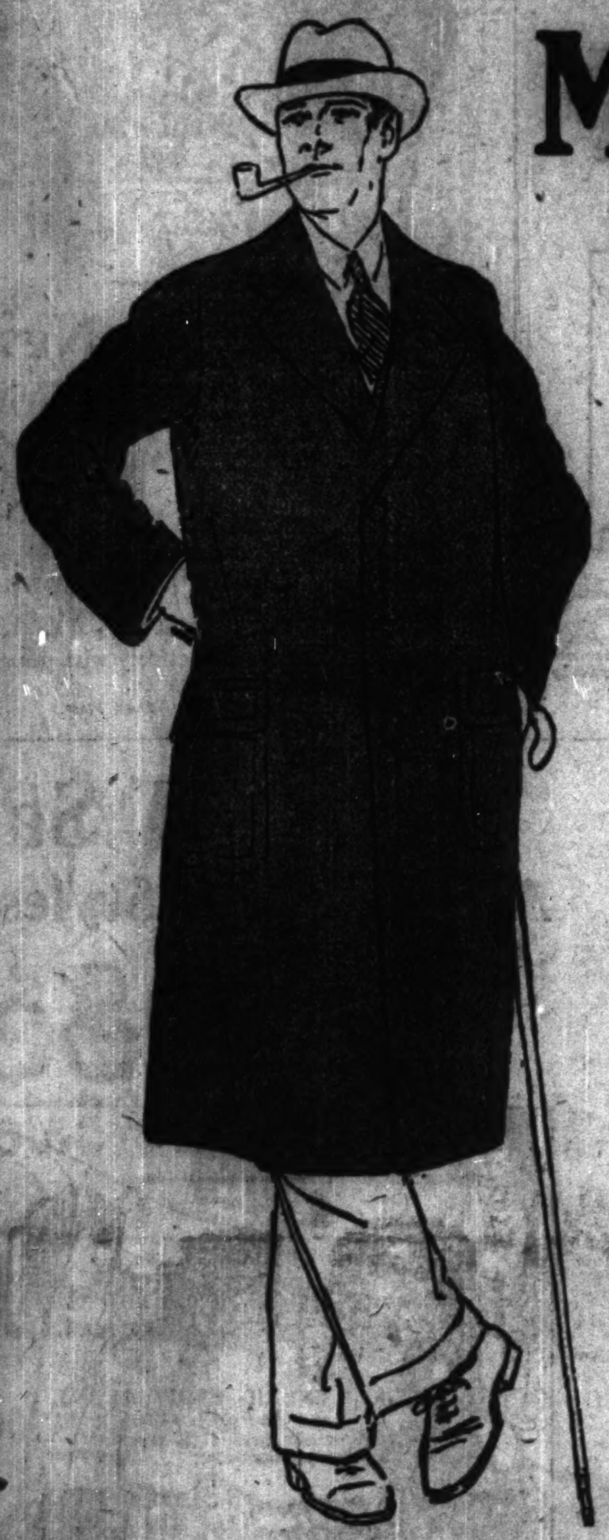
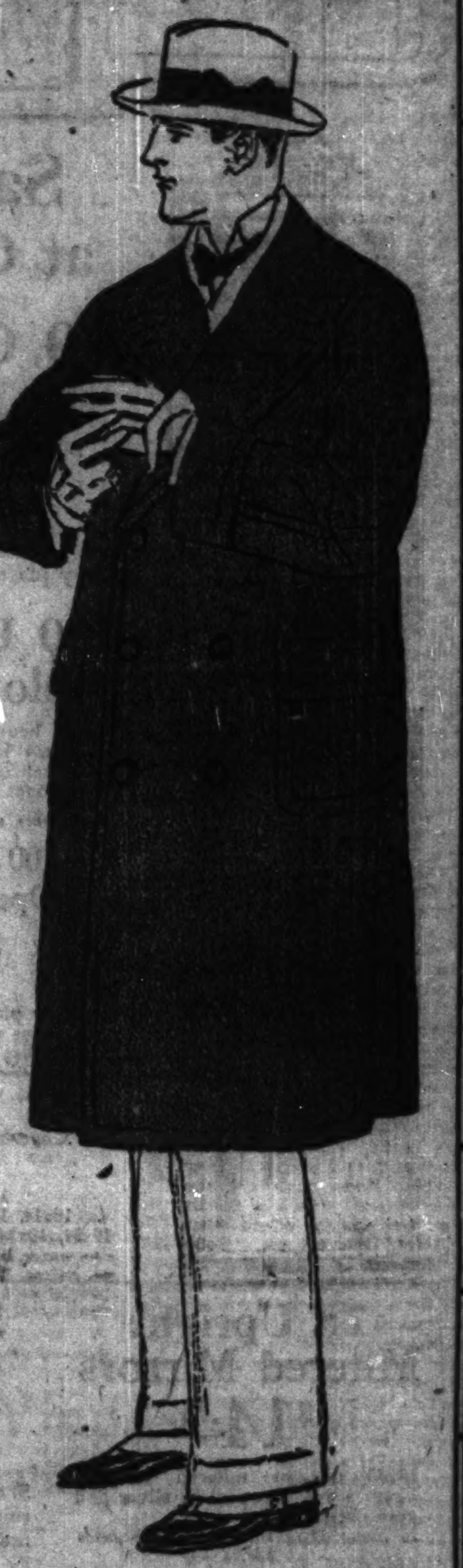
2,000 Winter Overcoats

Many Makers' Sample Lines
1/3 Below Regular Prices





$38 $48 $58

WE say these overcoats are one-third below regular prices—but this is a conservative statement. The regular lines of the sample overcoats, in many instances, would sell for double our sale prices, and you all know that the sample lines of every maker are the best garments that he produces; they are made by the most skilled craftsmen, of fabrics especially selected for their exclusiveness and distinctiveness of patterns; they are tailored in the very best possible manner; they have been examined by the experts of the institution.

It took months of preparation to secure these overcoats. There are models to suit every man's fancy. Big burly town coats, double-breasted ulsters, single-breasted full box-coats, and the ulsterette for shorter men. And you may choose from an endless array of desired patterns and colors—including the newest of the overplaids to the conservative darker shades.

Sizes for tall men, short men, stout men and men of regular build; and also sizes for college men and even high school students. Sizes from 34 to 50.

1514—Woman's and misses' slip. Sizes 16 years and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅝ yards of 36 inch material.

2201—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 44 inch material.

How to Use the Patterns

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

POIRET twill or any of the soft, lightweight woolens will just suit for a dress made by pattern No. 2199. The unbroken line down the front is a smart feature of the fall dresses, while the cape in the back gives a jaunty appearance to the dress and is becoming to any woman who is straight and stands well.

The dress is cut with back and front pieces, full length sleeves, and a collar that extends into a cape. The directions that come with the pattern show just how to lay each piece on 40 inch material. A pretty finish to the collar, cape, and front edge will be silk binding in the same or a contrasting color. Then, too, the cape should be lined with something bright. The front and back are slashed in from the underarm edges to form a belt, and the slashed edges are gathered and attached to the upper and lower belt edges. These belt edges should be bound to match the finish on the rest of the dress.

The full length sleeves are cut in one piece, and the lower edges are gathered and set into narrow wrist bands. The dress measures at the bottom, for size 36, about 1⅛ yards—a width that allows one to walk easily.

After the gathered sides have been basted firmly in place at the top and bottom of the belt sections, these edges should be stitched on the machine—stitching just inside the edge of the belt binding. Then straight strips should be cut of lining or silk and the edges evenly turned in and hemmed down over the belt sections. The other seams on the dress should be pressed open and the edges bound with silk binding ribbon.

Pattern No. 2201 is for a child's dress. Serge, challis, one of the twills, or wool rep would be pretty for this design. It is dressy looking, with the front panel, belt sections at the sides, and plaited side sections.

The dress opens at the left side front, under the panel, and the square neck outline is a pretty change from the usual round outline. It would look well to bind the neck and cuffs with silk or satin in some contrasting color, and use this same color and material as a piping to outline the panel front and the short belt sections. Sash ends can be attached to these belt pieces, or the belt may extend across the back—just as one prefers. The large button each side of the front, where the belt pieces start, help to trim.

Pattern No. 1514 is for a slip. Satin, taffeta, or crepe would make up prettily. The pattern is cut with a straight upper edge, and the sides at a low waistline are slashed in from the edges and the lower edges gathered. These gathered places should be finished on the wrong side before putting the seams together. Gather each lower edge and pull up to meet the edge of the side seam of the waist.

Take a strip of the skirt material on the straight, cutting it enough longer and wider than the slash to allow of its being turned in on all four edges. Then baste it over the slashed part on the under side of the skirt so it entirely covers each place. Stitch it all around, close to the edges. Then put the long seams together, and after it is finished baste a similar piece over the slash from one end to the other—letting it cover well. Stitch it in place, close to all edges.

Then have these edges hemstitched on all four sides. This makes a pretty finish, and a strong one as well; and it is a stronger way than trying to seam the edges together. The edge of the hem around the top will look well hemstitched also, and the strap edges, too.

A knife plaited georgette ruffle makes an attractive finish at the bottom, and it will stand hard wear if the petticoat is cut the full length, and this ruffle put over it. This will not be bulky around the feet or take up noticeable room.

CORNS
Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, or bronchial asthma.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Candlesticks and Flower Bowl in a Charming Console Set.

MAGIC TOUCHES OF WARE.

As wonderful as the dazzling jewels and treasures which Aladdin could command by rubbing his magic lamp are the colorful pieces of majolica, pottery, and glassware that are made in Italy. We are more fortunate than the people of Aladdin's day, however, for we need no magic lamp to bring these bits of joy into our possession. Appreciative merchants, with a true sense of artistry, travel back and forth across the ocean for us, bringing collections of fascinating pieces from which we may choose the ones we love best.

Gracing many shelves and tables in the studio of an importer of Italian art objects is a splendid stock. It is interesting to note the development of this delightful studio. About thirty years ago it was started as a florist shop. After a short time a larger shop was opened, most exquisitely designed, the equipment for it being largely the result of a special trip of the artist-florist to Europe. It was then that the foundation was laid for what has developed into a huge importing business. Though the original proprietor has since died, he had so well provided for the future of his business that the work is being carried on as a fitting memorial to one who did so much to foster American appreciation of the applied arts of Italy.

One of the most called for wares which the studio imports is the Bassano pottery. It has a soft cream ground, similar to the well known Wedgwood queensware. This neutral shade easily fits in with any possible color scheme, so the plain pieces always are sure to be pleasing. Others are decorated remarkably, in daring blends of strong colors. In some instances the cream background is entirely replaced with yellow. Black, green, and purple decorations create an unusual effect. Each piece has a wholly individual value, as they are not commonly seen, being a product of several small kilns. This makes it impossible to import them in any great quantity.

The history of this ware is interesting. There are records of kilns at Bassano, the place from which the name is derived, as early as 1540. Most of the designs, however, date from the eighteenth century.

Many of the pieces have a purely decorative value. Some are of raised fruit, made into baskets and bowls of pottery. There are all sorts of interesting figurines. One set of five is of child musicians, each with a different instrument. These are all cream color. They would be delightful against an ash green wall, arranged on the mantel shelf of a music room. Another set representing the four seasons may be had in plain cream, or decorated in color. They may be bought separately, though as a whole set they are more amusing.

Bird figures, too, are made in this kind of pottery. They furnish just the proper touch of brilliant color so often needed in an otherwise dark spot. There are peacocks in blue or yellow, cockatoos in yellow, green or cream, and thrushes in brown or yellow. A vivacious parrot, in yellow, green or cream, has his wings spread wide.

In addition to these there are a great many pieces which are useful as well as ornamental, all sorts and sizes of fruit bowls and flower vases. The latter are especially adaptable for use as lamp bases. Electrically wired, and fitted with suitable shades, they are decidedly exquisite.

A charming console set consists of a pair of candlesticks and a flower bowl in bright yellow and black, set on square bases which are raised by means of a black claw-foot at each corner. Other candlesticks are made of figurines.

Some of the vases which could not be used for lamp bases are of peculiar forms. There is one which is fan shaped, decorated with flowers. This holds sprays and blossoms in a wide, flat spread, so that they look quite different from the way they do when all forced into one perfectly round opening.

Another, shown in today's illustration, is of an oval, urn shape, with three openings at the top, just like bottle necks. It is in yellow and black, with a garland design in bright colors. A pair of black candlesticks holds lemon yellow candles. Window curtains and table cover are of deep mauve silk rep, lined with sage green. The backs of the little wall niches are painted mauve and the wall is old ivory.

Desk sets of this ware are artistically interesting. One set, in cream color, has an oval tray, raised and ridged at the edges. On this are two round, ridged ink boxes. The lids have little knob handles. Another ink well has two ink pockets set into an oblong piece, which is decorated with garlands of fruit. Lids to the pockets are lifted by means of tiny fruit handles.

Decidedly popular also is the Deruta pottery. The factory where this is made, at Deruta, is possibly the oldest one of its kind in Italy. It has been in operation continuously from the time of its inception in the fourteenth century. Almost all of the pieces are original models, both in form and decoration.

The line is divided, practically, into two parts, table ware and solid color articles. The table ware has been imported in six different patterns, each delightfully beautiful. Besides the regular plates, platters, etc., there are many odd pieces, which may be bought separately. Any one of them would be a joy. There are all sizes and shapes of water pitchers, for instance, chocolate, coffee, and tea pots, bowls, compotieres, nut dishes, and many little covered dishes.

Comprehensive in their use and form are the solid color pieces. There are all manner of interesting vases, in wonderful colors. A Grecian vase of graceful lines is about twelve inches high. In yellow, filled with spring twigs covered with little, tender green leaves, it brightens the corner in which it is placed. Another vase, jade green, stands about eight inches high. It is somewhat the shape of the silver loving cups that are given as prizes to winners of tournaments. There are large, ear like handles. It is a wonderfully happy piece when filled with flowers of purplish shades.

A good set to use for adding a touch of color or color contrast in dining or breakfast rooms is one which consists of a pair of twisted candlesticks and a wide lipped fruit bowl. The candlesticks may be electrically equipped and fitted with suitable shades or shields, and the fruit bowl, with a flower block, may be used for arranging flowers.

In a breakfast room, in which the furniture is enameled lemon yellow, a set of this sort in intense turquoise would be pleasing. Unexpected contrasts of color like this—these little additional touches which cannot be built into the house, or into the furniture—are the things which give to a room that note of vitality and vividness which transforms it from the commonplace to a magic creation. They impart that quality which makes the ensemble continue to live as a lovely thought in the minds of all who behold it. More important still, they really bring joy to their appreciative owners. Was Aladdin's lamp more wonderful?

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN THE WORLD OVER

By personally visiting almost every person in her district, Miss Nellie Cline of Kansas was able to secure the nomination for congress. She plans to duplicate her trip in the general election campaign.

Miss Ann Hillery of Milwaukee, recently appointed chief clerk of the American embassy in Buenos Aires, is believed to be the only woman who holds such a position in the American diplomatic service.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

SCINTILLATING SIMPLICITY MARKS PARIS EVENINGS.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—Take a tip from the twinkling stars, says Paris. Consider their sparkling simplicity, and then go and do likewise. Brighten the evening as they do.

You may emulate a major planet, if the occasion warrants, or you may choose a minor constellation. Even the milky way is good copiable material, for realizing the unostentatious brilliancy that is demanded by the new mode for winter. The chief requisite is that you shall reflect this spirit from head to toes.

One of the first answers to the question, "Why is it that the American woman often fails with her evening costumes?" is this lack of attention to the costume complete, and her penchant for the hard boiled brilliancy of the beaded frock. Crossing with me on the Paris to New York last spring was an American girl, who brightened the dull ocean evenings with a different beaded frock for each of the six, but she wore the same slippers with all, and the same necklace and accessories. On the same crossing I saw every evening one of our American duchesses, who wore the same frock for all the evening parties, a simple white crepe de chine embroidered delicately in pearls. She wore a new scarf, a piquantly different flower, a change of necklace and varying slippers, so that she always presented a new and intriguing air about her costume, with each appearance.

That habit of the duchess has become the first command of the new winter fashions of Paris, and it is particularly sympathetic to the Parisienne, who delights herself infinitely in the minutest details of her toilette. She achieves elegance by rendering subtle aid to the stark simplicity of her frock. If this is done by means of the crystal or bead embroidery so good now, she reduces her accessories to the least obvious, while never omitting them. And, if her gown is an epigram on simplicity, her headdress, her jewels, her fan, and her dainty slippers are sparkling and elegant. These trifles usually follow some fundamental harmony of line that is expressed in the dress. Our favorite grande couturiere, Madeleine Vionnet, studies her clients as an artist studies his canvas, and she is making brief trains for some of her simplest and most exquisite new evening frocks.

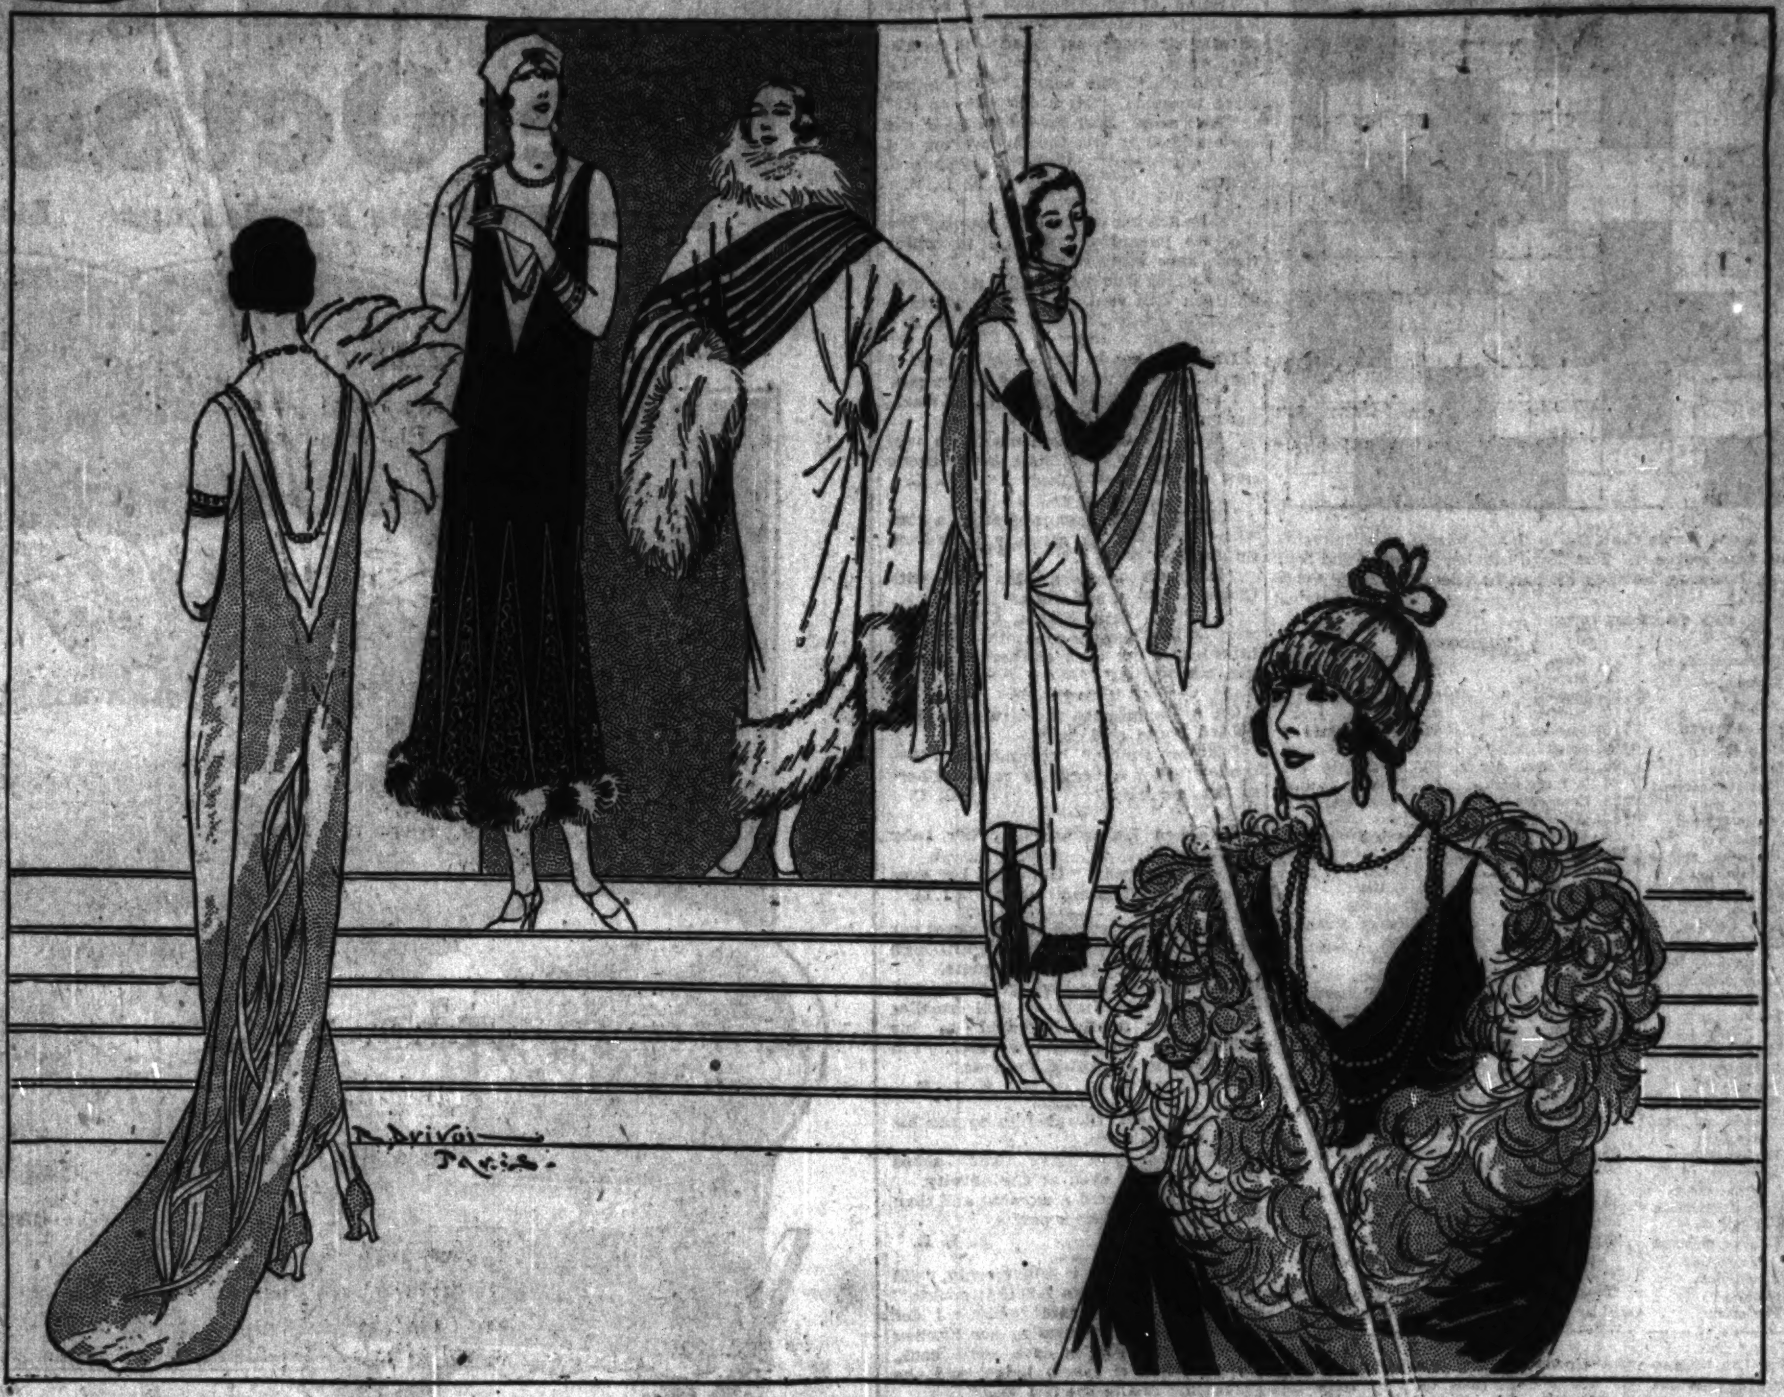
Our first offering illustrates the length, breadth, and sweep of the new train, which means that it must be quite short, and rather a panel than a court affair. It is, in this case, attached to shoulders and again to the hips, at the sides only, so that the beautiful line of the back is suggested beneath it. The dress is a tube of black velvet, rather short, and with a V shaped decolletage that is outlined by gold tissue, shaped at the outer edge, and passing around the oval arm holes. This bit of metal fabric and the sword shaped leaves embroidered on the train are the only decorations on the dress, and its wearer restrained her accessories to a fuchsia fan and a string of pearls that outlined the decolletage in back, hugging her throat in front. One more thing would probably have spoiled the effect, for these gowns are stately and formal in effect, no matter how simple is their line, and how subdued the decorations.

For those formal affairs that come at least once a season to all of us, such gowns are a realization of the ideal, and our second sketch represents a frock that the couturiers call wearable, which means you can appear in it on any evening occasion less formidable than a state function. Its fabric is white velvet, the soft, supple new kind of velvet that is no heavier than a fine quality of crepe de chine. From shoulders to hips it is cut in the conventional long line, unornamented silhouette, which has been popular for the last two seasons. Below the hips it breaks into a series of godets, which graciously ease the stern lines of the tube, and give enough amplitude at the bottom for a professional dancer. Every godet has its trimming consisting of an elongated V of ivory lace, with the pattern picked out in silver thread, and terminating in a band of dark fur.

Our third model is a wrap designed to ease the eyes during the journey from motor to the door, and to encourage men away from the fireside on winter nights. It is of jacinthe blue metallized moire, with a wide strip of brocade in many brilliant colors, which the couturier has arranged to pass from the right sleeve over the left shoulder, followed by the fur scarf that takes the place of a collar, giving you the impression of one of those cavalier capes worn in opera fashion. The full length right sleeve and the regulation length left sleeve are designed to the same end. The diagonal fur trimmed hem line also keeps up the task of creating an illusion of the sumptuousness of those romantic wraps.

The fourth offering shows another autumn conception of the evening gown. See how simple and smart it is. There is a hint of the classic drapery of Greece in the arrangement of folds of crepe de chine under the right arm. They are cleverly lifted to reveal a deep fringe of crystals, narrower fringes of the same being placed around the hem line. With this frock is worn an extra long tulle scarf embroidered all over with crystals in an illustive pattern, so they resemble small showers of dew drops surrounded by mist, which poetic simile fits perfectly. The slight drapery is concentrated at the right hip on side front and back.

Lastly, and nearly out of the picture, is another new headdress or, to be exact, a turban, which is the newest conception of a decoration for the shingle bob for evening. It is worth while to make note of the fact that evening turbans and hats are smart. Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt is wearing a smart hat of shaded velvet with her evening costumes at Deauville, and everywhere one sees either the turban or at least a headdress. Our sketch shows a turban of tulle covered by a melon shaped filet of pearls, ending at the center top with a stiffened bow of pearls. The face is framed by a band of pale rose ostrich, and the woman is also wearing an ostrich scarf, another accepted feature of the evening mode. Her dual strands of pearls are two toned, one reflecting the nuances of the scarf and the other a dull white.



Paris fancies the panel train for evening gowns. Lace godets tipped with fur give gracious width to skirts. Metallized moire and sable bands for evening wrap. Crystal fringes and classic drapery appear for evening. The latest Parisienne fancy is the evening turban.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant, and send direct.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

JUST A REMINDER.

If we needed any reminder, the touch of cold last week told us that winter was coming—winter, the season of brisk outdoor sports, indoor parties, and holiday festivities for those who are well and prosperous, and the season of greatest trial and hardship for the poor! Now is the time to help those less fortunate than ourselves—now, before months of battling with cold and privation have sapped all strength and changed a needy case into a desperate one.

If you could have seen the requests for help come pouring in, after last week's touch of cold, you would be glad to help, I know. And you can do it easily—by giving surplus articles or giving things you are ready to throw away.

For example, hundreds of families are facing the winter in basement homes. Think how the discarded bed, strips of carpets, blankets, and quilts would come as a godsend to such families! Think of the mother who knows full well that her husband, weakened from worry and privation, can scarcely hope to keep bringing in his wage without a break for sickness when he has no overcoat, no sound shoes, and no money to buy them. Think of the families where there is such poverty and a baby on the way! Anything you have to give will find a welcome in such homes and ease the strain so that the earnings will be enough to go around for winter necessities.

Then think of the things you are ready and willing to discard, and ask yourself, "Can I afford to waste the power for good, even for saving life, which this article possesses?" I know I can trust your humanity for the rest!

To Keep Them Warm.

"I wonder if any one has any discarded underwear or stockings to give to me for my children to keep them warm this winter. The boys are 14, 8 and 6 years old; the girls, 12 and 4 years, and 7 months. I was able to work part of the summer, but earned just enough to buy food and the shoes for them. They are in need of all sorts of clothing, but especially underwear. MRS. A. M."

Perhaps you have packed the outgrown underwear of your children away because it was too good to throw away. If you have no longer any use for it, would you care to send it to this needy mother?

Plea for Invalid.

"My daughter has had a lonesome five months in a tubercular sanitarium, and, although she is coming home next month, she will in all probability be confined to her bed for some time. I wonder if any one has a small rocker or a flower stand not in use. I am anxious to have her room as pleasant as possible, and do everything in my power to keep her happy, but I have no way of providing the little things she will need. MRS. A. M."

If you have anything—and especially the flower stand or the rocking chair—that would make this homecoming a happy one for the invalid, we will gladly furnish the address of Mrs. A. M. Perhaps your ingenuity or your own experience with sickness in the home can help with suggestions that will hasten the hours along.

Asks Clothes for Babies.

"My children are badly in need of clothing, and I come to you and your generous readers for assistance. I have twins, boy and girl, 2, and the oldest boy is 4. They need all sorts of clothing. I will be glad to cut down clothing and do any making over that would be necessary in case things did not fit them. The little girl is not at all well and the doctor advises as much fresh air as possible, but her clothes are not warm enough to permit me to take her out on cold days. "MRS. M. R."

We hope some one will be able to help Mrs. R. clothe her little ones for the winter months. An old wool dress or heavy coat may be cut over into serviceable suits for them.

All Need Clothing.

"We are a poor family, and my little sisters and brothers and I need clothing. Our mother is still weak from a serious operation, and father is trying hard to take care of us. I have just one dress, and my little sister, 4, has hardly anything to wear. The other children need things almost as badly. Has any one a few old things that would fit us or that mother could make over into winter clothes? We hope you will not forget us. FRANCES."

Frances is 12, just the age when a girl begins to love pretty things, and she has only one ragged dress to wear! Anything at all that can be made over into warm garments will be appreciated by this heavily burdened family.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

"Some of us kids had a bonfire last night, and toasted marshmallows on sticks," Roger informed his neighbor, Anne.

"Did you?" she asked, with immediate interest. "How do you do it?"

"Aw, easy! Just hold 'em near the coals and light 'em, then blow 'em out and eat 'em!" Roddy explained, briefly. K. D. B.

While driving out in the country one day we passed a pasture in which there were some cows.

The child who was with us pointed at them and said, "O, look at those beautiful cattles." D. M. S.

Donald's hands were dirty and I found him washing one of his fingers. I asked, "What's the idea of washing only one finger?"

"Well, Jimmy asked me to go over to his house to feel his baby brother's new teeth," he replied. L. C.

Milly had just returned from a visit with a little friend, recently home from California.

"Did you have a nice time with Clara?" asked her aunt.

"O, yes, Aunt Emma, Clara and I were so glad to see each other we both talked so fast that neither one could get in a word." H. H.

On a farmhouse there was a sign, "Yard eggs sold here."

"How funny," commented Gertrude; "they sell eggs by yard out here in the country." C. C.

I asked Helen how big her baby sister was.

She answered: "Her's got her eyes open but her's untoothed." J. G.

A large woman got on the street car and sat down beside Robert, although the space was quite inadequate.

She kept edging back gradually and squeezing him into a still smaller space until finally he said to his mother in an audible whisper, "I'm getting almost choked for seat." E. L. R.

Mickey took Clarabel in to see his new twin sisters.

"Why do you have two?" asked Clarabel, wide eyed at the novelty.

Mickey pondered a moment and then replied, "More like a party." E. L. R.

"Now, Bobby," I said sternly, "did you ask Mrs. White for that cookie?"

"No, I didn't," said Bobby," I des saw a table of cookies in her kitchen and I said 'You is sure some cook, Mrs. White, if I is a judge' and she gived me one to see if I was." J. R.

USE SULPHUR TO HEAL YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blotches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Mentho-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Mentho-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

LOVE LETTERS

SET IN SILVER.

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

My DARLING HUSBAND: Today is our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. I was hoping we would be able to spend it together, but as circumstances prevent, I'm writing you a letter to let you know how happy I am as your wife.

You know our friends prophesied we would not live together six months as we married after so short an acquaintance. It was a little hard at first getting adjusted, but I felt from the day I met you that you were the only man in the world for me.

At first I was afraid to let you out of my sight for fear I would awake and find you only a dream. I was so supremely happy, words cannot express the joy I felt. Your arms were my heaven then, as they have been ever since; and I hope, dearest, that when God calls us we can go together, as it is so hard to be away from you, even for a few days.

Hoping for your speedy return and the clasp of your loving arms and heavenly kisses. I remain as ever,

Only Your,
ETHEL.

An Instantaneous Wrinkle Remover

The average woman is always surprised to learn, after experimenting with all sorts of patent so-called "wrinkle removers," that the most effective remedy in the world is a simple face wash which she can make herself at home in a jiffy.

She has only to get an ounce of pure powdered Saxolite from her nearest druggist and dissolve it in half a pint of witch hazel. Apply this refreshing solution to the face every day for a while. The result is charming—marvelous. Even after the very first treatment the wrinkles show less plainly and the face has a nice, firm, comfortable feeling that is thoroughly delightful and lends self-confidence in one's appearance. This harmless home remedy is used by thousands of women to eliminate the unwelcome traces of time.

HARMLESS LAXATIVE

For Sick, Feverish, Bilious Children

Mother!

When Child Needs a Laxative Give "California Fig Syrup"

All children love the pleasant taste of "California Fig Syrup" and gladly take it even when bilious, feverish, sick, or constipated. No other laxative regulates the tender little bowels so nicely. It sweetens the stomach and starts the liver and bowels without cramping or overacting. Contains no narcotics or soothing drugs.

Tell your druggist you want only the genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has full directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle.

Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

WHEN HE CAME TO PROPOSE—IN HER WRATH SHE AROSE
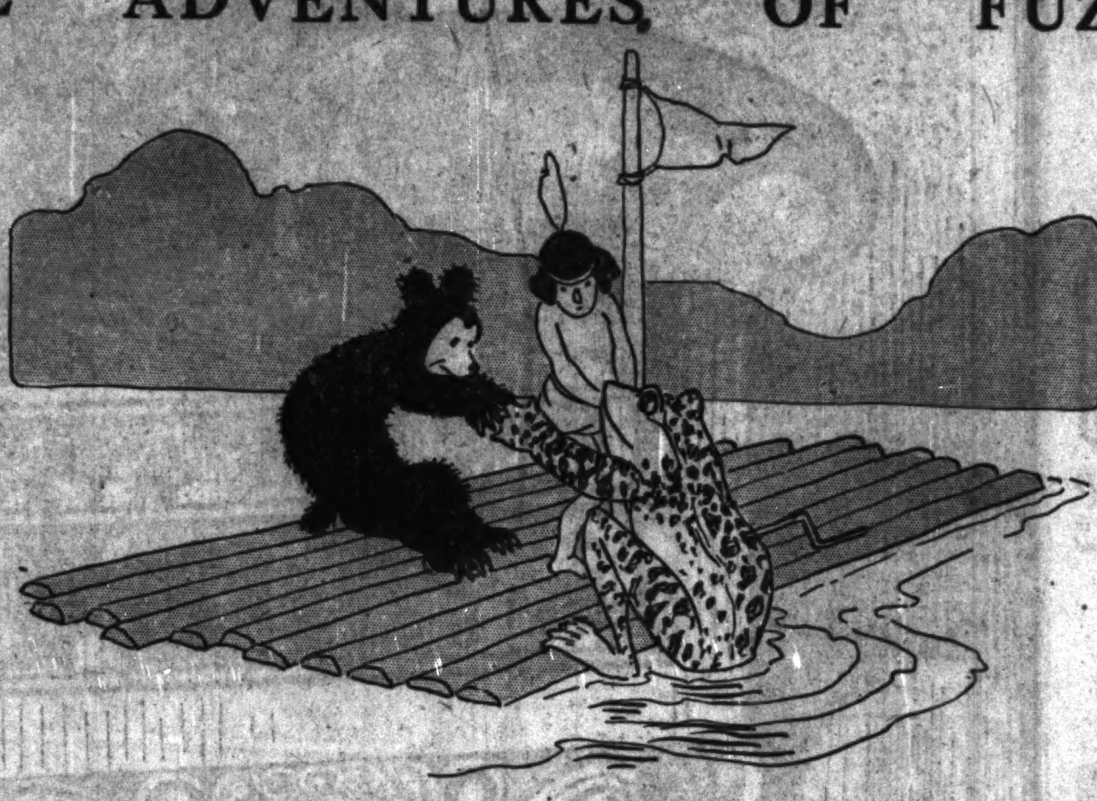
SAYING "SIR! YOU HAVE NO STRINGS ON ME!"

THE ADVENTURES OF FUZZY WUZZY

RAFTING ON THE RIVER.

By Raymond Kelly.



"CLICKETY, click, click; clickety, click, click." The sound came to the ears of Fuzzy Wuzzy and Hawk Feather as they sat on their raft watching the shore and the water.

"Clickety, click, click; clickety, kety-click." It came again closer than before, but so weak that the little bear and his Indian friend could scarcely hear it at all.

Fuzzy Wuzzy looked at Hawk Feather and Hawk Feather looked at Fuzzy Wuzzy. "What is it?" asked the little bear, turning pale under his fur. "Clickety, click—quack, quack. Help, help!" They heard from the end of the raft, and the true friends rushed there just in time to save the great mechanical frog from sinking.

"I almost didn't make it," panted the frog, when he was safe on the raft. "That's the trouble with having to depend on somebody else to wind you up. They never half way do it."

"But why do you quack like a duck?" asked Hawk Feather.

"Just plain human carelessness," the frog answered sadly. "I got into the duck department of the toy factory by mistake and they fitted me out with a quacker instead of a croaker. It's very inconvenient at times, and dangerous, too. The ducks are always answering my call and then trying to eat me, you know. One big fellow would have succeeded, too, if my handle had not caught in his bill and made him give up the idea. You can see for yourselves the patches that had to be cemented on where his beak cut the rubber. But the winding is the worst. I simply have to depend on others for that because the handle is in the middle of my back where I simply cannot reach it."

"So it is," said Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"It is indeed," agreed Hawk Feather.

"Yes, and would you believe it?" the mechanical frog went on. "I know what it is to lie in a toy basket or a radiator, week after week, before anybody shows enough interest in me to give that handle a twist or two, so that I may take a hop or a swim. Yes, sir, week after week. I do wish that handle were on my chest where I could wind myself."

"It's a reasonable enough wish," said Fuzzy Wuzzy. Do you think that we could change it around, Hawk Feather?"

"O, if you could," quacked the mechanical frog, "I would go to the end of the world for you."

"We are not going that far," replied Fuzzy Wuzzy. "Only to the South Sea islands to find some gold mines for ourselves. But we will be glad to help you out. See what you can do, Hawk Feather."

So Hawk Feather went to work, and with no tools except two toothpicks and a monkey wrench he took the mechanical frog to pieces and put him together again with the handle in the middle of his white vest where he could reach it himself. And the mechanical frog was no end grateful to the little Indian boy and decided to join the two friends on their excursion. "You will likely run into the very place I'm looking for," he said. "You know I've an errand of tremendous importance."

"Yes?" said Fuzzy Wuzzy politely. "We should be delighted to hear your plans."

"Can you keep a secret?" the mechanical frog asked solemnly.

"Perfectly," answered Fuzzy Wuzzy and Hawk Feather in unison, bowing until their noses almost touched the raft.

"I am sure you can," said the frog, "and I'll tell you as soon as I have composed the music. I always tell secrets to music."

THE HUSBAND—"Your figure is perfect in that corset."
HIS WIFE—"That's a great compliment, my dear; I haven't one on."

Wives With Hips

It's PLAY to Take INCHES Off the HIPS This MODERN Way!

WHY try to conceal broad hips? Or to hide fleshy thighs? It can't be done. But you can reduce every extra inch—every extra ounce—at the waist, through the hips, across the abdomen.

No garment ever gave lines like these!

No wise woman under fifty need have "matronly" proportions.

No woman who knows need "confine" her figure.

You can redistribute your weight with less effort—and with less expense—than resorting to corsetry and camouflage of dress. You can weigh and measure what you should!

Hips Six Inches Smaller in a Month. Steady Reduction of 5 Lbs. a Week.

Here's a method that has slenderized thousands. Women of all ages, maids and matrons, have used it and know. It is a swift corrective of over-fleshiness at any point. It removes the cause.

Use this remarkable method to dispel a double-chin in a few days.

Make arms that have grown flabby firm within a week.

Reduce a large bust four inches in a fortnight.

Bring a waistline down to normal in a month.

Slenderize hips you thought "hopeless."

Mold heaviest thighs to shapeliness.

Take off all excess fat, anywhere.

Restore and keep a figure.

Are these things really possible? Yes; and by a very pleasant process. Wallace reducing records give anyone with a phonograph absolute control of weight. They have actually made play of reducing. People try them for the fun of it—but they soon see real results! For those simple little movements, irresistibly timed to music, soon dispose of superflous flesh—every pound of it—at the rate of several pounds a week.

Wallace reducing records offer a normal and natural way of growing slender. They are highly beneficial to the health. How much safer than anything to swallow! How much more sensible than bulky things to wear! And mark this: no one who does not reduce with these records is asked, or even permitted to pay for them. Read Wallace's offer:

Free Test of Get Thin to Music

You probably have heard of Wallace records, but perhaps questioned what they would do for you. To find out is a simple matter; a week's test will tell; and this test is absolutely free. Wallace will send everything complete for the trial—record and all, and you are bound to enjoy the experiment. Your tapeline and the scales will be the best proof of what you can accomplish.

If you would like to try one of the records Wallace has provided for this free demonstration of his famous reducing method, just mail this coupon:

Price The price of an article is often a debatable point. Poorly made furniture is high priced at any cost, but the kind that is made right and sold fairly is the sort that is a pleasure to buy and sell. It is our aim to provide our customers with the best the market affords and to see that it is priced low enough to be not alone the best in quality, but also the greatest in value.

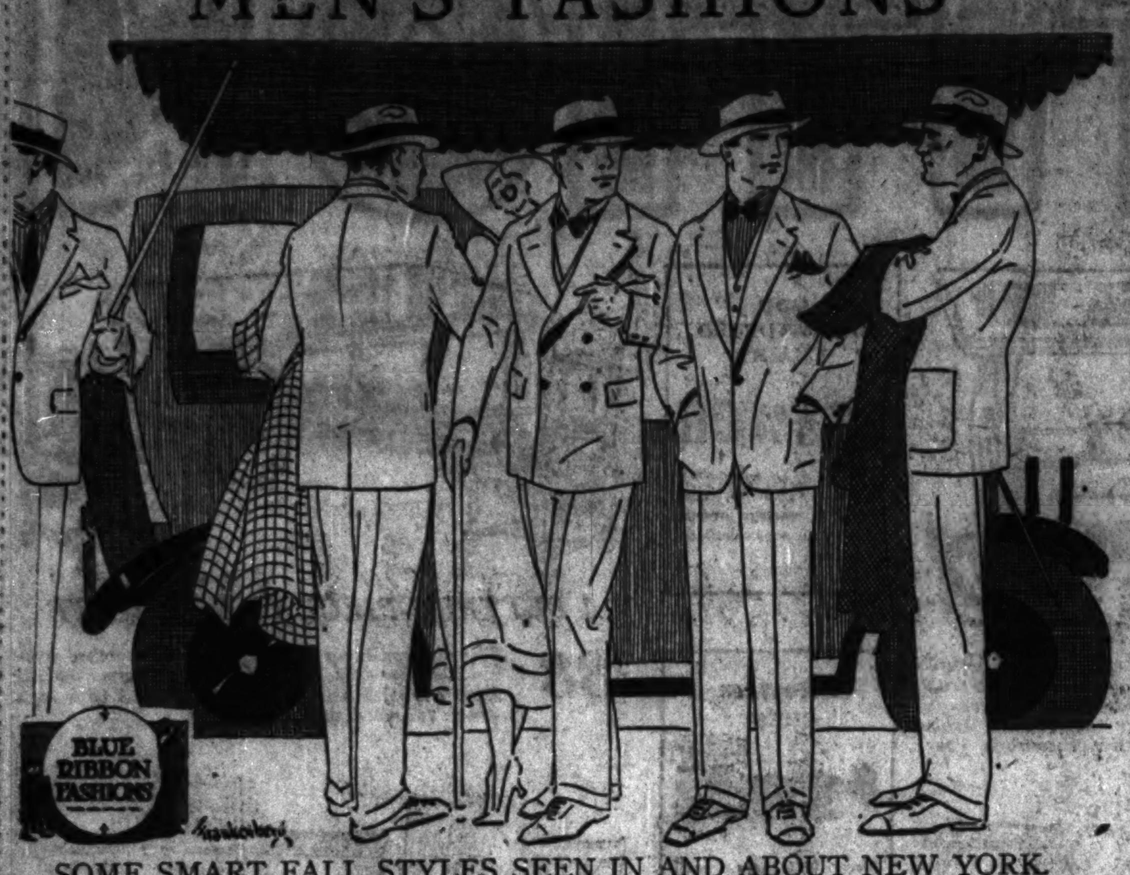
MEN'S FASHIONS



SOME SMART FALL STYLES SEEN IN AND ABOUT NEW YORK.

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions—the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—Fall styles in New York so far have shown several interesting points which are worthy of mention. Not that there is much that is startlingly novel or unusual. But whenever an emphasis is laid upon any fashions which have always been present but not much in the public eye, it is brought to our attention and we feel we must pass on the idea.

Chief among these sartorial points of interest are the increasing number of suits of the glenurquhardt check. We noticed quite a number of them at the international affair out at Belmont Park a few weeks ago when the French horse Epinard met his better. This is a place where you will see well dressed men, if anywhere. All of the moneyed Beau Brummels of this part of the world congregated there, and men's fashions stand out with almost as much importance as the horses themselves.

We saw suits checked in the above mentioned manner, in various colorings. The most usual has gray background, with perhaps a blue or red line running through the material. The check is sometimes preferred with brown background. The prince of Wales has a glenurquhardt checked suit of gray blue and white.

Suits with an overplaid design are also much in the running this season. In fact, the suit of absolutely plain coloring is far in the minority. Those that are not checked or plaided are striped.

However, don't for a moment get the idea that a solid colored suit is not fashionable and should not be included in your wardrobe if you care for it. In some cases, if one wants to wear a fancy shirt, and a patterned tie, it is better to have a suit that strikes the simple note. Otherwise, as we have often warned you before, there will be a superabundance of pattern in your costume, and you will look more like a crazy quilt than the ideally well dressed man.

The fact that checked and striped suits are extremely popular, and surpass in number the suits of plain material, does not mean that the latter type of suit is not entirely correct. Because an article of wearing apparel is worn by the majority is no reason for relegating to the position of unfashionableness another style of the same article. If this were the case we should have to say that it is incorrect to wear a white collar, just because the collar to match the shirt has jumped into greater prominence than ever. But the white collar is always correct. It is merely, at the moment, not the favorite.

These shirts with collar to match are sweeping the field of men's fashions at a tremendous speed. The more negligee ones carry the attached collars that are soft, with rather long points. But those that give more of a metropolitan effect are the ones that are starched and fit neatly and snugly about the neck. Then there is the soft collar which is pinned close to the neck.

The plaited bosom shirt is another style in shirts which one seems to see more of these days. It sometimes carries a self collar, but is more often worn with white turnover or wing collar.

In colors, blue and lavender, and white are the leaders for shirtings. They are solid colors or striped, in the latter case with the collars horizontally striped. The polka dotted shirt, of which we wrote some weeks back as a possible up and comer in the men's wear field, has so far proved itself quite a popular garment. We saw a number of them at Belmont Park that day of the big race.

A few of the outfits seen on the fashionable men at the park that day may serve as guidance to those who are seeking the smart and correct in their dress.

Here's a tip for the man who is looking for a good color combination with a brown suit. A blue shirt, and a bow tie of rather light blue with polka dots of dark yellow, was worn by one smartly turned out man out there.

For informal country club attire one dresser at the race offers this suggestion. White flannel knickers, grayish brown coat, brown hose, and brown and white checked tie. Another knicker outfit that makes a good effect was composed of brown coat, brown checked knickers, blue shirt striped with reddish brown, brown and blue tie, and brown and tan hose.

Here's a hint for a color scheme with gray suit. Blue and white striped shirt and blue and maroon tie. Another man wearing a gray suit at Belmont finished his off with the lavender shirt which we have mentioned above as being popular this season, and a purple tie. He wore a pearl gray felt hat. Another purple color scheme was achieved by a navy blue suit, dark lavender shirt, and purple polka dot four-in-hand. The hat was a gray fedora.

The Escort Didn't.

My girl friend and I were invited to a party. A boy friend of ours was also invited, and to make things more pleasant he said he would come with us. When we got on the car we walked in, thinking our escort was paying the fares.

The conductor came to us and said: "Fares, please."

We soon paid them, amid shouts of laughter. F. G.

Hard on the Hostess.

My husband wanted me to entertain a wealthy cousin of his, whose dinners and luncheons were the last word in perfection and daintiness.

Accordingly, I planned a luncheon, and as I was inflicted with a new maid, I laundered my finest embroidered lunch cloths, and laid them in the top linen drawer. The morning of the luncheon I showed them to the maid, with instructions to set the table.

What was my horror after the guests were all seated, to find that my carefully planned menu was being served upon embroidered pillow slips.

All my explanations and my guests' good natured amusement did not lessen my intense embarrassment. F. M.

Off and On.

The affair was a home wedding. I arrived shortly before the time set for the ceremony, and stood talking to some girls. In a lazy fashion I leaned against the wall. The lights in the room went out.

I thought that a clever idea and moved. The lights went on, and as the hall opened and the owner of the chair appeared, assisted by her two daughters. This was certainly a most embarrassing situation. J. G.

As of Old.

It happened at our Ladies' Aid society not long ago. I had been assistant secretary for several years, but at our last election my neighbor was put in my place. Our secretary seldom is absent, but at this meeting she was and I had been so accustomed to filling her place, I never gave it a thought, but got up and called the roll and had the plate collection half over when the new assistant secretary remarked it was her work, not mine. I quickly acknowledged my mistake. C. D.

Two for One.

It was just two weeks after I'd been married, when my husband and I were traveling on a local train. The conductor asked for our tickets. Much to my surprise, my husband found that he had purchased just one ticket. The conductor, knowing us, advertised it to our friends, much to our embarrassment. L. H.

For All to Hear.

On day we had been invited to a friend's house. We had been there a while, when we heard a clattering of dishes in the kitchen, and my small daughter asked me something. I did not understand her at first and told her to speak louder.

I was indeed sorry I did so for she said loud enough for any one to hear, "Mamma, are we going to eat here?" M. K.

If it doesn't SELL ITSELF don't keep it

ANY Maytag dealer will bring the Maytag Gyrafoam Washer to your home.

Wash With It.

If it doesn't sell itself on its super-speed performance—don't keep it!

If it doesn't sell itself on its highly energized turbulent water action—don't keep it!

If it doesn't sell itself on its unsurpassed nicety in washing chiffons, georgette, and all other dainty things—don't keep it!

If it doesn't sell itself on the way it cleans grimy, greasy overalls—don't keep it!

If it doesn't sell itself on its complete elimination of hand rubbing—even of wristbands, cuffs and collars—don't keep it!

If it doesn't sell itself on its self-cleaning, seamless, corrodeless, scumless, satin-smooth, cast aluminum tub—don't keep it!

If it doesn't sell itself on its patented, self-adjusting, instantaneous tension-release wringer—don't keep it!—

but if it does sell itself, you won't go another day without it! Phone the nearest dealer—no obligation. The Maytag is always sold that way—the way that led to world leadership.

THE MAYTAG COMPANY, Newton, Iowa.

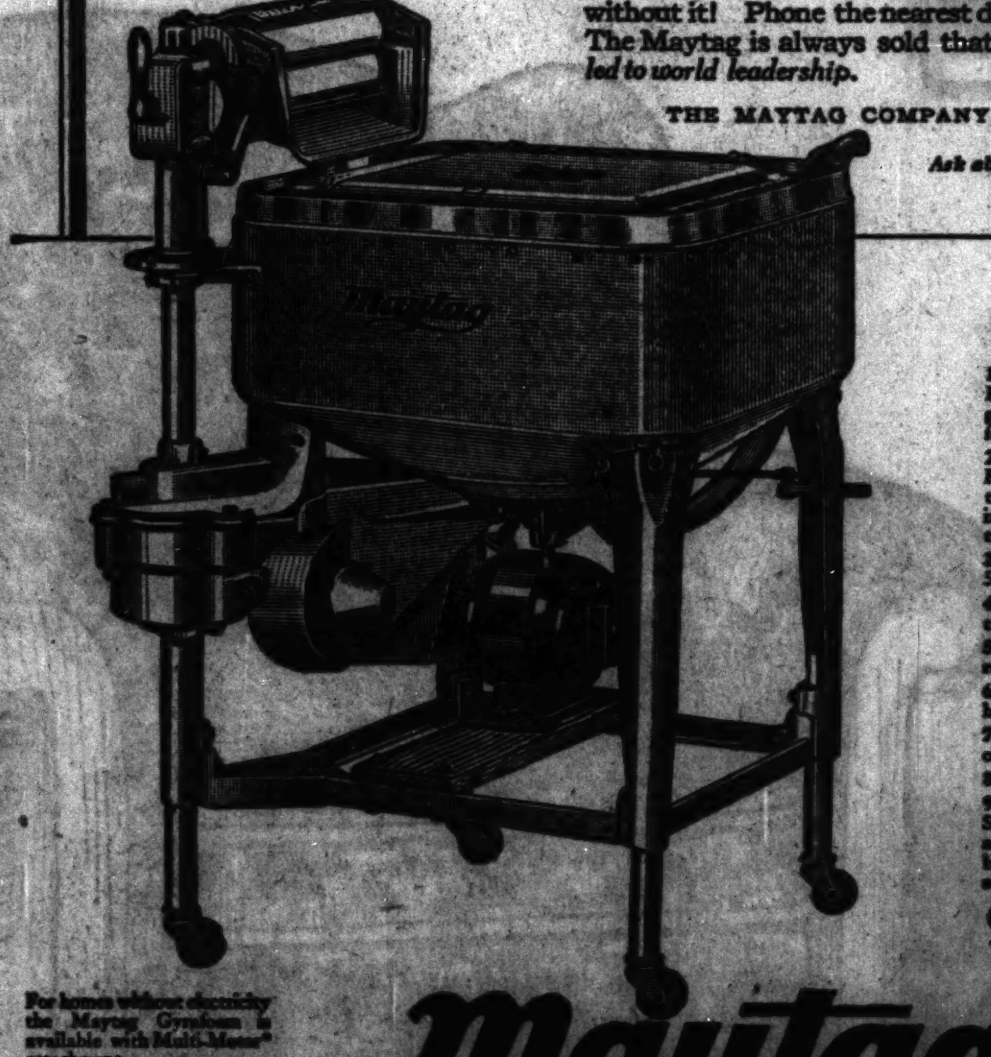
Ask about the Maytag Ironer, too.



9 Outstanding Maytag Features

1—Washes faster. The Gyrafoam Principle creates a more highly energized, turbulent and continuously effective water action. No idle water.

2—Washes cleaner. The Gyrafoam Principle mixes the soap evenly through the water, and forces the super-cleansing, soapier washing solution through the meshes of the clothes. No idle suds.

3—Largest hourly capacity in world—50 lbs. ordinary family wash per hour.

4—Most compact washer made—takes floor space only 25 inches square.

5—Cast aluminum tub—can't warp, rust, rot, swell, split nor corrode.

6—Easily adjusted to user height, and height of tubs.

7—Clothes can be put in or taken out while washer is running.

8—Tub cleans itself in 30 seconds.

9—Metal swinging wringer. Low. Swings into 7 positions. Adjusts itself automatically for handkerchiefs or blankets. Automatic drainboard. Instant tension-release. All parts enclosed.

9 Reasons for World Leadership

For homes without electricity the Maytag Gyrafoam is available with Multi-Motor* attachment.

SECRETS.
THE MAN WHO CAME BACK.
CAPTAIN BLOOD.
THE THIEF OF BAGDAD.
NEVER SAY DIE.
THE COVERED WAGON.
TURMOIL.
THE ALASKAN.
THE CITY THAT NEVER SLEEPS.
IN HOLLYWOOD WITH POTASH & PERLMUTTER.

By Roberta Nangle.

CINEMATICALLY speaking, September hasn't been such a bad month. Herewith we present ten of our best samples. Take your choice:

"SECRETS" is the story of a woman's life, depicting the joys and sorrows and the hopes of fifty years. Miss Tinée says it has "romance, action, suspense, heart throbs — beauty." Norma Talmadge is the star, and the supporting cast is headed by Eugene O'Brien.

GEORGE O'BRIEN, who did some fine work in "The Man Who Came Back."

"THE MAN WHO CAME BACK" harks back to the good old days of melodrama, wherein the course of true love runs ever so roughly to a nice old fashioned, happy finish.

* *

"CAPTAIN BLOOD" is an adventurous tale of brave men and fair ladies. If you like 'em hot, you'll enjoy it. J. Warren Kerrigan is the handsome hero.

* *

"THE THIEF OF BAGDAD" is the loveliest of fairy tales—the most fantastic of Arabian Nights stories. Douglas Fairbanks is the thief who slays dragons and braves fire and water to win the hand of the beautiful princess. Surely, you dreamed about all of the characters in your childhood!

* *

"NEVER SAY DIE" is recommended chiefly because of Douglas McLean, a comedian who really can make you laugh. The plot is rather unlogical, but it's funny.

* *

"THE COVERED WAGON" is a realistic picture of life in the forties. It's splendidly directed and photographed, and, if you want to see a chapter of American history brought to life on the screen, you should see it. It ran last year at Woods theater and came back to town last month.

* *

"TURMOIL" shows you the American business man, who's better at making money than he is at bringing up his offspring. It's interesting, chiefly, because the characters are true to life, as Booth Tarkington's always are.

* *

"THE ALASKAN" can't boast of much plot, but the players do good work. And it has Thomas Meighan, who continues to draw crowds to the box office.

GAY DAYS FOR STARS ON FOREIGN SHORES

By Grace Kingsley.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—If those old boys, Nero, Napoleon, and Cæsar, could come back wouldn't they have a good time now! And so would the picture stars, for they are all over there in Europe. Just to think that poor dear Byron missed meeting Constance Talmadge and Alice Terry. I think Byron would have been a great fan. Then we should have had Connie's eyes and Alice's mouth properly three sheeted.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE, who won't brave the Atlantic in winter.

In the meantime, delightful chatty letters continue to come over from some of the stars. Constance and Norma Talmadge, by the way, are probably going abroad next spring. They don't want to go in winter time, they explain, because they are both rather nervous about the Atlantic ocean storms, and even if nothing happens to their ship, they get dreadfully seasick in heavy seas.

That is, Constance will go, if she can tear herself away from Ronald Colman! Buster Collier is away, and Connie is having a simply glorious time going swimming, motoring, and dancing with Ronnie. Ronnie and Connie—it does sound sweet, doesn't it?

Carmel Meyers is having the joyous time of her young life over in Rome, where she had just arrived from Vienna and Berlin when she wrote me.

They certainly do get film news balled up over there, to judge from a Vienna paper, the Film News, which Carmel sends me. She translated, but sends the paper for corroboration in case one may think she is spoofing.

"It holds the amazing news," writes Carmel, "that Harold Lloyd and Mildred Harris are rejoicing over the birth of their first born son! And on page 24 we read the information that Julanne Johnston was an erstwhile wife of Douglas Fairbanks!"

Miss Meyers hadn't yet begun work in "Ben Hur" when she wrote, but was expecting to commence any day.

"I was so intrigued with Vienna, its music, men, and women and romance, that it was hard to leave. But meeting the whole company here made up for what I left behind. I found them all hard at work—Mr. Niblo with a new coat of tan, which adds to his jovial personality; Ramon Novarro with his hair long—we call him 'Ben Hairy'; Kathleen Key, much thinner than when she left Hollywood, but not from eating spaghetti; and Bess Meredith, hospitable as ever, stealing away late in the afternoon in time to take mother and me to tea atop a hill overlooking Rome, the Casino Valledia.

"From the glimpse I've had into the smart gown shops here, I'm most thankful I don't have to do any buying!"

A Light Luncheon of Lobster.

Julanne tells of meeting the great Asta Neilsen, noted German screen actress, in Berlin, and of how gracious and generous this artist was to the Americans.

"When she heard they had an American cast for 'Garnagan,' she said she was glad," writes Julanne, "because Ger-

Coming Events Cast Preludial Shadows

By Edward Moore.

LEST we forget, a new and active musical season is peering over the horizon. Renee Thornton and Ulysses Lappas at Orchestra hall, also Herbert Gould at Kimball hall, will open the list of recitals on Tuesday night; the Edison Symphony orchestra schedules its first monthly entertainment of tunes and galloping portraits Thursday night at Orchestra hall; the Chicago Symphony orchestra will start its twenty-eight Friday afternoons and Saturday evenings this week; Mr. Neumann's calendar of recitals impends shortly. And not more than a month away looms the Chicago Civic opera.

OLGA FORRAI, Newcoming soprano with Chicago Civic Opera company.

It will, perhaps, not be quite such a strenuous season as last, which at one time and another betrayed several symptoms of abnormalcy. Some of the melody makers who have been concentrating upon American audiences and American box offices are planning to turn their efforts farther afield. Germany, to name only one musical nation, has begun to pay for its music in rentenmarks instead of paper, and people say that fees there are coming to average about as high as anywhere else. All of which tends to divert traffic and lessen localized strain. Still, there will be enough here in Chicago to satisfy the most exigent.

Thornton-Lappas Concert.

The joint recital by Miss Thornton and Mr. Lappas looks at this distance as though it would classify as a good deal of an event. Miss Thornton, as a number of concert patrons learned one night last season, is a soprano with both voice and the art of singing developed to high extent. In both matter and manner her recital became one of the most interesting and ingratiating events of a crowded year. In private life Miss Thornton is Mrs. Richard Hageman, and Mr. Hageman, a distinguished and popular composer, pianist, and conductor, will be present as her accompanist.

Mr. Lappas, a tenor of Greece, did his first Chicago singing during the operatic consulship of Mary Garden. Appearing first as Dick Johnson in "The Girl of the Golden West," he was a prompt hit with the audience, who found time amid the petulant popping of pistols to applaud his fresh, resonant, solid voice and the ease with which he surmounted the waves of the high C's.

Also, though strictly speaking this is not a musical consideration, the recital will be given for an excellent cause. Its proceeds will be turned over to St. Catherine's club, which, now located in Evanston, provides a home for a group of dependent, not delinquent, wards of the Juvenile court. It is about four years old, and provides education, clothing, recreation, and spiritual guidance through voluntary donations and gifts, to the end that deserving girls may grow into self-respecting and respected women.

So for various reasons this recital will be worth your

AWFUL MRS. EATON MAKES STAGE DEBUT

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Those two earnest boys of literature, John Farrar of the Bookman and Stephen Benet who writes poetry, thought they saw a play in Andrew Jackson's defense of Margaret O'Neal Eaton during the days of his first administration.

Mrs. Eaton, you will readily recall if you are good at recalling, was the daughter of a tavernkeeper and herself among the most charming of barmaids when Washington still had barmaids.

Among the men she married one died from drink, it being slyly hinted that he was broken hearted because of Peg's love affairs, and the other became secretary of war under Jackson.

Whereupon the other cabinet ladies refused to have anything to do with Peg. The Calhouns were going to drive her from the district, the Clays openly sniffed at her, the Websters talked about her something scandalous.

But old Andrew, knowing her for a good girl, and liking her husband, sprang to her defense, and not only stood by her but sent his own niece home and made Peg hostess at a White House reception that she might in effect thumb her pretty nose at all Washington's social leaders. Which she did.

As it turns out, the play called "The Awful Mrs. Eaton" is an undramatic, cumbersome affair, spotted with such historical incidents as that in which Jackson received the British ambassador while he (the President) was being shaved, and the explosive bit in which he, acting like a safety valve opened wide and screeching, boldly defied Calhoun and promised to hang him if he continued his disloyalties in respect to South Ca'lina's threat of secession.

There is a comic parade of notables at the reception, and several bits of sentiment that are nice enough. But the whole thing suggests college theatricals rather poorly done. I doubt if it gets far.

Katherine Alexander, a pretty, vivacious, enthusiastic ingénue, who was a flapper in "Chains," plays the title rôle and gives the play such charm and interest as it commands. Frank McGlynn is the Jackson, doing well with the part but never quite suggesting anything deeper in characterization than an interesting masquerade.

* *

"Minick" Too Good?

Strange objection to make to a play—that it is too perfect. And yet that is the only criticism the experts had to offer in their reviews of the new comedy called "Minick."

This is the play George Kaufman and Edna Ferber whittled out of one of Miss Ferber's best liked short stories, "Old Man Minick." It relates, you may recall, the adventure of a 71 year old veteran who goes to Chicago to live with his son and daughter-in-law after Ma Minick dies.

He is an amiable old customer, not too set in his ways and quite determined not to cause anybody the least trouble.

Words in Advance on "White Cargo"

By Frederick Donaghey.

THE catalogue of good plays now in Chicago will be increased tonight by "White Cargo": as a reporter of the theater, I am already sold on this piece. It was easily the best of many plays I saw in a recent fortnight in New-York. I did not see all that were there to be seen; but I missed none of reputed importance save "Beggar on Horseback," which had at the time been bulletined for its current engagement in the Adelphi. At any rate, I have no reason to suspect that among the plays I did not see was any so well worth seeing as the one to be submitted tonight in the Cort. . . .

JASON ROBARDS
He is the actor of the hero in "Seventh Heaven."

That the play has been in performance in New-York since eleven months ago tonight does not necessarily mean anything: it were just as good a play if it had been taken off there after eleven nights or eleven minutes. I am told that it is a success in London; and that is a more flattering endorsement of my attitude toward "White Cargo": few plays are successful in London, where there isn't too much money for theater-going; and few Englishmen will fail to find a message for white civilization in this uncommon piece. . . . And what the play holds for an Englishman it holds for an American, too, if he will simply take it. Apart from being a shapely drama, "White Cargo" is a topical document as urgent as today's first-page news about Japan and the yellow League, and as enthralling at least as the mathematical formula which shows how Chries W. Bryan may be made President of what he and his comic accomplice, Mr. Davis, probably call these United States.

A Play of Frank Dialogue.

I am not of the belief that Mr. Leon Gordon, the author, designed the play as propaganda, or that he wrote it with any idea other than that it might catch on. Indeed, there is or has been litigation based upon the averment that he had no idea other than that, and that he didn't originate the play, but simply adapted it from a work belonging to somebody else. As to this, I don't care a rap, and theater-goers need not: the point is that "White Cargo" is so good a play that I am thus seeking to prejudice you for it in advance of its showing in Chicago. . . . It is adult stuff,—as "hearty," at least, as "The Hairy Ape," and a far, far better thing in all ways. In this matter of adult appeal, I have been curious as to what might have been said in the text of "What Price Glory!" which was not in the text of "White Cargo" when, in July, I saw it in New-York. . . .

The latter play was first put on in one of the alleyway theaters in Manhattan, and was regarded as a washout after a week or two of dwindling interest. Somebody liked it well enough to square the matter of the unpaid actors with their union, move it into a theater in need of an occupant, and

THE OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

EDITED BY Professor J. ARTHUR THOMSON

A PLAIN STORY SIMPLY TOLD - - - - - - XLII.—HOW DARWINISM STANDS TODAY

WHEN people speak of Darwinism they sometimes mean the general idea of evolution—that the present is the child of the past and the parent of the future. Now the evolutionary way of looking at things has certainly been confirmed by the progress of science and is almost unanimously accepted by competent judges today. The horse that gallops past on the tiptoe of one digit of each foot is the natural outcome of an ancestral stock of small hoofed mammals that used to plod about in the Eocene meadows with four toes on each fore foot and three and a vestige on each hind foot. This bird that flies past is the descendant of such an old fashioned type as the Jurassic archæopteryx—an archaic bird with teeth in both jaws, a long tail like a lizard's, and a sort of half made wing. And this first known bird must be traced back to an ancestry among the extinct dinosaur reptiles, though the precise pedigree remains hidden in the rocks. These reptiles must be traced back to certain primitive amphibians, and these to certain old fashioned fishes, and so on, back and back, till we lose our clew in the thick mist of life's beginnings.

GREGOR MENDEL, ONE OF THE FOUNDERS OF THE SCIENTIFIC STUDY OF HEREDITY.—Gregor Johann Mendel (1822-'84), the son of well to do peasants in Silesia, became a priest in 1847, studied physics and natural science at Vienna from 1851 to 1853, and eventually became abbot of Brünn. In the garden of the monastery he made experiments with peas, hawkweed, and bees, and published in 1865 what must be regarded as one of the greatest of biological discoveries. It was practically lost sight of till 1900. Regarding "Mendel's law" Prof. Bateson says: "The experiments which led to this advance in knowledge are worthy to rank with those that laid the foundation of the atomic laws of chemistry."

If this is Darwinism it stands more firmly than ever, except that we are more keenly aware than in Darwin's day of our ignorance as to the origin and affiliation of the great classes. But, frankly, the only scientific way of looking at the present day fauna and flora is to regard them as the outcome of a natural evolution. In a previous chapter this statement has been justified.

But Darwinism is more properly used, in a stricter sense, to mean Darwin's theory of the factors in evolution. If birds sprang from dinosaur reptiles, if the modern horse is the descendant of Eohippus, which was about the size of a fox terrier, how did the gradual transformation come about? There were many evolutionists before Darwin, and some of them propounded theories as to the factors in the age long process. But Charles Darwin and his magnanimous fellow worker, Alfred Russell Wallace, thought out a coherent theory of the factors—a theory that fitted the facts so reasonably well that it soon won the conviction of a large body of naturalists. The essence of the Darwinian theory is in the two words variation and selection; and Darwin stated it in a couple of sentences: "As many more individuals of each species are born than can possibly survive, and as consequently there is a frequently recurring struggle for existence, it follows that any being, if it vary however slightly in any manner profitable to itself under the complex and sometimes varying conditions of life, will have a better chance of surviving and thus be naturally selected. From the strong principle of inheritance any selected variety will tend to propagate its new and modified form.

The Essence of Darwinism.

THIS is, however, too terse a statement. It requires some disentangling and expansion. Proposition I.—Variability is a fact of life. Offspring are usually somewhat different from their parents and from the other members of the family. Some of these variations make for success—success in getting food, in avoiding enemies, in securing mates, in giving the next generation a good start, and in other ways. Individuals that have varied in a profitable way will succeed better than those that have varied in the opposite direction, and better than those that have not varied at all.

Proposition II.—If the individuals that have varied profitably get the reward of their superiority, and if the individuals that have varied unprofitably, or not at all, are handicapped by this inferiority, this will have an effect on the character of the stock, or race, or species, provided that the novel peculiarities are hereditarily entailed on successive generations. If the individuals with profitable peculiarities (let us say, plus variants) are consistently favored, and if their virtues are consistently handed on, their type will come to be that of the race. Whereas those with unprofitable peculiarities or none at all (let us say, minus variants) will be weeded out and will gradually disappear. Prof. R. C. Punnett has calculated that "If a population contains .001 per cent of a new variety, and if that variety has even a 5 per cent selection advantage over the original form, the latter will almost completely disappear in less than a hundred generations."

Proposition III.—But there cannot be sifting or selection without a sieve, and that is to be found in the struggle for existence. Living creatures are hemmed in by limitations and confronted by ever changing difficulties. There is a tendency to overpopulation; circumstances are changeful; the vigorous creature is a hustler. There is struggle for food, for foothold, for self-preservation, for mates, and for family well being—indeed, for luxuries as well as for necessaries. There is a struggle between fellows of the same kind, for a hungry locust may devour its neighbor and even the amœba may be a cannibal. There is a struggle between foes of quite different kinds, between the grazing herd and the marauding carnivores, between the kestrel hawk and the nimble field moles. There is struggle also between living creatures and their inanimate surroundings—the struggle against cold and heat, against wind and wave, against drought and flood. Subtle beyond description and almost ceaseless in its operation is nature's sifting, which Darwin called natural selection. In domestication and cultivation it is man who fosters and eliminates; in nature the same kind of transformation as the breeder and the gardener effect is brought about by the struggle for existence.

These three propositions express the gist of Darwinism, and the question before us is how Darwinism stands today. Before trying to answer this difficult question we may point out that it would be a sorry business if Darwinism stood today as it was left by Darwin. He knew well that he had only begun to solve the problem of organic evolution; he looked forward with clear eyes to changes that the progress of science would enforce. It would be a terrible contradiction in terms if an evolution theory did not itself evolve! The marvel is not that it is necessary to make some changes in what Alfred Russel Wallace so generously called Darwinism, but rather that so much of Darwin's doctrine stands firm, four square to the winds.

Another preliminary note is unfortunately necessary, that it is quite illegitimate to infer from our dubiety in regard to the factors of evolution any hesitation as to the fact. Our frankness in admitting difficulties and relative ignorance in regard to the variations and selections that led from certain dinosaurs to birds cannot be used by any fair minded inquirer as an argument against the idea of evolution. For how else could birds have arisen? As Wallace said in 1889, "Descent with modification is now universally accepted as the order of nature in the organic world." But the question before us is this: What, as regards the factors in evolution, have been the changes since Darwin's day?

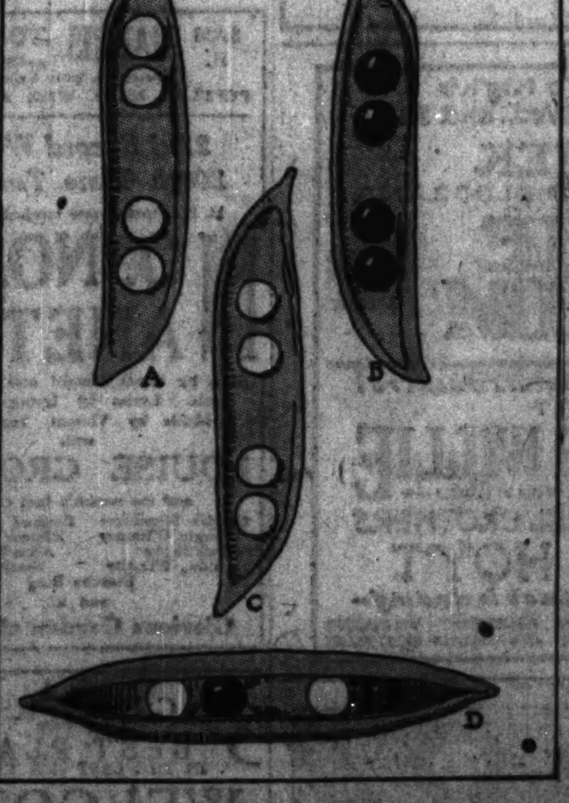
The Three Problems of Evolution.

THERE are three great problems before the evolutionist: (1) What is the origin of the new? (2) What are the laws of inheritance? (3) What are the sifting methods that operate on the raw materials provided and determine survival? In other words, what are the originative factors, what are the laws of entail, and what are the directive or sifting factors?

Evolution depends on new departures, peculiarities, idiosyncrasies, divergences, freaks, sports, a little more of this, a little less of that—in short, organic or constitutional changes. These are technically called variations and mutations. In other words, evolution—whether progressive or retrogressive—depends on the mergence of novelties. When there are no novelties there can be no evolution. The lamp shell, lingula, seems to have remained stagnant for many millions of years—a fine creature, but icily perfect.

Heredity is the relation of organic continuity between successive generations, the living on of the past in the present, the flesh and blood linkage between an individual and his forebears on the one hand, his offspring on the other. The individual is like a lens into which rays from parentage and ancestry converge, from which they diverge again to the progeny.

Heredity is the reproductive relation which secures that like tends to beget like, and yet seldom does. Some peculiarities of an individual are heritable, others are not; longevity is readily entailed, but genius is not; deaf mutism is very transmissible, but a very brown Anglo-Indian father has a peach blossom complexioned daughter. Thus if we think early we see that heredity is not so much a factor in evolution as a condition. There would still be heredity though evolution stopped; but there can be no evolution without heredity. For heredity implies that the gains of the past can be capitalized, and, contrariwise, that individual losses need not involve racial bankruptcy. A man who has lost an eye may be assured that his son will have two, even if the mother is single eyed as well.



MENDEL'S LAW ILLUSTRATED IN PEAS.—A. Pod of a yellow seeded pea, the one parent (dominant as to seed color). B. Pod of a green seeded pea, the other parent (recessive as to seed color). C. Pod of the hybrid offspring (the first filial generation), with only yellow seeds. Yellow seededness is dominant and green seededness recessive. D. The next generation (the second filial generation) shows the occurrence of both yellow seeds (left light) and green seeds (shaded dark).

What are called variations and mutations in biological language are the organism's experiment in self-expression, and these are the raw materials of progress. Granted raw materials, and granted their continuance, something more is needed—their sifting. As we have said in a previous article, the process of evolution is a long drawn out process of testing all things and holding fast that which is good. The variations or novelties are the qualities to be tested— the struggle for existence, which includes the organism's endeavors, is the sieve that tests; heredity secures the holding fast of what has proved good. To employ a metaphor which has the defect of triviality, the variations are the ever fresh hands of heredity cards that are given to the organism to play with; the organism uses these in the struggle for existence—with its strange mixture of active endeavor and fortuity. But when the organism with a good hand—a persistently good hand—becomes eventually tired and vacates its chair for a successor, it hands on its luck, and its cunning, too. Thus the essence of Darwinism is that nothing succeeds like success.

As Regards Variations.

THE fountain of change is even more copious than Darwin supposed. What is so clear in regard to pigeons and poultry, dogs and horses, that they are continually producing something new in their humanly controlled breeding, finds abundant illustration in wild nature. There are conservative types, it is true, which persist in a well poised organic equilibrium, but in many cases there is flux. Outlying variants link one species to another. When the novelties or variations are registered statistically they often form what is called the curve of frequency of error, which means that the number of variants of any particular magnitude will be in inverse proportion to the amount of the deviation from the mean. If the mean stature of the population be 5 feet 8 inches, there will be (as Alfred Russel Wallace points out) in 2,600 men, taken at random, one of 4 ft. 8 in, and one of 6 ft. 8 in., twelve of 5 ft., and about twelve of 6 ft. 4 in. In fact, there will be equal numbers at equal distances on each side of the mean, but the great majority of the deviations will not be far from the mean.

Since Darwin's time evidence has accumulated which shows that variations are more definite than used to be supposed. The paleontologists, who work out long series of fossils, bring forward cases of what looks like steady progress in a definite direction. There is a striking absence of what one might call arrows shot at a venture. It looks as if the occurrence of the new were limited by what has gone before, just as the architecture of a building that has been erected determines in some measure the style of any addition. An organic new departure will tend to be more or less congruent with what has been previously established. In post-Darwinian days the element of the fortuitous has shrunk.

Discontinuous Variations.

DARWIN was much interested in sports or freaks, such as the sudden appearance of a dwarf or a giant, a hornless calf or a tailless kitten, a white blackbird or a weeping ash, a thornless rose or a stoneless plum, a wonder horse with its mane reaching the ground, or a Japanese cock with a tail six feet long. But Darwin did not venture to attach great importance to these brusque novelties or discontinuous variations, first because he thought they were of rare occurrence, and second because he thought they would be speedily averaged off in the offspring of a sport which had paired with an ordinary individual. He did not know what his contemporary Mendel proved, that when a pure bred tall pea and a pure bred dwarf pea are crossed the offspring are all tall.

Now one of the great changes that has come about since Darwin's day is a recognition of the frequency of discontinuous variations, by which we mean sudden novelties which are not connected with the type of the species by intermediate gradations. We may think of the white crow or the weeping willow. The Proteus leaps as well as creeps. Especially through the investigations of Prof. William Bateson and Prof. Hugo De Vries it has become plain that changes of considerable magnitude may occur at a bound. When the new character that suddenly appears, such as Shirley poppy or a short legged Ancon sheep, has a considerable degree of perfection from its first appearance, is independently heritable to the offspring, and does not blend or average off, it is called a mutation. Prof. De Vries writes: "The current belief assumes that species are slowly changed into new types. In contradiction to this conception, the theory of mutation assumes that new species and varieties are produced from existing forms by sudden leaps. The parent type itself remains unchanged throughout the process and may repeatedly give birth to new forms. These may arise simultaneously and in groups or separately at more or less widely distant periods." This was strikingly illustrated by the sporting evening primrose (Œnothera lamarckiana), a species of North American origin which De Vries found at Hilversum in Holland, and which proved to be in a very changeful mood. Almost all its organs were varying, as if swayed by a restless internal tide. It gave rise abruptly to numerous new forms which bred true. It illustrated species in the making.

Darwin found the raw material of evolution in small fluctuating variations, which are no doubt of frequent occurrence. Since Darwin's day it has become not only possible but necessary to attach much importance to discontinuous mutations. The contrast was aptly illustrated by Sir Francis Galton, who compared the varying organism to a polyhedron (a solid body with many faces) which can roll from one face to another. When it settles down on any particular face it is in stable equilibrium. Small disturbances may make the polyhedron oscillate, but it always returns to the same face. These oscillations are like Darwin's fluctuating variations, but the comparison breaks down, inasmuch as the living creature may be, as it were, fixed in one of its oscillations, so that the variant makes a fresh start. Greater disturbances of the polyhedron may make it roll over on to a new face altogether, where it comes to rest again, only showing once more the minor fluctuations around its new center. The new position corresponds to what is now called a mutation. Studies in inheritance have shown that these mutations have great staying power; they reappear persistently and intact in a certain proportion of the descendants. They are not liable to be swamped by intercrossing, as Darwin supposed. The curious fact is that the hereditary entailment of the fluctuating variations, which Darwin almost took for granted, requires more demonstration today than does the hereditary entailment of mutations.

A FACTOR IN THE STRUGGLE FOR EXISTENCE (PEREGRINE FALCON ATTACKING A ROOK).—The peregrine falcon, which has been described as "the most powerful bird for its bulk that flies," preys largely on other birds, which it attacks during flight. The falcon's aim is always to get higher than its quarry; it then "stoops" from above, killing not by force of impact but by the grip of its strong talons. As in many birds of prey, the female is larger and stronger than her mate and can hunt larger game. Reproduced by courtesy of Messrs. Methuen & Co. from "A History of Birds," by W. P. Pycraft. Mr. Hampden as Cyrano.

SIR: I took from your September 20 review of Mr. Walter Hampden's performance as Cyrano de Bergerac a great deal of pleasure, of satisfaction, and of information, as I always do when you write about the serious drama. But I am out of agreement with you when you say that Mr. Hampden errs in not emphasizing the Gascon in Cyrano, and that the defect of his impersonation is that he does not keep the brave fellow's lusty vigor ever to the fore. After all, Mr. Donaghey, Cyrano was a scholar, an artist, and a man of fine attainments and instincts; and it does not seem to me reasonable that such an one would flaunt his prowess as a battler, or that he can justly be called what you called him appositely to your happy quotation from the text—a gesture. . . . I prefer to assume that you know something of the actual De Bergerac; and I am, therefore, at a loss to account for your belief that Mr. Hampden should play the rôle as a sort of master-bully.

JAMES ATWELL FENWICK.

After all, Mr. Fenwick, Mr. Hampden's business lies with Rostand's play, and not with the actual De Bergerac, so that it doesn't matter what De Bergerac may have been in his habit as he lived. . . . I have not talked about the play with Mr. Hampden; but I suspect that he acts Cyrano as he best can act him, and not in an effort to effect a compromise between Rostand and history. . . . And out of the first act of Rostand's text I take all the warrant required for my view that Cyrano is a conscious and an eager bravo, and that he means to flaunt his prowess. The adoring Ragueneau says of Cyrano, in describing him to the others assembled for the performance in the Hôtel de Bourgogne:

> He might have been a model for Callot:
> One of those old swashbucklers in a masque:
> Hat with three plumes, and doublet with six points:
> His cloak behind him over his long sword
> Cocked, like the tail of a strutting Chanticleer:
> Prouder than all the swaggering Tamburlaines
> Hatched out of Gascony! . . .

Shaw says that the annals of Shakspere in the theater are simply the annals of so many actors as Hamlet, as Shylock, as Macbeth, as Lear, and-so-on; and that is more nearly true than most of the things Shaw says about Shakspere. . . . And what is true of the big rôles in Shakspere is equally true of all the test-rôles in drama (including opera), and, so, is true of Cyrano. Mr. Hampden comes out of the inevitable comparisons with unexpected honors. When he resumes his experiments with Shakspere, he will be the better actor for having ventured with Rostand's masterpiece; for, while the character is not "great" as are those of Shakspere, it is exacting, and asks a lot from the player. And Mr. Hampden gives a lot—far more than I, for one, suspected that he had to give. . . .

With his cold mending at a second performance last week, I found in his acting even more to praise than the generous measure disclosed in the handicaps of the Monday opening. I am far from overpraising him when I say that his Cyrano is a better achievement than was that of Coquelin, who, to me, was the most overrated of all the French celebrities in my theater-going. . . .

Mr. Hampden, as both director and player, is farthest from the play in the passage where I looked to him to be nearest: in the lovely, compelling scenes that bring the comedy to an end in the convent-park as Cyrano's devoted duplicity is revealed to Roxane. Here the setting, the lighting, and the direction are of opera—ornate, gaudy, and pastiche—and Mr. Hampden is the self-conscious elocutionist instead of the loyal lover in the final and futile masquerade.

Mr. Nathan and a Chicago Play.

The Current issue of Life, often a comic weekly, is called the Chicago Number, and isn't so good as it might be. Mr. Benchley, who writes about the drama for Life, isn't concerned with Chicago, and confines his feuilletons to Manhattan plays and acting; but what he might have done if he were what is known as there is done by his colleague, George Jean Nathan, in the American Mercury for the new month. . . .

Mr. Nathan has caught up with a play called "Easy Street," shown here late in the Spring and through part of the Summer, and later for nine or ten days in New-York, where the reviewers tried to kid it. Mr. Nathan says:

> "This 'Easy Street' ran for eighteen serious and profitable weeks in Chicago, which is no small part of the humor. The savants of the Western metropolis viewed it as a profound dramatic treatise on marriage,—one in quality of a piece with Pinero's 'Mid-Channel,' Hervieu's 'Enigma,' and Tchekov's 'Iavnov.' . . . They sat enthralled . . .; they wept lustily . . . in what has been called the literary capital of the United States. . . ."

I don't believe that even the author deluded himself as to what the "savants" of Chicago thought of "Easy Street." I know that he thanked me for what he called "laying off the thing"; and I have no doubt that he was moved by like feelings of gratitude in the case of my brother-savants. The play was kept on view here through thirteen weeks,—not eighteen,—by the sneeze-prezzo process, which is a surreptitious and mean and dishonest variant of the open and mean and dishonest device whereby nearly all plays are kept on view for thirteen or for eighteen weeks in New-York. . . . All of which is unimportant, and is set down by way of pointing out that Mr. Nathan is much like the comedians he derides: anything for a laugh.

New Playbills

What Is Due in the Chicago Theaters as Far Ahead as the Managers Know or Care to Tell About.

OPENING TONIGHT:

"White Cargo" in the Cort.—A play about Englishmen in the tropics of West Africa, and what happens to them when they get lonely and neurasthenic. It is by Leon Gordon, an actor, and is to be played here by Conway Wingfield, Miss Gladys Frazin, Richard Stevenson, Frederick Roland, Noël Leslie, Stanley Harrison, Frank Horton, Alan Wallace, Alan Davis, and Donald Lashley. . . . The Messrs. Wingfield, Stevenson, and Roland have acted in the long New-York run of the play.

NEXT SUNDAY NIGHT:

"Expressing Willie" in the Princess.—A comedy by Miss Rachel Crothers that has been successful for some time past in New-York. . . . It is to be acted here by a second company.

"The Potters" in the Great Northern.—J. P. McEvoy's comedy based on his weekly sketches of like name that were for a time a feature of the Sunday issue of THE TRIBUNE.

The Greenwich Village Follies [of 1923] in the Apollo.—Fifth issue of an annual which may be said to have established its trade-mark in Chicago.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 19:

The Ziegfeld Follies in the Illinois.—No. 17 in the series to be sent hither. This is, as to spectacle and pageantry, the issue prepared for 1923 showing in New-York, and, as to skits and travesties, matter out of "Keep Kool!" a revue shown there through last Summer.

For the purposes of record, it is stated that Miss Jane Cowl in "Romeo and Juliet" and other plays, Miss Jeanne Eagels in "Rain," "Cobra," and "The Goose Hangs High," are among the attractions expected to be shown in Chicago, in the near future.

Stage-News

William Farnum, one of the first of the well-known actors to make a profitable reputation in the movies, thinks it about time for him to resume speech in the theater; so, he is mentioned as the star of a new play. . . . His brother, Dustin, seems to have abandoned conspicuous activity.

Arnold Daly is to act in a new play, as yet unnamed, by Homer Miles. . . . Another unfamiliar name among the playwrights is Robert Ritz: its possessor is the author of one called "Alloy."

"His Imported Wife" is the name of a new piece by Crane Wilbur, the actor who wrote "The Monster," shown here last year in the La Salle. . . . "Craig's Wife" is the title of something new by George Kelly, who wrote "The Torch-Bearers" and "The Show-Off." The latter piece is soon to be tried in London.

"YOU can't guess where I'm going tonight," said a friend of mine, a distinguished doctor who sometimes finds good medicine in the theater. I tried and couldn't. He was going to see "Abie's Irish Rose."
"TAKE your stethoscope along, Doctor, and listen at the lungs of that play, and perhaps you," I said, "will be able to tell why it lives so long." For "Abie" was being forty weeks old at the Studebaker and celebrating its one-thousandth (1,000th) performance in New York, and nobody had yet discovered the answer.
"I HAD a perfectly bully time at 'Abie'," he told me a day or two later, "and I think I know what makes it go. The play does all the work. It is as simple and inevitable as a comic strip. It calls for not the slightest effort of your own intelligence. Its suspense, if any, is pleasurable. You know that nobody will be offended, nobody made unhappy. It is an opiate for the mind, a safe one, and I shall prescribe it for patients who think too much and work too much or play golf too much."

Awful Mrs. Eaton Makes Stage Debut

By Burns Mantle.

He can, if they will only let him, take care of himself. Nobody has to look after him or fuss over him. And he can make himself pretty generally useful, if folks only knew it.

But, just the same, he presents the young Minicks with a problem. And after a few months of making the best of it in their five room apartment, they are all pretty much on each other's nerves.

The break comes the day the father Minick undertakes to argue with the spinster lady who is reading a paper at a meeting of young Mrs. Minick's club. She was trying to tell what she thought should be done to make the home more attractive for the growing child. There should be more of the club spirit in it, she insisted. But Father Minick allowed that that was exactly where she was wrong. She might, he said, fill her basement full of billiard tables and her boys—if she had any—would still go around the corner to play billiards.

Independent at 72.

The club lady was terribly put out and Nettie Minick greatly humiliated. That night there was a scene. And shortly thereafter Father Minick packed up his belongings and started over to buy himself a membership in the old men's home, where he had found some pinochle playing cronies. The last we see of him he is on his way to live his own life, and blamed if anybody is going to stop him.

Now this piece, directed by Winthrop Ames, has been so perfectly staged and cast that it becomes photographic in its accuracy. The fourth wall is down, and the Minick apartment is bared to the public gaze. As a result, the audience, absorbed by the naturalness of the play's movement, is disappointed to discover that life can be dull as well as earnest and that, in effect, everything here is just what it seems.

There is no kick, no thrill, no romance. A little jangling, a touch of sentiment, and a lot of carefully checked detail. If "Minick" misses success, which I do not think it will, it will be due to its perfections.

O. P. Heggie plays the old man with not too much fussiness and Phyllis Povah is particularly good as the wife.

"Lazy Bones" Is Typical.

A couple of blocks from "Minick" is a new Owen Davis play called "Lazy Bones." This one is theatrical and full of the gentle bunk most folk love in the theater. The sort of thing that has made for the success of every popular comedy drama from the days of "Rip Van Winkle" to those of "Lightnin'." There is never a moment of it that the story seems at all plausible. And yet there are few moments of it that are not entertaining.

Lazy Bones is a gentle ne'er do well with a chronic aversion to work, light or heavy. Back from a fishing trip, he brings a month old baby in a market basket. He found it, he says, among the birch trees up White creek way. It was a-meowin' kinda and he thought he'd better bring it home.

The neighbors don't believe Lazy Bones. He knows who that baby belongs to, they intimate, and the chances are better than even that he is its father. Pharaoh's daughter probably had some such neighborhood trouble the day she found the infant Moses.

But Lazy Bones, whose real name is Steve Tuttle, sticks to his story, loses his sweetheart as a result, and helps his mother rear the orphan child to an 18 year old woman.

Truth of her parentage is revealed. She was the daughter of one of the town girls who had gone to Boston to study music, put in some time studying life between classes, and, when her baby was born, wrote Steve to meet her at the junction, take the child, and swear he found it. Which he did.

Now he discovers that, at 18, his ward is a charming young woman, and when she tells him that, he being the only man person she has ever loved all her life, and, if he doesn't mind, she would like to go on loving him as his wife, you could knock him over with a feather without effort.

The characterization in "Lazy Bones" is excellent. George Abbott, an unaffected player, who has been playing around here a good deal of late, last season in "Hell-Bent" and the season before that in "Zander the Great," has the name part, and plays it most sympathetically. Little Martha Bryan Allen is the found baby grown tall, and an excellent choice for the part. Amelia Gardner and Elizabeth Patterson furnish two small town mother types, and Beth Merrill and Leona Hogarth are well cast.

Marie Odile Again.

The unexpected baby figured in another of the plays last week. This one is called "The Little Angel," and the heroine is a 17 year old innocent who still believes in storks as baby agents and who doesn't know enough not to swoon in the arms of a strange young baron at her first ball.

She arrives home remembering only that the baron was nice and she was dizzy. But eight weeks later when her uncle, the doctor, is called to make what he can of surprising symptoms, he discovers that her condition is at least interesting.

What to do then? Her spinster aunt knows enough of the world to realize that the baron should be made to marry the girl, and sends him word to that effect. The baron, insisting that the young woman's assumed innocence was merely a trap to ensnare him, and that under the circumstances he had done nothing any courteous member of his sex would not have felt called upon to do, balks at the suggestion—until he meets again the little angel he had met so briefly at the ball.

He is convinced then that he really had been unfair to her, and is finally reduced to pleading that she will become his wife. All of which works in well with the aunt's schemes. A baron in the family is worth having, even though a threatened scandal brought him there.

A flower-like creature from Texas named Mildred MacLeod plays the Marie Odile rôle with enough sweetness to relieve it of its more obvious indelicacies. But it is pretty embarrassing at best. Obstetrical discussions may be fearfully funny at a nursing home. I don't think much of them in the theater. Clare Eames plays the aunt.

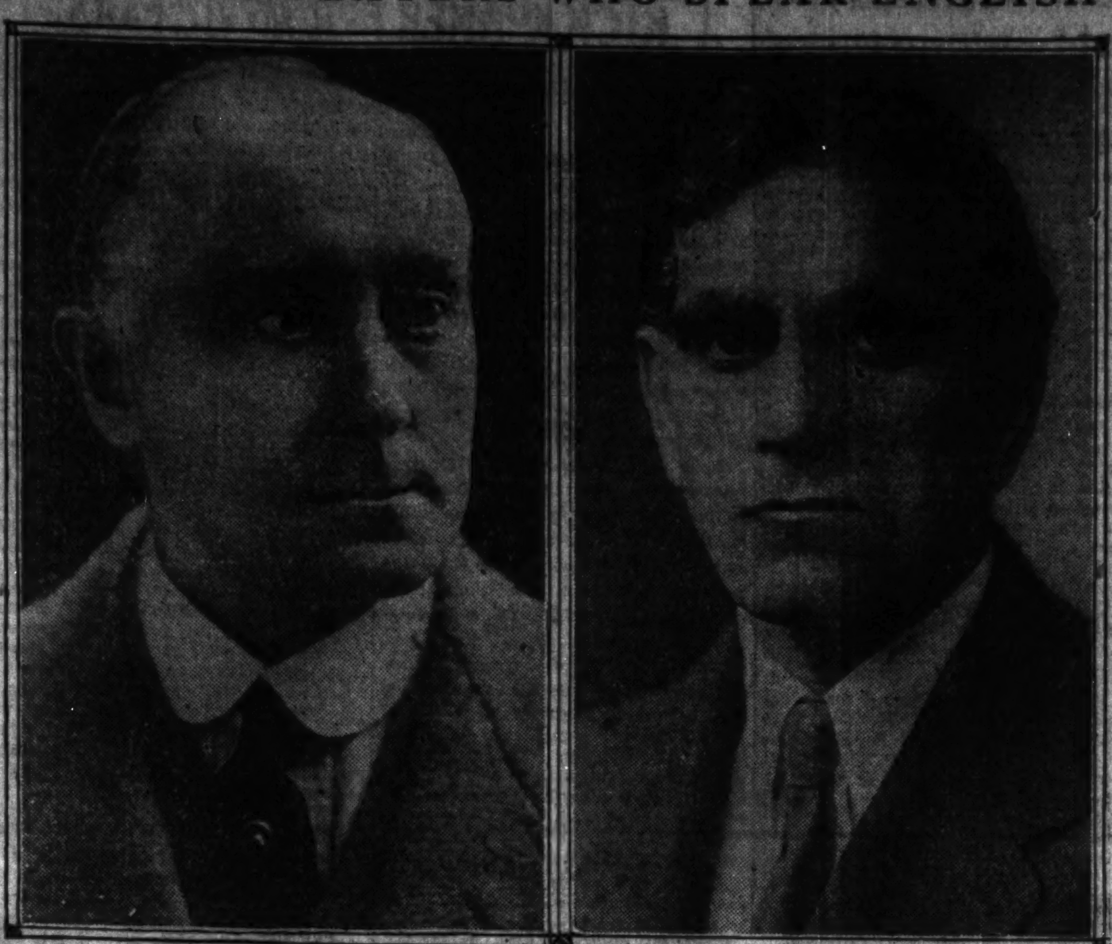
ENGLISH PLAYERS WHO SPEAK ENGLISH



HALLIWELL HOBBES BALIOL HOLLOWAY

NEW-COMERS in Chicago are the actors pictured here; and they are welcome! They are among the players in town who are exemplifying how the English language can properly be uttered in the traffics and the excitements of the stage. They learned how by acting in Shakspere, in whose works both have played many parts. . . .

Mr. Hobbes is to be seen and heard as Father Hyacinth, the prince turned priest, in "The Swan," and is one of the numerous reasons for enjoying that comedy and its delectable performance in the Blackstone. Like the Messrs. Owen and Rathbone, also of the cast, he has been a Bensonian. He has been with Miss Ellen Terry, with Mrs. Campbell, with the late Lewis Waller, and in many a distinguished cast in London.

Mr. Holloway, too, has acted with Benson, and with other English stars devoted to Shakspere. He is admired in the annual festival at Stratford-on-Avon for his acting as Richard III, Falstaff, Shylock, Bottom, and Charles Surface. . . . His immediate business in Chicago is acting De Guiche in Mr. Hampden's good revival of "Cyrano de Bergerac"; and he is perfect in the rôle. . . . Later in the season, he is to be Iago to Mr. Hampden's Othello.

News of the Stage

James Savo, the comic knockabout of "Vogues and Frolics," will make the announcements at this afternoon's miscellaneous performance in the Studebaker for the benefit of the Chicago Junior School. . . . And Miss Odette Myrtil, who heads the cast of "Vogues and Frolics," is in private life the wife of an ex-Chicagoan, Bob Adams: he was a popular and enterprising entertainer in the night-life cabarets of the town back when Busse was Mayor. As one of the Two Bobs, he has for many years now been an idolized performer in the London music-halls and in the revues staged there.

Miss Ethel Barrymore is said by some of the reviewers to be at her best in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray"; and the information is not incredible. . . . The play is not Pinero's best; but it is easily the most durable of his non-comic works.

As to John Barrymore, he appears to be without plans. . . . Nothing more is heard of his acting in a play about Poe; and there is talk of his not acting at all this season in the United States, but of again making a try to get a theater in London, whither he went last Spring in the hope of acting Hamlet before Summer.

Gallagher and Shean, finding that "In Dutch" isn't quite ready for either metropolis, are keeping it in the minor places until they can have repairs made. . . . Al Jolson's new one is to be called "Big Boy": this is the piece in which he is to be a hanger-on of the big race-tracks.

"Annie" is the title whereunder, it has been decided, the tuned-up version of Clare Kummer's "Good Gracious, Annabelle!" will be performed by Miss Billie Burke, Ernest Truex, and other somebodies assembled by Mr. Ziegfeld for the ceremony of restoring Mrs. Ziegfeld to her restless public. . . . For a time, the piece was paragraphed as "Annabelle," which is not a bad title, as titles go where plays with songs are concerned.

Miss Kummer has made the new version of "Come Out of the Kitchen," wherein Miss Ruth Chatterton will take up her old rôle with song-and-dance embellishments. . . . "The Other Girl," which was "The Town Clown" in Chicago, is through in New-York, after three or four weeks, and is to be toured with Eddie Buzzell, who was in it here, and Miss Helen Ford as the stars.

A cablegram from the Paris office of The Tribune explains that the real reason Miss Raquel Meller is not coming here to perform is not illness, as was given out by Mr. Ziegfeld in announcing a "postponement" of her arrival, but resentment at being tossed about from one manager to another. She says that her contract for the United States was with Charles B. Cochran, the London producer whose bankruptcy was recently announced in The Tribune. He turned it over to the Messrs. Selwyn, who in turn disposed of it to Mr. Ziegfeld.

"Hassan," of which big things were expected in this country because of its long run in London, is a complete loss: the play was carted out of a New-York theater after last night's performance and tossed into the more tempestuous of the two rivers. . . . The reviewers complained that it was wearisome as drama and old-timey as spectacle.

Clayton Hamilton, who writes and talks a great deal of the theater without knowing much about it, is to serve as precursor of Mrs. Fiske's impending tour in "The Rivals." His title will be that of "educator"; and his job will be to work up mass-meetings of persons interested in classic drama and then talk to them about such matters, with an occasional mention of "The Rivals."

Report from London is that "The Nervous Wreck" is liked there, the reviewers calling it rough, American, and funny. . . . The parts acted in Chicago by Taylor Holmes and Miss Vivian Tobin are acted there by, respectively, Charles Lawrence, whom we don't seem able to place, and Miss Mary Duncan, a good-looking soubrette who has been here in "Under False Pretenses" and "New Toys."

"The Charm-School," a comedy of some seasons back, has been made into a piece with music; and Lynne Overman, who goes into and out of many a play, and Miss June Walker are to head the cast. She was here two years ago in "Six-Cylinder Love," and for a week or so last season in "The Nervous Wreck."

Joseph Leblang, New-York's successful peddler of cut-rate tickets, is to be subjected to rivalry there. . . . Not only has he made a fortune in his business: he is of such importance in the community that the best of the revues on view there, the Grand-Street Follies, devotes an interlude to him, calling it "The Shewing-Up of Joe Leblanco." And the delightful part of it is that the audiences who go to the Grand-Street Follies know all about Shaw's "The Shewing-Up of Blanco Posnet."

Miss Janet Beecher, Miss Beryl Mercer, Bruce McRae, and Ernest Cossart are well-knowns engaged for a play named "A Steam Roller," by Laurence Eyre, whose "The Merry Wives of Gotham" was nearly a success last season, when it had Miss Grace George and Miss Laura Hope Crews as co-stars.

"Maggie" is the name of a play by Dan Mullally in which Miss Helen MacKellar, who was here in "The Storm," will star. . . . The play, it seems, had a long-ago try-out with Miss Winifred Lenihan in the principal part. Now that the author's "Conscience" is winning some attention in New-York, the other piece is regarded as worth resuscitation.

An unknown, Miss Lillian Foster, is highly praised by the New-York critics for her acting in "Conscience." . . . Alan Dale, a comic critic before whom actors and playwrights and managers were wont to cringe, calls her "another Duse." That would be a fine compliment if Alan Dale knew anything about Duse or about acting.

London is again showing interest in old-fashioned variety-bills, after some years in which the revue took the place of that form of entertainment; and a result is that attractive contracts for appearances there are being offered to American performers in the two-a-day. . . . Miss Nora Bayes, who has been immensely successful there in recent weeks, is coming back.

Joe Jackson, the comic cyclist of the varieties, is to make use of his voice in a new "turn." . . . Miss Martha Hedman, for a time looked upon by the late Charles Frohman as an actress of importance, is in the two-a-day in a sketch called "You Can't Beat Them!"

Miss Florence Reed, who tried the play out last season in Minneapolis, is soon to appear in New-York in "Ashes," by Reginald Goode, an actor. . . . Carlton Miles, who writes about plays for the Minneapolis Journal, lauded the work warmly.

BLACKS UP.

MISS GLADYS FRAZIN

She is in "White Cargo," and the only woman of the cast. Her duty therein is to act the rôle of Tondeleyo, a native siren of Africa's west coast whose charms have accounted for the downfall of a number of decent Englishmen in official life. . . . Nothing as to Miss Frazin's antecedent rôles is available as this brief item of identification is sent whizzing to press.

Story & Clark "Every Child a Piano Player Campaign"

FREE Piano Lessons

Every Mother wants her child to receive a musical education. Possibly you have felt that you could not afford the necessary expense incurred for taking these lessons in the past. Story & Clark have perfected a plan that eliminates this obstacle. This company now offers FREE lessons to any child whose parents take advantage of this wonderful offer. Children can start at once.

THESE lessons are not of the usual mail order or correspondence class, but are individual lessons, given to your child, in your own home, by a skilled teacher.

A musical education is no longer considered a luxury. It is a necessary part of a child's education. Not only is the knowledge of music a source of never ending pleasure in future years, but it puts the stamp of refinement on those who attain this talent.

Only $10.00 DOWN Brings this Beautiful Piano to Your Own Home, with Cabinet Bench, Bench Cushion, and 24 Music Rolls; FREE

An opportunity to obtain these lessons for your child is offered absolutely FREE by Story & Clark. There are no doubt many who would take advantage of this offer who now have no piano in their home. Story & Clark have made arrangements to place a beautiful Hampton Player in your home for only $10.00.

This small amount will be put to your credit as first payment. The balance can be paid on easy terms. This will enable your child to take these lessons FREE while you pay for the remarkable instrument almost as you please. This also makes it possible for you to enjoy the music from a player piano in your own home.

Take advantage of this offer. Start your child on the road to a musical education. You assume no obligations for these lessons. Simply call at our store with your child and learn full details of our plan. But don't wait. Start NOW. Your child will thank you in later years. Remember, it is FREE—No cost to YOU.

September's Best Films in Review

By Roberta Nangle.

"THE CITY THAT NEVER SLEEPS" puts us wise to the vices of little old New York, before and after the Volstead decree. Louise Dresser gives a splendid portrayal of Mother O'Day, a capable and handsome parent, who is a relief from the usual prayerful, tottering, and white haired screen mother.

"IN HOLLYWOOD WITH POTASH & PERLMUTTER"—Well—when Abe and Mawruss left the cloak and suit business to make movies—what could you expect? You're right. It would make the most melancholy mortal laugh loudly and long.

Ask Me! Ask Me!

MARY ELLEN: Adolph Menjou is not a foreigner. He was born in Pittsburgh, and educated at Culver Military academy and Cornell university. Yes, he is married.

JOYCE: Georges Siegmann played the part of Danton in "Scaramouche." Ernest Torrence was the father of Glen Hunter in "West of the Water Tower." Write again.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Several Things to Say.

Dear Miss Tinée: The enclosed is supposed to be a thesis on whether movie actors should be actors or just types. I know you will disagree with me—women always do—but there will have to be some logic to this movie game somewhere.

If you promise to publish nothing I say I will tell you confidentially why some movies fail. It's worth knowing, isn't it? But judgment in this case is based on a fundamental truth which you will recognize.

Frankly, did you ever stop to think how little real ability to act is essential in the movies? With one or two exceptions, those who are the most successful in the movies simply look the part instead of acting it. When they fail to look the part, even though they can act, the result is sad.

Take "Monsieur Beaucaire." Isn't it terrible? Rudolph has neither charm nor the ability to act. Movie directors usually pick types for unimportant parts that are startling in their correctness. Why do they fail so miserably when they pick leads?

In "Monsieur Beaucaire" it takes the charm and ability of a Ramon Novarro to do it justice. I saw the show in Philadelphia last night and 75 per cent of the attendants were Italians. They all turned out to see the former Italian stable boy pose as a prince of the royal blood.

But this letter is not an attack on Rudolph Valentino—it deals with a great fundamental which I believe you appreciate. Isn't it a crime to murder good stories by picking the wrong type of player?

Take Bebe Daniels in this same show. Does she look like a princess. SHE DOES NOT. It requires an Enid Bennett or a Betty Blythe to look the part and looking the part is the essential thing in the movies.

Take Mary Johnson's "To Have and to Hold." It's the greatest novel of the century. Some day it will be recognized as a classic. But while Bert Lytell is a good actor can you honestly imagine him as the big, proud Virginia planter who treated his brother's wife so nobly? A part like this requires a Milton Sills.

I again repeat that acting is only incidental in the movies. The big thing is to be able to look the part.

When producers use the same intelligence in selecting the leading characters as they display now in picking types for the secondary or character parts, the movies will appeal to more people than they do today.

CLAUDE DE BARRY.

P. S. If you want it I will send you a message on photoplays or scenarios. I can tell you why most of them are fundamentally wrong if you want to know. I dare you to come in and learn my real name.

[Editor's Note.—Ah! Be my man of mystery!]

Three Cheers!

Dear Miss Tinée: At last! The polished, sophisticated, persuasive Adolph Menjou has come into his own! Artist immortale! The man who "knows life is a game and plays all the moves so cleverly."

I first noticed Mr. Menjou's work as the sympathetic, encouraging doctor in "The Sheik," and although his part was not tremendously important, he made an everlasting impression upon me. His role in "For Sale" as the designing financier was extremely well played, I thought. As the hateful husband in "The Marriage Cheat," he was unsurpassable. Likewise his roles in "Sinners in Silk," "Broadway After Dark," and the picture in which he played with Pola Negri (I have forgotten the name) were commendable, but—his role in "Broken Barriers" copped the berries (if I may borrow an exclusive expression of Ring Lardner). Doubtlessly that rôle was the best part he ahs ever played, theoretically speaking, of course.

Although I admired him always, there was that dissatisfaction at the ending of his pictures. In other words, he always played the relentless, cruel, villain. But, in "Broken Barriers" he told the girl who loved not wisely but too well that he was sorry. And that made me feel so good. Didn't you feel a certain relief, too, or—don't you care for him.

I should love to be able to tell Mr. Menjou how much we Chicagoans appreciate him, but there is that doubt of his ever receiving a letter that a fan might send him.

Anyway, I like him and am anticipating seeing "Open All Night."

In closing, I want to toast Adolph Menjou, James Kirkwood, Willard Louis, John Barrymore, Ernest Torrence, Raymond Griffith, Thomas Meighan, Leatrice Joy, Norma Shearer, Anna Q. Nilsson, Irene Rich, Betty Compson, Norma Talmadge, Cecil B. De Mille, and Mae Tinée. ELEANOR.

[Editor's Note: H'ray!]

Done to Death.

Dear Miss Tinée: Of all punk pictures "Single Wives" is one of the worst.

The busy man of affairs and his neglected wife have been done to death. There is practically no plot to this picture, and, with another done to death ending, it was so ridiculous and tiresome that many walked out in disgust.

O for a producer with an original story! R. A. D.

A Lesson, 'Twould Seem.

Dear Mae Tinée: May I make the following comment? Everyone of high school age and beyond should make an effort to see "Wine of Youth." They will think, for a while at least, of those things to which much thought should be given. J. P.

KICK KORNER FOR MOVIE FANS

Its Object—Objection

Given the Floor.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you permit me to rave and rant a bit? Thanks, I will.

My kick is indeed a monumental one, nothing less than that the present condition of the movie world is hopeless. I know that's an awful indictment, but it has not been arrived at suddenly or without sympathy for the invalid. Yes, I have watched the occasional rallyings of moviedom with joy and hope—foolish hope—only to be disillusioned by the inevitable relapses.

Some months ago one of Chicago's leading movie magnates asked for suggestions on how the pictures could be bettered. I expressed myself at length in a letter more polite than this one, and received a nice sympathetic letter in return telling me how valuable my suggestions were. "Ha!" said I in my simplicity and conceit, "they have at last seen the light and all will soon be well with the movies."

Alas, what a comedown. What a deluge of stupidity. What impossible overworked plots, the end of which is evident after the first five minutes, have been dished up to us since. What a mania for cheap and ineffectual moralizing, for slushy subtitles, and for unadulterated hokum.

How rarely can one see pictures in which one stops and says, "Why this is real—this is the way people do act under such circumstances."

We saw it in "The Woman of Paris," but where else since? When they attempt to entice intelligent people into the movie dens with such stuff as this: "Strange—she found her soul in the revels of millionaires on their skyscraper studios 500 feet above Broadway." Blah!

Why must these fancied revels of the rich play so large a part in our movies? They are treated neither with realism, nor idealism, nor satire. Why must the doll faced heroine always be attacked by a dastardly villain and invariably saved in the nick of time by the pretty faced hero? Why do the movies still cling to a prudishness that the stage and literature have lost? The answer to all this seems quite simple to me now. The greater part of the movie fans, no matter what their ages, have the minds of children. They are absolutely incapable of appreciating either the beauty of stark realism or the thrill of pure fantasy. Although they would not admit it, they really want to see what they have seen before.

Well, you see, I have shifted most of the responsibility from the producers to the fans. If this is true, the future of the movies as now organized looks dark. The only solution I can see is for some producer who is interested in more than profits to start two kinds of show houses, one for those who want the best and one for—the others.

If you have courage to wade through this letter, you deserve my thanks; if you have courage to print it, you deserve a medal! CALIGARI.

[Editor's Note: Medal, please!]

The "Female" Impossible.

Dear Miss Tinée: This, I believe, is the writer's first kick, and I wish to say it is a real one!

"The Female" is certainly the most impossible picture I have ever seen. Is there any one, I wonder, who was pleased with this picture? I, for one, was simply disgusted with it, and, judging from the conversation which took place in the row of seats behind me while seeing the above, they were none too well pleased with it.

What is wrong with Betty Compson, anyway? If her performance in "The Female" is called acting, then I give up. After seeing her work in the above film I realize how good she was in "The Miracle Man" and, believe me, she will have to do some mighty good work to keep her place on the screen after her terrible work in "The Female." May we be protected from such pictures hereafter. EIGHTEEN.

The Real Inside Dope on the Movie Stars

Flugrath Sisters Climbed to Top Despite Hard Luck

By Julia Harpman.

HOLLYWOOD calls them the "Hard Luck Sisters" Viola Dana and Shirley Mason, twins of fortune and misfortune. Both were endowed with beauty, talent, and the determination to succeed. They are among the best known and richest of the stars, each with a great fan following. They have been treated alike by success and they have been hurt similarly by tragedy. Each was widowed in her youth, their lives running parallel even to the loss of their husbands.

Their real name is Flugrath, a cumbersome name which they were clever enough to realize would not fit easily into electrics. So they changed it for professional purposes. Each worked independently of the other, and Shirley, the younger (whose name is Leonie), had no desire to capitalize her relationship to Viola, so she took a different name from that used on the screen by her sister.

There is a third Flugrath sister, Edna, who did not change her name. She has been recognized as a star in England for years and she is better known in that country than here, although she has played several character parts in Hollywood since her recent arrival there.

Pride of Their Parents

The Flugrath sisters were born in Brooklyn. Their father, Emil Flugrath, was a printer, who felt certain that his daughters were the loveliest ever born. Their mother, delighting in the daintiness of the tiny girls, had her daughters taught dancing almost as soon as they could walk.

Edna, the eldest, and Viola danced together at private entertainments around New York and Brooklyn. They did team work at club affairs and when Viola was 5 years old she made her debut on the stage. Her sisters also were on the stage for a while.

Viola's first work in pictures was at the age of 11. She worked with Edison under her own name but she soon saw the folly of keeping a name that was too hard for the average fan to spell. So she became Viola Dana and made film history by being one of the first actresses ever raised to stardom.

Viola was only 14 when she starred in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." Her success in the movie world naturally made it easy for her younger sister to gain a firm foothold on the ladder of fame. Shirley began work in the films when she was 13. She resembles Viola in her daintiness, vivacity, charm, and beauty. Their older sister achieved her success in England. She was in pictures there for ten years.

Viola is the smallest star in movieland. She measures one inch less than five feet and weighs exactly 100 pounds. The dark lashes which curl about her green eyes are renowned as the longest possessed by any star. Shirley is 5 feet tall and weighs 97 pounds.

Viola married John Collins, a director, when she was 16. And Shirley married a friend of Collins. Her husband was Bernard Durning, also a director.

* *

Good Business Women.

Neither Viola nor Shirley had many difficulties to overcome in their professional lives.

Their mother made their dresses when they were little dancing girls on the stage, before they had earned enough to buy expensive costumes. Later, when she knew they had succeeded in the way she had hoped they would, she encouraged them by coming daily to the studios, where she watched them rehearse and criticized their work in a way which only she, who knew them best, could do. She died not long ago and after her death Mr. Flugrath went to live with Shirley.

Viola's husband died during the influenza epidemic and Shirley's husband died last year, just a few weeks after the death of her mother.

Both Viola and Shirley are splendid business women. They earn a great deal of money and they do not spend it on wild parties and ropes of jewels. True, they have their handsome homes, beautiful clothes and their own cars. But their money is well invested and is bringing them in regular incomes.

Viola owns a garage, a large tract of real estate, and a number of municipal bonds. She is reputed to be one of the wealthiest of the movie stars. She is a good swimmer and can pilot an airplane. Occasionally she drives her car, but she'd rather not, she says, because she has gone into a ditch too many times to enjoy the practice.

She still loves to dance, so she never has a double for dancing parts in her pictures. She is a great prize fight fan, and knows much about the sport. For a time she was seen at all the prize fights around Hollywood with Frankie Grandetta, a prize fighter from Seattle. Frankie and Viola were also partners at several dances attended by the movie colony, and it was whispered that they were engaged.

Viola went to see Frankie fight at one of the Friday night bouts at the Hollywood stadium, and she found that it was quite different to be a fighter's girl at a dance and to be very same thing when he was in the ring. For Frankie broke all the rules of fiction and was badly whipped during the four rounds he managed to last with his little Filipino opponent. And Viola bowed her head in her slender arms and wept as Frankie, being supported from the ring, murmured through his swollen lips: "Don't let Vi see me!"

Misunderstandings.

Viola's friendly nature has brought her discomfort at times, but she has rebounded, like a flower in the rain, to good fellowship and understanding.

There was the unfortunate misunderstanding regarding the friendship of Viola and Dick Stewart, vaudeville actor. Mrs. Stewart, Dick's wife, who lived in New York, was reported to be contemplating suit against the tiny star. The report, said Viola, was absurd.

Dick and she were on the same bill at a Kansas City theater while Viola was making a personal appearance tour, and naturally they became acquainted.

"Dick used to entertain mother and me with his antics on a trick saxophone," said Viola. "He seemed to be just a kid and I never asked him if he were married. I received several letters from him, and I wrote to him a few times. I did not say a thing in the letters that I would be ashamed of any one reading. Evidently he showed the letters around and his wife became jealous."

Like a thousand other such reports, nothing ever came of the suit. And Viola, fortunately, didn't lose any beauty sleep about it. She is a joyous little person and never seems to tire, although she works harder than most stars. Recently I watched her rehearse a single scene in "Along Came Ruth" ten times, and she seemed as fresh after the last performance as at the first. In spite of her slight form she has an abundance of physical endurance.

The most lasting recent affair of Viola's young heart is that with Maurice Lefty Flynn, who was Yale's gridiron star not so long ago. Lefty and Viola were constant companions when they both were working on the old Metro lot. Then there was a period of coolness between them, due perhaps to the alert presence of Mrs. Flynn.

Now it's reported that Lefty is getting a divorce, and he and Viola are friendly enough to be caught in the persistent engagement reports of Hollywood. They recently played together in "Open All Night."

Miss Dana has completed eight pictures during the last year, which is said to set a record for a star. She was chosen to play opposite Glenn Hunter in "Merton of the Movies."

Shirley Mason made her first big hit in pictures as the boy Jim in "Treasure Island." She is now 24, two years younger than Viola. She has starred with Edison, Famous Players, Paramount, and Fox.

She was once seen frequently with Robert Dean Agnew, who is known as Bobby in Hollywood.

Shirley Engaged.

Her most recent suitor, however, is Harlan Fengler, the 24 year old boy wonder of the auto racing game. Shirley and Fengler announced their engagement early this summer, but it is said that the marriage is not to take place for about a year. Shirley, seemingly, is giving Harlan time to get over his racing fever.

Profiting by her sister's experiences in business, Edna Flugrath recently opened a beauty parlor on Hollywood boulevard, which is moviedom's main street. Not much goes on in Hollywood that isn't discussed during waves and clips and manicures at Edna's shop. There one can be amused by the latest rumored engagement of Charlie Chaplin—all Hollywood does about such reports is to laugh nowadays—one may learn which has been the newest star to have her face lifted and can speculate as to how soon Connie Talmadge will again trip to the altar.

You know, girls, how conducive to confidences is a beauty parlor. And how expensive! How profitable, says Edna Flugrath.

THE FLUGRATH SISTERS—SHIRLEY, EDNA, AND VIOLA.

Evil Spell Follows Petite Sisters

The successful movie careers of the petite Flugrath sisters, Viola Dana and Shirley Mason, have run exactly opposite to the tragedy of their lives. Excellent business women and accomplished stars, a malignant fate seems to direct their romances. Both lost their husbands when young. Misfortune has pursued every man in whom Viola has been interested.

Now both are reported engaged to marry, and Hollywood is waiting to see if the evil spell has been broken.

Gay Days for Stars on Foreign Shores

By Grace Kingsley.

many needed youth and new faces."

"I must tell you a joke on us. Our first luncheon at the hotel in Berlin we had on a charming balcony overlooking a lovely garden—we ordered a light lunch of lobster and lettuce and a dainty dessert. Our bill was $14 gold, and we had been told that everything was cheap. It seems lobster has a gold tax on it, so it and caviar are the most expensive foods we could have ordered. Fortunately we had omitted the caviar.

"Instead of gaining weight on German food, the fact of the matter is I have lost, much to my distress, and may go to a milk farm in Devonshire for a week or so. Most any one needs that or a slow boat home in order to get collected after Paris. These people who come home exhausted after a vacation in Europe, how would they feel after doing a couple of pictures and a vacation at the same time?

"I saw Pauline Garon in Paris and then later in Berlin, where she was to start a picture soon after I left. We had a great time comparing Paris purchases. She liked a hat of mine and vice versa, so the two of us are dashing about Europe in each other's hats now."

Miss Johnston has gone to Constantinople to make a picture. Think of the romance of that!

She sailed on Oct. 1—or at least a cablegram received by friends of hers in Hollywood a week ago stated that she meant to leave London on that day for the far east. The picture she will make is for a London firm.

Plantation Club Popular.

The Plantation club at Culver City seems popular these days, and several parties were given there the other evening. Sunday night is the favorite night for movie folk. You dress, if you please, but there's nothing compulsory about it.

Vola Vale was there with her husband, from whom she is separated, Albert Russell, the director.

She said: "We're awfully good friends now, and I'm having the best time with him tonight! You have no idea what good friends you can be with your husband until you separate from him and just see him once in a while."

Mae Murray is at home, but she wasn't with Robert Leonard and a big party who were dining there. Bob was dancing most of the evening with a girl dressed in black, a nice dancer.

Jimmie Adams and Virginia Warwick were there as much like two love birds as ever, and Miss Warwick looked lovely in an orchid chiffon dinner dress.

$12 Eyeglasses, 5.75

—Seventh Floor—State Street—

Many people do not have their eyes examined for fear that glasses will be prescribed. To those people we say,

The wearing of glasses when needed, frequently strengthens the muscles of the eyes and makes it unnecessary to wear glasses later on in life, whereas if neglected, small eye defects may develop into permanent injuries.

Tomorrow we offer best quality Toric lenses, for distance or reading, in eyeglass or spectacle style; many style frames to select from; fitted to your eyes by one of our registered specialists. The same kind that you pay $12.00 for elsewhere, here complete, service, lenses, frame and case 5.75

The October Sale of Silks Will Gain Added Impetus Tomorrow With These Eight Incomparable Offerings

Second Floor—State Street

The Silks that sway the Fashion world, the silks that are enthroned for the Autumn in every atelier and smart dressmaking shop in Paris, are gathered in glorious ensemble for our October Sale of Silks—which enters into its second successful week tomorrow, and tomorrow offers these eight incomparable items as further proof that it is America's Silk classic.

Satin Canton crepe and satin crepes, the two most popular silks for fall and winter wear, in fact they are endorsed by all well dressed women. Exceptionally fine quality, very heavy, yet beautifully soft and clinging; high lustrous satin face, heavy crepy back; possessing a certain richness all their own. 39 inches wide. In Autumn's newest colors, comprising latest shades appropriate for street wear and evening gowns. Worth $5.00, tomorrow, special for the October Sale of Silks at, yard 3.45

Famous Nemolastik Silk Coated Rubber Reducing Girdles

Third Floor—Dearborn Street

The most effective rubber reducing girdle today is the Nemolastik, because of its many new features and the trim, smart lines it immediately gives to the figure. It is made of pure Para gum rubber, coated with fine Italian silk on both sides, so that no rubber comes in direct contact with the flesh.

Guaranteed Not to Rip or Tear

It makes the figure permanently smaller and actually lighter in weight, molds the figure into graceful, stylish lines, is adjustable to the decreasing size of the figure, doesn't become shapeless after being worn a few times, doesn't allow the abdominal muscles to sag, and stimulates the circulation by removing excess fat, at.......... 10.75

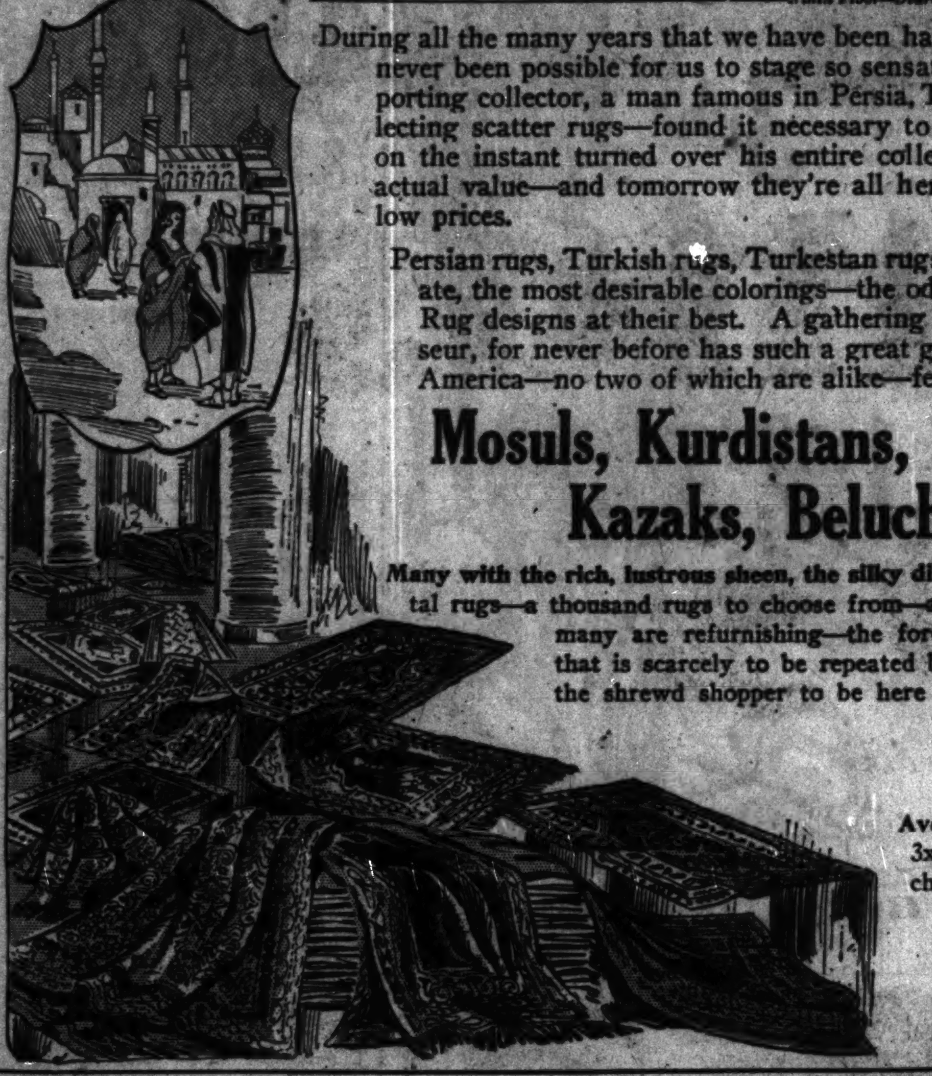
A Thousand Genuine Rich Oriental Scatter Rugs in Two Immense Groups at Almost Unbelievably Low Prices

Ninth Floor—Dearborn Street



During all the many years that we have been having Oriental Rug Sales it has seemingly never been possible for us to stage so sensational an event as this—the stock of an importing collector, a man famous in Persia, Turkey, and Turkestan for his hobby of collecting scatter rugs—found it necessary to suddenly have to return to Persia and so on the instant turned over his entire collection, over a thousand rugs at about half actual value—and tomorrow they're all here for you to choose from at two exceedingly low prices.

Persian rugs, Turkish rugs, Turkestan rugs—the choicest weaves, too many to enumerate, the most desirable colorings—the oddest, most unique patterns—the Oriental Rug designs at their best. A gathering that will win the admiration of the connoisseur, for never before has such a great gathering of Scatter Rugs been shown in America—no two of which are alike—featuring the distinctive ideas to be found in

Mosuls, Kurdistans, Afshiraz, Hamadans, Kazaks, Beluchistan, Karadja

Many with the rich, lustrous sheen, the silky distinctiveness to be found only in the true oriental rugs—a thousand rugs to choose from—a thousand ideas—and at a time, too, when so many are refurnishing—the foresighted Yule shopper will find this an event that is scarcely to be repeated before the Chistmas holidays—a clarion call to the shrewd shopper to be here promptly tomorrow.

Coming Events Cast Preludial Shadows

By Edward Moore.

[illegible] attention. In case you are interested, Miss Thornton plans to sing a group of mostly novel French songs, works by Mr. Hagerman and Frank Bridge, and two arias from Puccini's "Manon Lescaut." Mr. Lappas will sing in French, English, and Italian; also two Greek songs and a seldom heard aria from Reyer's opera, "Sigurd."

The First Symphony Program.

Mr. Stock's announcement on the first concert of the orchestral season is brief but effective. It follows the lines of the statement sent out a few weeks ago, and contains these works: Wagner's Overture to "Rienzi"; César Franck's Symphony in D minor; "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," by Richard Strauss; Borodin's "Sketch of the Steppes of Central Asia"; and Mr. Stock's own "March and Hymn to Democracy," which there is a certain amount of reason for believing has little or no connection with the Democratic party.

Being a first program, the novelties and soloists will not begin to put in an appearance for a few weeks. At the same time, this is a gorgeous program. And it will be played by a gorgeous organization.

A Possible Solution.

Mr. Stock sees in the present developing interest in jazz orchestras a possible solution of a problem that seriously concerns their elder and larger relations, the symphony orchestras. The problem is the great size of the symphony orchestras and their ever increasing cost. The solution is an orchestra of some twenty-five players, with some of the members able and willing, as in jazz, to double on different instruments.

This, he says, will cut the cost greatly and give composers all the chance to experiment in tone color that they desire. An orchestra of Mozartean proportions though not of Mozartean character will be the ideal. Composers who have not begun to experiment with the smaller organization will fall in line, and consequently get a better chance to have their works produced. A good plan all around, he believes.

Mr. Stock reports that the Salzburg chamber music festival looked on the surface as though political quite as much as musical questions had a hand in the selection of the programs. No American works were played; there were three English, four Italian, one German, and the rest, up to about twenty-five, came from various nations of central Europe.

SHE SINGS

RENEE THORNTON.

She will perform two functions at Orchestra hall on Tuesday night: her normal one, that of being a gifted and gracious singer, and the special one of helping to open the musical season. The event, by the way, is for an excellent charity.

Music Notes

Miss May A. Strong of Evanston is the winner in the twenty-second annual composers' competition of the Chicago Madrigal club, having been awarded first place for her setting of the poem, "May Comes Laughing," by Henrietta Jewett Keith of Minneapolis. This is the third time that the prize has been won by a woman, Frances McCollin of Philadelphia having been the winner twice previously. The judges were Walter Spry, Allen Spencer, and D. A. Clippinger, conductor of the club. The composition will be sung at the club's concert, March 26, 1925.

The Sunday Evening club will begin its season at Orchestra hall tonight with a choir of 100 voices and a quartet of soloists consisting of Mabel Sharp Herdien, Rose Lutiger Gannon, John B. Miller, and Louis Kreidler. Edgar A. Nelson is the conductor and Stanley Martin the organist. The Imperial Male quartet will also take part tonight.

The Mendelssohn club announces three concerts to be sung under the direction of Harrison M. Wild at Orchestra hall, Dec. 18, Feb. 19, and April 16. The soloists in their respective order will be John Barnes Wells, tenor; Louise Harrison Slade, contralto, and Alice Gentle, mezzo-soprano.

Plans are under way to erect tablets as markers for the places in Spillville, Ia., where Anton Dvorak lived when he composed the well known "Humoresque" and the almost equally famous symphony, "From the New World." The movement is in the hands of the Iowa Conservation association, which is charging itself with the preservation of historic spots in that state.

The National Federation of Music clubs sends word of its biennial contest for American trained musicians under 30 years old. State and district competitions will be held, with the final at the federation's convention at Portland, Ore., next June. Entries will be made in singing, violin, and piano. E. H. Wilcox, University station, Grand Forks, N. D., will provide full information.

LOW voices... meaning nods... well bred eyes observing more than they are willing to betray... what a silent drama of admiration or disapproval is played when you have left the room.

Every hostess knows how subtle is the difference between dullness and charm in interior decoration. Occasionally pretending that she is a stranger in her own home, she scrutinizes every room with candid eyes to detect any unloveliness that mars the whole home picture.

Then she proceeds tastefully and inexpensively to restore, enliven and protect the floors, furniture and walls with paint, varnish or enamel.

RADIOCAST LOGS KEPT TO SUPPLY INQUIRY CHECKS

Distance Listeners Often Seek Verification.

Latest on the list of necessities at radiocasts is the program log. This has been established at a number of stations as a means of accurately supplying data by which distant listeners-in may have inquiries checked or have reception incidents verified.

Oftentimes radio enthusiasts will hear distinctly the music or song from a faraway transmitter only to fail to receive clearly the call signal of the sending station. This often results in more or less guesswork, with the dispatching of inquiries to the station or stations whose call signal or signals seemed to be the most likely.

Log Settles Question.

Here is one place where the station log comes in, as comparison of time and number given on the card with the radiocast record quickly establishes whether the particular station appealed to was heard or not. Again, listeners-in often seek verification of their records of reception for the benefit of doubting friends or rival set owners.

Despite all that is written and printed to the contrary by persons who would have it so for business reasons, distance reception is as popular as it ever was, although it is becoming more and more the aim to obtain these stations clearly and without mushing. In other words, the distance seeker is becoming a program listener as well as a hunter after far signals. He still wants them far, but he clings to them only when he can get them clearly.

KGO Keeps Strict Log.

Among stations which have adopted the log idea is KGO [312], Oakland, Cal., the radiocast of the General Electric company. Every minute KGO is on the air a record is kept of each program number and change of apparatus, giving the exact time for each.

In the KGO control room on the second floor of the studio building an operator tunes in on a receiver like any one of the many in the invisible audience. It is his business to enter in the log the name of each number on the program, with the time, also any changes in equipment, with the time. A quarter of a mile away from this place, in the power house, where most of the transmitting machinery is located, a similar log is kept. After each performance these records are indexed and filed away for quick reference. From them interesting and valuable information is secured by radio engineers seeking performance records of certain pieces of apparatus under known conditions.

Keeps Tab on Station, Too.

Logs are found to act as a stimulus to the technical and studio staffs of KGO to improve transmission. Any sound made in the studio rooms, or even in the building, which is picked up by the supersensitive microphones, is of course broadcast and mentioned in the log. This is the way responsibility is definitely fixed upon each KGO operator and the announcers for the efficient performance of their duties.

Besides the control room and power house logs another is kept by a licensed operator, also in the control room, listening to ship transmission on 600 meters. This log shows call letters of each ship and land station heard on 600 meters during the KGO broadcast.

OXFORDDEBATERS HEARD VIA RADIO IN FIRST CONTEST

The international debate between picked scholars of Oxford university, England, and Columbia university, New York, on the subject, "Resolved: That this House is Opposed to the Principle of Prohibition," was broadcast direct from the rostrum in Town Hall, New York City, by WJZ, on Wednesday evening. The Oxford team argued against prohibtion, while Columbia defended the principles of the eighteenth amendment. The debate was the first of a series of thirty-eight to be given among colleges and universities of this country. Malcolm MacDonald, son of the prime minister of Great Britain and a student at Queens college, Oxford, is on the visiting team.

Northwest Association to Meet on Thursday

The Northwest Radio association, formed recently to keep posted on latest developments in the art and to assist its members in construction and operation of sets, will meet next Thursday at the association house, 2150 W. North avenue. All fans are welcome. Officers elected at the first meeting are members of the equipment engineering branch of the Westrn Electric company, Inc.

Erecting Loops on Doors Now Popular in Britain

The practice of erecting antenna on ordinary doors in the house is becoming popular among British listeners. It provides a good solution for the indoor antenna problem, since the swinging door alters the directional effect and acts as a regular loop antenna.

W-G-N Entertains 15,000 Persons at Rantoul, Ill., Field

The following letter, written to "Sen" Kaney, W-G-N announcer, by Maj. William C. McChord, army air service, stationed at Rantoul, Ill., is self-explanatory:

"Permit me to thank you for your generous coöperation in the matter of the broadcast which Lieut. Hickey and Capt. Richards put on in Chicago last week. We picked up your station during the broadcast without difficulty.

"Despite the unfavorable weather reports and inclement weather, we had a crowd here of about 15,000 people, and attribute this number to the very generous way in which you and our other friends coöperated."

GERMAN MARKET REPORTS BY RADIO

In Germany market reports are received in the places of business or homes of subscribers on sets tuned to the V. B. B. transmitter, and at stated intervals during the day loud speakers spread the prices of various commodities quoted on the Berlin exchange. Photograph shows a typical scene in a Berlin store during one of the transmission periods.

ORGANIST AS A LISTENER

MRS. JESSE CRAWFORD.

She listens in when her husband is playing a solo for the benefit of the radio audience. Both will be heard over W-G-N today.

200 SOUTH SEA ISLANDERS HEAR OAKLANDSTATION

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 4.—Thousands of letters from foreign lands, reporting reception of the KGO (312) international broadcast of Aug. 30, between 1 and 3 a. m., have been received at the General Electric station, and were reviewed over radio by Howard I. Milholland, studio manager, last Wednesday evening. Two hundred letters from the South seas were received in one day's mail.

Listeners in New Zealand, Australia, and Tasmania apparently heard KGO the best. Many cablegrams were received from Japan, Samoa, Fiji, Honolulu, Alaska, Bermuda, and Haiti.

"Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes," the song, seemed to have made quite a hit in Ba, Fiji islands, according to letters from there.

THE W-G-N ALBUM

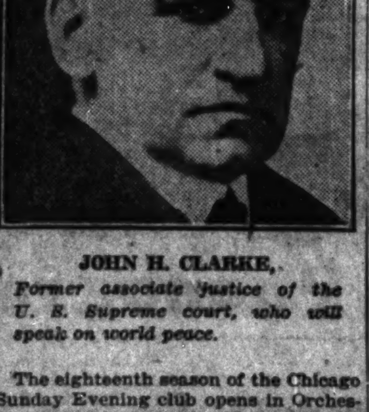
Blue eyes and "blues" fingers—that's "Wahnie." You all know Miss Wahneta Swain, the W-G-N staff accompanist and soloist extraordinary.

Wahneta's mother is Mrs. Belle H. Swain, who, armed with a degree of bachelor of music from the Chicago Musical college, started to teach the piano to her daughter when the latter was only three and a half years of age. So she's been studying and playing now for some years—the exact number is something else again!

Wahneta was a member of the famous Corydon Trio, of piano, xylophone and marimbaphone, which attained great popularity a year ago on the stage and radio. Then she went on the Orpheum circuit—whole week stands, mind you!—and about this time wrote "Treasure Isle."

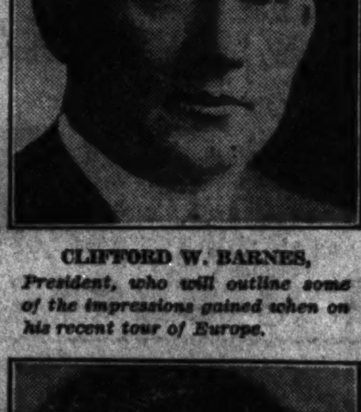
From the vaudeville stage she was drafted to W-G-N, and there she be! You have heard her accompany almost everybody who has sung at the station the last few months, and she's the artful companion of the Rocking Chair man and of "Sen" Kaney in Skeezix Time.

AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB



JOHN H. CLARKE,

Former associate justice of the U. S. Supreme court, who will speak on world peace.



CLIFFORD W. BARNES,

President, who will outline some of the impressions gained when on his recent tour of Europe.

The eighteenth season of the Chicago Sunday Evening club opens in Orchestra hall this evening. The program, to be radiocast by KYW, includes an address by John H. Clarke, formerly associate justice of the United States Supreme court; a short talk by Clifford W. Barnes at 7 o'clock on "Impressions of a Traveler," patriotic selections by the choir of 100, solos by members of the quartet, Louis Kreidler, Mabel Sharp Herdien, Rose Lutiger Gannon, and John B. Miller; organ numbers by Stanley Martin, and old time favorites by the Imperial Male quartet.

Robert B. Beach, business manager of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and Dean Thomas F. Holgate, president of the Chicago Church federation, also will have parts in the program. Mr. Barnes will preside.

Judge Clarke's address will be on "The Interest of America in World Peace." He is head of the League of Nations Nonpartisan association and has just returned from attendance on the sessions in Geneva, Switzerland. It will be remembered that Judge Clarke two years ago resigned his high place on the bench to devote the remainder of his life to propagation of the league's principles.

Edgar Nelson continues as director of music and Stanley Martin as organist.

MABEL SHARP HERDIEN,

Soloist.

READY FOR VAST CROWDS AT FIRST PICNIC OF FANS

Lively Day in Store for 100,000 Expected.

The greatest gathering of fans in the history of radio will be held in Grant park stadium next Saturday, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning and continuing until dark. The occasion will be the first annual Chicago radio picnic, held under direction of the mayor's radio commission, and with the assistance of the south park commission. More than 100,000 radio fans from all over the middle west are expected to be present.

"HERBIE" MINTZ.

One of the big features of the day will be the races and other events for men, women, and children. These will be first on the program, and to the winners will be given more than $6,000 worth of radio apparatus. This apparatus has been donated by members of the Radio Manufacturers' association and includes more than 1,800 prizes, ranging from $200 radio receiving sets down to phone cords, jacks, etc.

Station Stars to Appear.

Herbie Mintz of KWY, assisted by a committee from all the broadcasting stations, has arranged for the first radio revue ever put on before the public. In this revue every announcer and every star, including the orchestras, from all the Chicago broadcasting stations, will be seen and heard by the fans. Because of the great size of the stadium and the crowd expected, each station will have a truck on which its acts will be staged. These trucks will move about the stadium, with six of them in action all at the same time and without interfering with each other.

WJAZ, the only powerful portable broadcasting station in the world, will be at the stadium under the personal direction of E. F. McDonald Jr., and the fans will all have a chance to see how broadcasting is done.

One of the great rooms under the stadium will be given over to a question and answer department. There will be more than 100 engineers present to solves the problems of the fans. These engineers will be grouped under such headings as "Wet Batteries," "Dry Batteries," "Acoustical Devices," "Resistance Units," "Transformers," "Regenerative Circuits," "Reflex Circuits," "Neutrodynes," "Superheterodyne" and in fact every division known to radio. No apparatus will be exhibited, no charge will be made for information and no goods will be sold or "boosted."

Dever to Open Picnic.

Mayor William E. Dever will open the picnic with an address of welcome and Edward J. Kelly, president of the South park board, will speak for that body. Senator William B. McKinley has been asked to deliver a message from President Coolidge and an invitation has been extended to Senator C. C. Dill of Washington to speak on "Radio Legislation."

Ald. Joseph O. Kostner and Harry Berz will put on eight or ten athletic events which will bring out several Olympic champions as well as Helen Filkey and the rest of Tom Eyck's champion girl athletes.

The police and fire departments will stage several sensational features and it is expected that the United States army and navy will take part.

Assignment of Duties.

The members of the mayor's radio commission and the work which has been assigned to each for the picnic are as follows:

Ald. Jacob M. Arvey, chairman, reception committee.

Commissioner Frank Reichmann, chairman picnic committee.

Ald. Joseph O. Kostner, athletic events.

Ald. William D. Meyering, chairman of refreshment committee.

Ald. Charles S. Eaton, chairman of speakers' committee.

Commissioner Frank E. Goodnow, chairman technical committee.

Commissioner Wilson J. Wetherbee, chairman broadcast coöperation.

Commissioner Maj. Herbert H. Frost, chairman army and navy coöperation.

Commissioner Frank H. McDonald, chairman information and program committee.

German Firms Adopt Standardization Plan Outlined by Tribune

BY GEORGE SELDES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—German radio experts who have visited America to get the newest ideas, have influenced the four largest firms of Germany to standardize all equipment. These firms will follow suggestions outlined in Stephen Gilchrist's radio article in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of Sept. 7.

[These suggestions included one-hole mountings for condensers, rheostats, variometers, etc., in order to permit of standard panels and numerous other needed standardization methods.—Ed.]

Patent buying from England and America is going ahead at full speed. It is estimated that more than $3,000,000 has been paid during the last week for rights to copy American products. The present plans show special stress on beauty of instruments and excellence of workmanship.

Thirteen Cities Enter W-G-N Talent Contest

Every Town in State Is Invited to Compete.

What city in Illinois has the best radio talent? This will be decided by Station W-G-N at the Illinois Products exposition which opens next Thursday, Oct. 9, and runs until Saturday, Oct. 18, at the American Exposition palace, 666 Lake Shore drive.

Every city in Illinois has been invited by THE TRIBUNE station through the local chambers of commerce, to compete in a broadcasting contest. Each chamber of commerce will send its local entertainers to the exposition and W-G-N will broadcast ten minutes of their efforts on each of two different nights, together with a two minute address by a representative of the commerce body.

Beautiful Set for Winner.

The winner will be selected by the number of applause cards and letters received, exclusive of those mailed from any competing town. The Brunswick-Balke-Collender company has donated a beautiful Brunswick radiola to be awarded to the winning act.

W-G-N has a temporary broadcasting studio erected and outfitted on the exposition floor, where most of the station's broadcasting during the time of the exposition will be publicly conducted.

Thirteen Towns Enrolled.

No part of the broadcasting contest will be conducted on Sunday or Monday. To date, thirteen towns have accepted and their broadcasting schedule follows:

Thursday, Oct. 9—8:30 p. m. Decatur and Pekin; 10 p. m. Elgin.

Friday, Oct. 10—8:30 p. m. Pekin and Des Plaines; 10 p. m. Decatur.

Saturday, Oct. 11—8:30 p. m. Des Plaines and Elgin.

Tuesday, Oct. 14—8:30 p. m., Spring Valley and Ottawa; 10 p. m., Sycamore and Joliet.

Wednesday, Oct. 15—8:30 p. m., Sycamore and Ottawa; 10 p. m., Spring Valley and Lawrenceville.

Thursday, Oct. 16—8:30 p. m. Waukegan and Lawrenceville; 10 p. m., Anna and Park Ridge.

Friday, Oct. 17—8:30 p. m., Anna and Joliet; 10 p. m., Waukegan and Danville.

Saturday, Oct. 18—8:30 p. m., Danville and Park Ridge.

Esthonia Studies Radio; May Be State Monopoly

The ministry of communications in Esthonia has a radio committee with the preparation of regulations defining the use of radio apparatus by private persons and business organizations as well as the operation of broadcasting stations, Consul H. S. Quartson, Reval, reports to the department of commerce. The committee has had under discussion the question whether a state monopoly should be established for sale of receiving apparatus and broadcasting or whether it should be on a concession basis.

Temporarily the free sale of radio apparatus and the issue of licenses for their use to private persons are allowed. The use of radio for business purposes is not yet permitted, pending promulgation of regulations.

Danes to Have Home and English Opera on Air

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 4.—In opening the winter season the Danish Radio society plans to broadcast opera from the Danish Royal theater, also transmitting opera from the Continental English Opera house.

80,000 ATTEND SHOW IN LONDON; TRIBUTE TO W-G-N

Plan to Put Niagara Falls on the Air This Winter.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1924: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 4.—A feature of the second all-British wireless exhibition in Royal Albert hall, which closed Thursday night, was a five valve set, "guaranteed to pick up W-G-N, the broadcasting station in the United States." THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station is regarded here as the most powerful as well as the best station in America. The only other station guaranteed to be heard on the set is KDKA, Pittsburgh.

The exhibition proved unusually popular, the total attendance being more than 80,000. Exhibiting manufacturers represented an investment of $60,000,000 and employés rolls of more than 40,000.

One of the most interesting exhibits was that of a noninductive resistance coil which renders an absolute clear tone in exactly the same pitch as the instrument or voice broadcast. Noninduction is produced by running the current through a coil in opposite directions.

At a banquet at the opening of the exhibition it was announced that 1,000,000 persons pay licenses for receiving and broadcasting in this country, which compares favorably with America, where 3,000,000 receivers must pay no license to listen in.

The British Broadcasting company's winter program embraces symphony concerts on a larger scale than ever before, and also promises, if weather permits, to broadcast from America a wireless impression of Nigara Falls.

* *

The British broadcasting program plans to construct a new station with a power of at least twenty-five kilowatts, bringing London concerts within range of millions now unable to hear them. Crystal sets will be able to hear the new station 150 miles away, a single tube set will be able to hear it 500 miles away, and a two valve set will be satisfactory in any part of the British isles. The station will be within thirty miles of London to eliminate the "landline."

* *

Funds to fight the postoffice in the courts for its "illegal imposition of royalties and withholding of licenses" for experimenting are piling up. Dr. Wehl Eccles, president of the Radio Society of Great Britain, consisting of 800 ordinary members and 200 affiliated societies, is actively supporting the fight.

* *

Licenses issued for receivers number 1,000,000, and a revenue of $2,000,000 is going to the British Broadcasting company, the profits of which, as a public utility, are limited to 7½ per cent. The directors have voted themselves money for salaries, but the newspapers are suggesting that the remainder of the profits in excess of the limit be utilized in advertising to stimulate the radio industry.

BERLIN SHOW TO WALL; BLAME IS PLACED ON RADIO

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 4.—A theater which permitted operetta to be broadcast after a successful four weeks' run, with prospects of good business for the whole winter, has been forced to change its program because of poor attendance. The management blames the radiocasting.

Artists and managements have combined to issue a protest against allowing artists to work for radiocast. They threaten dismissal from artists' unions and loss of contract for violations. Theaters which have allowed their shows to be broadcast have canceled permission.

The state opera is not affected.

Two Men Lose Lives in Stringing Antennæ

Two men were electrocuted at Barberton, O., when they attempted to string a radio antenna across a high tension electric wire. They threw the antenna wire over the electric wire to their house and the friction created when the aerial wire was pulled across the high tension wire cut through the insulation. Both men were killed instantly. One of them left a widow and three small children.

Static Ruins Plan to Make Dentistry Popular

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 4.—A dentist here who attempted to popularize his chair by having radio attachment to the ears of the patient, gave the apparatus to the janitor after a patient, jumping from sudden static, had his mouth cut by a drill. Instead of paying for the work the patient collected a small sum in damages.

Rep. Rathbone to Speak to Boy Scouts Tuesday

Henry R. Rathbone, congressman at large for Illinois, will speak from the Edgewater Beach hotel radio broadcasting station, WEBH, on Tuesday, at 7 p. m., on the subject of the Boy Scouts. Congressman Rathbone has taken a deep interest in scoutdom for many years and has long been known as a friend of the boys.

"The Story of the Republican Party" is the title of the third of the series of ten lectures on "Politics in Theory and Practice," which will be presented by Prof. Raymond Moley under the auspices of Columbia university through WEAF, Tuesday at 7 p. m.

With the date of delivery of their new 500 watt Western Electric broadcasting set advanced a month, the Southern Economist station is preparing to go on the air early in November, instead of December, as originally planned, according to Robert "Bob" Northrop, newly appointed director and formerly with KYW, WLS, and WCAY, Milwaukee. Harry A. Zook Jr., late of KYW and a former newspaperman, will be assistant director. A staff of eight, including three operators, will conduct the station, which is to be located at 730 W. 65th street, near Halsted.

New York, Oct. 4.—[Special.]—In anticipation of the opening of the deer hunting season in New York state and the heavy toll in human life that so frequently occurs, Llewellyn Legge, chief game protector of the New York conservation commission, will give a talk next Friday evening at 7:50 o'clock over WGY on "How to Avoid Hunting Accidents." One hundred lives were lost in New York state last year as a result of hunting accidents.

WCAD, St. Lawrence university, Canton, N. Y., broadcast the first program of its fall season last Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, central standard time. WCAD operates on 280 meters.

RADIO PROGRAMS FOR TODAY

(Sunday, Oct. 5.) (Central Standard time throughout.)

Another exceptional series of concerts is added today to the ever swelling list of musical features of W-G-N [formerly WDAP], THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel.

ELSIE SCHEY, Contralto.
[Drake Studio Photo.]

This afternoon and every Sunday henceforth until June, 1925, W-G-N will broadcast the Chicago Musical college artist concerts, direct from the Central theater, during THE TRIBUNE Master Artist concerts.

Each Sunday from ten to fifteen artists of the college will appear on the programs, which open at 3:30 and proceed for an hour and a quarter. Their offerings will be put on the air from the Central theater, and the rest of THE TRIBUNE Master Artist concert will be staged in the Drake hotel studio, between 2:30 and 3:30 and between 4:45 and 5.

Previous to the opening of Chicago Musical college concert today, Elaine De Sellem, contralto, director of the De Sellem-Folsom Opera company, and Hazel Folsom, coloratura soprano, and the other organizer of the same opera company, will be heard in solos and duets. They will be accompanied by the W. K. pianist, Howard Neumiller.

Phyllis E. Barry, cellist, and her father, Bert B. Barry, well known business man of Chicago, who plays his daughter's accompaniments on the piano, will present several groups. Oley Weps, pianist, and John Clark, baritone, both eminent in their art, also will be heard from the studio.

Artists participating in the Chicago Musical college concert will be:

Jacob Radunsky, pianist.
Lucille Quinn, soprano, of Shawnee, Okla.
Viola Kueeland, pianist, of Craig, Colo.
Mildred Johnson, soprano, of Wahoo, Neb.
Thelma Bollinger, contralto, of Mount Valley, Kas.
Theodora Bliedung, violinist, of Joplin, Mo.
Lillian Rogers, pianist, of Port Gibson, Miss.
Florence Grosse, coloratura soprano.
Marshall Sosson, violinist.
Virginia Wilson-Wallenstein, pianist.

This morning W-G-N listeners will find the first of the regular bi-weekly twin organ recitals from Balaban & Katz' Chicago theater by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford. The organ recitals are presented on alternate Sundays with the Chicago theater symphony concerts. Today's recital opens at 11:45 a. m. and runs for a full hour. The program follows:

1. Wedding March from "Midsummer Night's Dream" [Mendelssohn].
2. "Angels' Serenade" [Braga].
3. "Melody" [Gen. Charles G. Dawes].
4. Soloist, Hans Koelbel, cellist.
5. "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" [Jessel].
6. Song interpretation, "At the End of a Perfect Day" [Carrie Jacobs Bond].
7. Selection from "Faust" [Gounod].

The Drake concert ensemble and Miss Elsie Schey, contralto, will fill the 9:00-10:00 hour this evening.

Uncle Walt, himself, will be on hand at 11 o'clock this morning to read The Tribune comics to the children, with the aid and abettance of Pal, Puff, Claude, Jumbo, and Cuckoo.

DETAILS OF TODAY'S W-G-N PROGRAM.
11:00 a. m.—Uncle Walt reads the comics to the children.
11:45-12:45—Chicago theater twin organ recital by Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Crawford.
2:30 to 5 p. m.—Tribune Master Artists Concert; Elaine De Sellem, contralto; Hazel Folsom, coloratura soprano; Phyllis E. Barry, cellist, accompanied at piano by Bert B. Barry; John Clark, baritone; Oley Weps, pianist. Including, 3:30 to 4:45, the Chicago Musical college artist concert broadcast from the Central theater.
9:00-10:00 p. m.—Miss Elsie Schey, contralto, and Drake concert ensemble.

Today's game of the city series will be radiocast from the Cub park today by W-G-N through station KYW, while W-G-N is broadcasting The Tribune Master Artists' concert.

"Sen" Kaney will be located on top of the press box to describe the game play by play, opening his first comments at 1:55, five minutes before the game begins.

HOOVER SPEECH TO OPEN PARLEY TOMORROW EVE

Sessions Are Expected to Occupy All Week.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—[Special.]—About forty members will compose the advisory committee of the third national radio conference to be held under auspices of the department of commerce on Tuesday.

HERBERT H. FROST.

Besides the 40 members of the advisory committee as designated by Secretary of Commerce Hoover it is expected that 150 or 200 others will be in attendance.

The sessions will commence tomorrow evening in the auditorium of the interior department building. The opening session will consist chiefly of an address by Secretary of Commerce Hoover on radio problems. This address will be broadcast by about a dozen different stations.

Sessions May Last Week.

Commencing on Tuesday the sessions will be held in the department of commerce building. Announcement will be made on Monday or Tuesday of the designation of five or six subcommittees which will hold hearings on questions to come up for consideration. The subcommittees will submit recommendations to the full advisory committee which will act upon them during the week. It is expected that the sessions will continue the greater part of the week and may possibly run into a second week.

Among those to be present, in addition to members of the advisory committee, will be Representative White [Rep., Me.] who introduced the radio regulation bill which is pending in congress; C. P. Edwards, director of the radio telegraph service, department of marine and fisheries, Ottawa, Canada; Petro Pablo Torres, director of telegraph, Cuba; Oscar Rabasa, Mexico City, Mexico; and J. W. Canada, National Electric Light association, New York City.

Chicago Well Represented.

Among the forty members of the advisory committee is James M. Cleary of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who not only represents station W-G-N but who is listed as a representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

Other Chicagoans on the advisory committee include: Walter A. Strong of the Chicago Daily News; H. R. Kibler of the Radio department of the American Farm bureau federation; E. F. McDonald Jr., of the National Association of Broadcasters, and Maj. Herbert H. Frost of Mayor Dever's radio commission, with Frank Reichmann, as alternate, Powel Crosley, Jr., will represent the Radio Manufacturers, association, with headquarters in Chicago.

Other members of the advisory committee and alternates include: Alfred M. Caddell, American Radio association, the National organization of listeners-in, with headquarters at 50 Union Square, New York City; alternate, Arthur H. Lynch.

Some of Problems Due.

Among problems to be considered by the conference will be the general reallocation of wave bands and division of the different bands among the several classes of stations, power requirements and limitations, licensing of operators, reduction of interference, interconnection of broadcasting stations, and special questions affecting marine radio.

W-G-N NOTES

THE TRIBUNE station, W-G-N, is bringing the local political campaign into the homes in an impartial manner, by means of a new radio wrinkle, the political debate.

Next Wednesday afternoon, during Rocking Chair time, beginning at 3 o'clock, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, Republican candidate to succeed himself, will debate for a half hour with Michael L. Igoe, Democratic candidate.

Each speaker will deliver a ten minute address, the present incumbent speaking first to defend his administration, and his opponent following in attack. Then each will be given five minutes for rebuttal.

The only condition under which the candidates are invited to speak is that they both be present in the studio when the speeches are delivered.

More debates will follow at W-G-N, the next to be between Col. A. A. Sprague and ex-Gov. Charles S. Deneen, candidates for United States senator.

Daily broadcasting from The Fair, the department store, was begun yesterday by W-G-N. Various interludes of song will be broadcast during the coming week from the radio exhibition in the store.

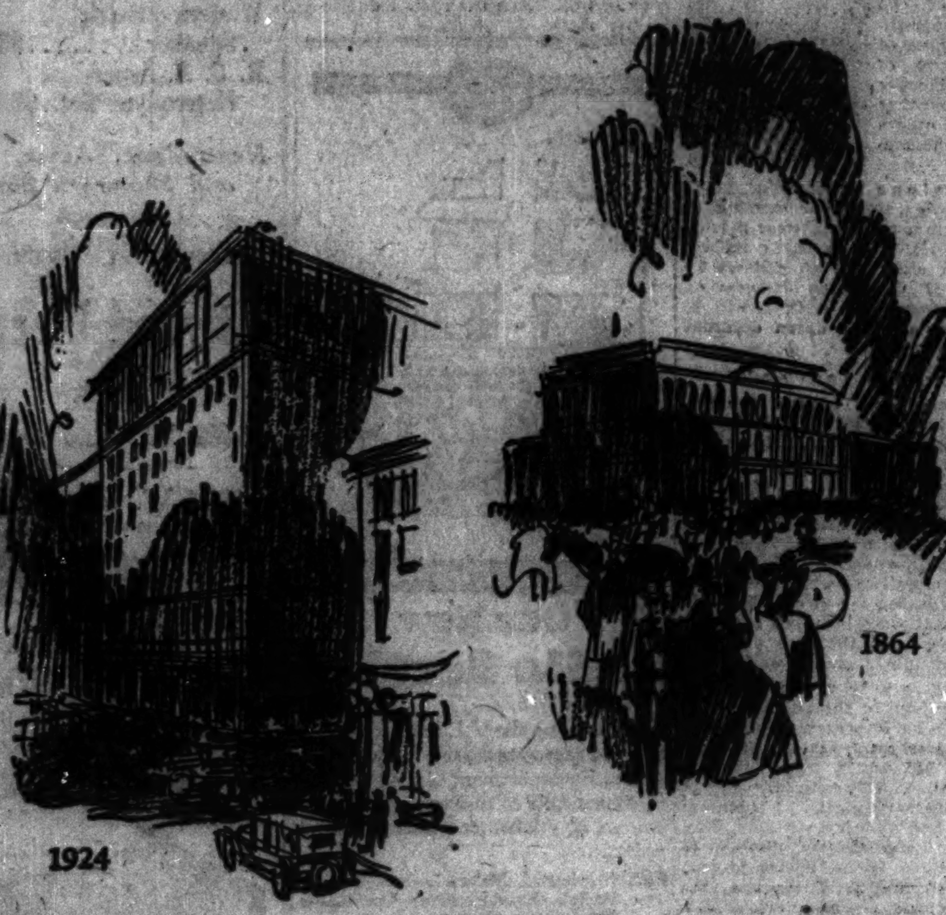
LYON & HEALY'S 60th Anniversary



1864—1924

ONE early summer, 60 years ago, there set out from Boston and journeyed to Chicago, two young men. They brought with them the New England love of expert craftsmanship, the ingrained sense of thoroughness, together with a wide knowledge of musical merchandise.

They came to a straggling western town, muddy, unordered, small, but filled with the unconquerable spirit of progress. And here they established the firm of Lyon & Healy—at first retail only, then wholesale, and soon undertaking on its own account the manufacture of musical instruments that should give concrete expression to its ideals of quality.

To its founders' sincere love of craftsmanship was added the pioneering, progressive spirit of the West—and to this rare combination may be traced the qualities of superiority that characterize Lyon & Healy-made instruments. On the one hand, the capacity and the desire to take infinite pains—on the other, the daring to follow uncharted trails, to pioneer on new paths to betterment.

Today the business of Lyon & Healy—importing, exporting, manufacturing, wholesaling, and retailing in Chicago—embraces literally "Everything known in music" and reaches out to almost every country of the globe. Its manufacturing activities cover a wide range of instruments—and wherever the name Lyon & Healy appears, it stands as a pledge of highest quality.

The ideals of the founders are tenaciously preserved. Each year has seen them strengthened. Not a year in the history of the firm but has been successful. 1924 which celebrates the 60th Anniversary of Lyon & Healy shows the firm to be still in control of the descendants of the founders, prosperous, financially secure, still expanding.

For such a fortunate past the members of Lyon & Healy place credit where it is due. It is with sincere gratitude to Chicago and its people that we think of the years past. It is our earnest hope that we may continue to serve them.

M. A. HEALY,
President

Annual October Sale of Pianos Returned From Summer Homes

EACH summer we rent pianos for use in summer homes. People of means who refuse to let music go out of their lives have us send instruments to Lake Geneva, Charlevoix, Oconomowoc and scores of other summer resorts. At such places they add music to the round of pleasure. When the season ends and country homes are closed, the pianos are returned to us.

This year our rentals were many. Returns found our warehouse and salesfloors crowded. We must move this stock to give proper display to new fall merchandise. To insure the clearance of used pianos, prices have been radically reduced. You save the rental paid and all deductions for usage.

The Most Important Event of the Season

They are wonderful values. Used but little in good homes, their service has benefited them. For practical purposes they are as good as new. In tone or appearance, they cannot be told from new. As used pianos their worth is high, but custom, marking them used lowers the price radically. As a feature of our 60th Anniversary Sale we have still further reduced them.

Miss Eleanor Shaw
Pianist

The Duncan Sisters
"Topsy and Eva"

Which is the Duncan Sisters' most popular publication? You can vote.

The Duncan Sisters will sing any number of their own publications at Lyon & Healy Concert Hall on Tuesday, Oct. 7, at 12:30 noon provided request is made in writing by Monday night. Address concert hall manager.

An autographed copy of the song which receives the most votes will be presented to all who have suggested it and who are present in the audience.

Hundreds to Choose From

Our 3rd, 4th and 6th floors and our branch stores are filled with beautiful pianos. Dainty grands in the latest designs form a group of especial interest. Players notable for sparkling tone and responsive action form another. Then there is a profusion of uprights. The array of models and finishes is extensive. All are plainly tagged. All are very evidently unusual bargains.

There is also a selected number of new but discontinued models which are included in this offering at figures at a decided discount from original prices. Also fine pianos taken in exchange for Steinways and Duo Arts.

Repaired, Refinished, Retuned

All the pianos have been gone over carefully. Our shops have been busy the past several weeks preparing for this event. As a result the instruments are most attractive.

If you have no objection to past ownership and are interested in value and merit you can buy here safely and savingly. No one could tell these pianos from new. Come in to see them. The display is a revelation, even to experienced piano salesmen.

Easy monthly terms arranged. Only a small down payment

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

MRS. JUDSON PHILIPS.
[Lewis-Smith Photo.]

MRS. WILLIAM SLAUGHTER COVINGTON.
[Koehne Photo.]

MRS. ROBERT SNOWDEN BURNSIDE.
[H. L. Reick Photo.]

Three of the most charming of society's first fall brides are Mrs. Judson Philips, Mrs. William S. Covington, and Mrs. Robert Snowden Burnside.

Mrs. Philips is the former Miss Marjorie McCord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Carr McCord of 1533 State parkway. She became the bride of Mr. Philips last Wednesday afternoon at the residence of her parents. Mr. Philips is the son of Mrs. Fredericka Philips of New York.

Mrs. Covington was Miss Elizabeth Morse before the Rev. Norman Hutton read the wedding service yesterday afternoon at St. Chrysostom's church for her and Mr. Covington, who is the son of Mrs. George Nye of Bowling Green, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse are this bride's parents. They reside at 60 Scott street and have a summer place in Lake Forest.

The wedding of Miss Helen Willitts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward W. Willitts of Highland Park, to Robert Snowden Burnside, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Burnside of Portland, Ore., took place on Saturday, Sept. 27, at the Willits residence.

In the Wake of Horsemen and Baying Hounds

By Mme. X.

THERE is no prettier, gayer sight than the Lake Forest hunt in full cry on a crisp, brilliant autumn day. The crimson sumac vies with the pink coats of some of the most up to date of the men following the hounds, such as the M. F. H., Austin Niblack, John Borden, Ralph Hines, and the whipper-in of the hounds. The golden maples, the more sedate, though gorgeous bronze oak trees, the blazing woodbine, and all the other vivid foliage of the season combine to make a stunning background for the spirited throng of horsemen and women, the baying hounds, the gayly dressed onlookers who follow the hunt from the adjacent highways and byways as far as automobiles can do so. And the modern motor car seems a remarkably agile vehicle to judge from some of the difficulties that are overcome on these tours from jump to jump.

Technically these onlookers are known as "the gallery," but Mrs. David Adler, one of the most enthusiastic and regular of those who follow the hounds, calls them the vultures, claiming they are really on the lookout for disaster, like this gloomy, unattractive bird. Certain it is that a great part of the attraction of such sports as riding to hounds and polo lies in the fact that they are dangerous sports with a larger element of risk than any other diversion popular with the so-called leisure class today.

The in-and-out jumps where the riders, tearing across the fields and coming to roads, have to put their mounts over fences, or panels (to speak in the language of the hunting field) on both sides of a narrow road are a test of the abilities of both riders and horses. It is at these critical places that the vultures gather, a cheerful, chattering throng, clad in sports clothes of all the colors of the rainbow. They leave their cars and gather in groups by the wayside discussing the latest gossip, but keeping their eyes open for the first sight of those who are following the hounds.

Fifteen Riders—Seven Spills.

Usually the first warning of the approaching riders is the yelping of the pack as it emerges from thickets and underbrush, tails fluttering like a field of golden rod in a gale. Then the pink coats of the men and the many hues of the horses are perceptible as they approach from groves and wooded lands. Usually there are distant jumps that one watches with a certain sense of detachment as they are too far away to distinguish the individual riders. But as the company comes tearing across the intervening space, and one can make out individuals, the excitement of the vultures increases.

"Get away from that fence! Stand back! You are too near!"

"There comes Isabelle!"

"I see John!"

"So-and-so is still up on her mount!"

"What can have happened to Eleanor? I don't see her."

"O, I'm so relieved! There comes my husband!"

These and many other exclamations and comments fill the air as the field approaches. There is usually a hush as they ride at the panels, with Ohs and Ahs for particularly clean jumps and a few shrieks if a spill happens, which is not an infrequent occurrence as some of the riders and their mounts are rather green. At one of the midweek hunts I was told there were fifteen riders and seven spills.

The Saturday afternoon runs are the big occasions. A week ago yesterday, which was a delicious afternoon, meteorologically speaking, there were nearly thirty riders and about fifty motor cars with their vultures following, which made quite an assemblage of all ages and many different social sets. Mrs. John Borden and her eldest daughter, Miss Ellen Borden, just returned from a summer abroad, were there and were the object of many greetings and much attention. John Borden was riding to hounds for the first time, an event of some consideration, even in the career of so experienced a horseman as Mr. Borden. Although he is a capital polo player he has had little or no practice in jumping fences, except for a little which he had during the week immediately preceding the hunt. He had one mild spill that day when his mount unexpectedly refused the second of an in-and-out jump and landed his master gently on the other side of the panel at which he, the horse, stopped abruptly. Mr. Borden got right up, mounted swiftly, put his horse over and was off like a shot. William McCormick Blair, an excellent rider, is one of the luckless ones. He has had many a tumble. That Saturday afternoon at the end of the day he had a bad and bleeding cut on his forehead from a fall from his horse. And yet no one is a finer horseman or looks better on his mount than Mr. Blair.

Women Who Ride.

Among the women riders there are a few preëminent ones. Mrs. Donald Ryerson, who, by the way, is one of the minority that rides sidesaddle, is one of the best horsewomen in the neighborhood. She has a splendid seat, is a competent and finished rider. She is generally in the lead in the field.

Other women who are remarkably competent, as well as being extremely good looking in the saddle, are Mrs. David Adler, Mrs. James Minotto, Mrs. Prentiss Coonley, Mrs. Joseph Bowen, Mrs. Austin Niblack, Mrs. William E. Swift, Miss Eleanor Bradley, Miss Elizabeth Chase, Miss Janet Chase, and Miss Virginia Fitzhugh. Among the men the good riders are Col. Noble B. Judah, Donald M. Ryerson, Austin Niblack, Joseph T. Ryerson, David Adler, Ralph Hines, Prentiss Coonley, and Joseph T. Bowen.

Some of the onlookers were mounted on horseback, and rode either through the fields in the wake of the hunters, or ambled along the roads which crossed the hunt. What might have been a rather serious accident happened in this part of the cortège. A big and lively mount, ridden by a young and not overexperienced young woman, got out of hand and tore along the tree grown side of the road and right through a group of onlookers, knocking down a well known young married woman so suddenly that she never even caught a glimpse of the horse and rider. When she was helped to her feet she said:

"What was that that hit me?"

Horse and rider had completely disappeared in the shrubbery of the wayside. She escaped with only a bruised shoulder.

Anniversary of the Fire.

Next Thursday is the fifty-third anniversary of the Chicago fire, Oct. 9, 1871, which, beginning late on a Sunday night, lasted until Tuesday morning. The big conflagration laid waste what had up to that time been known as the Garden city. Somehow we lost that pleasant title in the fire. It perished, I suppose, when those nice old wooden cottages set in cheerful gardens went up in flames at the same

North End Club Opens Its New Home Tomorrow

By Kate Webber.

AN important event among clubwomen of the north shore will take place tomorrow afternoon when the new clubhouse of the North End club, 6200 Sheridan road, will have its formal opening. A reception at 3 o'clock will be followed by a musical program.

The clubhouse, which was formerly a private residence, is to be adapted to the use of the members, who plan that it shall be a permanent memorial to the achievement of the women who have labored together for years for charity and civics, without compensation, and with a united effort toward the betterment of those persons and projects in need of assistance.

Mrs. Darius T. Phillips, president of the club, has appointed several special committees to carry on the executive work necessary for efficient managing of the new project. The chairmen of these committees include Mrs. Gaylord L. Weaver, house and grounds; Mrs. Edward D. Gotchy, rentals; Mrs. Walter Haldeman, furnishings; Mrs. Harold Fox, custodian of archives; Mrs. William Westerlund, assignments; Mrs. Martin Kent Northam, historian; Mrs. F. K. Vonficht, compiler; Mrs. Donald I. Graham, insurance; Mrs. William Collins, volunteer pledges; Mrs. Joseph Miller, coupons; Mrs. Preston M. Nolan, special entertainment.

The philanthropy committee, under the direction of Mrs. George M. Bickson, has a wide and varied field in the many branches through which charities are distributed. About twenty charities receive regular contributions, as well as incidentally needy cases cared for by the Good Fellow department during the holiday season.

An interesting and unusual feature of the new clubhouse will be the maintenance of an economy shop, which will be open every afternoon, and which will have as its wares articles suitable for gifts and club prizes.

Other women's organizations are to use the building for a meeting place, and the members are desirous of the club's becoming a community house for the various social activities in that vicinity.

The junior members, who are the coming active workers, devote their energies toward philanthropic work. Their principal effort is a play given each year, followed by dancing, and which is one of the outstanding events on the calendar.

The North End club is affiliated with the Municipal Art league, the Public School Art society, and each year has had a view day at the Art institute. These contacts provide the members with the best there is in programs and information regarding ancient and modern art. The club has assembled a valuable collection of paintings which is now hanging in the new quarters.

A monthly bulletin is issued by the club, in which the meeting time, place, and subject of classes is given in concise form; reports of federation meetings also are given, and other information valuable to the member. This publication is now in its tenth year.

The study classes this year have many new and interesting features, and are to be directed by the following chairmen: Mrs. Maurice H. Lieber, parliamentary law class; Miss Martha Moe, art and literature; Mrs. Charles M. Patterson, drama; Miss Pauline Stein, music; Mrs. S. W. Gibson, home economics; Mrs. D. I. Graham, civics. These class meetings will alternate with the general club meetings throughout the year.

Officers of the club, who anticipated the largest and finest season in the history of the organization, are Mrs. Darius Tennet Phillips, president; Mrs. Arthur P. Burland, Mrs. Benjamin F. Gridley, vice presidents; Mrs. Theodore F. Laist, recording secretary, Mrs. Samuel Frier, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Harry D. Knight, treasurer.

The new home of the North End club, at Sheridan road and Granville avenue, is to have its formal opening tomorrow afternoon with a reception and musicale. The members are pardonably proud of the new clubhouse, which fills a long felt want in the community as a cultural center. Mrs. Darius Tennet Phillips is president.

As organizer and president of the Juvenile Service league, Mrs. Edwin S. Brough presided at its third annual luncheon, held recently. The league takes care of dependent Protestant children in providing the personal touch of home care rather than institutional protection.

Mrs. Charles H. Perry is president of the Irving Park Woman's club, whose members consider its greatest achievement last year the serving of nutritional lunches at a nominal cost to pupils of the Carl Schurz High school. The lunchroom is to continue under the club's direction this season.

Club Ethics

By Maude Swalm Evans.

"IF members would read their club rules and by-laws, and follow them, the chance for disagreement in club life would be reduced to a minimum," declared the parliamentarian. "As it is, we too often act first and then when difficulties arise rush for our year books to prove, if we can, that we're right."

"Just so," agreed the member of long standing. "All that trouble in the finance committee last year could have been averted if the chairman had acquainted herself, before she acted, with the section that deals with the apportionment of funds."

"I'm always running into those who won't read," rejoined the parliamentarian. "Just the other day our new secretary told me she was scared stiff because she hadn't the slightest idea of what the duties of a secretary were. I told her she'd find them all definitely stated in the by-laws if she were really interested, and I added that she was surely headed for trouble if she didn't inform herself."

"I hear the membership chairman has called her committee together only once this month," reported the member of long standing. "Our rules require a meeting every week. I'm surprised that some of the members of her committee haven't told her of the mistake."

"They're probably unfamiliar with the by-laws, also," commented the parliamentarian. "I know of just one club in which the members never make mistakes of that kind. The president, who has held office for several years, always devotes one of the first meetings of each year to a study of the club's by-laws. She goes over them with the members, section by section, encouraging questions and discussion. That club runs smoothly, I assure you. When I get to be president of a club, I'm going to do just that."

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

The Chicago Woman's club will will meet in Recital hall on Wednesday at 2 o'clock to hear Prof. Ferdinand Scheville speak on "The People and Songs of the Balkan Peninsula." Mrs. Scheville will illustrate the lecture with groups of selected songs. Tomorrow the home affairs committee will have a box luncheon picnic at the Flossmoor Country club. The train leaves the Randolph street station of the Illinois Central railroad at 11:22 o'clock. The opening meeting of the literary study class will take place on Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Edwin Herbert Lewis will address the class.

Tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock there will be a board meeting of the Woman's City club. The business and professional women's unit will meet at 6:30 o'clock for the third lesson in public speaking and citizenship. The club will have the opening meeting of the year on Tuesday afternoon, when an informal reception for members and guests will be included in the program. Lorado Taft and Clarence Burley will speak. On Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock the first of a series of lessons on parliamentary law will be conducted by Mrs. M. H. Lieber. At 11:30 o'clock the committee on Cook county affairs will meet with Miss Harriet Vittum presiding. At 12:30 the clean city committee will meet for luncheon. On Thursday at 12 o'clock the committee on police, police stations, and jails will meet for luncheon.

The Chicago College club will give a reception on Friday from 3:30 until 5:30 o'clock for the new officers and directors. The art circle of the club will meet on Saturday at 1:30 o'clock with Miss Elizabeth Wells Robertson of Ravinia. Following luncheon the members will visit the studio of Frank C. Peyraud.

The Chicago Press league will celebrate the thirty-third anniversary of its founding next Saturday with a luncheon and program at the Great Northern hotel. The club was founded by five young newspaper women just prior to the World's Fair, to aid professionally and to welcome women correspondents from foreign lands and various parts of the United States. Two of the founders, Miss Mary H. Krout of Crawfordsville, Ind., and Mrs. Leland Simmers (Eve Brodlique) are still living, and will be present on Saturday as guests and speakers. Others who will talk are Mrs. Florence Story Meech, president; Miss Jennie Van Allen of the Los Angeles Times, Mrs. Grace D. Boyland Geldert of Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Addie Farrar Inman.

Tuesday will mark the opening of the forty-second year of the Chicago Woman's Aid. Though the various departments have not had active meetings during the summer, much work has been done in providing recreation for mothers and children. Plans are being made for constructive work during the current year.

The monthly meeting of the Chicago Children's Benefit league will be held on Tuesday at 10:30 o'clock in the Auditorium hotel.

The Daughters of Indiana will hold the first meeting of the season on Tuesday at 2 o'clock, when a luncheon and round table meeting will be followed by a fashion show. Mrs. Herbert Griffiths is the new president.

The fifteenth annual convention of the Illinois division, U. D. C., will be held on Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock at the Hotel Sherman.

Reciprocity day on Tuesday will open the season's activities for the I Will Woman's club. Luncheon at 12:30 o'clock at the Hotel La Salle will be followed by a talk by Wallace B. Amsbury and John Hayes Jr.

Officers and directors of the Chicago Public School Art society will meet on Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the Chicago Woman's club. A luncheon will follow the business meeting.

The first meeting of the Chicago Housewives league will be held on Friday at 10:30 o'clock in the new headquarters on the sixth floor of the Illinois Merchants Trust building.

Mrs. William Dow Cashner, president of the Chicago Society of Ohio Women, will preside at the first meeting of the year, which will be held on Thursday at the Congress hotel.

The first meeting of the Dames of the Loyal Legion will be celebrated by the observance of Americanization day tomorrow. The Rev. Clyde Smith and Miss Gertrude Ray will speak and children from the Howell Neighborhood house will give dances in costume.

Chapter A, Illinois P. E. O., will hold its first fall meeting tomorrow in room 1800 Stevens building. A business session at 12:30 o'clock will be followed by a program and reception.

There will be a meeting of Gamma chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota sorority tomorrow evening at 7:15 o'clock in room 623 Kimball building.

The British American Woman's club will open the season with a meeting and program on Wednesday afternoon in room 1500 Lake View building.

The opening program of the Chicago League of Women Voters forum will be held on Saturday at the Congress. The afternoon will be devoted to consideration of national candidacies. Former Gov. William L. Harding of Iowa, former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, and Phil La Follette will speak, respectively, for the Republican, Democratic, and "progressive political action."

A monthly board meeting of the First district, I. F. W. C., will be held tomorrow at the federation headquarters.

SOUTH SIDE CLUBS

The art study class of the Arché club will have charge of the program at Friday's meeting, when a fashion show will be given. There will be a meeting of the civics, philanthropy, and conservation class at 11 o'clock on Friday morning. Mrs. Walter F. Dodd and Mrs. J. Paul Goode will speak.

The Englewood Woman's club will hold the opening meeting of its twenty-ninth season tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. An attractive musical program has been arranged for this occasion, at which time members are privileged to have guests.

A musical program will be given on Tuesday afternoon to mark the opening meeting of the Hamilton Park Woman's club. The club inaugurated yesterday another season of dancing classes for children. Mrs. William Donaldson is chairman of this branch of the club's activities.

A reception and musicale will be the order of the afternoon at the opening meeting of the Hyde Park Travel club tomorrow at 2 oclock at the Hyde Park hotel. Members may bring a guest.

The Woodlawn Woman's club will open its season on Tuesday with a musical program at the Midway Masonic temple, 61st street and Cottage Grove avenue.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen will address the opening meeting of the Chicago Lawn Woman's club on Tuesday at Masonic hall. Luncheon will be served at 12:30 o'clock.

NEWS ·OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

time that the entire business center of the city was destroyed.

Chicago, to old inhabitants, has three historic dates. The first is Aug. 15, 1812, the day of the Fort Dearborn massacre, the second is the Chicago fire, and the third, May 1, 1893, when the World's Columbian exposition first opened its gates. These dates seem to be epochal in character, each one ending or beginning an era in the history of the city. On Chicago day, 1893, which was celebrated with especial features at the world's fair, over 800,000 people paid admissions and passed through those turnstiles. This was a record-breaker at that time, and I doubt if it ever has been surpassed since.

This fifty-third fire anniversary is to be observed in various ways. The Chicago Historical society, custodian of the city's past, is keeping open house that day with an interesting exhibition of relics of the fire for the inspection of guests. Those especially invited are old residents, their children, and grandchildren. Gathered together in a room are many articles which belonged to well known people and which passed through the flames. There is the remains of a fine dinner set which belonged to the late Isaac N. Arnold, one of Chicago's most distinguished pioneers, and which somehow seemed to escape the devastation, as fragile things sometimes do. Another curio is a glass cup of curious workmanship, which belonged to the late Justin Butterfield. There is also to be seen a set of bottles containing flavoring extracts from the kitchen of the late Madam Cyrus McCormick, the mother of Cyrus H. McCormick, Harold F. McCormick, and Mrs. Emmons Blaine. From the ruins of the house of the late Dr. John Foster, a well known citizen of his time, was rescued a glass toilet water bottle, one of the fashionable ornaments of that time. I remember such in my grandmother's house, generally quite empty, but haunted by strange and elusive scents, odors that suggested bygone belles and home made perfumes wherein garden flowers were used following ancient prescriptions and evolving fragrances not like anything now offered by French perfumers.

Time to Move.

The Chicago Historical society is a valuable institution which deserves a new home in a more accessible street. In that new part of Chicago which is springing up in Streeterville, out over near the lake, that neighborhood where a western Athens is to be reared by the waters of Lake Michigan when the Northwestern university buildings go up, there should be erected a fine and dignified building for the society, a place where its many now hidden collections would be given room, as well as those now shown be afforded a better setting. Such a place would soon attract to it thousands of visitors. The Historical society could take its place with the Art Institute and the Field museum as one of the institutions which every visitor to Chicago would be taken to see.

The new $5,000,000 stadium is to be opened formally to the public on Chicago day. The prince of Wales has been invited, but cannot come, though he may visit us some days later. If he does, he will be following in the footsteps of his grandfather, who, as prince of Wales, visited this country in 1860.

On that occasion he was invited to visit Chicago by the then mayor of Chicago, John Wentworth, known to his contemporaries as Long John Wentworth. He came and was entertained by the city. The committee of eight who took charge of him and his suite of thirty people was composed of, besides the mayor, William B. Ogden (who was the city's first mayor in 1837), the latter's cousin, Mahlon D. Ogden (father of Mrs. F. T. West), Ebeneezer Buckingham, William Gooding (an ancestor of Mrs. Emmons Blaine Jr. of Winnetka), John B. Rice (mayor of Chicago in 1865 and grandfather of Mrs. Bertram Winston), and John C. Spencer of Milwaukee (father of Mrs. E. W. Cramer).

The prince and his suite were put up at the Richmond House, the best hotel in the city at that time. It stood on the corner of South Water street and Michigan avenue. They were taken in barouches in a long and impressive procession to see the city, a tour which included a trip to the tower of the old courthouse, whence they were shown the city and the big bell. Thence the cortége went to the Chicago Historical society rooms, which stood on the site of the present building on the northwest corner of Ontario street and Dearborn avenue.

His royal rank prevented the prince from accepting the invitation to join the association, but two of his escorts did do so, the Duke of Newcastle and Lady Franklin, one of the celebrated English great ladies of that time. The letters of acceptance of these two Britishers are still in the possession of the society.

Opera Season Nears.

As the time draws near for the opening of another social season rumors of the coming opera season are coming thick and fast. Maestro and Mme. Polacco are sailing for this country on the Leviathan on Oct. 8. Rosa Raisa and her husband, Rimini, will arrive here probably before the end of the week. Frank St. Leger, who is one of the assistant directors of the orchestra, is already here. He returned with interesting accounts of a twenty-one week opera season in Australia, organized by Mme. Melba, and in which he was one of the conductors.

A member of the Australian company was Mme. Toti Del Monte, the much heralded soprano whom Chicago is to hear this winter in our Civic Opera company. The Australians must be fond of opera, as Mr. St. Leger reports that this rather impromptu company took in about $500,000 in the twenty-one weeks, which gave a handsome profit, as expenses were not serious as compared with those of our big organization.

The sale of the Civic Opera season seats and coupon books will close on Oct. 25 to enable the company to get its accounts and financial end ready for the opening of the season on Wednesday, Nov. 5. This is the day after election, and will undoubtedly see society and opera lovers generally turn out in crowds. Between the acts the results of the election will be a great topic of conversation, possibly shoving aside the usual chit chat of returned travelers and their experiences, and the customary comments as to looks and health after the summer's outings.

A few weeks after the opening of the grand opera season the board of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society will give its great entertainment of the year to raise money to carry on this, one of the most far reaching and appealing of our charities. This year it will be a Billboard ball. There is a delightful iteration about the title for this affair. It should be known as the B. B. B.

The idea behind it is original and brilliant, as it is calculated to make money coming and going. The decorations—the affair is to be set in the Coliseum — will be chiefly billboards, for which the firms so advertised will, of course, pay. The costumes likewise will consist of attire which will advertise articles or firms in the industrial or commercial world, which will likewise be a source of revenue for the ball. It is a great opportunity all round to get publicity and a unique and lively ball for the gay world. Also it should provide ample funds for this fine enterprise for helping the young and helpless; only funds are never ample. They are sometimes adequate, even generous. But ample? No, never!

Mrs. Carpenter Resting.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, one of the most active members of the board for this association, has gone to her father's country place in Vermont, near Charlotte, on Lake Champlain, to rest and recuperate after a strenuous and exhausting summer in Chicago. She worked unceasingly to get the Arts club's new and beautiful rooms ready for occupancy and had, besides, several other jobs, so that her summer was anything but one of recreation and joy.

John Carpenter is getting over the serious accident which a few weeks ago laid him up in the hospital and at home. He now goes down to his office daily and can work at his musical compositions as a recreation between whiles. But he is going to take much more care how he crosses Michigan avenue after this, and will be sure to step out of the way of even the most amiable and leisurely looking automobile.

In this campaign to lower the quite appalling record of deaths and serious accidents in automobile traffic, why does no one suggest and advocate the policy pursued in some eastern states, especially in Massachusetts, of issuing licenses to drive to motorists and revoking these for a time or permanently in case of reckless, careless, or inefficient driving? When a fatal accident is due to any of these reasons the license is taken away for all time in the Bay state. I don't know for certain, but I take it for granted that, with this law stringently applied, Massachusetts has fewer accidents of a serious nature than we have hereabouts.

It is in the application of our laws that we Americans fail. We have excellent and innumerable laws, laws which ought to protect us from a lot of the things from which we now suffer, but which don't because they are not applied thoroughly. England has no speed laws, but any one who is responsible for a mishap is treated rigorously.

It will, I am sure, do more to make people careful than any other measure to have hanging over their heads the right to drive taken from them if they kill, or maim, or otherwise harm their fellow men. Neither imprisonment nor heavy fines have succeeded so far. To be deprived of what is certainly today's greatest passion and diversion, the right to drive your motor car on good roads, would be a real, an unendurable hardship.

For a New Parish House.

Nowhere is there a more complete comradeship and understanding between church and pleasant entertainment than in American suburbs. Does the church want money? Get up a bridge tournament or a mah jongg evening. People who would squirm at being asked to give outright $5 or $10 to the cause of accepted religion will cheerfully pay the same or more for an evening together with a lot of others playing one of these or any other popular game.

Therefore, when Mrs. Samuel T. Chase volunteered to raise a certain sum to help build the new parish house for the Church of the Holy Spirit, the Episcopal church of Lake Forest, she decided to do it by this cheerful way. She is getting up a bridge and mah jongg evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley on Green Bay road on Oct. 17, and already, "without turning a hair" (I wonder if she's tried to t. a h.), has sold forty tables of the fifty she undertook to sell.

The Church of the Holy Spirit is a lovely little shrine for the followers of this Protestant sect. It was founded more than a quarter of a century ago in what had up to that time been a markedly Presbyterian community. Part of its original endowment fund was raised by the (at that time) annual horse shows, whose net receipts were given to this church. So, you see, it started in rather a gay and sporty way.

It has a new and popular rector, the Rev. Herbert Prince. He, too, is working to help raise money for the new parish house. He is giving a course of lectures on "Cathedrals" and the receipts from this course will go to this fund.

Crave for Cross Word.

The vogue of the cross word puzzle is growing. It is destroying once tranquil and health restoring nights. It is taking from the day its hours of serious achievement. The crave for strong drink was never more insidious. As its devotees say, "One cross word leads to another," and there you are!

But what a lot of new and usable words it teaches us! We can talk of muraenoid eels, of schelms, of zorils and rotas with an ease and fluency we never knew before. It makes conversation among the devotees of this cult so much more subtle and interesting, also obscure and mysterious to the outsider.

There are still benighted mortals who refuse to be enmeshed in the toils of this obsession, however. Frankly, I am sorry for them. Their refusal to explore so interesting and wonderful a territory as that amazing and intricate world, the English language, shuts them out from a new and exciting experience. It is like deep sea explorations. You drop to great, dim, twilight depths, with strange forms luring you on and on, phantoms of the past of the peoples that make the race.

Gradually light from somewhere filters through the murk and we see rising the vast outlines of this tremendous speech which is our contribution to the means of communication and the literature of the human race. He who denies the potent qualities of the cross word puzzles is nothing more or less than a schelm. Only the cross word puzzle disciples will understand the significance of this fearful word which is here hurled at the outsider and skeptic.

MRS. HAROLD PETERSON.

[Matzene Photo.]

The wedding of Miss Helen Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Frank Dunn of Oak Park, to Harold Peterson took place on Friday evening at the First Congregational church. A reception at the Oak Park Country club followed the wedding.

MRS. EDWARD CRAWFORD.

[Chambers Photo.]

One of the early autumn weddings was that of Miss Joan Maried Harris to Edward Crawford, which took place on Sept. 10 at St. Philip Neri church, and was followed by a reception at the South Shore Country club.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent, either of the bride or the bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Thursday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be printed.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Green of 6641 Woodlawn avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Katharine Seymour, to J. Stevens Tolman, son of Prof. Albert H. Tolman of the University of Chicago. The wedding took place on Friday evening.

The marriage of Miss Frederica Elsa Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hoyt Bennett, to William Donald Brownell took place last evening at the Ravenswood Congregational church. A reception followed at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. William Gibson, and Mr. Gibson, 4257 North Paulina street.

Miss Wilhelmina Elizabeth Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen M. Burns of 934 Crescent place, was married on Sept. 13 to Clarence C. Schirra, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schirra of Evanston. Mr. and Mrs. Schirra are residing at the Drake.

The marriage of Miss Madeline Keefe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Keefe of 4600 Michigan avenue, to Thomas A. Dillon took place on Sept. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Hills Huey announce the marriage of their daughter, Edith Gambress, to Le Roy Gray Shelton, which took place yesterday at St. Paul's Church-by-the-Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Shelton will reside at 617 Hinman avenue, Evanston.

Beauty Culture is the Basis of the Best Money Making Vocation for Women Today!

By EMILY LLOYD
Founder of National School of Cosmeticians

Largest Beauty Teaching Organization in the World

Do you know that a lipstick can be the key to happiness, and a cleansing cream is more powerful than a typewriter?

For the last few decades, women everywhere have been turning to the business world as a source of economic independence. They have flocked into business offices, into sales rooms, into factories and markets. And they have proved to the world that they can earn their own living, and successfully hold their own in fields that formerly had been dominated by men.

But hitherto, a business life meant for a woman long drab hours in an office. It meant an occupation that at the most was not exactly interesting, and oftentimes almost unbearably monotonous. Women succeeded in business, but they were not always exactly happy about it.

A Business of Happiness

Recently a wonderful new business for women has been discovered—a Business of Happiness. It is vitally connected, not only with such frivolously feminine articles as lipsticks and marcel irons, cleansing creams and subtle perfumes, but with the more serious but still truly womanly business of making others happy.

This business teaches women the way to make themselves lovely, and then shows them how to improve the appearance of other women. There is no other occupation happier than that of discovering beauty hidden by careless treatment, at the same time bringing fortune and satisfaction to all concerned.

Learn in a Few Weeks

You can learn this fascinating work in a few weeks of supervised scientific study. In all my eighteen years of experience, I have seen so few failures among the women who have been earnest students that they are not worthy of mention. They are charmed by the opportunities of their business, and easily learn the facts which every woman must know if she intends to escape the man-made businesses and enter into her own particular domain of happiness.

The requisite course of training is offered by the nine famous National Schools of Cosmeticians teaching the Marinello system, known the world over for their advanced ideas and modern treatments. Every graduate of any Marinello school not only can pass any state examination, but she has a thorough knowledge of the fundamentals of facial and scalp treatments, shampooing, manicuring, marcel, water and permanent waving, and hairdressing and electrolysis.

Earn Big Money

Every graduate of a Marinello school, who qualifies, can find without difficulty a highly paying position. In almost any city on the map, Marinello shop owners enjoy an income of from $3,000 to $20,000 a year. Her ideas are scientifically correct, and they are furthermore new and modern to keep pace with the changing fashions and conditions. While she is studying she has had both practical and theoretical training, which gives her a great advantage over the shop-taught operator. And furthermore, while she is studying, she has been fully supplied with cosmetics, creams and lotions for her own personal use.

Day and Night Classes

There are evening classes for those who cannot attend in the day time. There are easy rates of payment arranged for those who feel they cannot afford to go to school. We want every woman and girl to have her chance at being happy, and have made every effort to help her to do so. All classes are held in the most attractive surroundings, and all instructors are highly trained and proficient in their own especial art.

Act Now!

Write now, or call for particulars. There are now more positions open than can be filled, and the new era of beauty culture, with its trim, white clad, perfectly groomed exponent is attractive enough to make any woman thankful that she can enter into the new "Business of Happiness."

Learn to make yourself beautiful, and then make money helping others!

SOCIETY

The first fall meeting of the Service club will take place tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Paul Walker of 219 Lake Shore drive. Plans will be made and committees appointed for work on "Cynthia," the musical comedy which members of the club are to present on Nov. 7 and 8 at the Aryan Grotto as their annual benefit performance.

Members of Onwentsia Country club will have their annual Powwow on Tuesday. There will be golf events in the morning and afternoon, a luncheon at noon, and a dinner with toasts and stunts in the evening. Mrs. Frederick C. Letts Jr. is chairman of arrangements.

The Chicago men who are to usher at the wedding on Saturday of Miss Anna Wrenn and Darrow B. Fulton will give a dinner at the Saddle and Cycle club on Wednesday evening for the bridal party.

The first of a series of lectures to be given by Dr. Louis Anspacher under the auspices of the Drama league will be on Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick of 1000 Lake Shore drive. The subject for the initial talk, which is one of four, is "The Dramas of Revolt."

The annual race meeting under the auspices of the Onwentsia Hunt committee, with three steeplechases and four flat races, is to take place at Onwentsia on Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The races, which will include two for women, one for polo ponies, and one for men riders, are to be run off on a course near Onwentsia.

Miss Elsie Blatchford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wickes Blatchford of Winnetka, is to make her debut at an afternoon reception at her parents' residence next Saturday afternoon.

Several large weddings are to take place on Saturday. Among them will be that of Miss Betty Fitts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Fitts of 20 East Goethe street, to Lieut. John Hinton, which will be performed at high noon at St. Chrysostom's church. Miss Wrenn and Mr. Fulton are to be married at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the same church.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Owen T. Reeves Jr. and their daughter, Miss Hellen Reeves, of New York, former residents of Kenilworth, have been in Chicago for the last week. Mr. Reeves has been attending the bankers' convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert White and their family of Highland Park have returned to their apartment at 12 Scott street. Robert White Jr. has departed for Princeton to resume his studies.

Dr. and Mrs. Dwight C. Orcutt of Hubbard Woods have returned from a month's trip in Canada and the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertram F. Rieman of Winnetka announce the birth of a daughter on Sept. 26 at the Evanston hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Charles Dalley and their daughter, Miss Victoria Dalley, have returned from an extended tour of Europe and are occupying their apartment at the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

Mrs. J. Walter Rudy of 4516 Lake Park avenue has returned from Los Angeles where she and her sister, Mrs. John B. Wright, spent the summer with their mother, Mrs. M. J. Robinson.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connor and their son, John Jr., of 148 Kenilworth avenue, Kenilworth, have returned from a trip abroad. They visited France, England, Italy, and Switzerland.

Dr. and Mrs. Arnold H. Kegel of 540 Briar place have departed for Rochester, Minn., and are planning to return tomorrow.

Mrs. Walter Hull Atwater, who was abroad during the summer with her son, Brewster Atwater, and daughter, Miss Lydia Atwater, has returned from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. John Taylor French, at Auburndale, Mass. Miss Atwater is again at Smith college and Mr. Atwater is visiting Robert M. Rolson Jr. at Cotuit, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Le Moyne Dysart of Evanston have given up their apartment and are residing at the Evanston hotel for a short time before they sail in November for France to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Capt. and Mme. Gaston Berdonneau.

Foot comfort section, fifth floor

If your heels "run over" to the outside it is a sure indication that your arches are weak. This causes the foot to rotate at the ankle, throwing the body weight inward, as illustrated. As a result the feet tire easily; they ache and pain; corns and callouses are formed; toes become distorted, and if permitted to continue more serious troubles are sure to develop. Shoes quickly lose their shape.

Foot Comfort Expert's Service Free

Bring your foot troubles to our Foot Comfort Expert. He knows feet, why they ache, pain and break down, and how to give quick and lasting relief. Come in for a Free Demonstration.

Dr. Scholl's Walk-Strate Heel Pads prevent shoes running over on outside. Correct faulty walking. Preserve shape of shoes. 40c pair.

Dr. Scholl's Foot-Eazer gives quick and lasting relief to weak and broken down arches, flat-foot, tired, aching feet, corns, callouses, bunions and painful heels. Prevent ankles from "tipping in." $3.50 pair.

ART AND ARTISTS

Whimsical Sketch Keynote of Palette and Chisel Exhibit

By Eleanor Jewett.

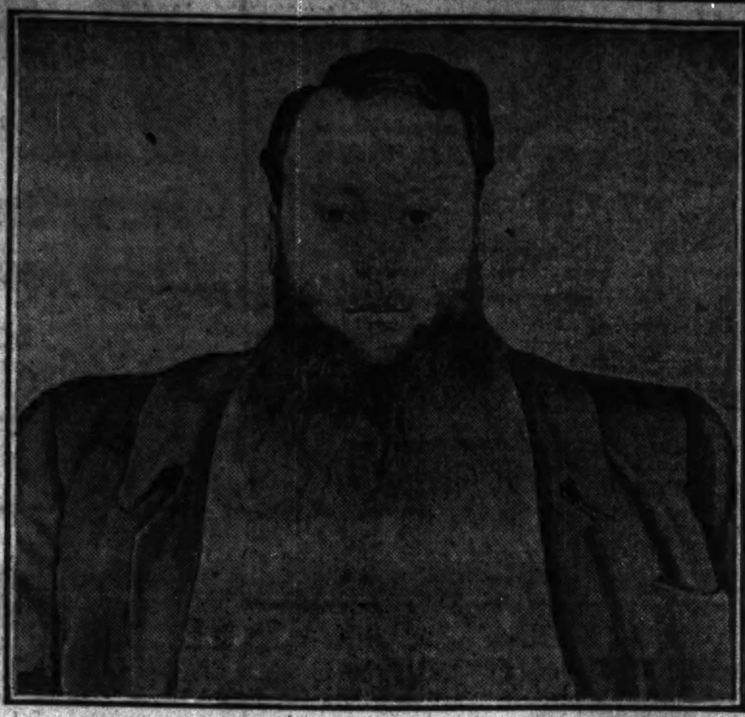
THE Palette and Chisel club opened its first exhibition of the season last Wednesday with an attractive showing of small canvasses by members of the club. This exhibition has gradually acquired a certain status of dignity in the round of exhibits. It consists, to be sure, of trifles, slight sketches that remind one of bright or dull moments in the artist's search for suitable subjects for greater elaboration, but in spite of that the pictures have a freshness and friendly message that endear them to us each year anew.

A Whistlerian effect by Maurice Greenberg is a case in point. In an olive setting, sky and water at one with each other, a little girl stands, demure, reflective, slender as a young birch. Peace and beauty radiate from her. It is an unusual composition, and as such places a deeper significance on the talent for bewitching effects which is one of Mr. Greenberg's greatest assets as a painter. His decorative effects are never forced. They leap at you and entangle you in their delicate whimsical webs before you so much as can breath a swift "Jack Robinson."

H. L. Engle is another painter whose work possesses great charm. Soft color and a feeling of brooding romance run through his landscipes. He has a group of woodland scenes that are remarkable for their sentimental appeal, an appeal that though romantic is yet neither weak nor foppish, but virile and comprehensible.

A violet shadowed glade, "Andante," by J. H. Carlsen, is a sketch that bears close inspection. The wind and the blue sky with its billowing white sailing vessels of cloud have not been neglected by their ardent lover, James Topping. One of the sketches under his signature needs not his name to mark its originator. A knowledge of the delight Mr. Topping takes in wind swept skies is sufficient to stamp that special canvas for his own.

Rudolph Ingerle is represented by two pictures. One, the loveliest, reminds me of a fragment of a Scandinavian harbor. The cold hush of a long twilight lies upon it. The serene beauty of a land without hurry is sweet within it. After a fashion it reminds me of the artist (Who will remember his name? He had a one man show at the Palette and Chisel club last year, and his unforgettable painting was "The Open Gate"), who paints snows and winter and his beloved northland with a magician's touch.



"James Vibert, Sculptor," by Ferdinand Hodler, is in the Birch-Bartlett collection of modern European paintings in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. Hodler was a Swiss artist. Since his death, not long ago in Paris, his fame has been rapidly growing. His fondness for painting red beards (M. Vibert has a splendid one of golden flame) led him, so it is said, to desire to paint our fellow citizen, Mr. Arthur Aldis, when the latter was some years ago in Paris.

Yes—you guessed correctly. The reference is to Karl Ouren.

R. E. Power, Glen Sheffer, Leo Marzola, Svoboda, Hake, Walter B. Yeomans—these are but a few of the men who are represented in the exhibit. The exhibition will remain open until Nov. 1.

There will be an exhibition of prints by Albert Besnard, the French artist, in the print rooms of the Art institute, opening Wednesday or Friday next, and running through November. The collection is part of the international exhibition held this summer at Pittsburgh. Besnard is represented in the permanent exhibit of the Art institute by a large canvas, "On the Shores of the Lake," a painting that depicts a group of three women, two of whom appear as tiring women of the third, a vast, muscular female preparing in a state of nudity to enter upon her morning swim, her broad and powerfully developed back intimidating the casual dropper-in on her nautical endeavors.

At present the print rooms still have on view the collection of rare prints from the collection of Italian fifteenth and sixteenth century engravings, lent by Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer. Among them a notable one is Antonio Pollaiuolo's "The Battle of the Nudes." Other remarkable prints are the engravings of Andrea Mantegna, da Brescia, Francesco Raibolini, Zoan Andrea, and two artists with the singular appellations "Na Dat with the Rat Trap" and "Master IB with the Bird."

In another gallery of this department are engravings of ornaments dating from the same period and also forming a part of the Palmer collection. A third gallery shows a group of engravings by master engravers of France and Germany, men such as Schoengauer, Wolf Hammer, and Jean Duvet—also of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

The most important exhibition of the year at the Art institute is without a doubt the Annual Exhibition of American Paintings and Sculpture. That exhibit opens this fall on Oct. 30 and will run to Dec. 15. It is the thirty-seventh annual exhibition of its kind. About 100 paintings and thirty pieces of sculpture will be invited and over 200 others selected by the jury chosen for the occasion. Members of the jury on painting are Anthony Angarola, John F. Carlson, Oskar Gross, Wilson Irvine, John C. Johansen, Abram Poole, and Augustus Vincent Tack. The jury on sculpture is made up of Leonard Crunelle, Leon Hermant, and Albin Polasek.

Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, at 2:30 o'clock, Dr. Kollar, who accompanied the exhibit of the Viennese school children's work from Vienna and is in charge of the exhibition of it here at the Art institute, will give a series of free lectures in the galleries explaining the idea underlying the Cizek system of education. The exhibit is of work by children, self-taught, from 5 to 20 years of age. It is creating marked interest among teachers in the Chicago schools.

A charming little group of silhouettes has recently been placed in the children's room in the southeast wing of the Art institute. They are the gift of Mrs. Theodore Wild and the work of Ernest Engert, a contemporary artist.

The mask of a faun, in bronze, the work of the English artist, Glyn W. Philpot, lent by Robert Allerton, has been placed in the southeast corridor on the second floor of the Art institute.

Richard Fayerweather Babcock whose summer exhibit of decorative work is still one of the attractions in the Art institute east wing galleries, has returned to the faculty of the school of the Art institute. This return has been met with great interest on the part of students specializing in illustration and commercial art.

Albin Polasek, head of the department of sculpture in the institute, has returned from a two months' visit to the mountains of Colorado.

George Oberteuffer has arrived from Philadelphia ready to take up his duties in the institute art school, where he will instruct in drawing and painting.

A worldwide poster competition for a church poster is announced by the Poster Advertising association, Inc., of 307 South Green street, Chicago, to which address those interested in the details are advised to address their letters. Prizes of $500, $200, and $100 are offered.

Jack Spelman has recently gone for another month's sketching trip to the autumn glories of the New England states. Holgar Jensen went with him. Mr. Spelman is at present having an exhibit of his work at a local art gallery in Oak Park. His pictures are well known for their beauty and charm and a rather dramatic blending of sun and haze in landscapes that are glimpses of forests, deep waters, wooded hills, and meadows.

Dorothy V. Anderson has decided to make California her home and is settled in a studio in Hollywood. She writes that she likes it immensely and that the summer has been wonderful. Her opening exhibition is to be in October. Her paintings are delicate, misty things, fanciful conceptions of nymphs and dryads caught in the dews of a summer morning or tangled in the blue shadows of a summer dusk. They have a great deal of the charm of some of the slighter French masterpieces. You could imagine Watteau as a not too distant cousin.

Karl A. Buehr is back from a summer spent in painting in the neighborhood of Hillside farm, Wyoming, N. Y.

Tomorrow afternoon in Fullerton hall at 2:30 o'clock Lionel Robertson will give his lecture on interior decoration, taking up this week the subject of the colonial home.

Tuesday afternoon in Fullerton hall, at the same time, Prof. Emerson H. Swift will speak on "Space Composition in the World's Greatest Architectural Styles."

On Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Fullerton hall Lorado Taft will give the first of this season's group of talks, his subject being "Gothic Sculpture in France."

The first concert of the season will be given on Oct. 14 by members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Fullerton hall at 2:30 o'clock.

The Arts club announces that its restaurant will open tomorrow. Lunch will be served as usual. The formal opening of the club will be in connection with the first exhibition on Nov. 1.

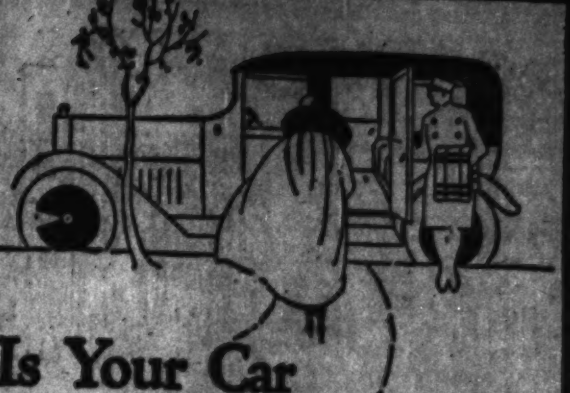
Beauty
A Gleamy Mass of Hair

35¢ "Danderine" does Wonders for Any Girl's Hair

Girls! Try this! When combing and dressing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can do your hair up immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy—a mass of gleamy hair, sparkling with life and possessing that incomparable softness, freshness and luxuriance.

While beautifying the hair "Danderine" is also toning and stimulating each single hair to grow thick, long and strong. Hair stops falling out and dandruff disappears. Get a bottle of "Danderine" at any drug or toilet counter and just see how healthy and youthful your hair appears after this delightful, refreshing dressing.



Is Your Car Spotless Inside?

Or are there spots on the seat covers, the upholstery or the inside of the top—spots which are embarrassing when you have guests in the car?

A little Energine will relieve you of that embarrassment. In fact, it just takes a few moments and a little Energine every now and then to keep the inside of your car spotless.

Carry a can in one of the pockets or in your tool kit. Energine is fine for removing grease from your hands after you have been working on the car. Get your handy can. It's only 35c at all drug stores.

BLACKHEADS GO QUICK BY THIS SIMPLE METHOD

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of Calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of Calonite powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Methodist Woman's Missionary Board in Annual Meet

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

STERLING, Ill.—[Special Correspondence.]—The board of managers of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, a national organization, doing work in all parts of the United States and its possessions, will hold its annual meeting in the Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets, beginning next Wednesday morning and continuing through Oct. 15. At the morning meeting, which begins at 9:30, Mayor William E. Dever will give an address of welcome; Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of the Chicago area will administer the holy communion, assisted by the district superintendents of the three Chicago districts, and Mrs. W. P. Thirkield, national president of the society, wife of Bishop W. P. Thirkield of Mexico, will make the keynote address.

At the afternoon session Mrs. May Leonard Woodruff, national corresponding secretary, will speak. Mrs. Thirkield, Mrs. Woodruff, Miss Mary E. McDowell, commissioner of public welfare of Chicago; Mrs. Luke Johnson, Methodist Episcopal church, south, and Bishop Hughes will be speakers at a banquet at the Drake on Thursday evening.

Other dinners will be Friday, 6 p. m., Wesleyan Service guild, Stevens; Saturday, 1:15 p. m., luncheon, Young People, Auditorium hotel; 6:30, students' dinner, First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston.

Bishop Hughes will preach in the Chicago temple next Sunday at 11 a. m.; Dr. Edmund M. Soper of Northwestern university at 7:45 p. m. What is expected to be the most popular event will be the pageant at Orchestra hall on Tuesday evening, Oct. 14, entitled, "No More Strangers and Foreigners." Mrs. Dan B. Brummitt of 721 Emerson street is the local manager in connection with the convention.

The Rev. Orvis F. Jordan, pastor of Park Ridge Community church, will celebrate today the completion of twenty-five years in the ministry. This morning he will preach an anniversary sermon on "The Joys and Sorrows of the Christian Ministry." The new parish building of the Park Ridge church will be begun early in November. It will cost $60,000 and will be the first unit of a $150,000 plant.

Mr. Jordan came to Park Ridge church two years ago after a fifteen year pastorate at the Evanston Christian church. Before this he was for seven years with the Central Christian church of Rockford, Ill. He has also served as associate editor of the Christian Century for ten years and as an editor of the Unity Messenger, the news organ of the community churches.

The children's campaign for the Bishop Tuttle National Memorial and Endowment fund will begin today when each child will be given a box and a story of Bishop Tuttle's life with the request that one dollar be earned during October for the memorial fund. Next Sunday will be the official launching of the campaign among the older folks. Bishop Tuttle was the presiding bishop of the Episcopal church at the time of his death. He was a pioneer bishop in the west, and for thirty-seven years bishop of Missouri. The memorial will be erected in connection with Christ cathedral, St. Louis. Bishop Tuttle was everywhere and by church leaders of all denominations recognized as one of the ablest, most efficient, most devoted, and most beloved ministers in America.

Arrangements for the inauguration of Sunday services at Temple Emanuel, 701 Buckingham place, have now been completed, and announcement is made by the board of directors of the congregation that the inaugural service will be held on the morning of Sunday, Oct. 19. A great deal of thought and energy have been expended toward the end of preparing a ritual that will bring to the north side a regular Sunday morning service of the most acceptable and inviting nature. This service will commence at 11 o'clock and conclude at approximately 12:15. Dr. Felix Levy, rabbi of the congregation, plans that the pulpit shall be occupied occasionally by visiting speakers. Dr. Levy, however, will generally conduct services, and deliver the sermons.

THE REV. PERRY J. STACKHOUSE, D. D.

[Gibson, Sykes & Fowler Photo.]

Dr. Perry J. Stackhouse is pastor of the First Baptist church, 50th street between Drexel boulevard and Ellis avenue, who will lead today in the dedication of a new community house costing more than $100,000. The community house is an integral part of the church building. The entire plant, built of stone, with ivy vines climbing up its walls and a spacious, closely cropped green lawn in the foreground, makes one of the most impressively beautiful houses of worship in Chicago.

Dr. Stackhouse was born and received his college and theological training in Canada. In 1904 he was graduated with the degree of bachelor of divinity from the divinity school of the University of Chicago. In 1919 he received the degree of doctor of divinity from Colgate university. He has been pastor of First church for three years. Dr. Stackhouse is the author of three books, the latest being "The Sword of Christ and the World War."

The dedication program will be: Today at 9:30, the Rev. W. R. Jewell; 11, Dr. F. H. Divine, New York; 6:30, B. Y. P. U.; 8, Dr. Benjamin Otto and Dr. Divine.

Tomorrow at 11 a. m. the Chicago Baptist Ministers' meeting will be followed by a complimentary lunch to the ministers and their wives.

On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, Dr. Shailer Mathews; Wednesday, 6:30, church dinner, Dr. J. Y. Aitchison; Friday, 6:30, Young People's dinner, Dr. John Morris Evans; Monday, Oct. 13, 6:30, Men's club, Dr. C. C. Morrison.

Today will witness an important epoch in the history of Lutheran churches on the northwest portion of Chicago. The dedication of the recently completed Portage Park Lutheran church, North Linder and Addison streets, will take place.

The synodical board of home missions and church extension of the United Lutheran Church in America, which will hold its fourth biennial convention at the Edgewater Beach hotel Oct. 21-30, has been the factor in bringing about the building of the church. The layout allows for practical enlargement as the needs of the congregation may demand.

At the dedicatory services, which will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the Rev. J. E. Whitteker, D.D., president of the Lutheran seminary at Maywood, also president of the board of home missions and church extension of the United Lutheran Church in America, will preach the sermon. Under the direction of the Rev. J. M. Bramkamp, D.D., president of the Illinois synod, the organization of the congregation will be effected at the morning service at 11 o'clock. Charter members to the number of forty have already indicated their intention to participate in the services.

The Rev. T. B. Hersch, D.D., field missionary of the northern district of the Illinois synod and well known in Lutheran church circles, is in charge of the activities of the church and will remain so until a permanent pastor has been selected.

The Rev. C. E. Paulus, pastor of the Woodlawn Immanual English Lutheran church, which was dedicated on Sept. 21, Mrs. Paulus, and their daughter, Faith, are having a vacation in South Carolina and Florida.

Dead Geese Tell No Tales

By E. F. Younger.

Dey wuz holdin' p'tracted meetin' up Yazoo way
An' Jeff Dunbar ent'tain de pah'son one day.
Table jes' loaded wid gran' things t' eat,
Pones an' baked taters, an' fresh hawg meat.
In de center, all kivvered wid gravy juice,
Sot de grandes' big ol' fat baked goose.
Pah'son smack his chops as he see dat feas',
An' p'intedly say: "I sho' fond ob geese.
"Dat sho' a noble fowl," de Rev'in exclaim,
An' pass up his plate f'r some mo' ob de same.
"Didn't know yo' raised geese," he mek out t' say.
"Well, Rev'rn," 'splains Jeff, "h'it's disyer way,
I didn't 'zackly raise dat ol' fat goose,
I jes' lifted h'it f'm offen de roos'.
Reckon aint much diff'nce in dem ar words,
Mo' 'specially when us is speakin' ob birds."
Pah'son smile as he lick off his plate.
"Dis sho' a gran' meal an' I craves t' state
Dat us cullud men who infestes de souf,
Us doan' look a gif' hoss too close in de mouf."

They Laugh at These in Vaudeville

RIALTO.

Drury and Lane:

"This is a fine way to start our vacation. You're always kicking and complaining. What if I should ask you to help me carry the suitcase? Is that any cause for you to complain? You don't expect me to carry parcels while wearing my new suit, do you?"

"No, dearest."

"Don't you dare answer me back. I'll have none of your impertinence. Did you attend to everything before we started?"

"Yes, dear."

"Did you wind the clock, put the cat out, cover the canary, and pull down the blinds?"

"Yes, dear."

"Did you tend the furnace, leave that note for the milkman, and turn off the gas?"

"Yes, dear."

"Well, did you shut everything up?"

"No! And if my patience doesn't hold out, I'll be shutting you up."

"Henry! How dare you speak to me in that manner?"

"Well, I want you to understand that you're not going to spoil my vacation with your nagging tongue."

"Really, Henry, I didn't mean anything by it. I merely wanted to know if you had the house locked up—for you know, Henry, the Smiths' apartment was robbed last night. Burglars got in during the night and ransacked the place.

"Didn't they hear him doing it?"

"Hear him? Why, of course, not."

THE BOARDMAN AND GRAY GRAND PIANO

"AMERICA'S OLDEST LIVING PIANO." Established in Albany, N. Y., in 1837. BOARDMAN & GRAY have never "changed hands"—have never been "commercialized." But it is still made by the same firm under the DIRECT personal supervision of the descendants of the founder.

Always a GREAT PIANO; A GREAT PIANO in 1850, when used by Jennie Lind; A GREATER PIANO today when preferred by the most discriminating musicians who can afford THE BEST for the home, studio, and concert.

AN OPEN LETTER.

We know that there are in Chicago hundreds of men who have the hunch that they ought to get into the real estate business.

They know men who have less ability than they have who have entered the real estate business and have far outclassed them in financial returns.

IF YOU are one of these men whose ambitions are making you restless and "raring to go," this ad is addressed to you.

Now is the time to get into the real estate business. Chicago is on the verge of the greatest transportation development in its history, property values will soar sky high, billions will be made in real estate.

WILL YOU BE ONE OF THE MANY TO GET YOURS?

Thousands will pass this opportunity up, as they have always done in the past. Don't be one of them.

To men who have had no experience in this line, we give exceptional co-operation.

COME IN; TALK IT OVER WITH US. GET IN THE BIG MONEY GAME.

Don't be ashamed to be a "Realtor."

AUSPITZ & OAKES, Room 1205 Mallers Bldg., 5 S. Wabash-av.

AN OPENING FOR 2 REAL SALESMEN.

Preferably 30 to 35 years; married men who can prove their past record and furnish references. Established concern needs two such men for city sales force. Good remuneration, with opportunity to constantly increase earnings through a yearly interest in your accounts. Call MR. [illegible], STATE 8176, between 9 and 11 a. m. for appointment.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR AMBITIOUS SALESMEN.

A client of ours is about to open a branch office in Chicago to handle the sale of a high grade book specialty that appeals to the leading business and professional men. Between fifty and sixty territories will report to the Chicago office.

Men with energy, ambition, good education, and selling ability are needed. They will become "key men," and must have strong personalities, mature judgment, and the ability to meet men of affairs on a basis of equality.

These "key men" should earn not less than $100 weekly. Several in the east are earning more than $200 a week. Men who prove their ability will be advanced rapidly to managerial and coaching positions. Compensation is on a commission basis, with reasonable weekly drawing accounts.

This is a real opportunity if you have the qualifications to fill one of these positions. It is a chance to become fixed for life. The men back of this proposition have been extremely successful in the promotion of big business. The company is backed by ample capital.

Please reply by letter only, giving complete history of yourself, for an early interview. Your application will be held in strict confidence.

CAN YOU QUALIFY AS A "BIG MONEY" SALESMAN?

IS IT NATURAL FOR YOU—

To interview chief executives without leads or appointments?

To force attention and command interest?

To dominate at the rail and throughout an interview?

To sell an idea and close your contract strictly on a "one call" basis?

To recognize a "stall" and turn it into a sale?

To pay your own expenses and finance yourself for straight commission work—where you are shown eighty men are so engaged?

Can you prove your earnings from selling have been $5,000 or above on straight commission in the past five years?

Can you come to us as a full fledged dominant salesman able to produce in a big way when shown others are doing it? We train in our methods.

Read these commissions earned for September: Johnson, new man, $250 first week; Owens, $750; Swing, $755; Drucker, $800; Harms, $800; Jordan, $1,160. Jordan made $2,300 in July, plus bonuses. Exceptional months run four thousand dollars and more. These are normal earnings to the Right Man.

This is not stock, real estate or insurance; exclusive territory, straight commission; weekly settlement, large percentage of renewals with full commission. We are an established industrial service organization, the largest in our line in the country. You carry proof that our service is used and highly indorsed by thousands of leading firms all over the country in all lines of business.

In replying be sure to give age and experience last five years, especially last year. References need not necessarily be mentioned, although all replies will be held in strict confidence.

No attention will be paid to letters which do not state age, and brief summary of last five years of selling experience. Interviews will depend on how you sell yourself in the first letter. Address A F 133, Tribune.

HERE IS A JOB THAT WOULD SATISFY ANY MAN.

I know what you are looking for; I know how hard it is for a man to find just what he wants in the way of a selling position—and the kind of pay that he wants to go with it. The position that I want to tell you about has everything that is necessary to make a man perfectly comfortable and happy. The pay is big and the position is highly dignified. The nature of the work is tremendously appealing, and we count our prospects by the thousands. You will command a handsome income, which, of course, you will require if you consider yourself even a fairly good salesman. The firm you will be connected with is very large, doing millions in volume annually. The position is not mechanical. You have plenty of freedom, and you are practically your own boss. Lack of experience in our line will not disqualify you for the position if you can show that you have had general business experience. The man who owns this business is a wealthy Chicagoan. He has a reputation for being a live wire and is a good man to work for. He spends money to make money. He will spend money on you if you have anything tangible and worth while to offer as a trustworthy and qualified salesman. Come and see me and I will arrange an appointment so that you will see the right man. See: GENERAL SALES MANAGER, Rm. 1101, 116 S. Michigan-av.

VO-PON

day course offers 2 to 2½ months of intensive and practical training under the tutorship of specialist instructors. 5 days each week and 6½ hours each day.

Both our day and evening classes receive considerable practical instruction, as we give marcels free. And even the student that is slow in learning finds it easy to grasp the essentials enabling her to be as proficient as the others.

Many of our students like our class arrangement, as they avoid the morning and evening rush; our day school hours being 9:30 a. m. to 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The evening classes likewise are comprehensive and thorough in every detail.

Through our long experience in teaching and our systematic management we are able to offer this exceptional course for much less than what other schools are asking.

TO MANY WOMEN

beauty culture has a fascination, being an interesting profession and rewarding well those who are competent operators. To properly prepare yourself for this profession you must have expert instruction, modern equipment and practical experience. A good many of our students had this school recommended to them by our graduates and we would like to acquaint you with what we have to offer.

CHOOSING THE RIGHT SCHOOL.

Our loop school has 3 shampoo booths, 3 massage booths, 3 manicure tables, 30 hairdressing booths and equipped with all the latest electric appliances. We have a rest room for the benefit of students and a private washroom. Advanced students have live models to work on. Our course is planned to give you not only the fundamentals of beauty culture, but sufficient practical experience to become a competent operator.

COME UNTIL COMPETENT.

Tuition $50. Diplomas. Tools $10.

WHY IS IT

that people will rent an apartm't for $200 per month—sometimes never realizing that in five years they have actually spent $12,000 for the privilege of making the landlord wealthy?

We can sell you that same apartment on reasonable terms where over a period of five years your net cost to live there is only $4,336—thereby saving $7,464 in five years. Do you know an easier way to save $7,464?

The Very Reason

over 80% of the people in Chicago pay rent is because they have never taken the time or trouble to investigate the advantages of co-operative ownership.

Aldine Apartment Homes

Combine every modern feature contributing to your comfort and well being—nothing to worry about—no moving, to get away from a raise in rent; no arguing with landlords over decorating—everything just as you would have it.

A real home—those four walls are yours. A fireplace that burns real logs, side lighting, a beautiful soft effect, well enhanced by canvased walls, decorated to your own taste.

Four, five and six rooms, two baths in the fives and sixes; wonderful bath and kitchen fixtures—everything the way you would have it in a permanent home you might build for yourself.

Aldine Apartment Homes are offered for sale to qualifying parties on the 100% CO-OPERATIVE PLAN

Get the landlord's profit—without his risk; own something, don't hire it.

Save nine thousand dollars in five years. A dollar saved is a dollar earned, and think of the satisfaction! Let us show you how.

Consult with us regarding YOUR home.

Deerfield.

DEERFIELD HEIGHTS.

See this beautiful property, covered with forest trees; sites 100x200 ft. each, with 50 ft. building line and other restrictions that will make this development one of the largest and most attractive we have ever attempted. The improvements include sewer, water, sidewalk, reinforced concrete pavement, gas, electricity, telephone and ornamental lighting posts, which are already in and paid for. The McGuire & Orr standard of developing and selling high class residential property will be as rigidly enforced in "Deerfield Heights" as in any of our North Shore developments; just a few sites in the first unit remain, which will be sold to "approved purchasers" at our opening price of $4,000 each. Those who have purchased are from Rogers Park, Evanston, Wilmette, Winnetka, Hubbard Woods, and Glencoe, and in nearly every instance purchasers plan to build within one year. Our office on Waukegan-rd., 3 blocks north of the Deerfield-Highland Park-rd., will be open Sunday.

SKOKIE HEIGHTS, GLENCOE.

This attractive development is VIRTUALLY A PRIVATE PARK with a freedom from auto traffic that will immediately appeal to those who have small children or who appreciate quiet. It is perpetually restricted to residences that cost not less than $15,000 and only one house to a lot. Sales are made only on written application [after the manner in which memberships are applied for in first class clubs]. This insures an exclusively American community. To build a home in Skokie Heights costs no more than it does in unprotected districts. It is still possible to secure a site in Skokie Heights at from $6,000 to $10,000. Drive out today and look it over. Office on property. To enter Skokie Heights go to Bluff-st. and Skokie-rd. [Dundee-rd.] and drive through stone entrance.

NILES CENTER ELEVATED EXTENSION.

Chicago's finest L extension in sixteen years is now under construction west from Howard-st. to Niles Center and in a few months will be completed. There is a train carrying fortune your way. Heed the signal. Elevated extension spreads the seed from which communities grow fast. History will repeat itself. Fortunes were made at Wilson-av and Kimball. Flat building sites within two blocks from an elevated station which is located directly on our property, and at present under construction with the L running right through our subdivision. Thirty-two minutes to loop. Only a few choice lots left which I am selling on very easy terms. No taxes or interest the first year. The road to financial independence is open to you. Act immediately. Address T T 501, Tribune.

Florida.

Florida calls! And we offer you the chance to see and prove for yourself the Wonderful Investment Opportunities which are found at

Miami and Coral Gables

Miami's increase in poulation has been 240 per cent since 1920. In the last census its increase was 440 per cent. This city and its surrounding territory is the fastest growing section in Florida. Such growth creates remarkable opportunities for investment.

Our representative, Mr. H. B. Forbes, will be at Room 1516, McCormick Bldg., 332 S. Michigan-av., for a few days only in business consultation with scores of investors in this city and vicinity who have already interested themselves in Miami and Coral Gables. He will also on this trip gladly meet any one interested in Florida who is desirous of knowing more about its resources and opportunities; and is especially qualified to give reliable information regarding south Florida real estate.

The opportunity is yours—now—to talk over this matter with one who knows, and if desired to make a special trip to Miami with Mr. Forbes to prove up the remarkable opportunities here presented.

Mr. Forbes will personally conduct a Florida excursion party from this city on Oct. 10th. Special rates and inducements are offered to all who desire to join this party. For complete information and reservations call, write or telegraph to

AMERICAN METHODS

In the Small Loan Business.

$10 TO $300

ON HOUSEHOLD GOODS,
PIANOS, ETC., WITHOUT REMOVAL.

Ten years of intensive investigation have proven that this business meets a real economic need. Illinois passed a law setting a fair rate of interest and licensing the lender. Loans are made for thousands of different purposes. If you need money in emergency, do not hesitate to call, phone, or write either of our offices. Repayment arranged in easy monthly installments of principal and interest. Loans can be reduced or paid in full any time. Interest ceases immediately on every dollar repaid.

Loans $10 to $300

You can get a loan of us on your furniture at small cost and repay it in easy monthly payments. It is not necessary to have a finely furnished home nor do we subject you to any red tape or delay, as loans can usually be arranged in a few hours. Strictly confidential. No inquiries of friends, relatives, or employer. The fact that we are licensed and supervised by the State and have been in business for 41 years should convince you of our reliability. Applications can be made by phone if not convenient to call at our office.

PACKARD

A USED PACKARD
Bought from Packard
Is a Safe Investment.

PACKARD SINGLE SIX 4 PASS. COUPE. Words cannot describe the beautiful appearance and the perfect mechanical condition of this car; all you can do is to picture a brand new car. Repainted in Packard blue and black, and guaranteed mechanically. Beautifully upholstered and protected with a finely tailored set of seat covers. Equipment consists of front and rear bumpers, snubbers, motometer, wind shield wiper, etc. Has almost new U. S. Royal cords, spare and cover, and nickeled radiator and lamps; price $2,600.

PACKARD SINGLE SIX 5 PASS. SEDAN. A car more beautiful in appearance or perfect mechanically never stood on our sales floor. It was just refinished standard Packard blue and black, with gold striping, entirely reconditioned in our shops, and carries our guarantee. The radiator and lamps are in silver. Equipment includes new seat covers, bumpers, motometer, snubbers, spare tire, cover and lock, etc. Tires in splendid condition. Practically a brand new car for $2,800.

PACKARD 1-16 SINGLE SIX 4 PASS. COUPE. Refinished in the Standard Packard blue and black and mechanically is in the finest condition. It is seldom that we receive one of this type in trade, and consequently they are in demand. The equipment is complete; snubbers, seat covers, motometer and wings, step plates, vision mirror, wind shield wiper, etc. Price $1,000.

HAYNES 1923 BUSINESS COUPE. WILL make an excellent closed business car for the coming cold weather. Mechanically it is in excellent condition and the paint is very good. Equipped with bumper and fender guards, 2 Clymer spotlights, snubbers, motometer, step plates, automatic wind shield cleaner, clock, spare tire and cover, etc. Tires in splendid shape. A good bargain at $800.

MOON 1923 TOURING. JUST REFINISHED, mechanically beyond criticism, and equipment includes a California top; upholstered in brown Spanish leather; equipment is very complete, including front and rear bumpers, motometer, step plates, spotlight, automatic windshield cleaner, body bars, 5 disc wheels, and 5 excellent cord tires; nickeled radiator and lamps. This represents one of our best values for $900.

NATIONAL 1923 TOURING. THIS IS ONE of the finest values in our stock. Just refinished in a beautiful blue and black, with red wheels and is very good mechanically. Equipped with Bearcat cord tires that have seen little service and one new spare, bumper, motometer and bar, wind shield wiper, etc. Price only $500.

CADILLAC MODEL 59 7 PASS. TOURING. It is impossible to describe the perfect running condition or the easy riding qualities and operation of this car without an inspection and a demonstration. It was just refinished in Cadillac blue and black, with white striping. Has all necessary equipment. $900.

FRANKLIN 5 PASS. BROUGHAM. PAINT in excellent condition. This car is well known for its economical upkeep and ease of operation. In splendid shape mechanically. Has 2 bumpers, 5 wire wheels, 5 very good tires, automatic wind shield wiper, stop light, etc. Price $500.

Packard Limousine
$1,485
This is one of the most remarkable values we have ever had to offer in a perfect running, easy riding Packard Twin Six Limousine. It would cost you several hundred dollars more than the price we are asking to duplicate this car.

It was just refinished in a deep maroon and black with red wheels and gold striping. Equipment includes Westinghouse shock absorbers, bumper, automatic windshield cleaner, step plates, motometer, nickel radiator and lamps, etc. Tires only slightly used. Carries our guarantee. A quality car priced far below its actual value.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

HENKEL & BEST LEASE STORE IN TRIBUNE TOWER

Plan Unusually Beautiful Retail Shop.

One of the most beautiful retail stores in the world is announced for The Tribune Tower by the Henkel & Best company, designers and manufacturers of lighting fixtures and lamps, who yesterday signed a lease with Holmes Onderdonk, manager of the Tower and other TRIBUNE real estate, for six years at a term rental of $73,800.

The lessees, who have been fifteen years in the Peoples Gas building, will occupy the boulevard level store just north of the main entrance to the Tower. They have two manufacturing plants on the north side and a branch office in Minneapolis.

Instead of the usual conglomeration of articles to be found in the average lighting fixture store, The Tribune Tower shop of the Henkel & Best company will resemble the lounge of an exclusive club. Only a few lighting fixtures will be on view and these will be individually shown in separate alcoves hung with luxurious drapes.

Ninety per cent of the business of this concern is making and installing fixtures in hotels, banks, clubs, theaters, etc. Some local installations have been at the Garden of Allah, Pershing Palace, Rainbo Garden, Hotel Sherman, Ambassador hotel, Sovereign hotel, etc. It has been established eighteen years. H. A. Best is president. A. A. Henkel is the other member of the firm.

New Books by Realtors

Frank Randolph Chandler, one of the charter members of the Chicago Real Estate board and a founder of the realty firm of Chandler, Hildreth & Co., celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday on Thursday by getting the first copy of his new book on "Che-Cau-Gou" from the printers. The brown leather binding is emblazoned with a brilliant red and gold strip bearing the letters "Ganinwari's Chicago."

FRANK R. CHANDLER.

The book, which he dedicated to the Chicago Historical society, is divided into four parts: Prehistoric, Discovery of America, The Founding of a City and Her Magical Growth, Anno Domini 2000, Contrasts and Predictions. It has a number of brief biographies of famous Chicagoans and is rich in local historical lore and is illustrated.

"How to Make Money in Real Estate" is the alluring title to the latest work from the pen of Stanley L. McMichael of Cleveland, Ohio. Out of his own experience the author gives concrete advice on speculating in land. One chapter is devoted to "Periods of Inflation and Depression." Some of the other chapters are: "How You Can Lose Money in Real Estate;" "Investing in Vacant Lots;" "When and How to Speculate;" "The Woman in Real Estate;" "Real Estate as a Career."

STANLEY McMICHAEL.

The third volume in the standard course in real estate outlined by the joint commission representing the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the United Y. M. C. A. schools and the Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, has just been published by McMillan. It is called "The Appraisal of Real Estate" and is by Frederick M. Babcock, a Chicago realtor. The preface states that very little literature has appeared which covers the scientific field, and the present volume is "presented in an effort to clarify thought in connection with appraisal procedure."

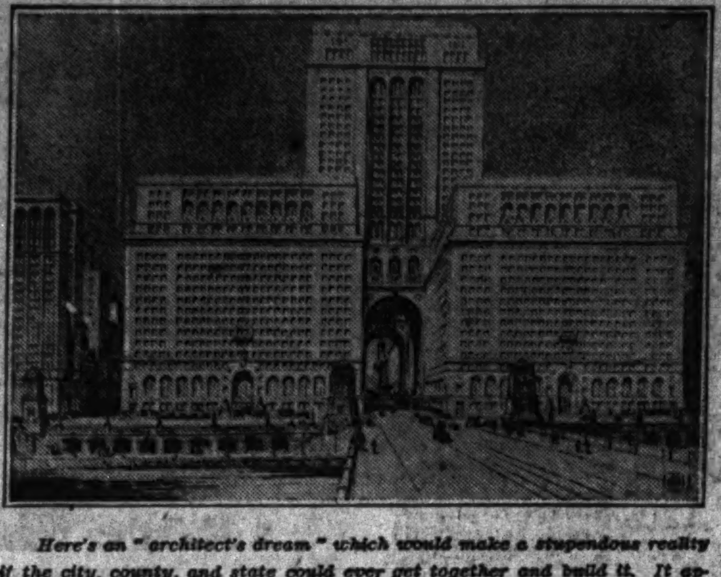
BOUL MICH OIL LEASE.

The Cosden company has rented 2,500 sq. ft. in the Blum building, 624 South Michigan, for five years. Chester Twaddle was broker for all parties. The Cosden company recently bought the Taxman Refining company. Later the Taxman local offices in the Lake View building and the Kansas City offices of that company will be moved to the Blum building.

TO BUILD ON SOUTH SIDE CORNER.

Oscar Geis has bought the northeast corner of 71st and Constance at a reported $63,000, and contemplates erecting a combination store, apartment and garage building. Hefter, Wells and Beatty will manage the property.

Suggested City-County-State Building



Here's an "architect's dream" which would make a stupendous reality if the city, county, and state could ever get together and build it. It appears in the book on Chicago just written by Frank R. Chandler, a veteran realtor who celebrated his 84th birthday on Thursday. The volume is called "Che-Cau-Gou, a history, a romance in the evolution of a great city from the Garden of Eden to the end of the twentieth century, by Onkwe Ganinwari."

The above "dream" is a structure to house all of the governmental departments of a future Greater Chicago. The plan consists of four great buildings, each occupying a city block, and surmounted by a fifth. The two streets intersect the group of buildings and pass through the central building in both directions. One building is assigned to city executive offices, one to county offices, one to state offices and departments, one to the police and courts, and these four crowned by the education building. The architect is Hugh M. G. Garden of Schmidt, Garden & Martin.

STRAUS WARNING STIRS OTHER BOND HOUSES TO COMMENTS ON RENTS

The statement printed in this department on Sunday by S. J. T. Straus, that rents were tumbling and apartment building should slow up for at least six months, brought in, as usual, letters from other bond houses

WALTER J. GREENEBAUM. [International Photo]

Lackner, Butz & Co. write that they beat Mr. Straus to it in predicting lower rents, and inclose some proofs of ads which they ran in THE TRIBUNE last July. Careful reading of the proofs show they stated that "rents are high and that a reduction is both desirable and probable," and "general conditions indicate a possible future reduction in apartment rentals," but we find no definite statement that rents already had been cut and are being cut, as flat hunters have known for several months. So that's that.

Walter J. Greenebaum, vice president of the Greenebaum Sons' Investment company, also was inspired by the Straus warning to write this department a lengthy epistle. He apparently hasn't heard about rents coming down, however, for he states that lower rents "would be a great benefit to tenants" and wouldn't affect bonds negotiated by conservative houses.

He adds: "It has been the policy of our house for some time to figure on a reduction of present rentals of at least 25 per cent before considering any apartment building bond issues."

He also says: "While I don't believe we'll have any large reduction in residential rentals, the gradual lowering of building costs would permit a corresponding reduction of rental income.

"Outside of one or two very active sections, the apartment building construction in Chicago has simply kept pace with the normal growth of the city."

And that also is that.

Building Permits

There were eleven building permits filed yesterday for a total of $156,600. Those for $10,000 and over were:

Montrose-av., 2946, two story brick flats; J. Schroeder, owner; B. J. Bruns, arch.; Gleixner Construction company, mason and carp.	$24,000
Sixty-third-st., W., 1547-49, two story brick stores and flats; W. Kontos, owner; Oldefest-Williams, archs.; Anderson-Winblad, mason	50,000
Sixty-third-st., W., 3432, two story brick store and flat; O. Westberg, owner, mason, and carp.; W. H. Lautz, arch.	18,000
Augusta-st., 4906-08, two story brick apartment; O. Thompson, owner and carp.; G. R. Pearson, arch.	25,000

DEARBORN CLUB TO BE CALLED "THE CLARIDGE"

13 Story Building to Be Made Hotel.

North Dearborn street is to have a new exclusive hotel, to be called "The Claridge," as a result of H. E. Rice Sr. and Harry E. Rice Jr., who operate the Pershing hotel on Cottage Grove, leasing the thirteen story building at 1242-44 Dearborn for fifteen years at a term rental reported to be $2,185,000.

The building, a new one, was built by Otto A. Altschul, the lessor in the present deal, and contains 300 rooms. It has a swimming tank, a gymnasium, hand ball court, roque court, billiard room, tea shop, dining room, and lounge. It was originally intended to be operated as a bachelor hotel and was called "The Dearborn club."

The Claridge Hotel corporation will operate the newly christened Claridge. The building stands on a 50x150 lot. Theodore W. May of William C. Regelin's office represented the lessees and F. L. Fifer the lessor.

President Zander Urges Attendance at Galesburg

Anticipating legislative activity at Springfield during the coming winter, both for and against realtors, President Henry G. Zander has sent out letters to members of the Chicago Real Estate board urging them to attend the coming state convention at Galesburg next week. Plans for the protection of realty interests at the state capital will be made at the gathering of the state real estate boards.

Offers $500 Prize for Neighborhood Service

In connection with the Five Minute Speech contest for the Lonnquist cup at the coming banquet of the Chicago Real Estate board, Axel Lonnquist, donor of the cup, announces an additional prize of $500 to be awarded to the institution or organization in the winning district which has been of most service to its community during the year. The award will be made by a committee to be announced later.

WEST ERIE STREET LEASE.

Nathan K. Aranoff has bought the three story building, 75x100, at 350 West Erie, from the Way Sagless Spring company, for a reported $35,000, and will remodel it at an expense of $50,000 and occupy it with his book shop bindery. Paul C. Loeber & Co. were brokers.

$160,000 GROVE DEAL.

The sixty-four flats at 3527-35 Cottage Grove were sold by Robert H. Fleming to Moses Samuel for an indicated $160,000. A. I. Schwerdlin was attorney.

LEASES HOTEL MELBOURNE.

Harry Winder has leased the Hotel Melbourne at 4625 North Racine for ten years at a reported term rental of $255,000. Francis Johnson was broker.

"Standard" PLUMBING FIXTURES

The plumbing equipment of Hotel Aragon is completely "Standard"—Nickeled Brass Fixtures as well as Plumbing Fixtures.

When the builders of this hotel selected complete "Standard" plumbing equipment for this building, they had in mind the longer term of service and satisfactory performance that a complete "Standard" equipment gives.

"Standard" Nickeled Brass Fixtures are made for use with "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures and when used together—as they should be—prevent the dissatisfaction which may arise when "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures are equipped with inferior brass fittings.

A complete display of "Standard" Plumbing Fixtures, each equipped with the correct "Standard" Nickeled Brass Fixtures, is a permanent feature of the Chicago "Standard" Showroom. Use this display when selecting effective plumbing fixtures. Look for the name "Standard" cast or stamped on each Nickeled Brass Fixture.

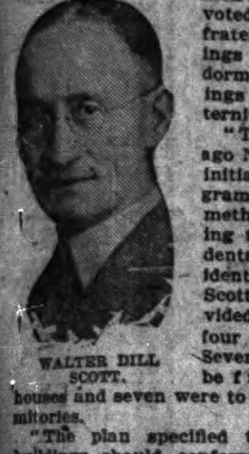
PLAN $2,000,000 MEN'S CAMPUS AT NORTHWESTERN U

Work Starts on 2 New Chapter Houses.

BY AL CHASE.

Northwestern university is to have what ultimately will be a $2,000,000 men's campus devoted solely to fraternity buildings and open dormitory buildings for nonfraternity students.



WALTER DILL SCOTT.

"Twelve years ago Northwestern initiated a program for a unique method of housing the men students," said President Walter Dill Scott. "It provided for twenty-four dormitories. Seventeen were to be fraternity houses and seven were to be open dormitories.

"The plan specified that all the buildings should conform to a common architectural design, be approximately the same size, and cost about the same amount.

Each to House Thirty

"Each dormitory was to house approximately thirty students. Each fraternity was to finance and control its own house. The open dormitories were to be financed and controlled by the university.

"A few of the fraternities felt that the plan would deprive the chapter of its independence and failed to take advantage of the opportunity. Nine fraternities, however, accepted the plan and chapter houses were built, and in addition the university constructed four open dormitories.

"These thirteen dormitories have now been in operation for ten years and the program is recognized as successful. Accordingly, steps are now being taken to carry out the entire program. Each fraternity that failed to build ten years ago is now anxious for the opportunity to build.

Two Ready September, 1925.

Phi Delta Theta and Phi Kappa Sigma are about to erect chapter houses at the north end of the men's dormitory quadrangle at a total estimated cost of $175,000, which is $75,000 for each building and $25,000 for landscape work to be paid for by the university itself. They are expected to be ready for occupancy by September, 1925.

Granger, Lowe & Bollenbacher designed the two buildings in much the same style of architecture already in use on the quadrangle. Each will be three stories, with large living rooms and library on the first floor, equipped with huge fireplaces. The living quarters are arranged in suites of two rooms each, for two men, with a bedroom and study. There'll be accommodations for twenty-six active members and two guests.

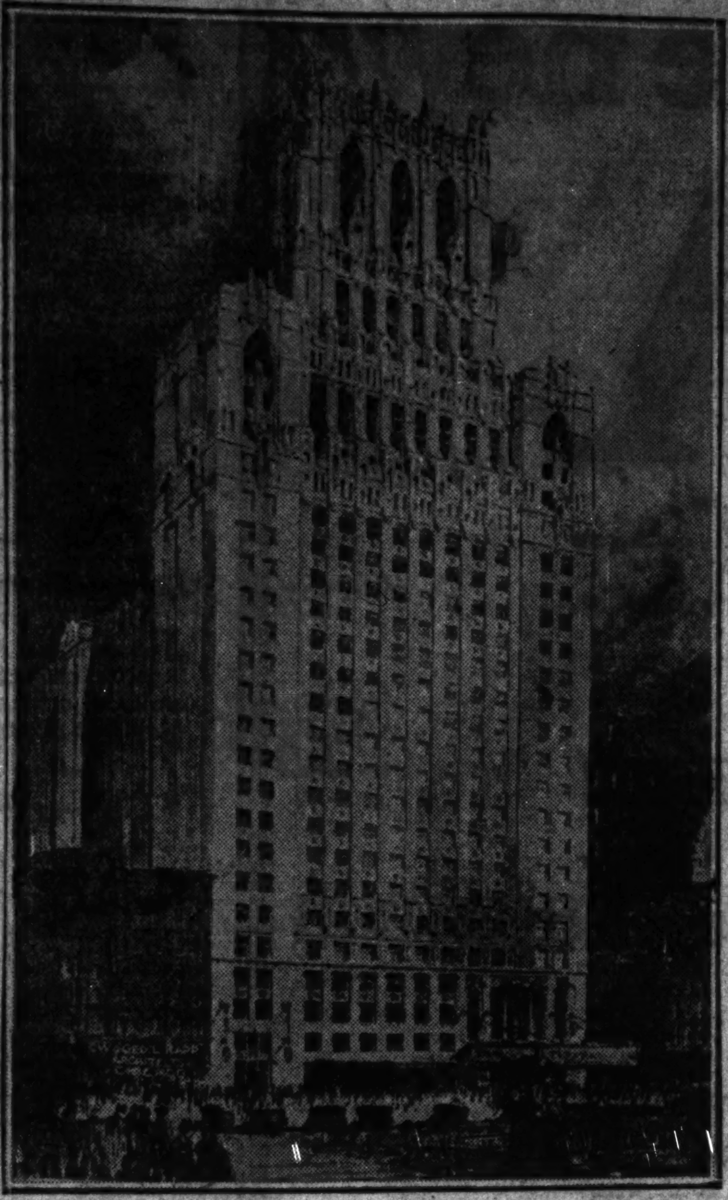
Nine Frat Houses Open.

There are now seven national fraternity houses on the quadrangle: Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Nu, Delta Tau Delta, Delta Upsilon, Beta Theta Pi, Sigma Chi, and Phi Kappa Psi. Two local fraternities, the Scribblers and Wranglers, have houses.

The open dormitories for nonfraternity men are Lindgren house, Haven house, Hinman house, and Foster house.

The fraternity buildings are financed by the chapters paying down so much cash and by the university standing back of the obligation and accepting annual payment both on principal and interest until the entire debt is wiped out. The open dormitories are gifts to the university by wealthy individuals. There still is room for eight more dormitory buildings, tentatively divided into three fraternity and five open dormitories.

New Design for Loop Masonic Temple



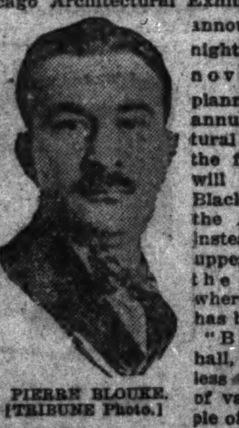
Chicago will have one of the most magnificent buildings in the world devoted to Masonic activities as a result of Architects C. W. and George L. Rapp designing a taller and much more beautiful structure for the new United Masonic temple to be built on the site of the Colonial theater, now being wrecked.

Above is the new design, showing a 270 foot building and a 100 foot tower. A drive for additional funds for this tower is planned during the construction of the main building. The tower will add materially to the beauty and dignity of the big temple.

Contracts have been awarded for the construction of the $5,000,000 building, to contain a huge movie theater, lodge halls, and offices. As the Colonial is now so far gone under the pickaxes of the wreckers that all of the marble has been torn out, the roof off, and much of the steel out, it would seem that the persistent rumor that the Colonial was about to be reopened was about ready for the obituary column.

News of the Architects

Pierre Blouke, president of the Chicago Architectural Exhibition league, announced last night that two innovations are planned for the annual architectural exhibit. For the first time it will be held in Blackstone hall in the Art institute instead of in the upper galleries of the institute, where it formerly has been located.



PIERRE BLOUKE. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

"Blackstone hall, is more or less a storehouse of valuable example of architecture of antiquity and will make an unusual and striking background for the exhibit of architecture of today," said Mr. Blouke.

The second innovation is the change in the date of the exhibit. For several years it has been held in May. Next year it will be held from Feb. 2 to March 2 in order that it may be forwarded to the national exhibition to be held in the Grand Central Palace in New York next April.

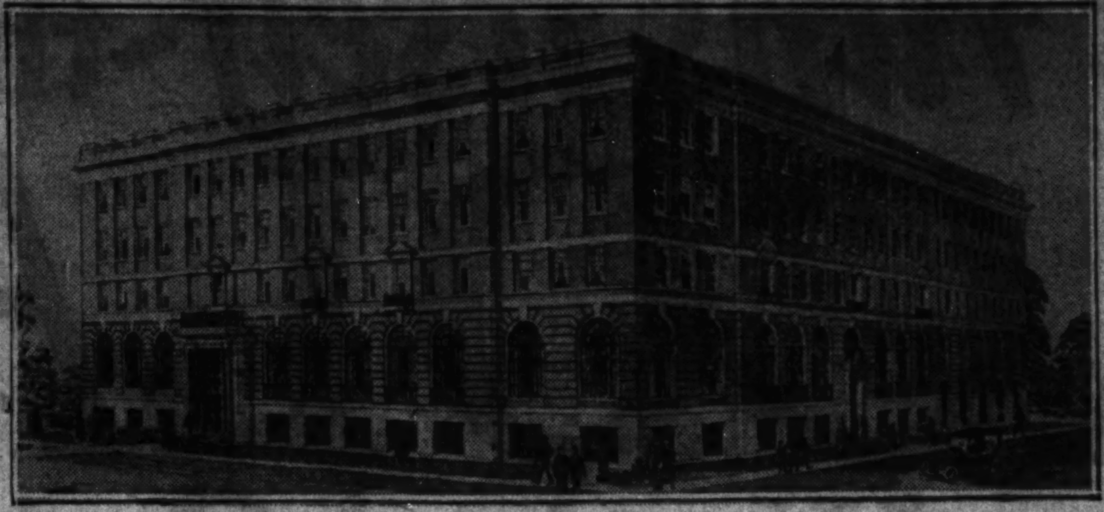
BUYS BELLWOOD ACRES.

Lillie Dahloff took title for a syndicate to the forty acres at the southeast corner of Madison street and Mannheim road, Bellwood. The sellers were Adam, Jacob and Emma Gloe and August A. Timke. The indicated price was $57,000. Warren A. Budkley was attorney.

Englewood Y. M. C. A. Building



Bids will be asked for shortly on the above Englewood Y. M. C. A. building to be erected on the north side of 66th street between Lowe and Union. It will face 150 feet on Union and 180 on 66th; the balance of the block long site will be used for tennis, etc.

There'll be two gymnasiums, a standard swimming pool, three handball courts, two shower bath rooms, cafeteria, and billiard room. Three separate lobbies are planned, one for men, one for older boys, and one for youngsters, with accompanying reading, game, and club rooms. Plans call for 206 dormitory rooms. Berlin & Swern of Chicago, with J. G. Rogers and William Chambers, eastern architects, associated.

K. of C. Announces Realty Course for Ex-Service Men

To meet the demand for knowledge of the real estate profession by war veterans attracted to the business by its activity, the Knights of Columbus free evening schools for former service men and women have added a realty course.

This will be taught at the three K. C. schools, at St. Ignatius college on the west side, De Paul university on the north side, and the old south division high school at 26th and Wabash. Although the schools opened last Monday, registration will be kept open for another week, it is stated.

Leases Space on Randolph Street for Dancing Studio

La Verne Marseillaise has leased from John Rakllos & Co. the third floor at 81 West Randolph for ten years at a term rental of $55,000 for a dancing studio. The Brownlee Realty company was broker.

MURRAY WOLBACH ADDS TO SOUTH WATER HOLDINGS

Murray Wolbach yesterday leased the forty-eight feet of frontage at 54-58 East South Water street, with a depth of eighty-five feet, for ninety-nine years at an average annual rental of $10,647. As he already owned the corner, he now has a frontage on South Water of ninety-six feet, seventy-seven on Wabash and forty-eight on River street.

This will be one of the dominating sites for a skyscraper when the South Water street drive is completed, and undoubtedly eventually will be used for a tall building.

Newton B. Lauren & Co. represented Mr. Wolbach and the Bowes Realty company the lessor, Edward R. Hills, trustee of the L. C. Freer estate. The old four story building is occupied by John A. Tolman.

FLATS FOR GORDON TERRACE.

Robert C. Ostegren is drawing plans for Frank G. Gustafson for a twenty-one flat building to be erected at 702 Gordon terrace.

Walgreen Drug to Open Store at Halsted-79th

Walgreen's drug stores are increasing at such a rapid rate that the officials aren't exactly sure what the latest emporium's number is. For instance, the company has just leased the southeast corner of 79th and Halsted for fifteen years from Oct. 1 at a term rental of $181,100 and will open either the fifty-fourth or fifty-fifth store. No one seems to be sure just which it'll be. Extensive alterations will be made and the opening will take place in about a month.

Sorosis Shoe Leases Shop in Willoughby Building

The Sorosis Shoe company has leased the 20x50 store at 77 East Madison, in the Willoughby building, for eight years from May 1, 1925, at a term rental reported by Willoughby & Co., who negotiated the deal, to be $81,500.

Real Estate
ON WHICH YOU CAN Realize

Our business is to make money for you. We are brokers of real estate, not bucket shop operators. We do not speculate with our money or yours. We do not consider a sale, a sale, but we do consider a customer, a customer. If you buy through us we expect to resell for you, expect to turn your money quickly and profitably—that's our business. If you wish to keep the property, and build a home on it—that's your business. We serve our customers; we do not try to make money at their expense.

Three Magnificent Properties

Lake Forest
Knollwood Estates
Highland Park
Sunset Manor
Ravinia
Hillside Holdings

As you drive north from Chicago, over the perfect roads that wind in and out through the beautiful suburbs, you are impressed with the fact that it will be but a short stretch of years before Chicago will run to Lake Bluff with a continuous line of residences. From the time when all this land was farms, to the present almost solidly built up, thickly populated district, has been a little over ten years. Another ten years will find this district almost priceless. Already property is being subdivided miles west of the lake, at high figures.

How much more enticing are the three magnificent properties offered by Lawrence P. Romano & Company—the beautiful acreage just across the road from the new Knollwood Golf Course, surrounded by the country homes of multimillionaires. Or Sunset Manor, where at prices unbelievably low, residence and business property can be secured from us within the corporate limits of Highland Park. Or the natural gem we have just secured at Ravinia. Nowhere else around Chicago can you have a home with a view like the beautiful Skokie Valley lying in plain view.

Those who buy to build, and those who buy to hold, and those who buy for quick returns, should not fail to look at these three magnificent properties.

Sunset Manor

We were in on the ground floor. We secured this property right on the Deerfield Road, the main east and west thoroughfare of Highland Park, before it was known that the new electric road is no longer a guess. Here is a place for a home. Here is a place for stores. Here will be an important station on this rapid transit line, within thirty-five minutes of downtown Chicago after you board the train.

Write to us, call us on the telephone . . . or send the coupon and let us write to you of the unusual investment opportunity offered by Sunset Manor.

Ravinia's Secret

Years ago, a man intensely active in big business affairs, looked over every spot along the north shore for a home—where, after days of strenuous work, he could come and watch the peaceful evening shadows fall across Skokie Valley, the beautiful. He picked this spot. He purchased broad acres, skirting the Green Bay Road, and built here his home. This property has never been on the market. It was his to own and hold. Many, driving along the Green Bay Road, envied him this truly wonderful homesite. Many have stopped to see the sun set behind the forest, miles to the west. There has been many a longing for a similar home in a similar site.

The owner of this property is about to change his business and move to another state and these fine acres of hillside property will be divided into homesite lots and offered to exclusive lists of residence builders. Think of it—a view such as you would find nowhere else around Chicago; absolute oblivion from the noise and roar of the city, and yet within 1,200 feet of the Ravinia Railroad Station, with express trains every few minutes to the loop, with direct access to as fine an automobile road as there is in the city. The Northmoor Golf Club lies at your feet in all its well-kept verdure and beauty. For those who really want a home on the north shore, there is nothing to be had at any price which will surpass it. Still, this property must move quickly, and to right purchasers will be quoted very low.

Lake Forest Estates

Lake Forest has been for many years the exclusive residence district of Chicago. West of Lake Forest are the Armour and Swift estates. Here are the magnificent homes of A. B. Dick, Lucius Teter, Samuel Insull, and others of Chicago's men of great wealth. Work is already well along on what will be the finest golf course in the world, the most complete country club with its tennis courts, its polo fields, its miles and miles of bridle paths, its magnificent club house.

Within a stone's throw of this most exclusive of Chicago's clubs, we hold 64 acres of land, ideal for residence purposes. It is not our plan to divide this up in small parcels. Here will be built the country homes of men of means. There would be for a group of friends, six ten-acre tracts, a park of six mansions. Or, for those who wish to build less ambitiously, the property could be divided into ten six-acre tracts, with equal advantages for landscape gardening and home structure. This is something to think about for those who have the means. Purchase requirements will be most exclusive.

Sale and Resale

All of the land now held by Lawrence P. Romano & Company is priced at a figure which literally guarantees the purchaser a handsome profit, if he wishes to buy and hold for only a short time. Every foot of ground which we control is ideal for the purpose to which it has been devoted—desirable, wanted, salable.

If you want a home, or if you wish to buy as an investment, you will find nothing better anywhere in the real estate field. As we said above, this company is DIFFERENT. We do not sell property to get rid of it. We serve a select list of customers, for whom we both buy and sell. We have a staff composed of men who know the real estate field thoroughly. Mr. Romano himself has been for a number of years a most successful operator. Only the highest type of men, of unquestioned integrity, is included among our associates. One of these will be glad to show you the opportunity which lies in these lots.

Telephone us, call at our office, or send in the coupon below. Those of us who call on you will have consideration for your time, and other interests. We wish to be helpful, not annoying. Call, phone, or write to:

Almost runs itself~the new ARCOLA Hot-water Heating Outfit

HOME OWNERS! STORE OWNERS! FLAT OWNERS! You have never seen a heating outfit like this new Arcola. It almost runs itself—and it will pay for itself in the fuel it saves.

LIKE the many thousand Arcolas now in use, the new Arcola, with an American Radiator in each room, will warm the whole house from only one fire, with far less fuel than stoves require. And, thanks to its system of self-regulation, it needs practically no care. Just a little fuel occasionally and Arcola does the rest. No dust, no dirt, no worry.

Store owners and landlords!

The new Arcola has a special interest for you. Customers like to come to the Arcola-warmed store, as testified by hundreds of owners and tenants of small stores and shops in and about Chicago. If you are a landlord renting stores or flats requiring separate heat, any real estate man will tell you that the Arcola-warmed building rents for more and sells for more, to say nothing of the added satisfaction of the tenants.

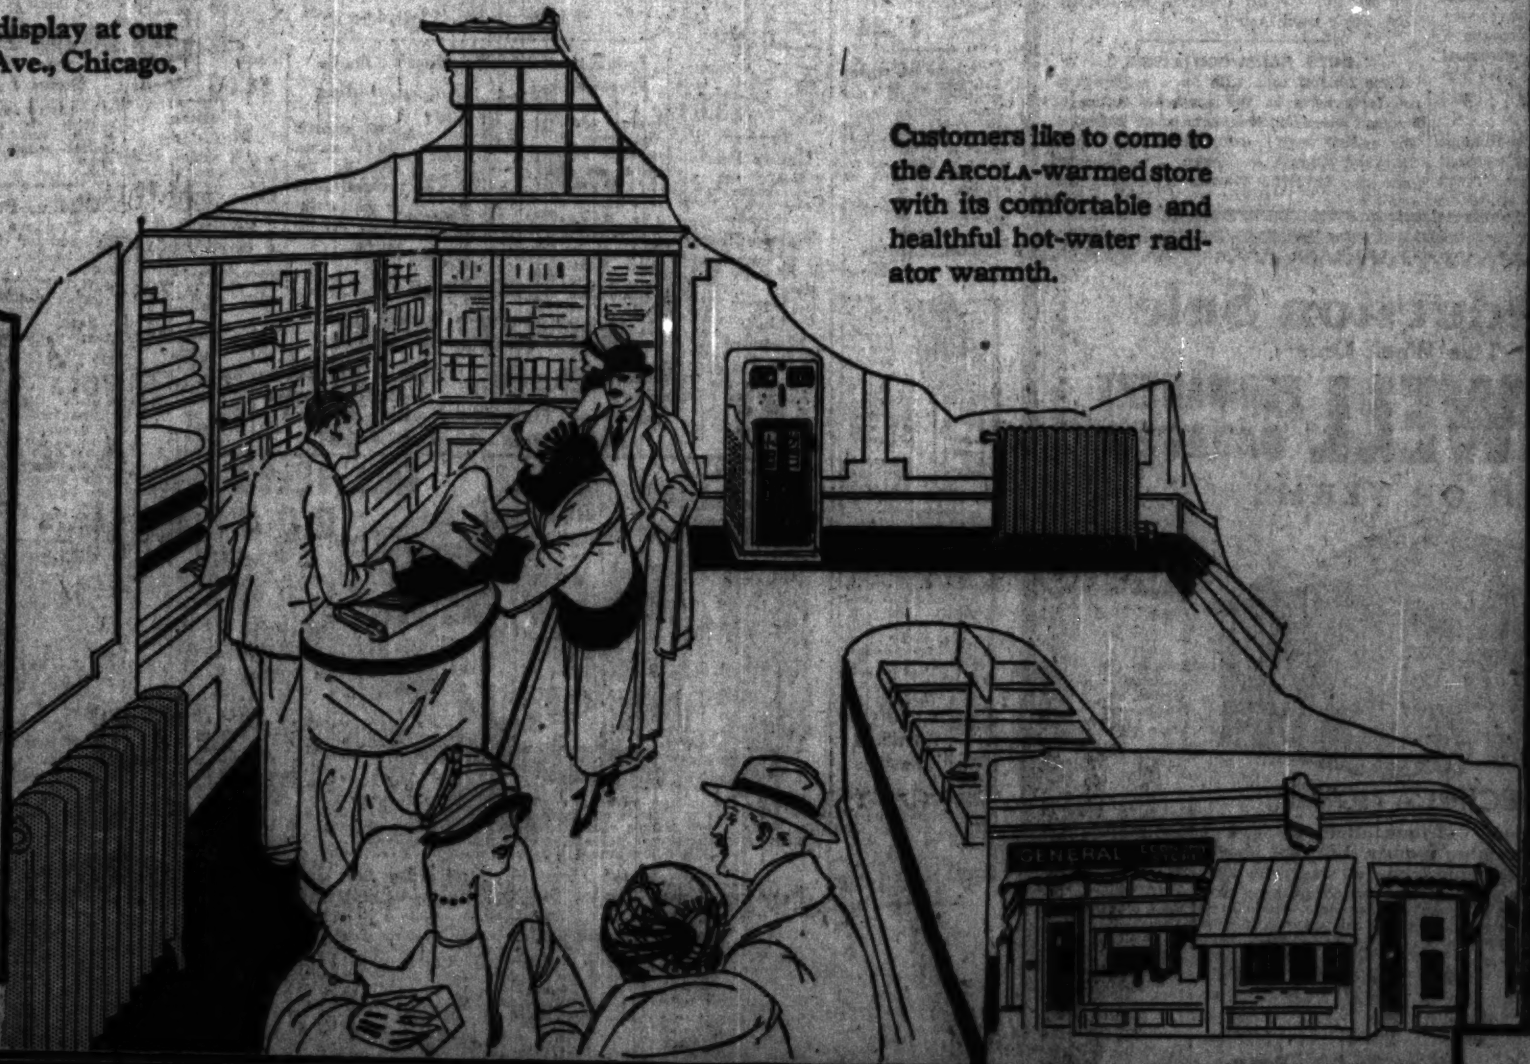
Home owners!

The new Arcola has still greater attractions for you. With its glistening gray enameled jacket, Arcola is an ornament in any living room or dining room. Its polished surface can be cleaned as easily as a piece of china; and through its pyrex glass door panels the fire sends forth a genial glow with all the friendly effect of an open fire.

Ask at the nearest Heating Store for an estimate

Let them demonstrate this wonderful new heating outfit. Ask about the Easy Payment Plan; for Arcola can be yours, completely installed with American Radiators, for only a few dollars down; the balance you pay in easy monthly installments, while Arcola is paying back to you its first cost in the fuel it saves.

The new Arcola is also on display at our headquarters, 816 So. Mich. Ave., Chicago.



Customers like to come to the Arcola-warmed store with its comfortable and healthful hot-water radiator warmth.

ARCOLA
can be yours for a few dollars down

For small homes without basements the new Ideal Arcola Heating Outfit. It furnishes hot-water, radiator warmth for stores, offices, garages and other small buildings as well.

For small homes with basements the new Ideal Assembled Sectional Boiler. Very low priced to meet the demand for radiator warmth in this type of home.

For medium-sized homes the new Ideal ARCO Round Boiler. For a generation, the standard in its field, and now greatly improved though lower in price.

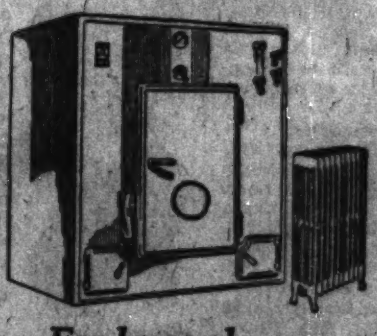
For average-sized homes the Ideal ARCO Sectional Boiler. Another new member of the Ideal family, moderately priced, efficient and economical.



For larger homes

the new Ideal TYPE A Heat Machine. Also for offices, schools, churches and other buildings. Already famous for its beauty and economy of fuel, it has been made even more efficient and attractive.

For larger buildings the new Ideal Smokeless Boiler where soft coal is used. For larger schools, apartments, churches, offices and other buildings. Through its Ideal Smoke Oxidizer, it burns its own smoke and saves fuel as well.

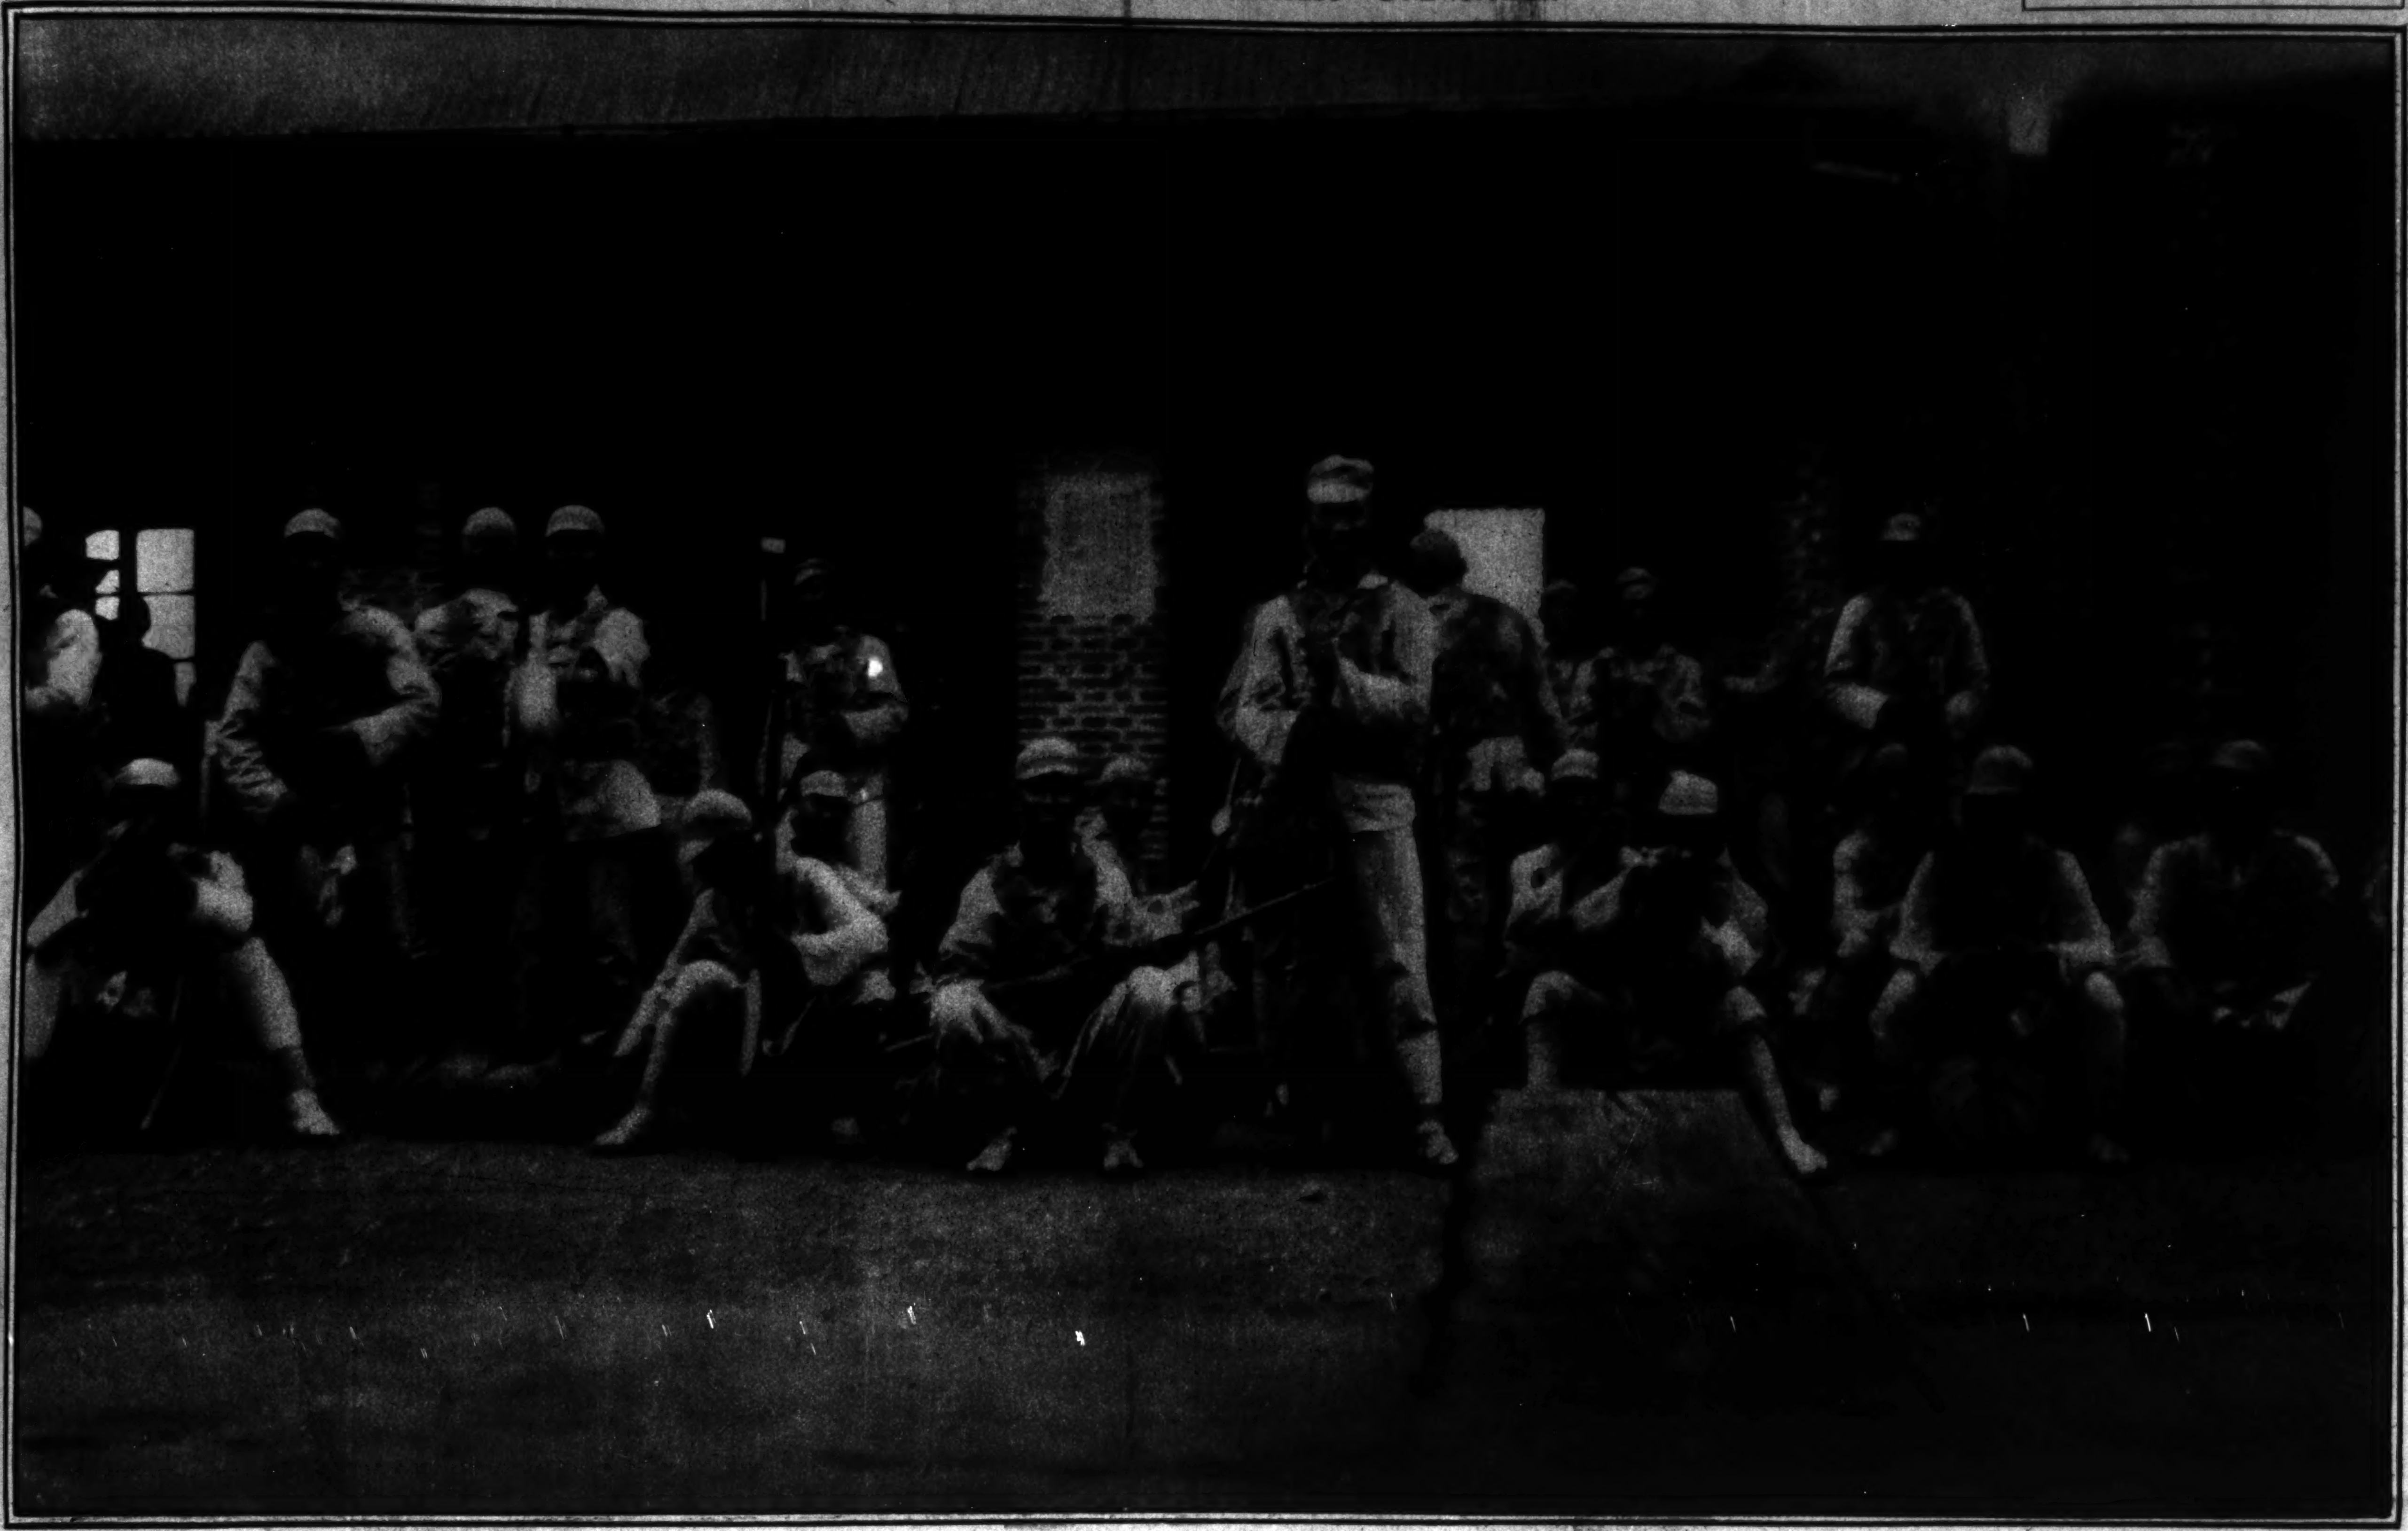
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

October 5, 1924



A PHOTOGRAPHER RISKED HIS LIFE TO GET THIS PICTURE—Though some of the men in it are smiling, events proved that the taking of it was a perilous business. Seeking something authentic on the fighting in China, a venturesome American with a tiny vest pocket camera had come upon these Chekiang troops at Huangtu, fifteen miles from Shanghai. He did not see the soldier at the right, with the gun aimed directly at him, being intent on watching the man at the left who was reaching for a rock. The rock eventually was thrown, just missing the American, and the adventurer was twice arrested while on the battle line and taken back to Shanghai under military guard. But he managed to hide his films and save them.

(Photograph from Pacific & Atlantic.)

NO FOOL BUSINESS OF SMILING did these surly soldier cooks indulge in when the camera man edged along into their neighborhood. They chased the intruder away with brandished meat cleavers. War in China today is a grim and businesslike affair. No pomp, not many niceties—nothing martial even about the uniform, which looks like merely a suit of flimsy overalls with a workman's cap.

(Photograph from Pacific & Atlantic.)

WHEN HOME WAS 28,000 MILES FROM HOME—Lieut. Lowell Smith, commander of the army's round the world flight, greeted by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Smith, on his arrival at Rockwell field, San Diego, the actual (though not the official) starting point of the history-making voyage through the air. Not many men have found it necessary to circle the globe to get back to their mother's arms.

The Fleischmann Company announces

$5,000⁰⁰ IN PRIZES

in a great nation-wide

HEALTH CONTEST

for the best true stories on What Fleischmann's Yeast has done for you

THE first Yeast for Health contest—announced a year ago—brought an instant and astonishing response: letters from all over America, from men and women in every walk of life.

But during the past twelve months the increased demand for this simple fresh food has been more astonishing still. There are literally hundreds of thousands more Yeast enthusiasts today—hundreds of thousands of former sufferers whom Yeast has restored to health.

And so we are announcing a second contest.

* * *

During the past seven years a long series of experiments, conducted by eminent medical authorities in the leading scientific institutions of the country, has definitely established the value of Fleischmann's Yeast as a health food.

Constipation conquered—stomach troubles relieved—vitality restored and skin disorders removed—from every state in the Union comes confirmation of these amazing facts.

And every one of the thousands of letters which reach us has its definite value. Classified, analyzed, these reports play an important part in studying the effects of Yeast on American health.

Adding Fleischmann's Yeast to the daily diet has literally transformed the lives of millions of men and women. We know that. We have heard from thousands of them. We want to hear from thousands more.

JUST sit down and write the story of your experience with yeast. You can write freely, without restraint, for your letter will not be made public without your permission. Just glance below at some of the extracts from letters received recently. Your own experiences with Fleischmann's Yeast may have been even more remarkable.

Remember, the contest closes November 5th and this is the only announcement that will appear. Follow the rules carefully—keep them before you. Then send us your story. The names of the prize winners will be published in this paper about the middle of December.

If you have ever eaten Yeast—decide to enter now!

Prizes

1st Prize	$1,000.00
2nd Prize	600.00
3rd Prize	400.00
10 Prizes of	100.00 each
40 Prizes of	25.00 each
100 Prizes of	10.00 each

HOW TO WIN THEM

1. This Contest is open freely to all whose health has been benefited by Fleischmann's Yeast prior to this announcement. (Employees of The Fleischmann Company alone excepted.) Simply write in not more than 200 words your story of what Fleischmann's Yeast has done for you.
2. Use white paper of standard size, 8½ x 11. This is very important. Reports received on any other kind will be disqualified. Use only one sheet of paper (both sides, if necessary).
3. Print your name, complete address, and date at top of the sheet.
4. Use pen and ink or typewriter.
5. Sign your name at the end of your report. You must also have a witness (some one who knows your report to be accurate) sign his or her name under yours.
6. Mail your report in stamped, sealed envelope to The Fleischmann Company, P. O. Box 1251, City Hall Station, New York, N. Y. All reports must be in our hands before midnight of November 5th, 1924.
7. No papers will be acknowledged or returned. We do not require photographs, and cannot return them if sent.
8. Prizes for the most interesting and convincing reports will be awarded by a board of impartial judges headed by John B. Watson, Ph.D., LL. D., Editor of the Journal of Experimental Psychology, formerly Head of the Department of Psychology, Johns Hopkins University.

"When all the other girls were wearing their first low-necked dresses, I was staying at home — all on account of a breaking-out on my back that I simply couldn't get rid of. It was awful. One day my chum told me about Fleischmann's Yeast and urged me to take it. I took half a cake dissolved in water before every meal — it is not only easy to take but delightful — and in two weeks every trace of the eruption had disappeared. It worked like magic, really, and made me feel like a different person."

(Miss Esther Shaw of Sanford, Calif.)

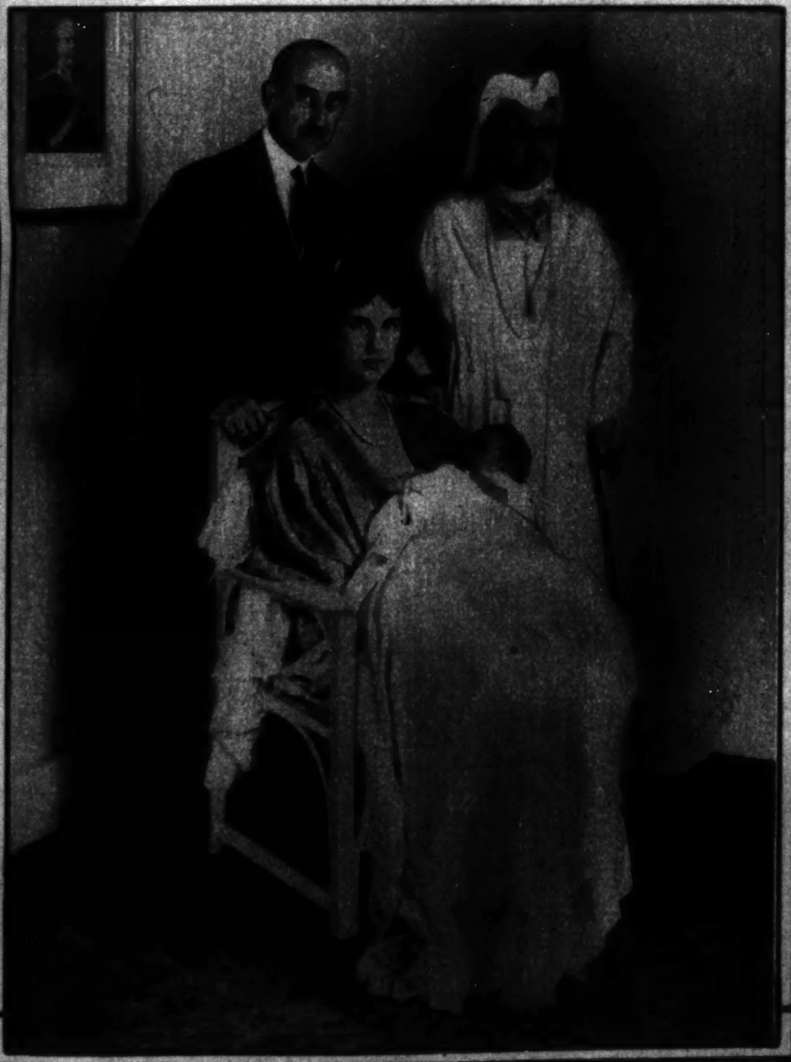
"I felt 'fagged' in the morning when I went to the office. At luncheon I ate my food with a growing resentment at the necessity of eating. At dinner I merely nibbled at morsels of food. I was nervous and irritable. Then I began eating yeast — Fleischmann's — and noticed my appetite returning. My face lost its sallowness, and the pimples on my skin disappeared; my grouch went the way of the eruptions."

(Extract from a letter of Mr. A. F. Lockhart, of St. Louis, Mo.)

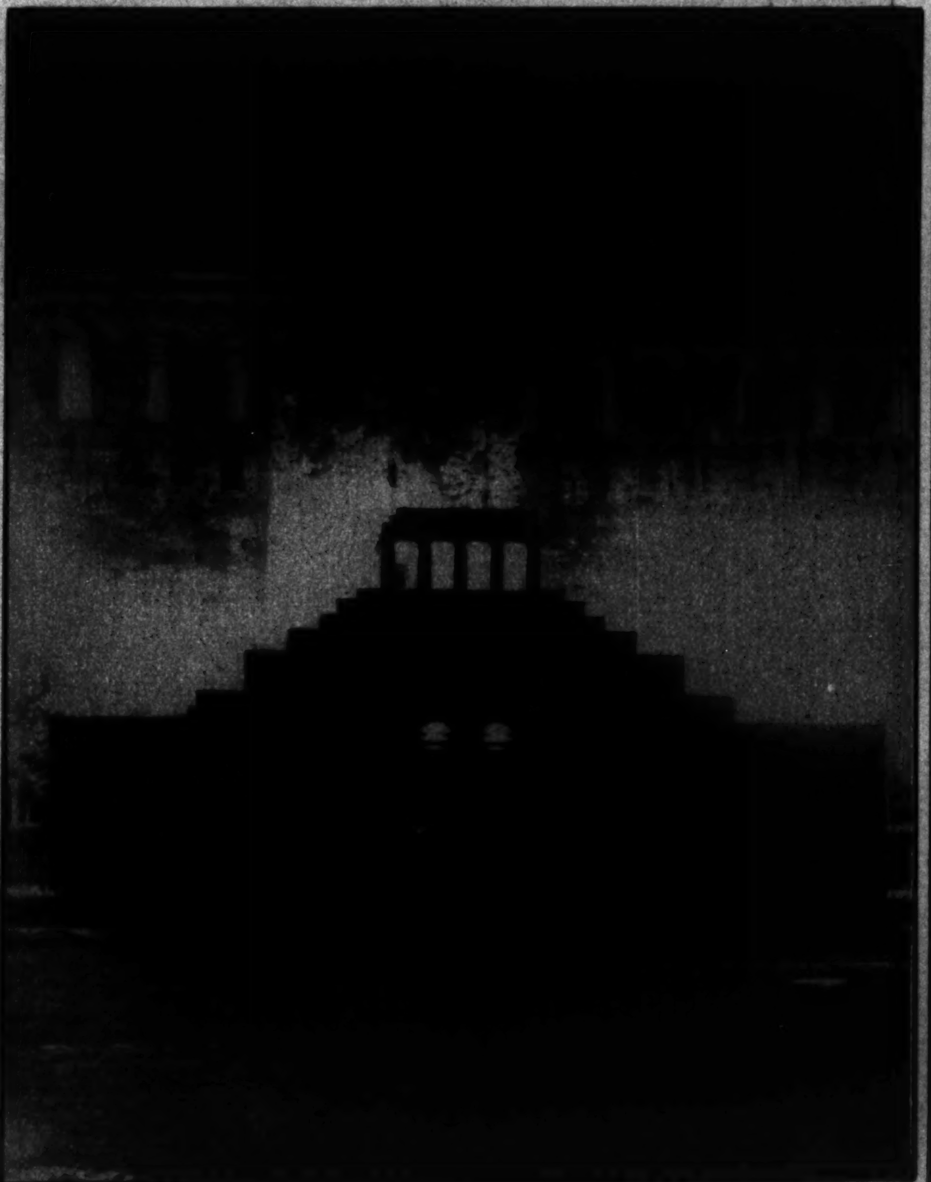
"I did not eat six cakes of Yeast and feel myself improving immediately. In fact for one month I used 3 cakes a day without any visible improvement. But by the middle of August, my chronic constipation commenced to give way — I again consulted our family physician, who told me to use no other remedies but Fleischmann's Yeast. . . . Today my troubles have become ancient history — thanks to the remarkable effects of Fleischmann's Yeast."

(Miss Ruth Rollband of Utica, N. Y.)

GALA DAY AT URBINO—From farms ten, twenty, thirty miles away, Italy's finest white cattle had come over beautiful winding roads in the hills east of Florence, Italy, for the annual cattle show and sale at Urbino. Almost half of the two thousand animals assembled are shown in the great market place, with its remarkable background of valley and height. (Photograph copyright by Burton Holmes from Ewing Galloway.)



FOUR ROYAL GREEK GENERATIONS—From eldest to youngest in this interesting group are Olga, queen mother of Greece; her son, Prince Nicholas; the latter's daughter, the Princess Paul of Serbia; and the princess' young son, Prince Alexander, who isn't at all concerned about his regal status. His great-grandmother, the stately queen mother Olga, was a grand duchess of Russia before her marriage, when she was sixteen, to the late King George I. of Greece, then newly sent from Denmark to take the throne. Her father and the czar's grandfather were brothers. (Photograph from International.)



BY DAY AND BY NIGHT Lenin's mausoleum is guarded, the recent attempt to bomb it having shown Moscow the need for precaution. It is not unprotected here, despite its deserted appearance; sentries stand on post within the shadow of the walls so strikingly silhouetted against the grim Kremlin. (Photograph from Keystone.)

THE PRINCE'S DANCE FAVORITE—Mrs. Richard Norton, whose husband is a son of Baron Grantley, with Sarah and John, her children. They were photographed just a few days before Mrs. Norton left London and sailed for America on the Berengaria, aboard which she was the most favored of those granted the much-sought-after honor of dancing with the Prince of Wales. A Page of News About Liberty

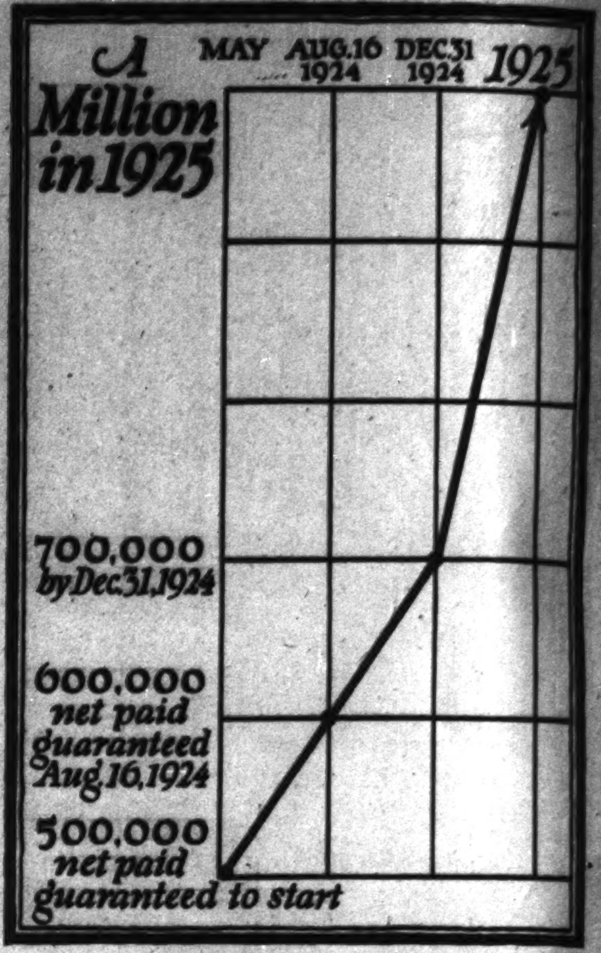
Liberty's Empire of Production Insured Its Success

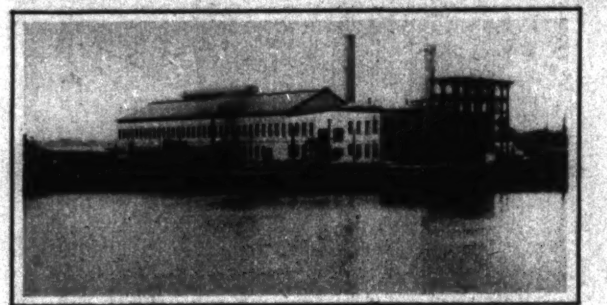
It took more than stirring fiction and thought-compelling articles and artistic illustrations to make Liberty successful. Liberty has enjoyed amazing popularity, but this would not have been possible without its tremendous material resources: timber lands, paper mills, ink factories, high speed printing processes, a vast printing plant, world-covering editorial contact, and a nation-wide circulation organization.

No other publisher possesses these resources in greater measure than Liberty. Therefore no other publisher is in a position to contribute more definitely to the present day needs of both the reader and the advertiser.



A Million in 1925!

Liberty, in five months, has achieved what it has taken other magazines many years to accomplish. Liberty started with 500,000 net paid circulation and lived up to it. 600,000 was guaranteed August 16, and excess delivered. 700,000 is guaranteed by December 31, 1924, and 1,000,000 will be reached in 1925!



Liberty's Paper Mill

This huge paper mill at Tonawanda, N. Y., was built expressly to make paper for Liberty. The paper mills owned by the publishers of Liberty are among the largest in the United States and Canada and are entirely free from mortgage indebtedness.

Liberty Timber Lands

Next Wednesday's Liberty, not so long ago, was the heart of a tree in the heart of a wilderness!

The publishers of Liberty own more than three thousand square miles of timber lands—enough to insure Liberty's paper supply for centuries!

Liberty

Every bit of Liberty fiction thrills in unison with your own adventurous dreaming. Every article finds a vulnerable "thought-spot." Every Wednesday at all news-stands!

The Only Weekly Profusely Illustrated Throughout

STUDY a copy of Liberty. Note the high standing of the authors; note how well the work of author and artist has been co-ordinated; how timely the choice of subject matter. But note especially the fact that Liberty is the only weekly of national circulation which is profusely illustrated throughout in colors.

Liberty offered 500 pedigreed dogs as prizes for the solutions of its unique dog "cut-out" contest. The photo above shows a few of the 44,145 entries received.

Liberty Boys

A few of the thousands of youngsters who sell Liberty each week in cities and towns throughout the United States and Canada. Liberty's circulation organization—wholesalers, retailers and boy salesmen—numbers more than 100,000.

THE JAPANESE CROWN PRINCE DRIVES; and, driving, he and the crown princess are closely surrounded by their bodyguard. It's such an unusual thing for Hirohito to take the reins that maybe they won't take any chances on the horse being skittish. Or possibly the guard hovers near as the result of the attempt to assassinate the royal couple on their honeymoon. It's the first photograph of them taken since that episode.

(Photograph from Pacific & Atlantic.)

ALMOST A TRAGEDY—You'd never guess it from her calm demeanor, but Mrs. William B. Leeds had just had a narrow escape from death in the Wildcat, her husband's $20,000 speedboat, a few minutes before this photograph was taken on Lower St. Regis lake in the Adirondacks. Fire had broken out in the boat and Mr. Leeds, by extraordinary effort, had put it out before it reached the fuel tank.

YOU COULD PARDON A LITTLE PRIDE, though you needn't, so far as is visible. The young woman is Diana Guest, daughter of Capt. Frederick Guest of Wheatley Hills, L. I. And her mount is Ashby. And Ashby was one of the smartest polo ponies of the Prince of Wales and was presented personally by his royal highness to Diana. Capt. Guest, be it noted, is a brother of Viscount Wimborne and has often been host to the prince.

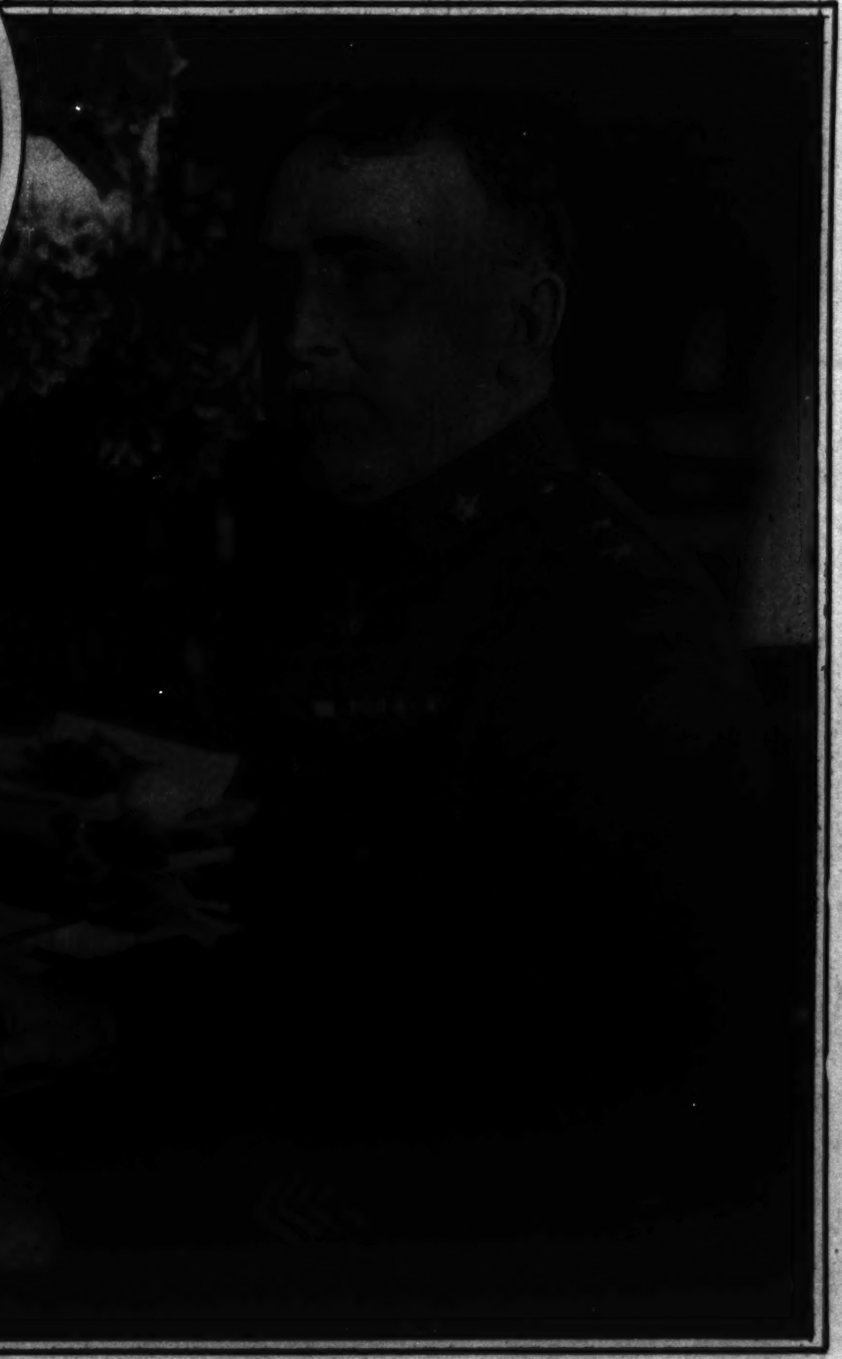
REFLECTIONS—Nature, with a luxurious setting of foliage and a background of silver-edged cloud, enhances the beauty of man's handiwork, the soldiers' monument at West Point, the severe silhouette of which is illumined by the highlights of its polished surfaces.

(Photograph from Ewing Galloway.)

HINES' SUCCESSOR—Brig. Gen. Dennis E. Nolan, former assistant chief of staff, became deputy chief of staff upon Gen. Hines' elevation. As assistant chief of staff in the A. E. F. he made contributions to American success that were rewarded with the distinguished service medal and distinguished service cross.

(Photograph copyright by Henry Miller.)



PERSHING'S SUCCESSOR ON DUTY—Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, the new chief of staff, at his desk in the War and Navy building on his first day in the new office. His experience? Let the campaign ribbons and service stripes testify.

Keep your teeth white and shining with Pebeco Steichen

Now you can prevent Dry Mouth that leads to tooth decay

By stimulating the natural fluids of the mouth this tooth paste keeps your teeth safe

DENTISTS and physicians now know that only active mouth glands can keep your mouth and teeth permanently clean and safe.

Normally your mouth glands should be working all the time.

But in almost everyone today our soft, modern diet has seriously weakened these glands.

Our mouths have become dry. And the teeth have been left exposed to the acids of decay.

Brushing is not enough

Five minutes after ordinary cleaning the acids of decay form again on your teeth. It is only recently that a simple, natural way has been found by which you can really protect your teeth. With Pebeco you restore the normal, protective flow of the mouth glands.

Their natural alkaline fluids bathe your teeth day and night, counteracting the acids of decay as fast as they form. Pebeco keeps your teeth not only white—but safe.

I Have Found Out How to Get Rid of Superfluous Hair At Once

Here's the Secret

I had become utterly discouraged with a heavy growth of hair on my face and lip. I tried every way to get rid of it—all the depilatories I had heard of, electrolysis, even a razor.

I thought it was hopeless until there came to me the simple but truly wonderful discovery which has brought such great relief and joy to me and to other women that it really cannot be expressed in words.

My face is now not only perfectly free from superfluous hair but smooth and soft as a baby's, all by use of the simple method which I will gladly explain to any woman who will send her name and address.

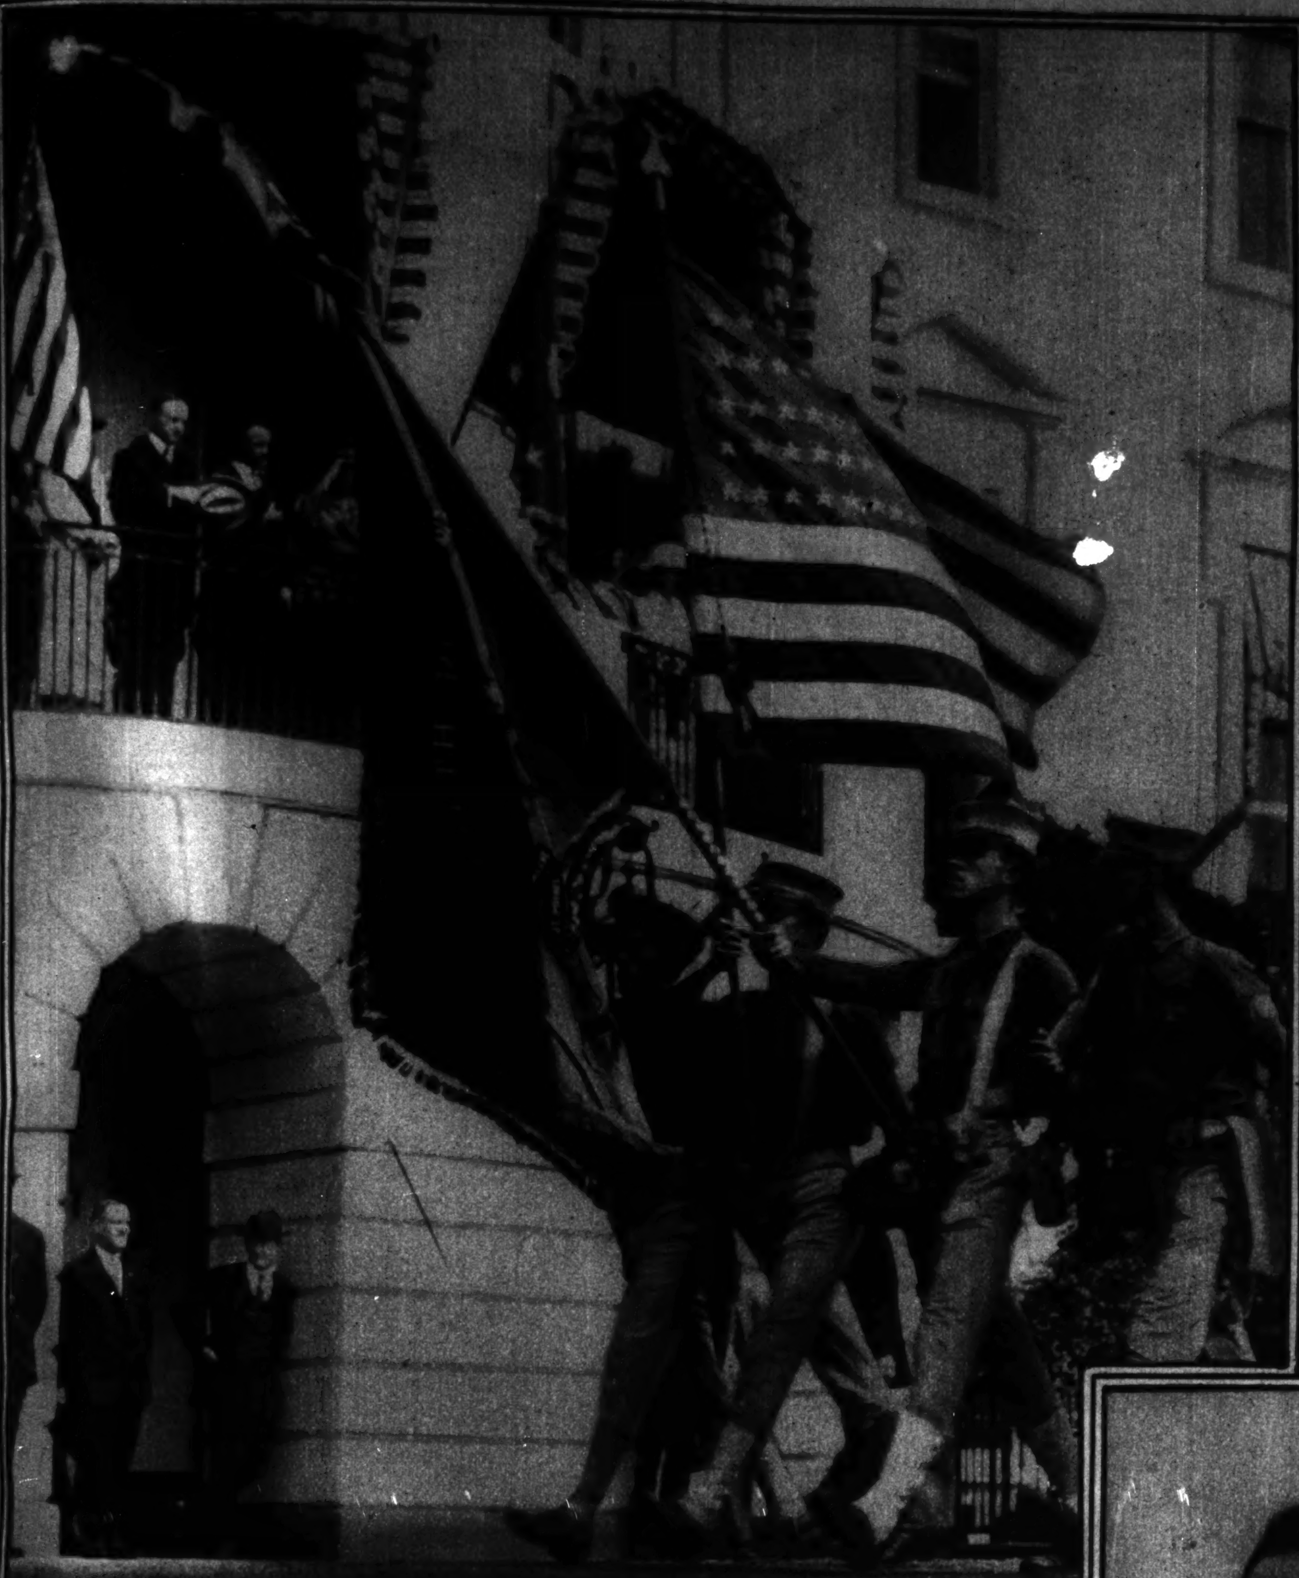
This amazing method is different from anything you have ever used—not a powder, paste, wax or liquid, not a razor, not electricity. It will remove superfluous hair at once and will make the skin soft, smooth and beautifully attractive. Its use means an adorable appearance. And you face the brightest light—the most brilliant electric lamps—even the glare of sunlight joyously.

With this method, used according to the simple directions I will give you, your trouble with superfluous hair is over permanently. You will never again appear with that ugly growth to disfigure your face.

So overjoyed was I with the results this discovery brought to me that I gave it my own name—Lanzette.

Send for Free Book

A book that tells just how this wonderful method gets rid of superfluous hair is free upon request. Don't send a penny—just a letter or postcard. Address Annette Lanzette, 68 W. Washington St., Dept. 1151, Chicago, Ill.



"THE FLAG GOES MARCHING BY"—A stirring moment of the U. S. marines' return from their fall maneuvers—that in which the color guard passed in review before President Coolidge and his party, standing in the south portico of the White House. A reader suggests that this picture be reproduced in rotogravure with "that dirty bum leaning against wall in archway with his hat on" eliminated. Perhaps the "dirty bum" is not guilty of disrespect to the flag, since it may not have reached his line of vision. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)

THE SEVEN LITTLE McCULLYS ARE GROWING UP—And, if you don't remember the seven little McCullys, be informed that they are the Russian children adopted a few years ago by Vice Admiral Newton A. WHERE MAY IT CRUISE?—One speculates, in view of Tokyo's interest in the current Chinese difficulty, on the possible use of this new armored monoplane, built by a German plant and just delivered in Japan. One might be intrigued also by the German war industry situation as reflected by the location of the factory. It's in Denmark. (Photograph from Wide World.)

Four out of Five is Pyorrhea's toll

Be the one to escape—
Brush your teeth with Forhan's

Pyorrhea, public menace though it is, can be successfully fought. You need not pay the price in lost teeth and broken health as four persons out of every five past 40, and thousands younger, do.

But don't delay. Don't wait for tender, bleeding gums to tell you Pyorrhea is on the way.

Start the fight now. Go to your dentist regularly for tooth and gum inspection and brush your teeth, twice daily, with refreshing Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums, if used in time and used consistently, will help prevent Pyorrhea or check its course; and keep the gums firm, the teeth white and the mouth healthy.

There is only one tooth paste of proved efficacy in the treatment of Pyorrhea. It is the one that many thousands have found beneficial for years. For your own sake, make sure that you get it. Ask for, and insist upon, Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes

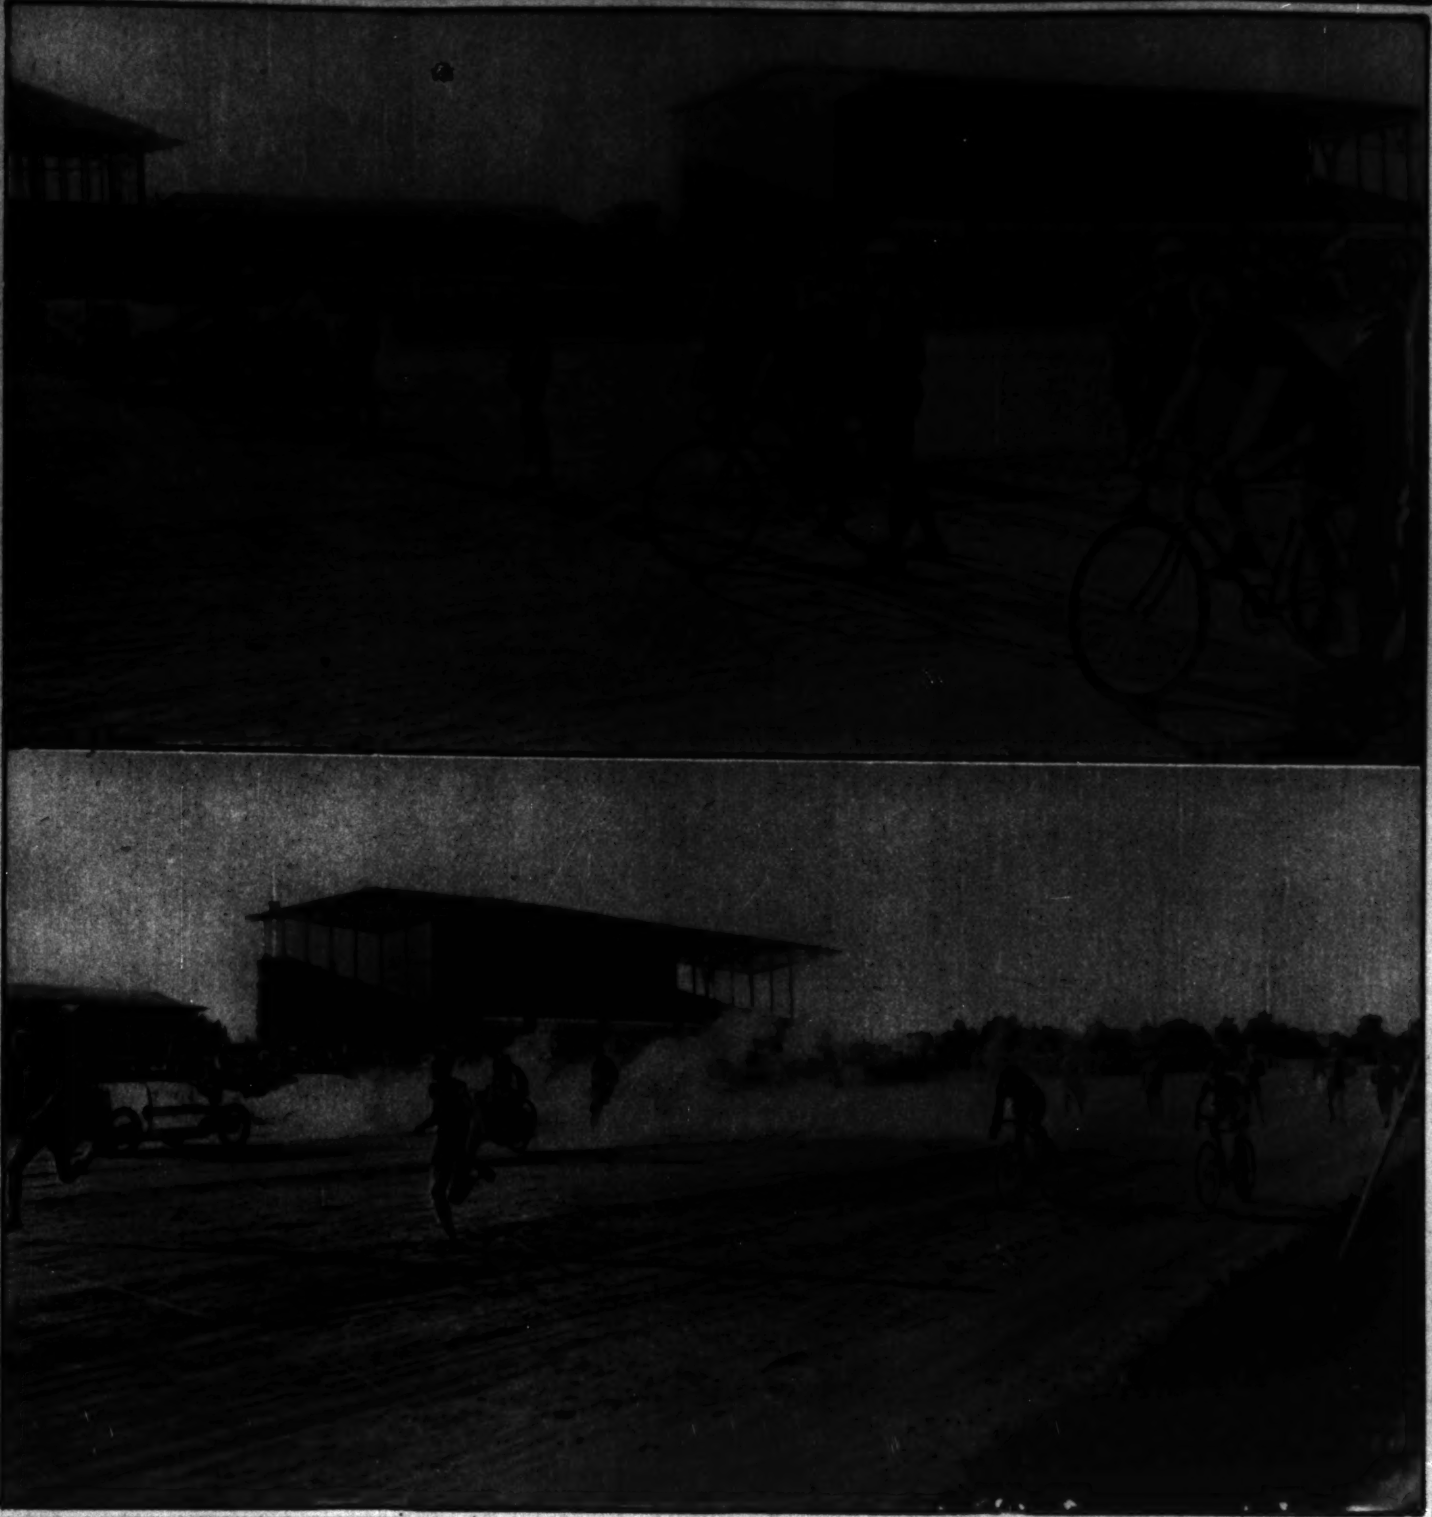
LIKE FATHER, LIKE SON—Steve Donoghue, England's greatest jockey, and his 14 year old son, Patrick, who has just started his riding career. Dad and son are pictured as they walked into the paddock recently to mount horses for the same race. The photographer forgot to say where they finished. Steve crossed the Atlantic last year to ride Papyrus at Belmont Park in the international match race which Zev won for America. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic)



AND SPEAKING OF RACING, WHAT DO YOU MAKE OF THIS?—Automobiles, motorcycles, bicycles, and runners starting without handicap and proceeding, apparently (see the lower picture), with the runners having all their own way. Of course there's a catch to it. The distance is only about 75 meters, and the runners, able to jump off right at the start, are half through before the others can manage to show any speed at all. They have devised this sort of thing as a variation of the sport programs at Mariendorf, Germany. (Photograph from United)

Her skin stays fresh and radiant despite the social whirl

THE woman whose beauty and charm have made her a social leader must guard the May-morning freshness of her complexion yet lead the dizzy whirl of social events her set attends. So she uses just two creams—the creams perfected by the Pond's Laboratories—which keep her skin exquisite in spite of taxing hours.

A daily cleansing with Pond's Cold Cream is the first step in the Pond's Method of skin care. Its pure oils bring to the surface of the skin the dust and dirt, oil and powder which have clogged the pores. Apply it generously on the face and neck. With a soft cloth take it all off. Repeat the process, finishing with a crisp little rub with ice or a dash of cold water. Your mirror speaks volumes of cleanness now, reflects a new suppleness, a becoming glow of health.

Then a lovely finish with Pond's Vanishing Cream. Smooth on a light film, not too much. It takes away the hateful shine, gives you a clear, lustrous tone, makes your skin just satin. And how it holds your powder which goes on next! It's a protection, too, guarding your sensitive skin from the weather. So, always before going out, and just before powdering, remember to smooth on a feathery film of this light cream.

Try the method lovely society women are following. Buy Pond's Two Creams, using them daily. No matter how you fill your days and nights with gay events, these creams will keep your skin always exquisitely fresh and protected. The Pond's Extract Company.

MRS. CORDELIA BIDDLE DUKE, recently remarried, considered by Neysa McMein, the well-known artist who painted this portrait of her, to be one of society's twelve most beautiful women, says, “Skin smooth and transparently clear—this I believe any woman can accomplish with the careful use of Pond's Two Creams.”

EVERY SKIN NEEDS THE SOFT CLEANSING AND THE DELICATE PROTECTIVE FINISH THAT POND'S TWO CREAMS AFFORD

After Thirty - can a woman still gain the charm of "A skin You love to Touch?

SOME women have a better complexion at thirty or thirty-five than they ever had in their twenties. The reason is simply that they have learned to take better care of their skin.

At twenty, contrary to popular tradition, a girl's complexion is often at its worst.

Too many sweets—late hours—and above all, neglect of a few simple rules of skin hygiene, result in a dull, sallow color, disfiguring blemishes, and ugly little blackheads.

By giving your skin the right care you can often gain a lovelier skin at thirty than you ever had before.

Remember that each day your skin is changing; old skin dies and new takes its place. Whatever your complexion has been in the past—by beginning, now, to give this new skin the treatment it needs, you can gradually build up a fresh, clear, radiant complexion.

The cause of blackheads and blemishes

Blackheads are caused by dirt and oil collecting in the pores of your skin. A large-pored skin, or one that is much exposed to dust, is especially susceptible to blackheads. Blemishes are generally the result of infection from bacteria carried by dust into the pores.

Don't neglect defects like blackheads or blemishes. They can easily be overcome by the following two treatments:—

To Free your Skin from Blemishes

Just before you go to bed, wash in your usual way with warm water and Woodbury's Facial Soap, finishing with a dash of cold water. Then dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, cream-like lather. Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes, then rinse very carefully, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

A Special Treatment for Blackheads

Every night before retiring, apply hot cloths to your face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough washcloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

DON'T think of your age, whatever it is, as a limitation—think of it as an opportunity! Use the knowledge you have gained from life to overcome past faults and disadvantages. Make up your mind to be lovelier every year — and you will be!

These are only two of the special cleansing treatments given in the booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around each cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap.

Find the treatment you need and begin using it regularly—see how much clearer your skin will become, and what a world of difference it will make in its attractiveness. You can get Woodbury's Facial Soap at any drug store or toilet goods counter. Get a cake today! A 25-cent cake of Woodbury's lasts a month or six weeks for regular use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments.

The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles make it ideal for regular toilet use. Woodbury's also come in convenient 3-cake boxes.

The Second Hand Book Shop

By W. E. HILL

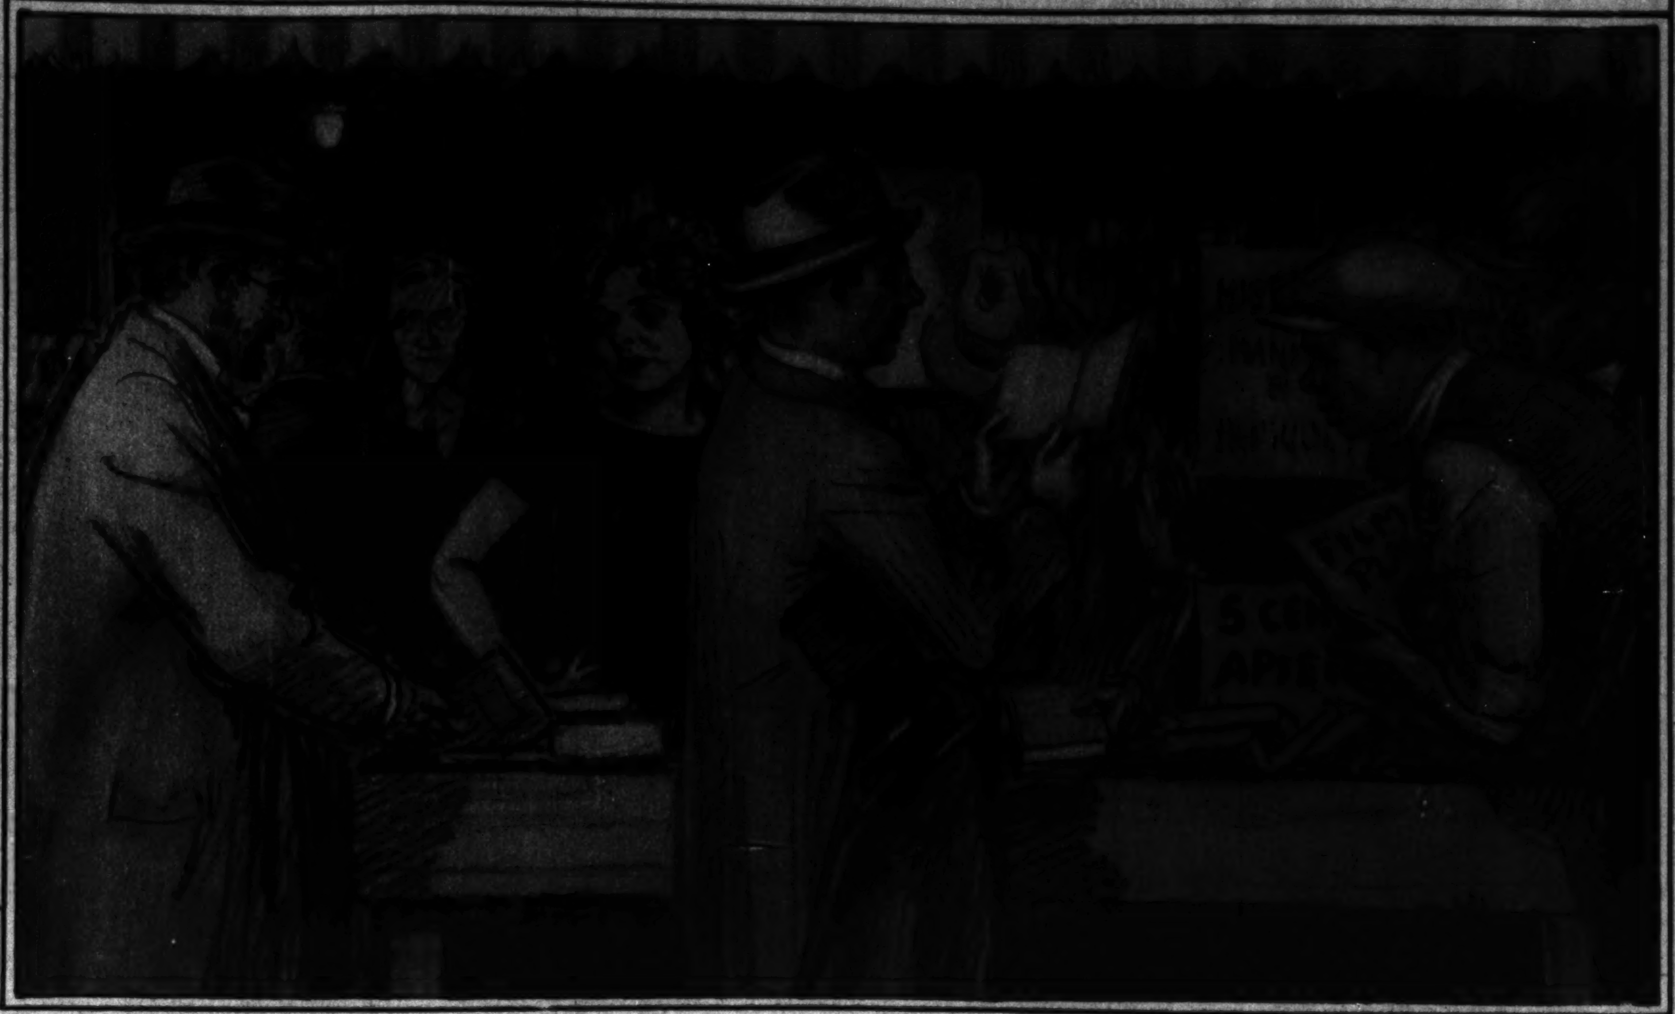
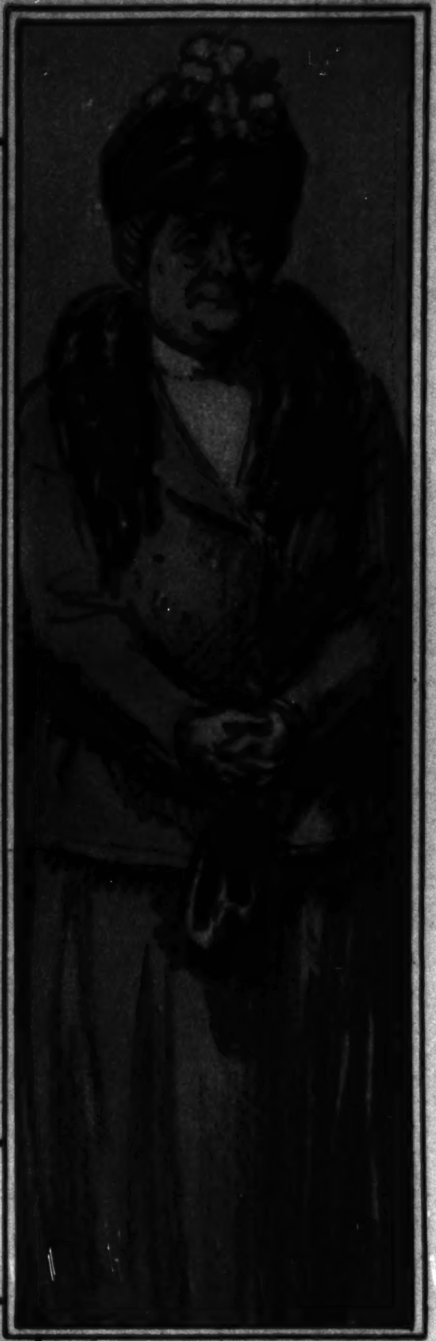
High school graduate with a package of school books pilfered from the board of education.

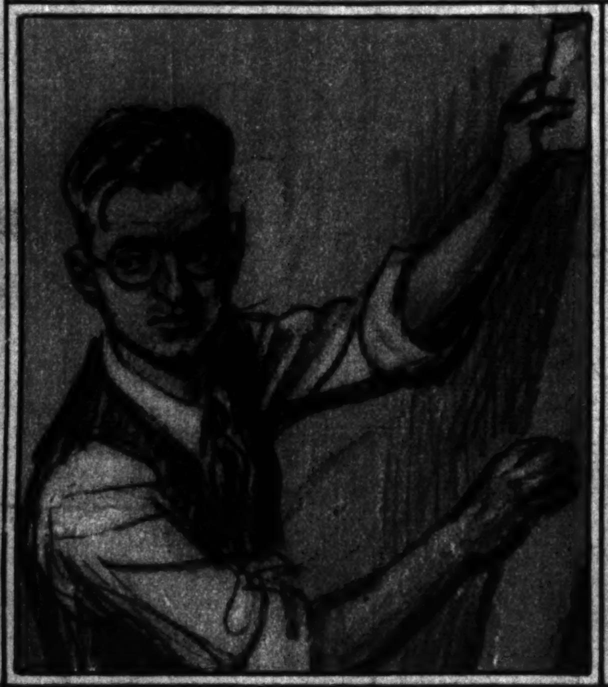


On the sidewalk, showing the 5 cent table, and the bargain hunters. If your luck is with you you will still find, among other old favorites, the Wellesley year book for 1897, Elsie Dinsmore, the 1917 Social Register, one or more of the Little Prudy series, a Manual of Arms, the Girlhood of Shakespeare's Heroines, and the second volume of Les Miserables. Across the counter is Miss Schultz, the assistant, surrounded by her books. She has come out for a little recreation.

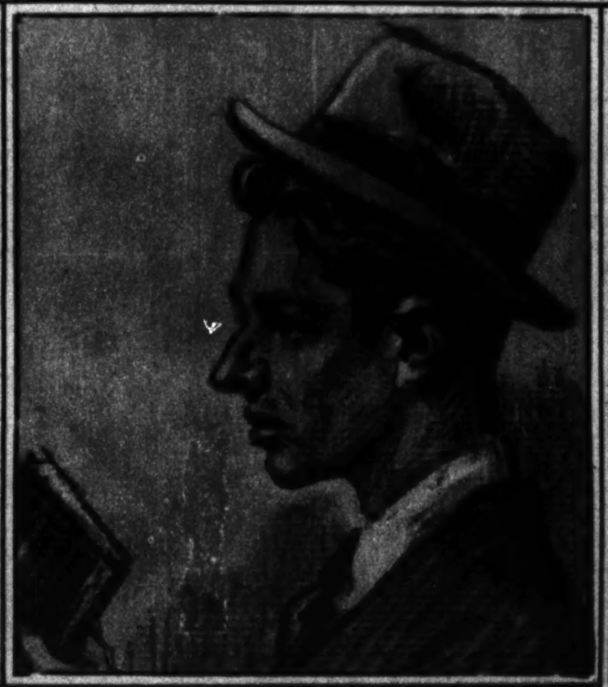


Elderly lady with something to sell—probably a lot of odd copies of the Geographic magazine.

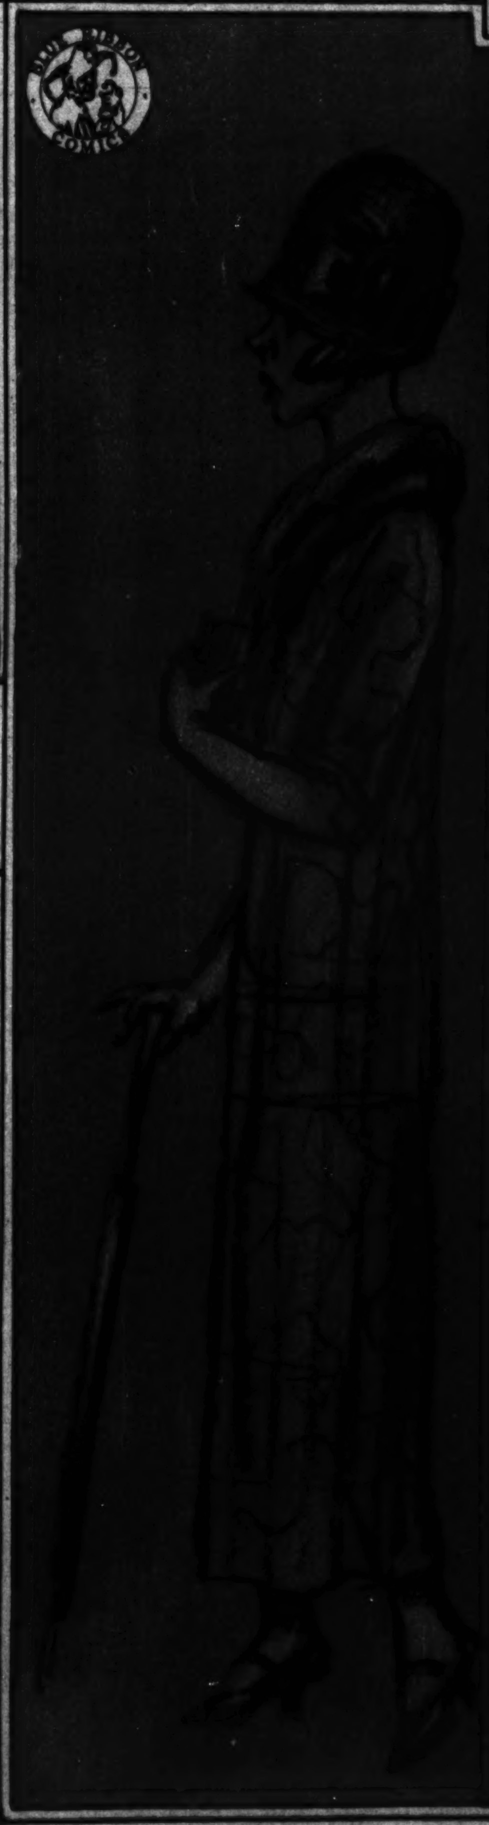
"What does he see in a lot of old musty books!" A book lover's better half out shopping with her husband. He ought to know that she is in a hurry. There won't be a thing left but odd sizes at the sale of blouses.



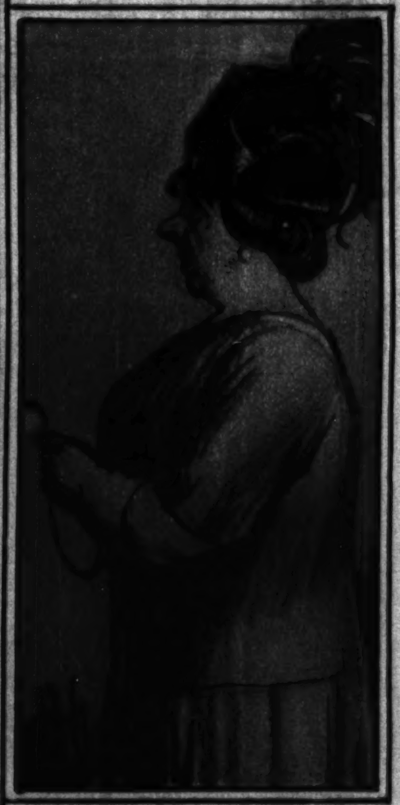
The book dealer's willing assistant. "No," he is saying, "we hain't got nothing on horse breeding. We got a nice copy of 'Good Breeding and the Social Civilities.'" If that doesn't suit he will try to sell you the Harvard classics.



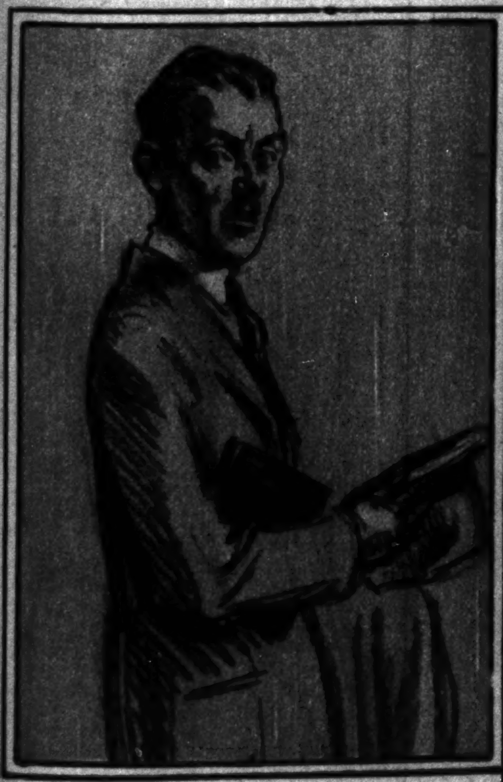
The bane of a bookdealer's life is the young man with the slender purse who hides the book behind something till his ship comes in. When it does, he will have forgotten the book.



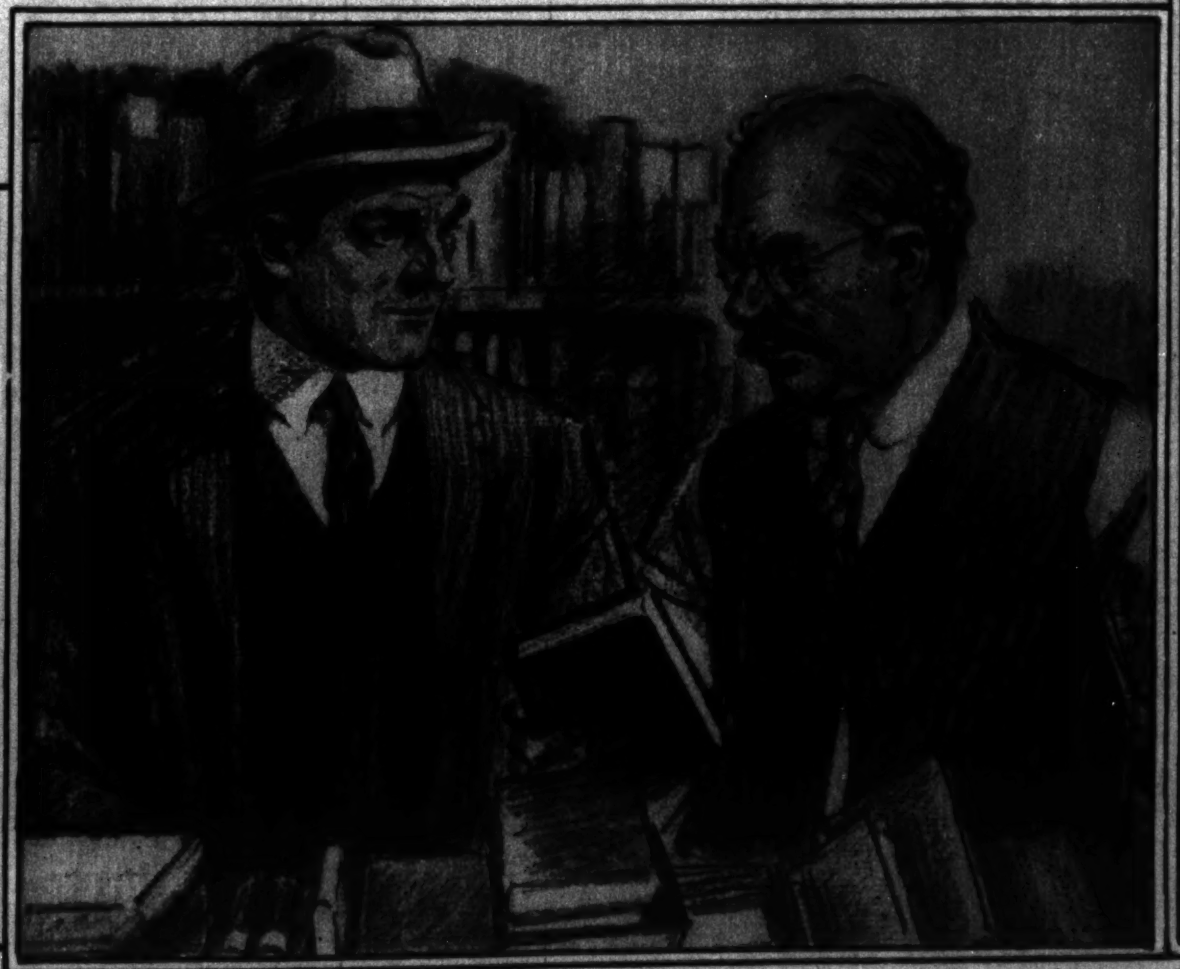
An embryo stenog after a used copy of Mr. Pittman's book on shorthand.



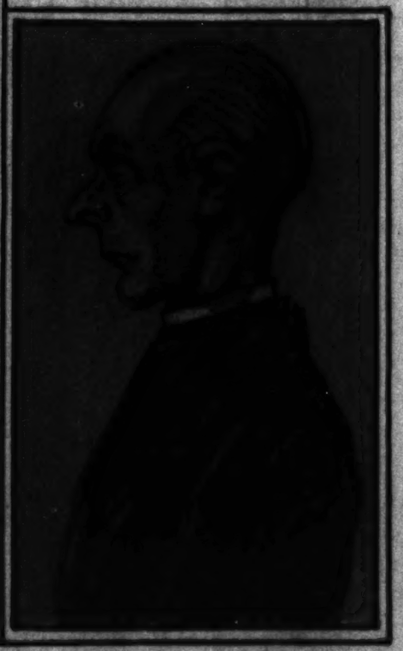
The devotee of mental culture and occult literature is on the trail of something big and vital. "In Time with the Infinite," perhaps. Or a book on Yogi practices.



Bold as you please is the young man looking for the suppressed book. Something may be from the pen of Mr. Petronius.



Coming down on the price. No hardened book collector believes in a price mark. Half the joy of a second hand find seems to lie in making the dealer knock off a little—anything from one cent up.



Member of the clergy out to sell his library. Now you know where the tables of religious books come from.

"You've Sold me, Son
Polarine
THE PERFECT MOTOR OIL
must be good"

"When you began to preach Polarine to me, I smiled. I had always thought oil is oil and it never occurred to me that oil wears out.

"But since you've been running the car our repair bills are less; our 'gas' bills are less and our mileage is greater.

"Certainly the car runs smoother and better since you've been using Polarine and changing the oil every 500 miles.

"Who told you about Polarine?"

"Why, dad, you told me!

"Don't you remember saying that the scientific staff of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) was the most efficient body of men you knew? That and Professor Smith's remark that when science was applied to industry, efficiency resulted.

"I became interested in the insistent claims that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) made for Polarine, and I decided that the chemists and lubricating engineers of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) know more about lubrication than I could ever learn. So, I decided to follow their recommendation.

"All I have done is to use the oil recommended for this car, in their Chart. I know the car runs better—you know it—and mother and the girls compliment me on the way the car runs every time I take them out.

"Dad, she's sure purring along smoothly, isn't she? And, we are all set for cold weather, too."

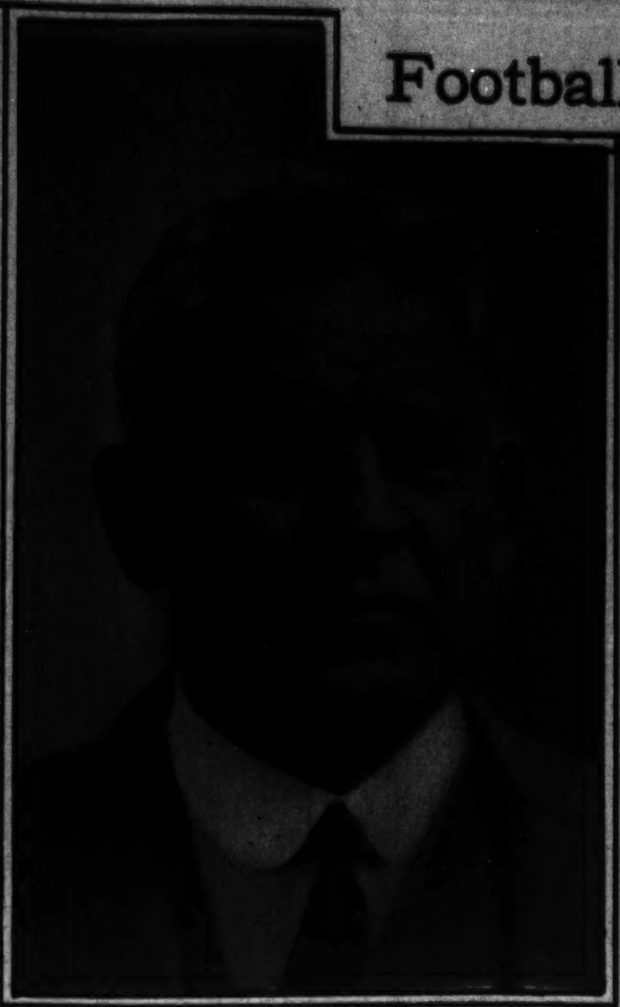
Football Coaches

NOTRE DAME'S FAMOUS FIGHTERS will have the able Knute Rockne to direct them again this year. In his day Knute was one of Notre Dame's greatest football heroes. Then he took charge as coach, and his teams always have been among the strongest in the country. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)



THE WIZARD OF THE MIDWAY, Alonzo A. Stagg. University of Chicago men will tell you there isn't a better coach in the country than the beloved "Old Man." And they're pretty nearly right. Handicapped often by far less capable material than is available at other schools, Stagg has turned out many brilliant teams. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

"HURRY UP" YOST is again hurrying 'em up at Michigan. Last year Yost's team went through a tough campaign without a defeat, tying Illinois for the Big Ten title. This year's Michigan-Illinois battle will be one of the biggest attractions of the football season. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

THE FIGHTING BOB OF FOOTBALL is little Coach Zuppke of Illinois. He took charge at Urbana more than ten years back, and ever since the Illini have rated with the great machines of the country. Before then Bob built prep championship teams out in Oak Park high school. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

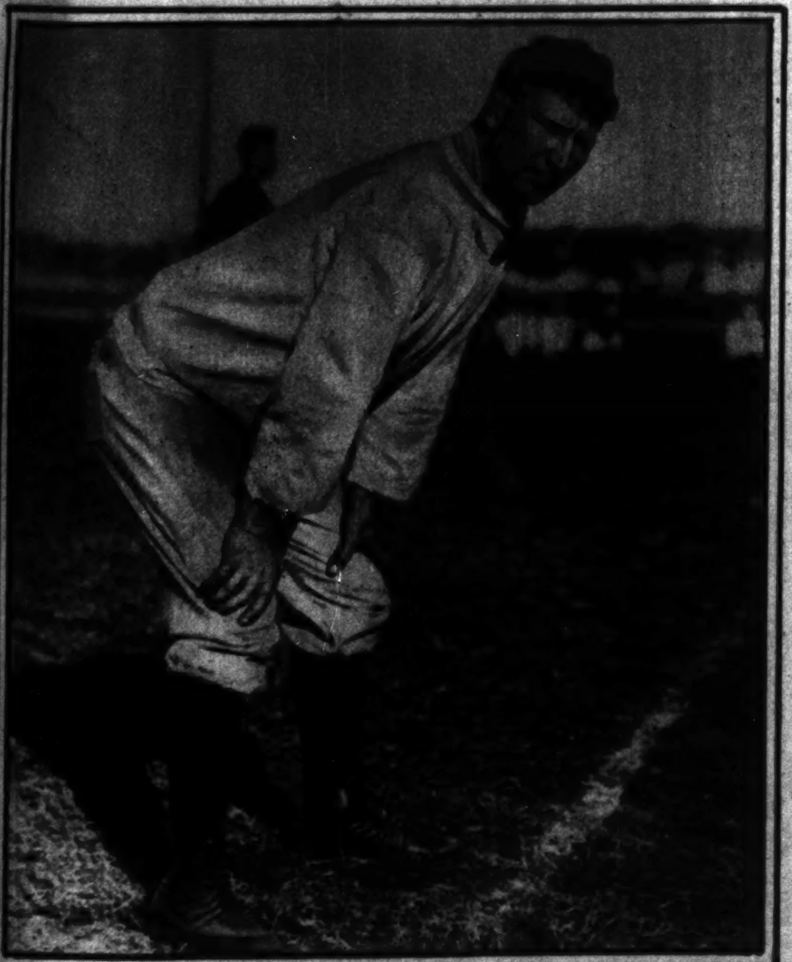
HARD WORK FOR HARVARD is the cry of Bob Fisher. He's out to atone for the suffering Harvard grads endured last fall, when Dartmouth, Brown, and Yale all beat the Crimson eleven. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

WISCONSIN'S MENTOR, Jack Ryan, is entering upon his second season at Madison with bright prospects. His Badgers tied Minnesota, their most hated foe, last year, and held Illinois, Michigan and Chicago to low scores. Ryan is a former Dartmouth halfback. (Tribune Photograph.)

THE GREAT TAD JONES has made himself the idol of Yale by his success since taking charge of his alma mater's football fortunes. Last year Tad led the Elis to eight straight triumphs. That should mean another great team this autumn. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

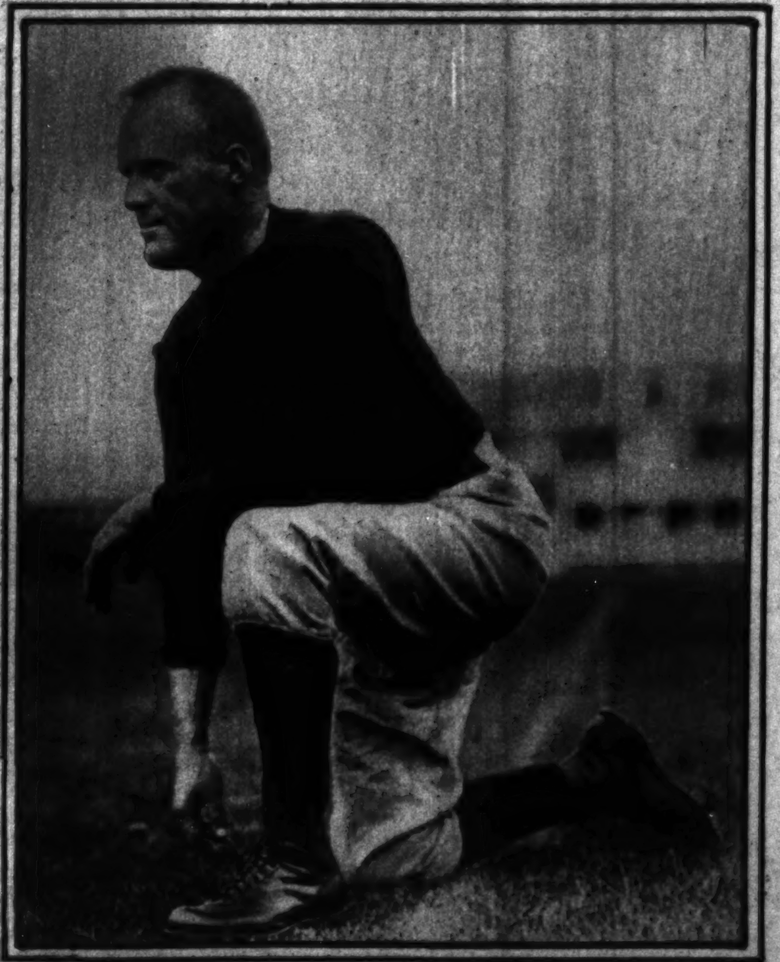
ANOTHER NEWCOMER in the Western Conference is Bill Spaulding, Minnesota's coach. After years of successful coaching at Kalamazoo Normal Bill took charge of the Gophers last year. He's a Wabash man, a star of the days when Walter Eckersall was making football history at Chicago. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

THE MIRACLE MAN of other days, Percy Haughton, is now directing the football hopefuls of Columbia university in New York. Haughton, a Harvard man, was hailed as a miracle man for his coaching of Harvard elevens. He is finding it harder sledding at Columbia. (Photograph from United.)



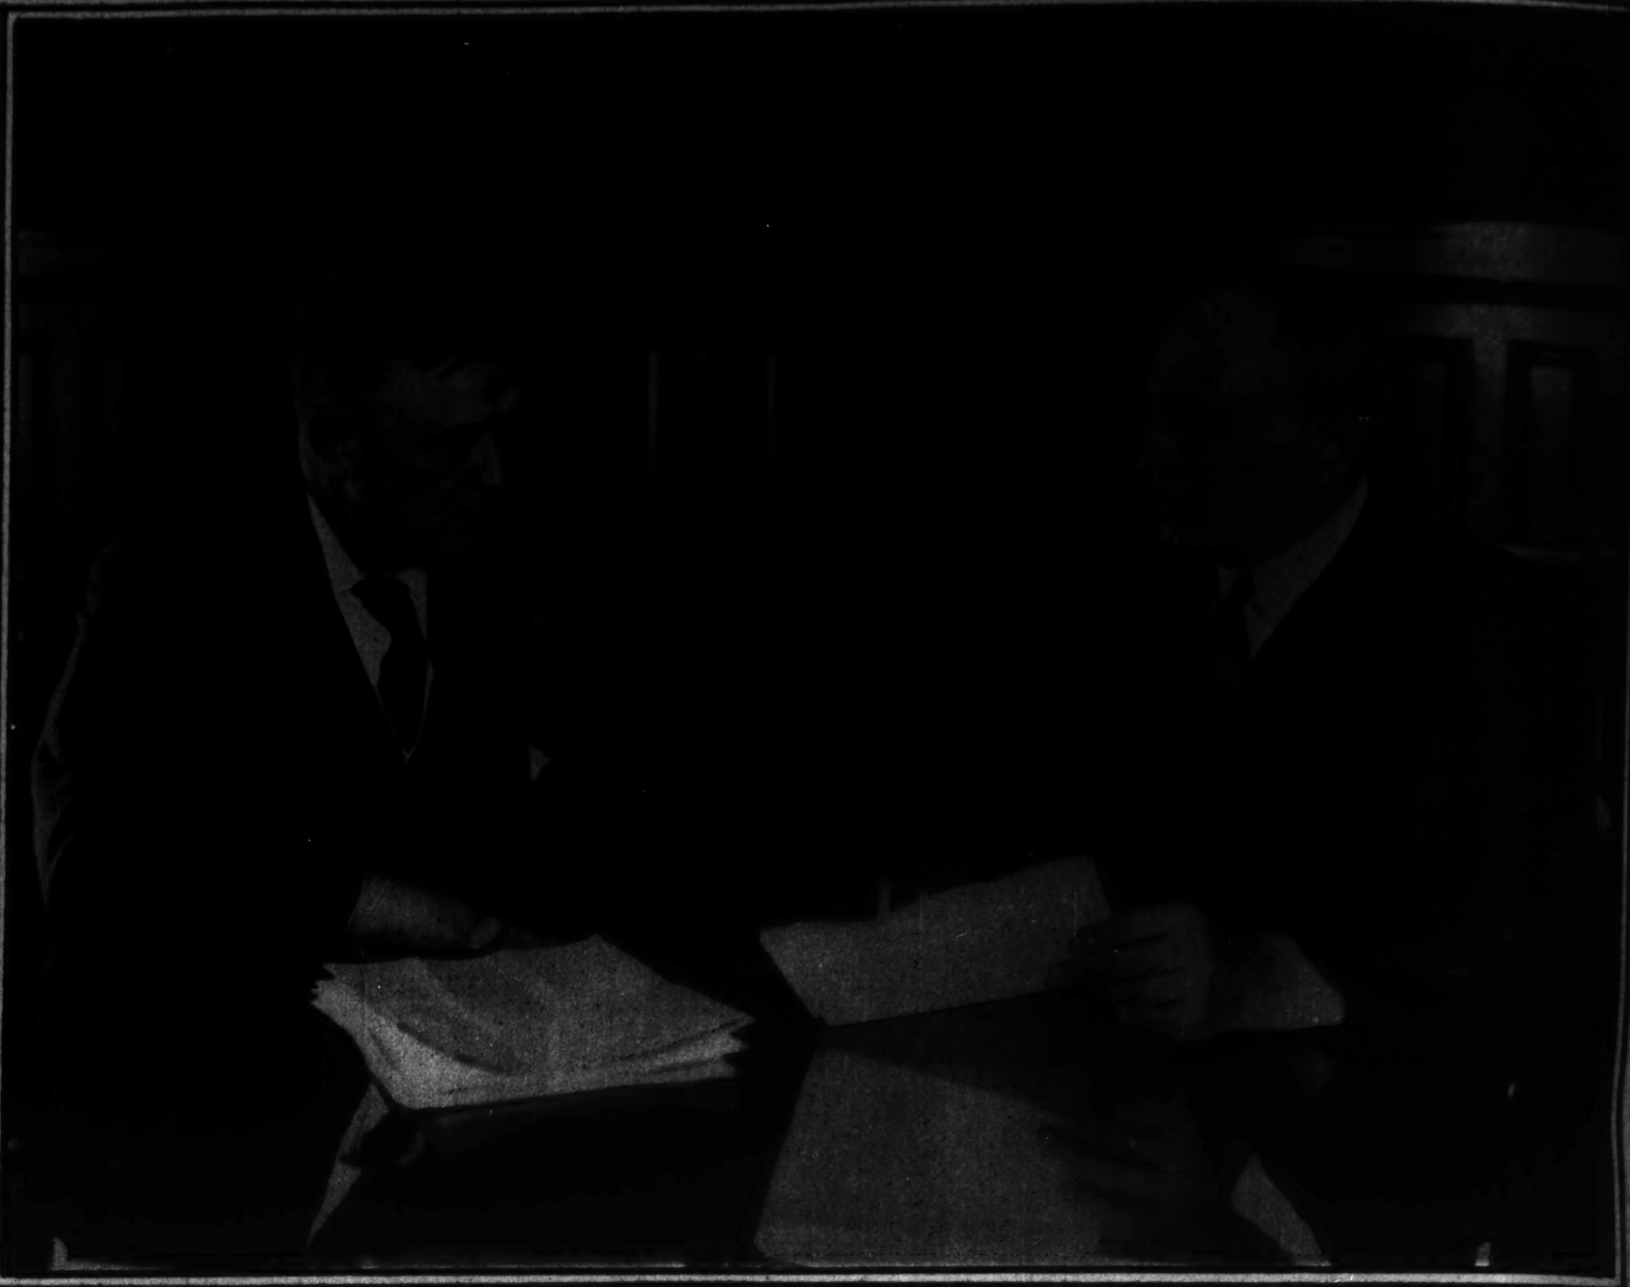
COMMODORE OF THE NAVY football fleet is Bob Folwell. Bob's one big task each year is to beat the Army in the service match which holds the eyes of the nation. Last year Annapolis tied West Point, which made it a pretty good season. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

HE COULD BE KING OF EVANSTON, could Glenn Thistlethwaite, if he could only produce a winning football team at Northwestern university. Last year was a sorry season of defeat after defeat, but Purple students and alumni are staunchly loyal to their coach, hoping for better things this fall. Like Zuppke of Illinois, Thistlethwaite graduated into the Big Ten from Oak Park High school. There Glenn developed such famous stars as Steger and Uteritz of Michigan and Jimmy Pyott of Chicago. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

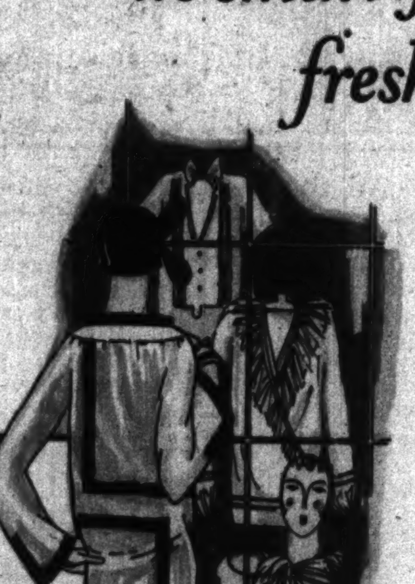


PRINCETON'S PILOT is Bob Roper, a Tiger gridiron hero himself in his college days. Princeton's star was not so bright a year back. Notre Dame, Harvard, and Yale all lowered the Tiger standard. But Roper's ability as a coach is above question, and he's out to wipe out all memory of those 1923 reverses. (Photograph from Pacific and Atlantic.)

"SMILING JIMMY'S" LAST RACE—Jimmy Murphy, late king of the auto race track, at Syracuse, N. Y., just before the start of the 150-mile speed contest in which he lost his life. The veteran racer, having been mechanic for nearly all of the oldest drivers before he himself climbed into fame as a pilot, had long been a well known and picturesque figure in the sports world. (Photograph from Wide World.)



WASHINGTON DELIBERATES ON FAHY—Rush D. Simmons (right), chief postal inspector, conferring with Postmaster General New concerning the indictment of W. H. Fahy, inspector in charge of the western division, on charges of complicity in the $2,000,000 Rondout mail robbery near Chicago. The postal service was shaken to its foundation by the charge against Fahy, considered one of the ablest men of the force. (Photograph copyright by Henry Miller.)



LUX
For all fine laundering
For washing dishes
LUX

The Blouse comes into its own again ' it's smart just so long as it's fresh and unfaded ' '

A BLOUSE for every occasion! That's what Paris says.

For the afternoon, long Russian tunics of gay printed crepe, for dinner and evening the new casaquin of all-over lace, and always the mannish tuck-in of heavy silk or dimity to wear with your modish tailleur.

They're smart, every one of them, just so long as they keep their fresh, new look. But nothing is so dowdy as faded, lustreless silk blouses or crumpled cotton ones.

You know the way to keep their charm. Just launder them in Lux. Then their beautiful colors and fine finish will be preserved in all their original freshness.

Soft silks washed in Lux never get that dull, much-laundered look that cake soap or a strong chip gives them. With this quickly dissolving flake, there's no rubbing to take the bloom off lovely weaves. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

H. R. Mallinson & Co., Inc., makers of exquisite silks, say: "Not a trace of the original color is lost in our washable silks—there is no roughing up of the fabric after fifty washings with Lux."

See your bathroom through guests' eyes

DID you ever look at your bathroom—particularly the toilet seat —through your guests' eyes? Familiarity often blinds us to uninviting details, but if the toilet seat is old and worn, your guests will quickly notice it, just as you would in someone else's home. You owe it to yourself to remedy this condition if it exists.

Thousands now have nicer bathrooms

THOUSANDS of women who have always wanted nicer bathrooms have found that they can easily have them, not by making the bathroom all over, but simply by installing a new, Church, all white toilet seat.

The difference a spotlessly white toilet seat makes in the looks of the whole bathroom is certainly a pleasant surprise. Some women say: "Looks hundred per cent better;" some, "Looks dozen times better;" and others, "Now I am proud to have guests go into my bathroom."

Church Seats Fit Any Bowl—Installed in Few Minutes

CHURCH Seats fit any bowl and can be installed easily in a few minutes; so easily that you can install one yourself, although any plumber will be glad to install it for you at small cost. If you move to another house or another apartment the seat is easily taken with you.

The handsome white surface of Church seats is a smooth, ivory-like sheathing which won't wear off as paint is apt to do, and it won't crack, split, discolor, absorb moisture or retain odors. It is as easy to clean as porcelain and is perfectly sanitary. It is above the criticism of any guest.

Doris Blake presents

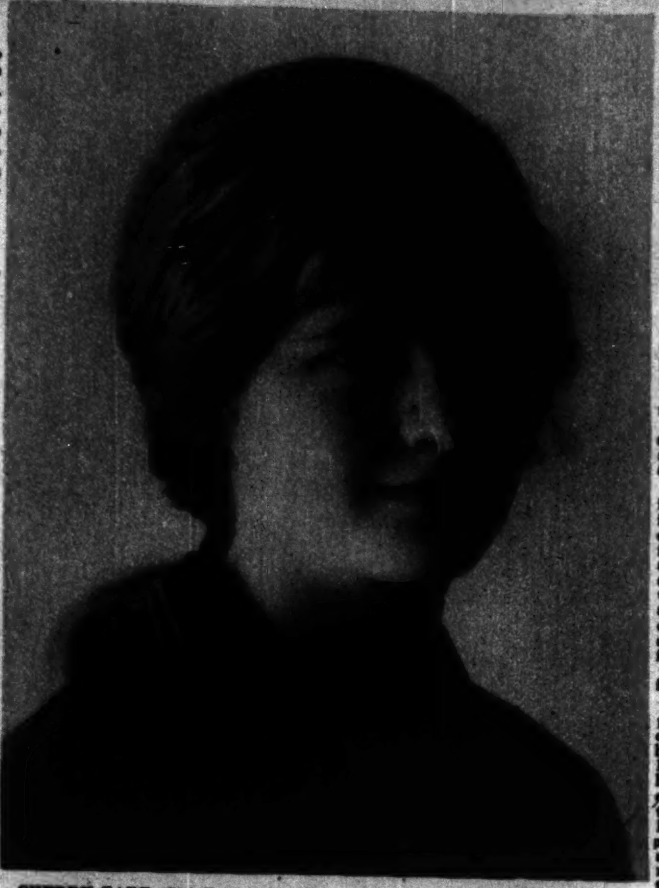
The third series of photographs with character and handwriting analyses for which $100.00 each is being paid in our $15,000.00 offer.

Generous, impulsive, hasty actions, all these are revealed in this face. This girl is mostly Nordic in blood, with a trace of Cromagnon heritage showing about her cheeks and mouth. Her ability to learn rapidly by experience, a Nordic trait, is visible in her nose.

The combination of two blood streams in her has proved advantageous to her. The Nordic side has carried an ability to perceive accurately, and to follow one thing through to its finish, without being sidetracked by trivialities. The Cromagnon side has given her the power to understand people as well as things, a trait not often met with.

She is mental in build, with the possibility of becoming somewhat vital in later life. She thinks so easily and so fast that it is so easy for her to act too fast. She is fond of authority, but is not so practical as she might be in understanding situations and conditions.

Her writing shows that she has an open mind, with no traces as yet of set or hardened opinions. It reveals that her emotions are strong and dominant within her, and will be apt to lead her in making decisions. She will probably invite others to share in the spending of her hundred dollars.



CHERRY BARR, 714 Prospect Ave., S. E., Grand Rapids, Mich. Occupation, school girl.—Martin photo.

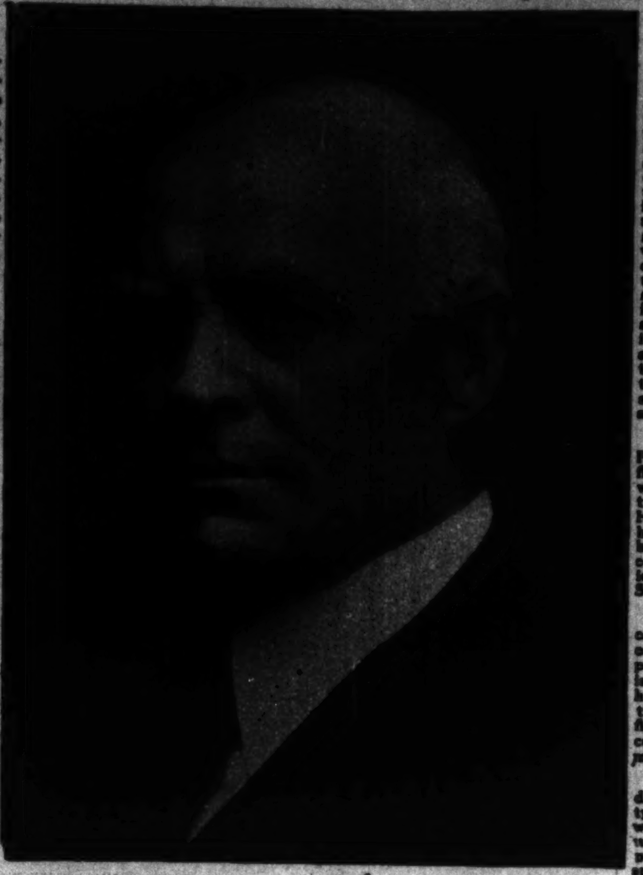
Cherry Barr

Mento-motive is written in this face, a temperament that likes to plan and do. The man, a Cromagnon, has a highly developed social disposition. He loves people, he enjoys their company, and his actions are not a little influenced by what he believes others will think and say.

His eyes, with the many fine wrinkles at the corners, show that he has deliberated on many questions in his life, and has developed much shrewdness and foresight, particularly concerning people and the situations that are created by human actions.

An esthetic side is visible also, both in his writing and in his nose and cheeks. He likes beautiful objects and artistic surroundings, for the sake of their beauty. His writing shows that he is ambitious, with a tendency to distribute his activities over several fields of work. He looks versatile, and probably is good at them all.

His mind is stubborn planning, wilful, and calculating, and he would be a grim man to cross. But he has a sense of humor, and laughs often. He is susceptible to the influence of colors. He has made, and will probably continue to make such disposal of his money as seems to bring the greatest artistic and esthetic return.



HENRY J. ROGERS, 441 Main St., Racine, Wis. Banker and dramatic reader.—Billings photo.

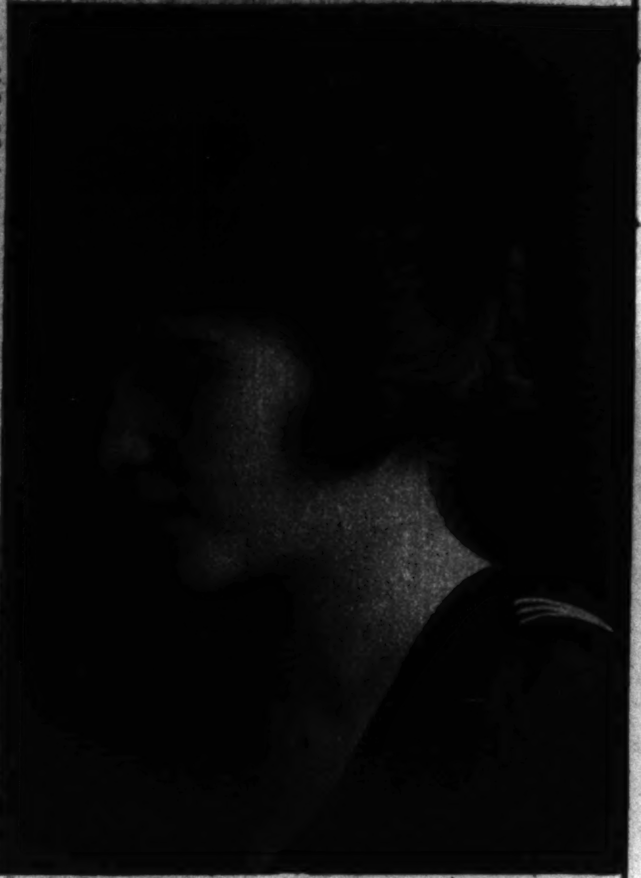
Henry J Rogers

Here is a moderate vital type, fond of luxury and ease, and at home in an enjoyable atmosphere, where harshness and violent self-assertion seldom seen. She is decidedly of the dreamer type, and often indulges in fancies and romantic reveries. She would like grandeur and fame, but will probably never have either, if she is to depend upon her own efforts to get them, because there is none of the hardness and violent self-assertion in her nature that grand and famous people seem to have. She thinks in terms of pictures, and she may be something of an artist.

In blood she is Nordic. People of her build were first seen in Jutland, in what is now Denmark, two thousand years ago. Her type of Nordic would be classed as Saxon, a blood which has always contributed the more delicate strain to the Anglo-Saxons.

She is analytical of conditions moderately so of things, and least of people. Her temperament is introspective, she sees herself first and everything else later. Her first thoughts about new conditions are how they may affect her.

Her writing is of the day dreamer, thinker type, a style that is rare without being altogether uncommon. It seems probable that she will spend her money on some form of improvement.



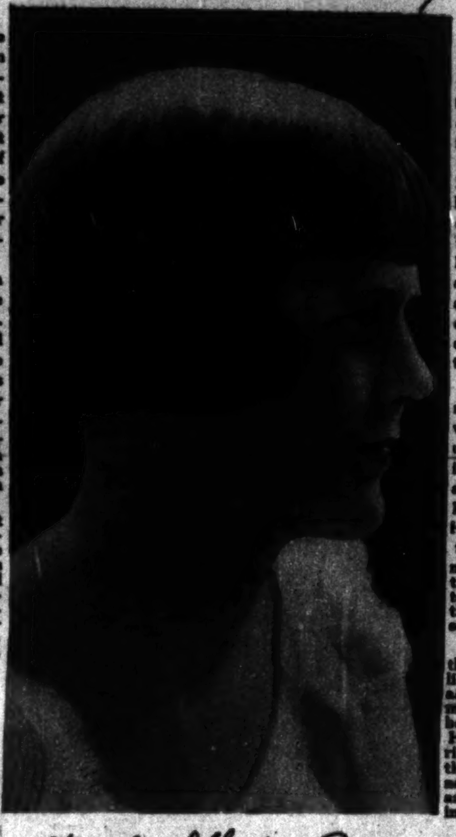
MARION HARRIS HARTMAN, 124 Iroquois Ave., Dayton, Ohio. Occupation, housewife.

Here is a girl whose intuitions are so keen that they guide her unerringly. She is not guided blindly, either, for behind her quick insight there is a good power of logic. She has a reserve of thought and cool planning that will tide her over many a hard situation.

She is of Cromagnon blood, the blood of the first white civilization. She analyzes people, and knows their moods. There is no concealing emotions or intentions from her for long. Enough determination is evident in her chin to enable her to plan and execute whatever is necessary to get her own way.

Her brows show that she is rapid and thorough all in one, a rare accomplishment. She is idealistic, and impractical on things and their conditions. Things will always puzzle and bewilder her. On situations she will be better, and she will understand human beings best of all.

Her emotions are intense. Her writing indicates that even early in life she is getting a rigorous cast to her emotional nature that will concentrate it upon a chosen few, with nothing left over for the world in general. She will spend her money generously but cautiously.



Hazel Gladys Berg

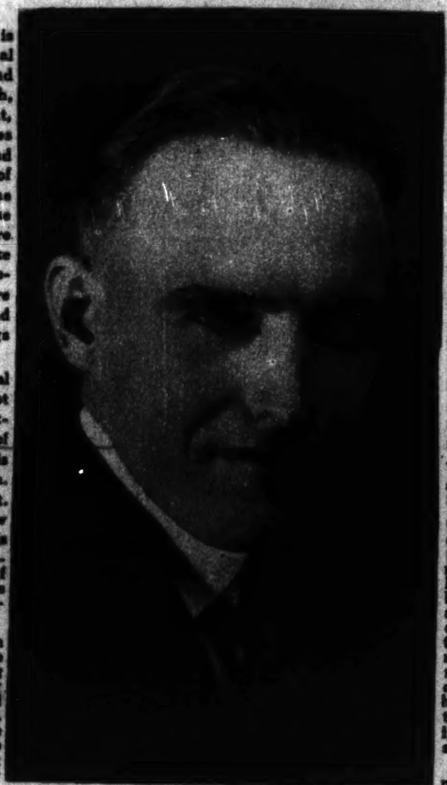
HAZEL GLADYS BERG, Mayview, Ill. Occupation, school girl.

Here is a man who is keen regarding physical values. He has a mind that runs without a hitch, and hits what it aims at, fast and sure. He likes to rush at things, and hurry for the joy of hurrying, but without the danger of mistakes due to haste. He is pure Nordic in race, and like all Nordics, rapid, retrospective thoughts are quite natural to him and seem the proper things to have.

He has an emotional nature that would riot were it not for his naturally strong powers of inhibition. His moods and desires need a rein. He appears to possess it. His cheeks and jaws show the emotions, and his mouth the control. Sometimes he controls himself too much, and then he is thought to be too conservative.

He is fond of his own thoughts and ways, he likes power, and so long as power is of a purely material nature, he will be capable of holding it. His ideas are a little rigorous and tight, so that he does not accept new thoughts as readily as he might. His writing shows this.

He will be almost sure to go with a rush an spend his money on those dear to him.



L. S. LaCroix

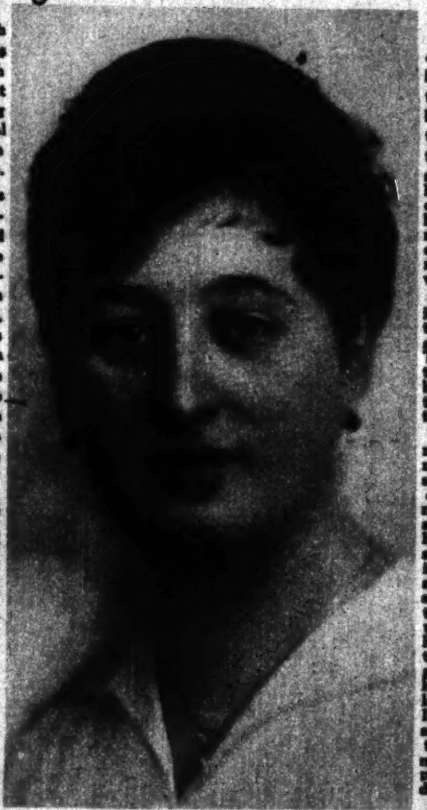
L. S. LA CROIX, State Center, Iowa. Occupation, engineer and fireman.—Apgar photo.

A Semitic type with classic features. She is vital in build. But with all her love of enjoyment there is an underlying thread of the mental that enables her to plan and daydream her ideas.

Here is a face that is sensitive to disappointments. She has had many. Her dreams are of such an ambitious nature, and so far outrun her capacity for doing, inasmuch as her mind is given to detail work with repetition, that do as she may, her desires keep so far ahead of her results that she cannot catch up with them and therefore she feels disappointed.

Her writing reveals that she is a judge of conditions and qualities, particularly concerning people and situations. Her emotions are strong, but a little unbalanced and lacking in the perception of verities. For this reason, she is apt to make erroneous judgments in people, which do not add happiness to her already yearning nature. Her writing, with its flamboyant style, shows this.

She will be apt to be practical in disposing of her hundred dollars. The chances are that she will make it bring quality instead of quantity, and that she will spend it for beauty in some form.



Jennette Breudl

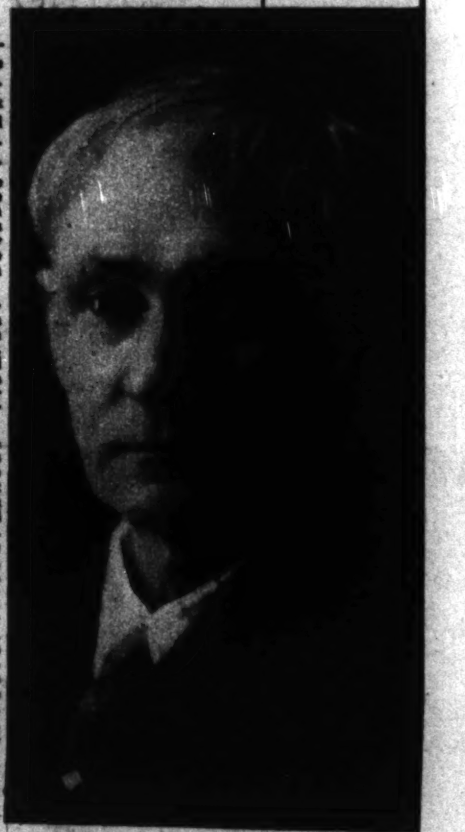
MRS. JEANETTE BREUDL, 1906 Dayton St., 2 fl., Chicago, Ill. Occupation, housewife.

This face shows self-control. All his life he has suppressed his emotions, and has held back his words for second thought. Are his ambitions thwarted? Probably they are, for he lacks self-confidence. The chin, firm to a fault in holding himself in, does not permit enough play of the ego to make the man rush to get his own way.

Wistful moods are visible, and a disposition that has always lived in a world of day dreams. To wish and to hope and to endure are as easy as breath to him, but never to assert, to dominate, or to demand.

These are the innermost workings of his mind. To outsiders he seems slow, somewhat conservative, a calm materialist, self-willed and set in his opinions. His writing, with the sure, firm down strokes, in spite of inexperience, shows a man who understands people well, better than they probably understand themselves. His face shows the same thing. He is a Cromagnon. He understands humanity so well that he lets his fears rule him. In build he is mental, and nothing else. Mind to him is everything; muscular work and heavy pleasures are to be endured but not enjoyed.

For this reason, he will doubtless spend his hundred dollars to aid some one else.



Frank Ranney

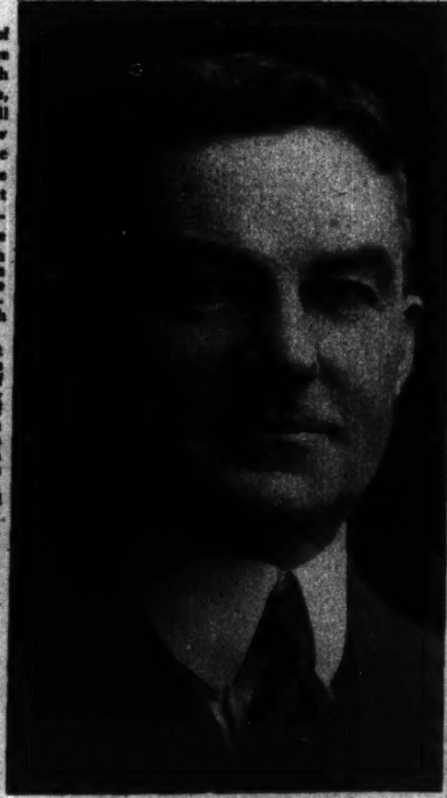
There is a wealth of grit and perseverance written in this face, with self-control in abundance, and both power and will to drive. He knows how to command other people to make them do as he wants them to without having them become offended at him. He thinks rapidly, and with fair accuracy. Ambition and love of power are the keynotes to his character. He has them both well developed.

But perhaps he might have realized more of his ambitions in the past if he had been more willing to listen to the advice of others. He is a man who likes to solve his own problems in his own way, and once he has thought out a question, he resents being told that his solution is not necessarily the right one. His great width through the ears indicates this. To be of Cromagnon blood and to have a head wide through the ears can only mean a character that pushes and asserts itself in its own way.

His mind is hard and set. There is a strong emotional side visible in his writing, quite apart from his ambition.

He has achieved some things in life by reason of his will to drive, and if his mind were only more flexible he might achieve still more. He may spend his hundred dollars on his ambitions.



Hugh H. Bolton

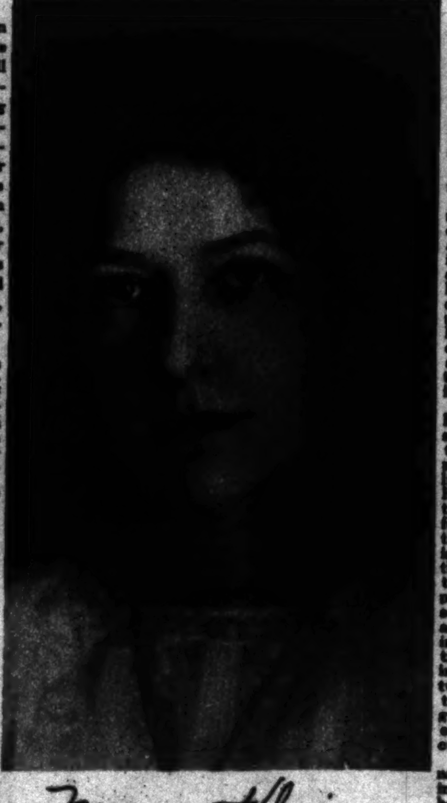
Here is a Nordic, an Angle, of the motive build. She has a well balanced feminine personality. Her writing shows it. Feminine writing is rounded, and without strong angles or strokes. She shows the type well. Her lines run evenly across the paper, wavering neither up nor down. Therefore she is poised and well balanced in her muscular control, and probably in everything else.

Her mouth denotes much self-will and desire to hold to one set of ideas. But her eyes show openmindedness and a responsiveness to the moods of others. Together these indicate that she is practical, not unmindful of the wishes of other people, but with reasons of her own that must be consulted before she acts. She prefers an active life, and is capable of steady loyalty to whatever she centers her emotion upon.

She is a good judge of conditions, and is quite openminded, so that she has no trouble in assimilating new ideas. She is fond of travel and going places, and she likes pleasure in moderation. Her brows indicate that she has a practical nature, and she will no doubt spend her hundred dollars in a practical manner, with some indication that she may consider the artistic as well.



May Klein

MAY KLEIN, R. 5, Box 110, Waukesha, Wis. Occupation, home girl.

This man is given to intense moods. His nature is full of contradictions. At times he is reasonable, at others he is wilfull and obstinate. His blood is mixed. He is of Celtic and Nordic races.

The Celtic part of his nature gives him quick, variable moods. It is a Celtic trait. But in place of the Celtic good humor and human understanding, that might serve as a balance wheel, he has had substituted the Nordic drive and everlasting push. Nordics act quickly, because they think quickly, but this man acts quickly, while he thinks slowly and moodily.

How can all this be known? It is plain to see. His writing shows that he concentrates poorly, and that he pays little attention to detail. He is inclined to rush at things. His face shows force and stubbornness in the lips, love of action in the profile, ambition in the crown, an introspective outlook on life, a philosophical type of reasoning, a greater love for activity than for study, in all, such a contradiction of traits that the inference is that he is of two bloods, and that the two do not blend together, but one pulls one way and one the other.

The Celtic side of his nature probably predominates. He likes people best. He may spend his money in a social manner, with just a chance that he may consider some mechanical thing.

THE CONDITIONS:

1. The public is invited to submit Photographs to Doris Blake of The Chicago Tribune for Character Analysis. The Chicago Tribune will pay $15,000.00 in cash for photographs and hand-writing specimens which, in the opinion of Doris Blake, reveal the most interesting characters. $1,000.00 will be paid each week in ten cash prizes of $100.00 for each photograph published.
2. The Character Analysis privilege is open to everybody except employes of The Tribune and their families. It does not matter where you live.
3. Any kind of photograph will do—a cabinet photo, a snapshot, a post card, any kind! Quality of the photograph will not be considered. Photographs will be returned after all subjects have been selected if proper postage is enclosed with the photograph.
4. The name, address and occupation of the person must accompany the photograph. When possible, this information should be written in the person's own hand-writing. When photo is sent in as a surprise send along any sample of the person's handwriting.

   A coupon will be published in The Chicago Tribune every Sunday. You may use this or write on a separate sheet of paper of the same form.
5. Photographs should be sent by first class mail to Doris Blake, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois.
6. No photographs will be received after December 17, 1924.

This offer is open to all. It costs you nothing. You do no work. Read the conditions. Send in your photograph and handwriting. You may receive $100.00.

$15,000.00 IN CASH FOR THE BEST CHARACTER REVEALING PHOTOGRAPHS SUBMITTED.

Another set of photographs and character and handwriting analyses will be published in NEXT SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE.

KING VIDOR, when not directing, swings a mean racquet. Notice the critical expression on his face as he inspects the one held out for his inspection. He's made a lot of films, among them "The Woman of Bronze," "Peg o' My Heart," and "Three Wise Fools." The beautiful lady to his right is Florence Vidor, recently separated from him. The husky chap, apparently demonstrating or arguing or something, is Dave Fleming, holder of several French tennisships. —Mae Tinee.

SIDNEY OLCOTT is the man who directed "Monsieur Beaucaire" with Rudolph Valentino. 'Nuff said! WASN'T that a winner? —Mae Tinee.

THE simple tests of childhood have aroused enthusiastic support for Jap Rose Soap in thousands of homes. Because it is so unlike other toilet soaps, Jap Rose has accomplished what orders and entreaties never could achieve — childish pride in voluntary cleanliness.

Both kiddies and big folks love Jap Rose. The distinctive transparent cake looks its purity. The lather is so rich, so profuse, so quick-cleansing and so soothing to the tenderest skin. It leaves absolutely no sediment.

Jap Rose brings softness and lustre to the hair, roses to the cheeks, and a new joy and healthfulness to the bath.

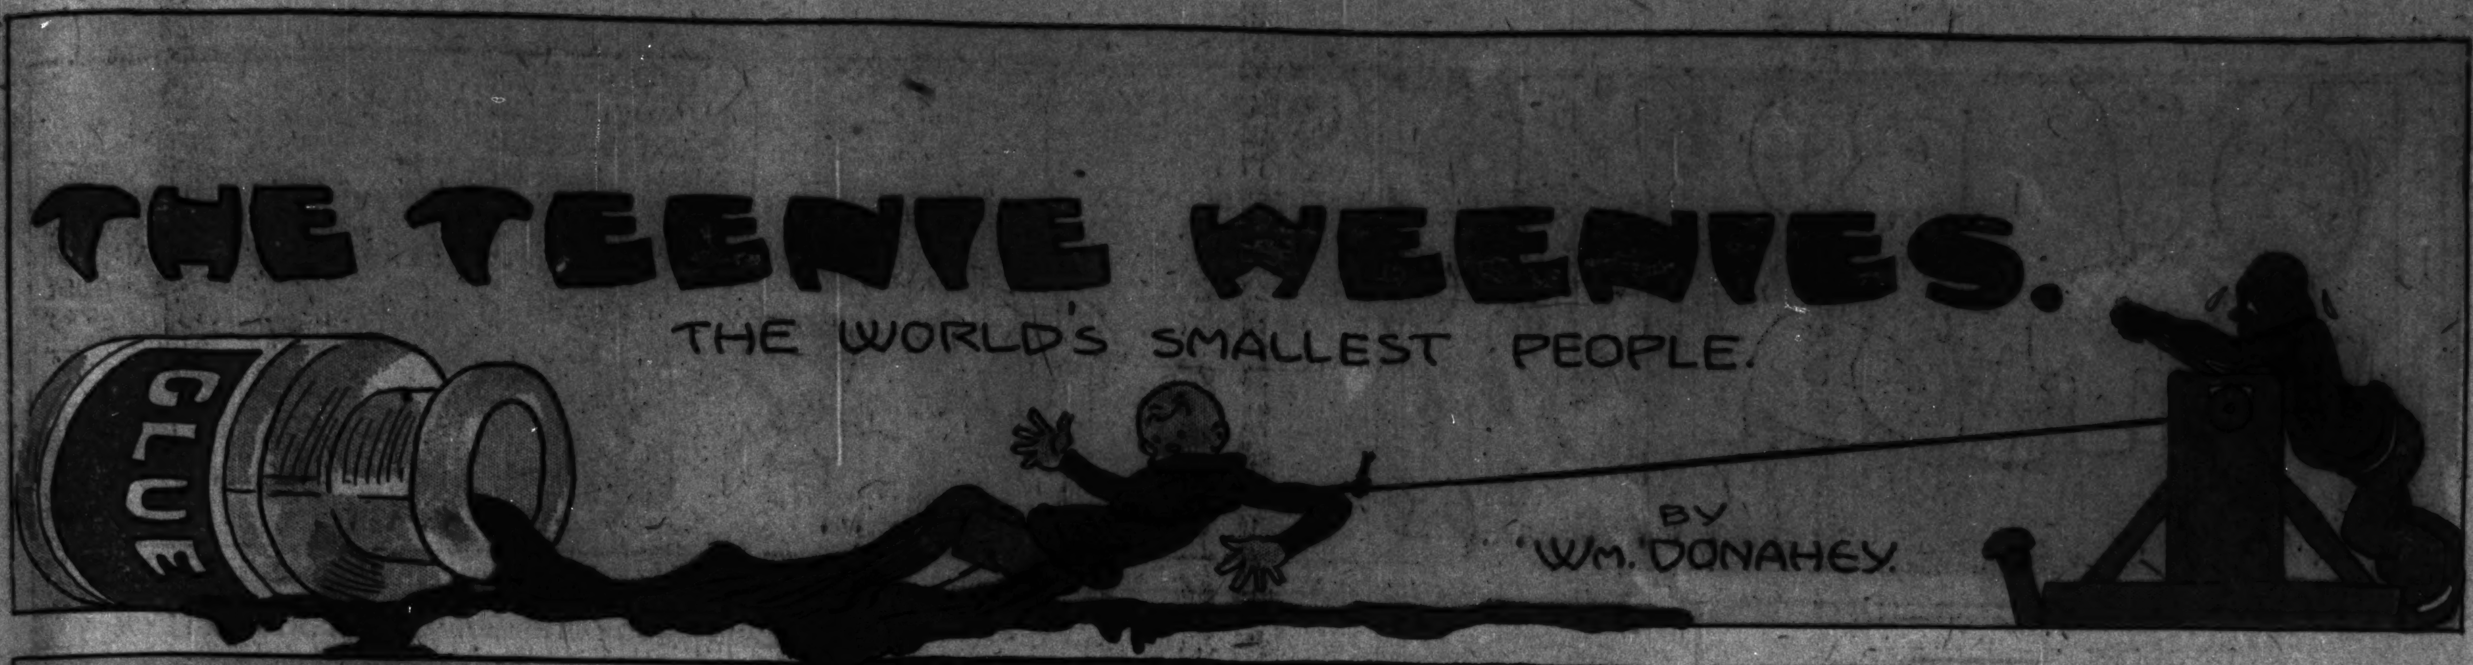
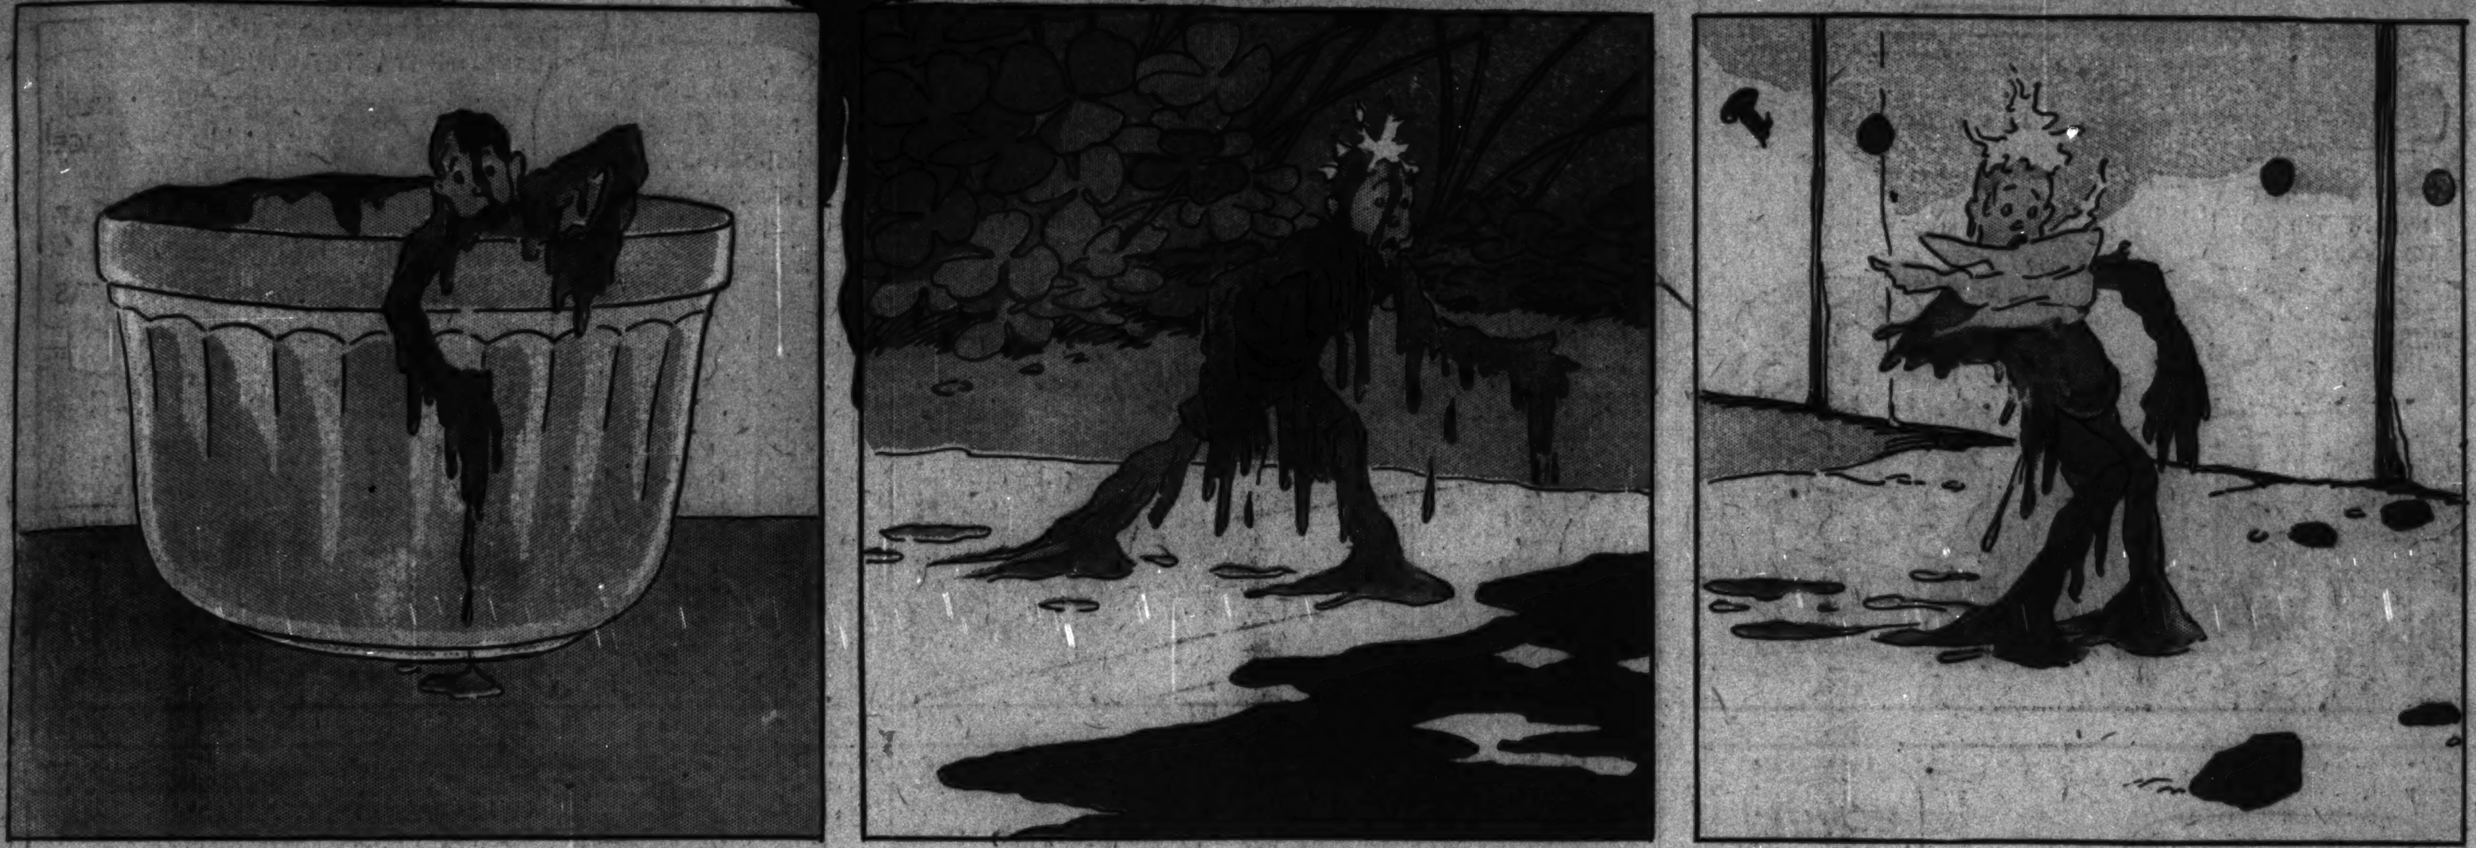
THE TEENIE WEENIES.

THE WORLD'S SMALLEST PEOPLE.

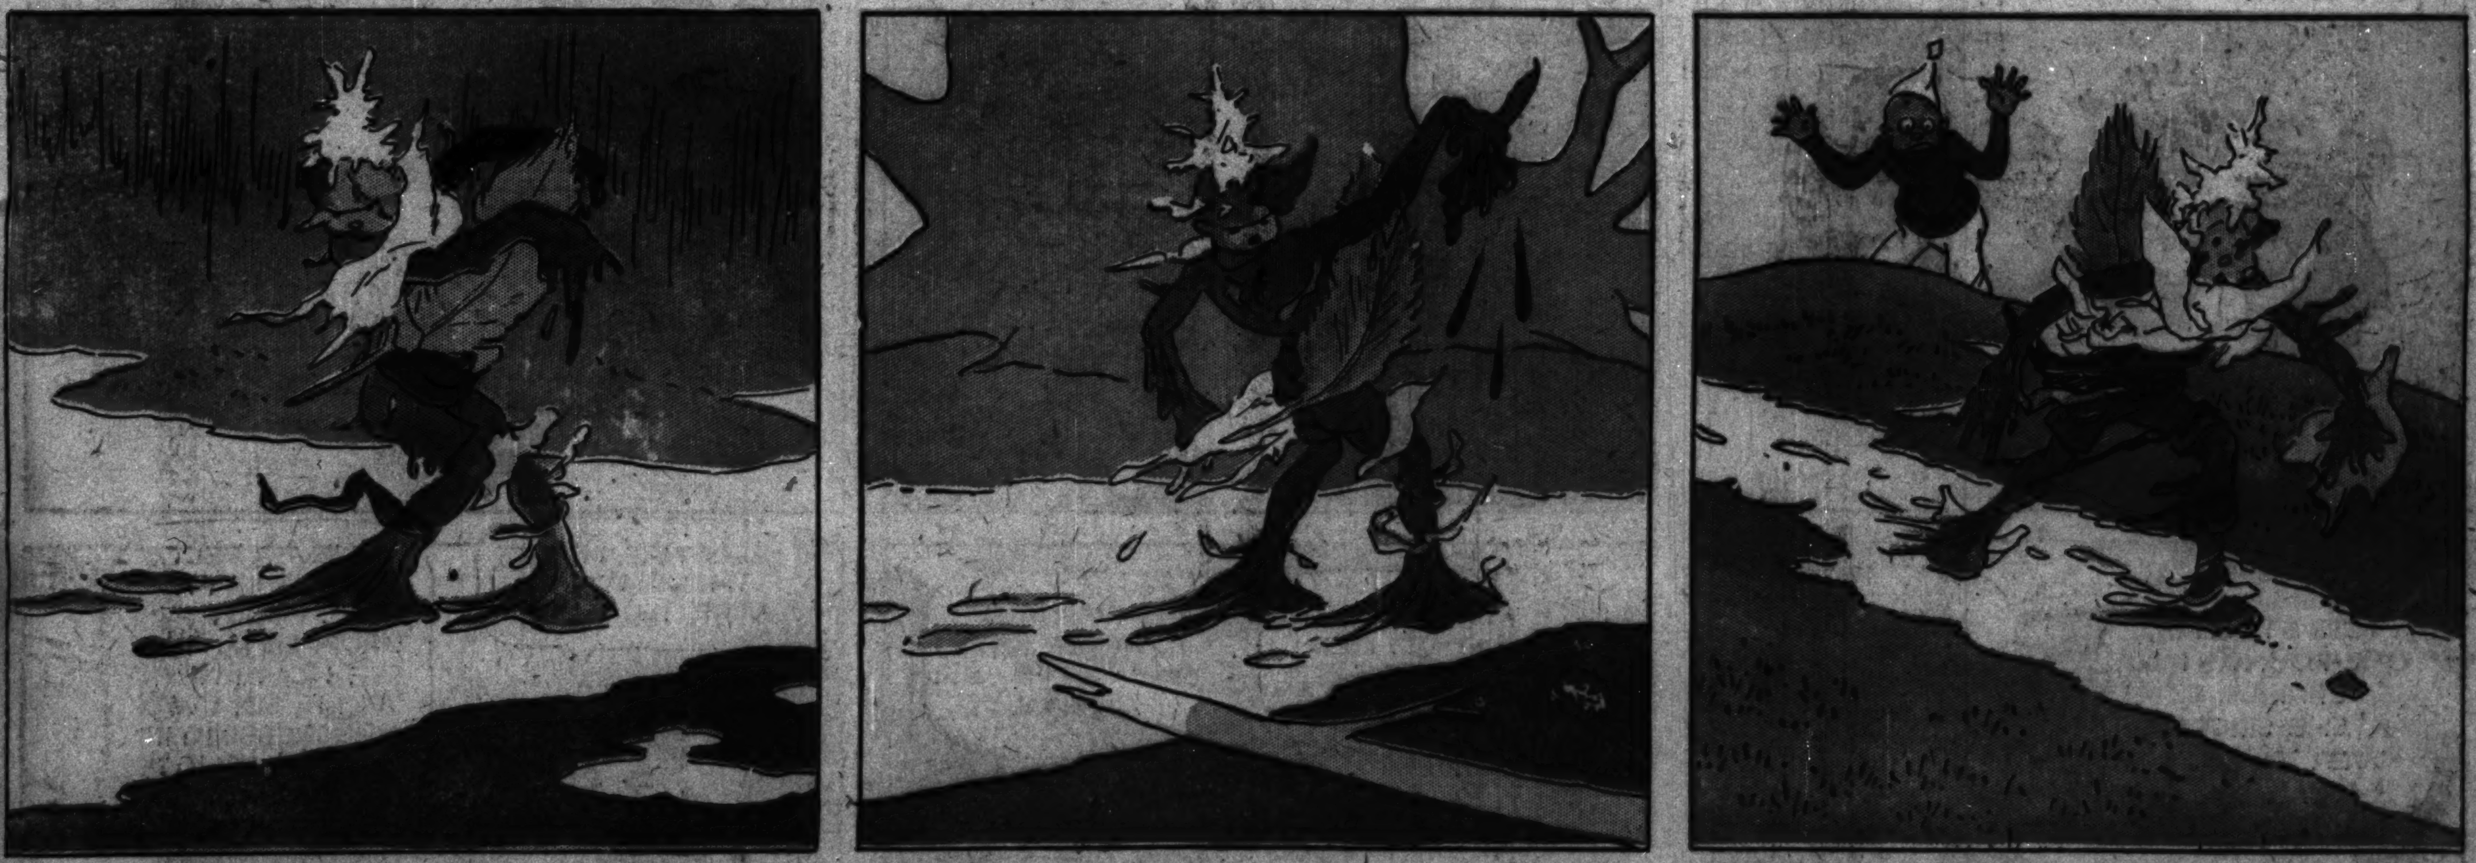
BY Wm. DONAHEY.





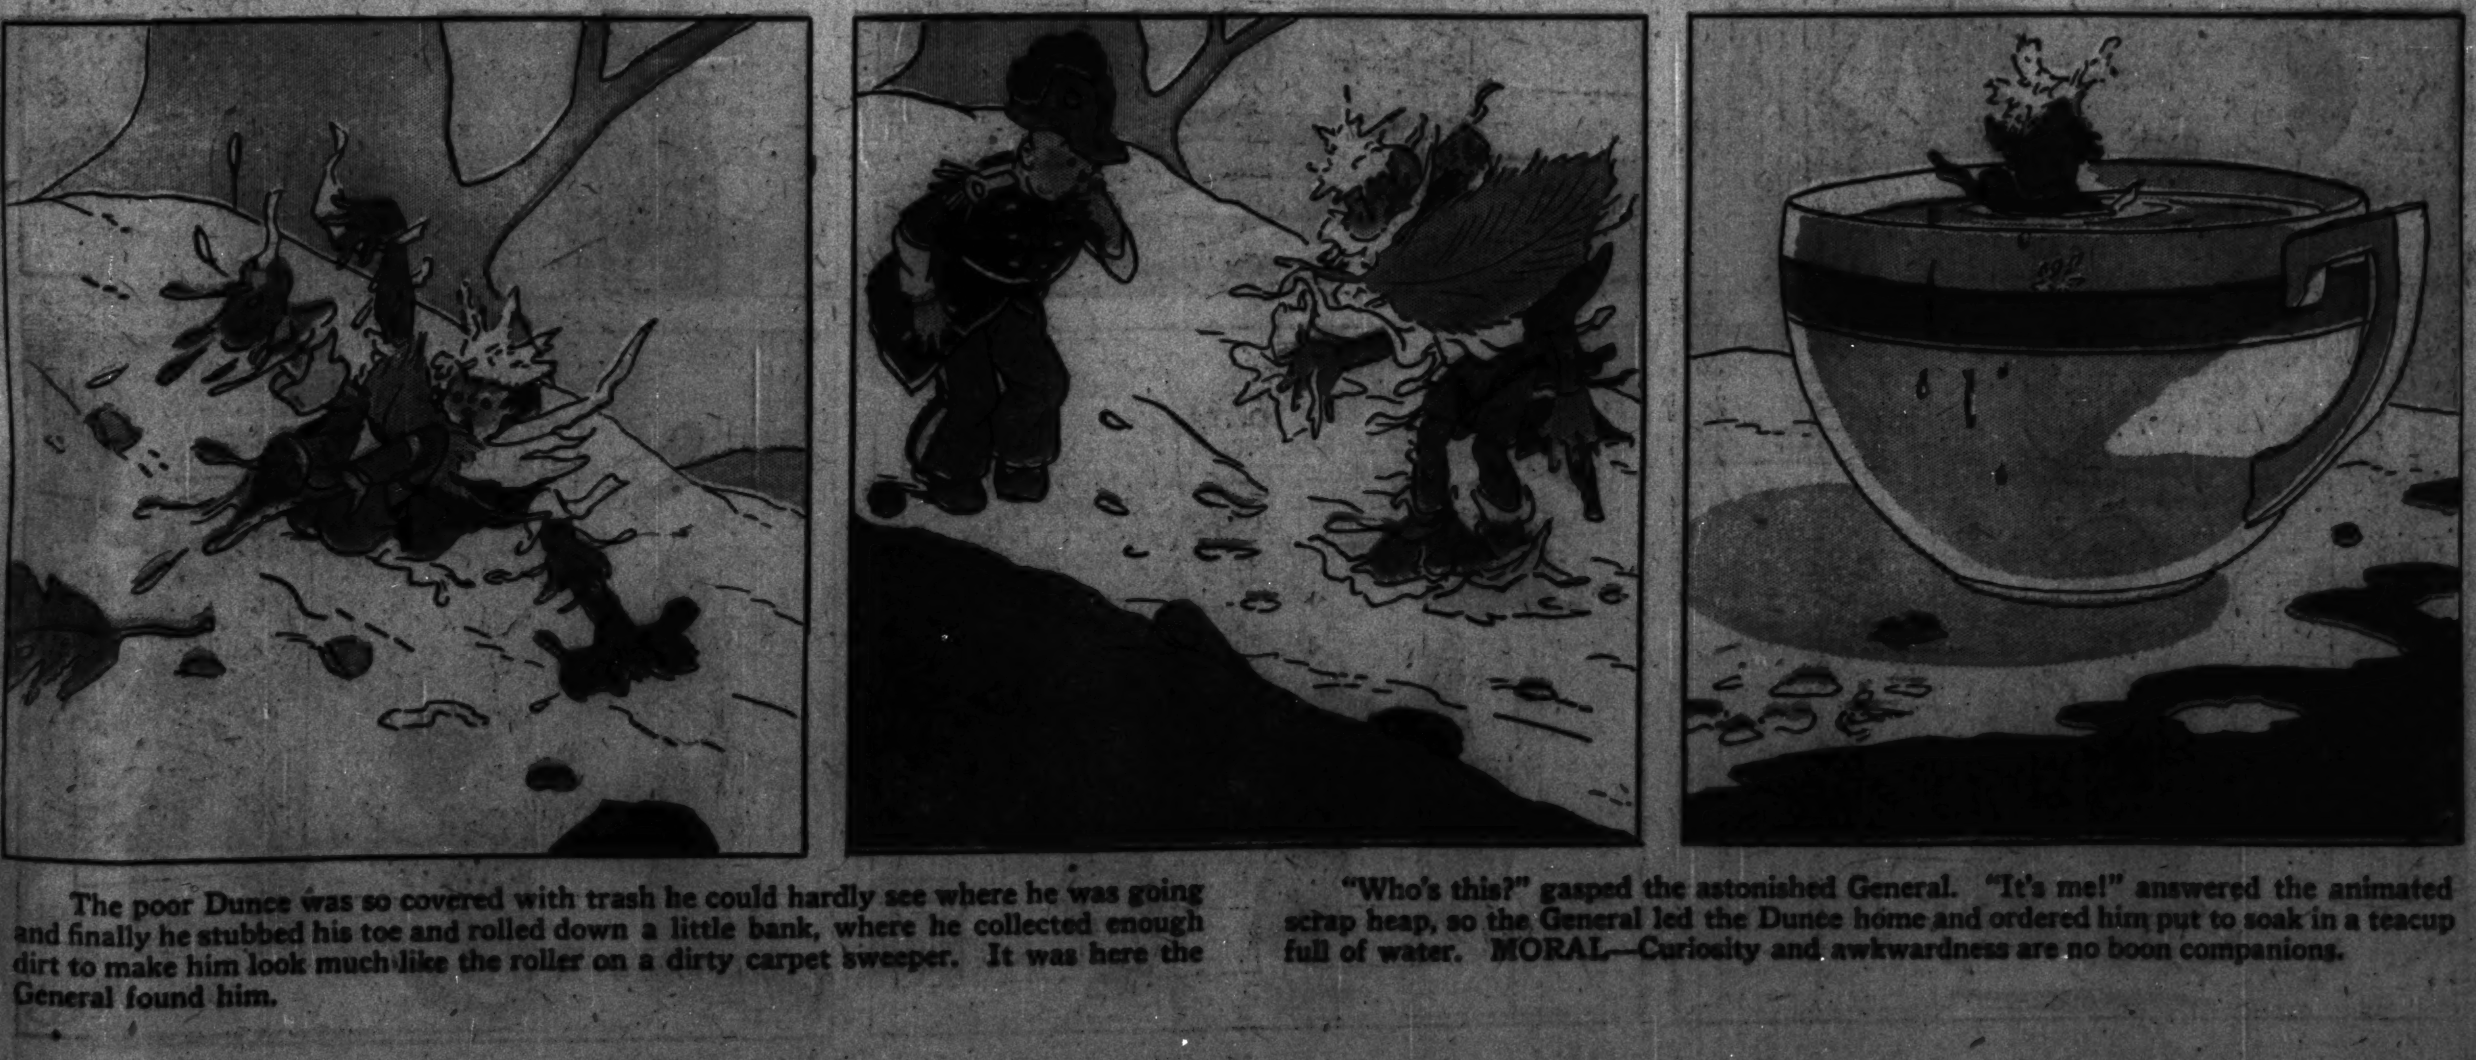
The Dunce's liking for sweet things, his curiosity and his extreme awkwardness often got the little chap into many scrapes. One day he fell into a glass of jam, but that was only the beginning of his troubles, for he was a long ways from home.

There was a gentle wind blowing outside and everything that blew against the tiny fellow stuck to the sticky jam as though it had been nailed to him. A bit of thistledown blew against him—then a bit of paper fastened itself about him.



Next a small chicken feather hit him and it stuck to the sticky Dunce as though it had grown on him. He couldn't pull them off, for they stuck to his hands and the more he tried the worse mess it made, so there was nothing to do but make for home, which he did, collecting small bits along the way.

Presently he grew so bulky he could hardly see where he was going, for all the loose things flying about made a bee line for the sticky chap. He was a terrible looking sight, and Gogo, who chanced to run across him, thought he was a witch—the little colored fellow broke all speed records in getting away.



The poor Dunce was so covered with trash he could hardly see where he was going and finally he stubbed his toe and rolled down a little bank, where he collected enough dirt to make him look much like the roller on a dirty carpet sweeper. It was here the General found him.

"Who's this?" gasped the astonished General. "It's me!" answered the animated scrap heap, so the General led the Dunce home and ordered him put to soak in a teacup full of water. MORAL—Curiosity and awkwardness are no boon companions.
